Armouries, PCVS Deserted, All At Trenton

The Armouries and the Collegiate were like morgues today as practically everyone had left to see the Princess and Duke of Edinburgh in Trenton.

C. S. Browne, principal at PCVS said that in the school at 9:30 a.m. there were only 516 students out of the enrolment of 1,272.

The majority of the students went to Trenton with the army troop train at 8 a.m. The 500 cadets were under the supervision of nine PCVS teacher-cadet instructors.

The more than 300 other students took the day off to be among the 70,000 expected today in Trenton for the Royal visit. These students will also receive their attendance, according to a directive of the Department of Education.

The teachers in school carried on classes with the girls from Grade IX, X and XI, and the students from Grades XII and XIII. Only the boys from the first three grades went with the cadet corps.

Given Instruction

Mr. Browne explained that the students were given as valued instruction as possible under the conditions. The most successful were the French, art and typewriting classes.

A few classes were dismissed during the last morning period if their teacher was away in Trenton.

In the afternoon a special assembly was held, all the pupils in the school attending, and educational movies were shown, including Four Seasons in Gatineau Park and two other movies.

At the Normal School the students were dismissed at 10 a.m. to allow them to attend the Trenton visit.

In the Armouries action was limited to two janitors moving chairs from one floor to the other. Others on staff had left with the 50th HAA Regiment, the 28th Technical Squadron, the PCVS Cadets, the Millbrook HS Cadets, the Lakefield HS Cadets, the Sea Cadets and the Air Cadets.

Get Orders

At 7 a.m. the troops fell in at the armouries square and received their last-minute instructions on their street-lining duties along Trenton's Front St. as far as Nicholas St.

Then the parade moved off led by the 50th Regiment's trumpet band under the direction of Albert Croasdale.

At the CNR station they boarded the troop train from Lindsay where the 4th Field Regiment, the Lindsay Collegiate Cadets and the Fenelon Falls High School Cadets.

The train arrived in Trenton at 11 a.m. and there the soldiers and cadets were given box lunches before they took up their positions at 12:30.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 12—(Reuters) —Belgium's powerful Socialist-led Federation of Labor threatened to call an indefinite strike Oct. 23 unless 450,000 workers are granted a new living bonus. The strike would start Oct. 23 and "last until we obtain what we want," a Federation spokesman said.

Last Court Held But No Speeches

No ceremony marked the final session of police court in the old city building Friday morning.

The police department and court furnishings are being moved to the new City Hall and the next session of police court will be called to order in the coutrooom of the new city hall on Monday.

The last session was a short one. Three charges were read, one was remanded until Monday, the second was withdrawn at request of Crown Attorney J. A. Bradshaw and the third case was adjourned.

"Court is adjourned," declared Magistrate W. R. Philp at 10:20 a.m.

No Speech

"Someone should make a speech" commented court clerk Jim Fleming to Magistrate Philp who smiled but said nothing more.

The few spectators filed quietly out the back door, seemingly unaware they had witnessed the end of an era.

Exactly how long the present courtroom has been used is apparently not known. No one has been willing to name a date but the consensus appears to be that it has been used since the turn of the century.

Apple Growers Get Government Grant

OTTAWA, Oct. 12—(CP)—The government has decided to make a grant of $1,500,000 to apple growers in Nova Scotia and British Columbia, an agriculture department official said today.

He said the grant was "about half" of what the growers had requested in order to bolster "poor returns" on their 1950 crops.

Of the total amount, $1,200,000 will go to British Columbia growers and $300,000 to those in Nova Scotia.

Parliament will be asked to pass a supplementary estimate for that amount near the end of the current session, the official said. Actual payment likely will be made to the growers next spring.

Last year, the government granted the growers a total of $2,000,000—$1,500,000 to British Columbia and $500,000 to Nova Scotia.

Disappointing returns on the 1950 crop were due mainly to poor markets, both domestic and overseas, the official said.

Won't Be Revalued

CANBERRA, Oct. 12 — (AP)— A government source said today the Australian pound will not be revalued in terms of the United States dollar. It now is worth $2.24, but there have been persistent reports it would be revalued upwards. It was devalued in September, 1949, from $3.22 in order to maintain the same ratio it had with the British pound before the latter was devalued from $4.03 to $2.80.

Board May Place Traffic Guards At 3 Corners

The Board of Education is considering placing temporary traffic guards at three intersections that are dangerous for school children.

At the October meeting Thursday night the matter was left in the hands of the supervision committee with power to act.

Previously the board and a group of parents had asked the Police Commission to place guards at three traffic points: Park and Lansdowne Sts., Wolsley St. and the Chemong Rd., and Mark and Hunter Sts. But the commission turned down the requests.

A reason given for the refusal was the commission could not afford to hire more traffic guards. And the commission also felt they could not appoint more guards without giving them the status of constables.

Moreover, the problem of who is responsible for appointing traffic guards to look after school children has not been decided.

Police Job?

At the commission meeting the members thought this was properly the job of the board. And the trustees Thursday night said it should be done by the commission, or at least in the great majority of cities it comes under the police department.

W. B. Gordon said something must be done at once. The Lansdowne intersection is particularly dangerous.

"The commission's decision is very unfortunate," said G. Wilson Craw, "because the lives of a good many children are involved. But if they (i.e. the commission) are not going to do it, looks as though we'll have to do it ourselves."

"Stoplights in themselves are not sufficient," said Mr. Gordon, "especially when cars are making a right turn. If the Police Commission hasn't the money, I think we'll have to find part-time guards to take over."

Mrs. Paige Rowell enquired if this meant to the end fo the year only. And several trustees commented that it was only a temporary measure, unil the Police Commission gets more funds.

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, said he knew of no other city where the Board of Education was required to appoint guards.

Consult St. Anne's

M. J. Collins said that a number of Separate school children are involved at the Chemong Rd. crossing. And he thought some agreement could be reached between the St. Anne's School Board and the Board of Education.

About 75 children are making the crossing there four times daily —half of them St. Anne's pupils.

Mr. Collins also said the Separate School Board was now making a survey of crossings in the city.

Future action was then placed in the hands of the supervision committee.

Trenton's Smart RCAF Demonstration Captures Praise Of Royal Visitors

Say Princess Thrilled At Toronto

Half Million People Jam Route In Fantastic Welcome

TORONTO, Oct. 13. (CP)—Fantastic! Even veteran reporters were saying that today about the Toronto welcome that embraced and engulfed the Royal couple Friday. There were 18 miles of it, miles of humanity that rolled up into an estimated total of more than 500,000 people and climaxed in scenes before City Hall that sent some 80 persons away on stretchers.

Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, hardly able to believe what they saw, told intimates they were thrilled, that never had they seen what they saw here.

Royal tour reporters agreed that it dwarfed anything they had seen in the previous five days.

It dazed 3,000 police who said they had never anticipated anything like this.

It left officials long used to great occasions convinced that it even dwarfed the royal visit of 1939.

It boomed well beyond 1,200,000 the number of Canadians who have seen the royal couple since their arrival at Montreal Monday.

Santa Claus Piker

It even made Santa Claus look like a piker. Police said the Princess outdrew Toronto's famed annual Santa Claus parade at least two to one.

And it left police wondering what it will be like today when the little Princess and her dashing sailor husband embark on a day of 10 events that once again takes them through miles of streets on a tiring 12-hour schedule that begins with a visit to a huge gathering of school children and ends with an official dinner attended by 900 of Toronto's social elite.

Crowds' Welcome Warms Heart Of Tired Princess

By JIM ENGLISH

TRENTON, Oct. 13.—To the sullen booming of a 21-gun Royal salute, and the slap-bang of the "present arms," a charming young woman and her consort were welcomed Friday to the RCAF station at Trenton.

A brilliant fall day was the weather's salute to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. Bright sunlight and no clouds at all belied the cloudy forecast offered Thursday for Friday's weather.

In the minds of the 70,000 people who lined the parade route and ringed the parade square at the air station, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh became real people at last. For, in the weeks before their arrival in Canada, newspaper stories and pictures had made them seem like storybook folk.

The Princess seemed tired. She smiled infrequently and her face was white. But when she did smile, she was indeed the gracious woman the crowds had read of. The Duke's smile was easy and infectious.

The visit to the air station was a switch to the military from the civilian. Receptions, dinners and other celebrations that have attended the royal couple's visit since their disembarkation on Canadian soil, have almost all been civilian. Friday's visit—the only one to be made to an RCAF station in this tour—marked the change.

Find Watchers Awed, Not Noisy

The watchers were not noisy; their cheering was restrained, and they gazed with something like awe on a Princess—prettier than her pictures—who would some day be their queen.

From the railway station at the north end of Trenton, to the highway leading to the airfield, the sidewalks were packed solidly with people who had been choosing vantage points as early as 9 a.m. on Friday.

To be sure that children of the town and surrounding district had a good view of the Royal visitors, authorities roped off a dozen areas along the parade route for school children, Girl Guides and Boy Scouts.

There was no room to walk on the sidewalks of the parade route, and intersecting streets were twice barricaded, once by the police and once by the people watching.

People Jammed Shoulder To Shoulder

Along the shoulders of the highway leading east to the airfield, the people stood jammed shoulder to shoulder.

At the airfield, the crowd was not large. RCAF officials had purposely kept it to a minimum (there were probably 10,000) for easier handling. Reserved seats around the parade square were mostly taken by families of service personnel who were on duty.

Some of them had claimed their seats before 10 o'clock Friday morning. They chose to wait nearly five hours rather than risk having a less satisfactory viewpoint.

As it turned out, most of the many people who temporarily swelled the little lakeshore town's population had a good view of the Princess and the Duke, although a few said they were unable to see anything of them.

Have To Cut Parade Short

The parade through the town was briefer than expected, as the Royal entourage was late starting and could not keep to the eight-miles-an-hour speed called for by their schedule.

At the railway station, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke had been met by Trenton's mayor Kenneth Couch, who presented 40 Trenton and district residents to the Royal couple. Delay in the embarkation from the station was said to be the reason for the speeded-up drive through the town.

As the entourage neared the airfield, the commander of the guard ordered eight fanfare trumpeters to sound the "Still." The long silver trumpets were decorated with air force blue squares of silk fringed with bold and bearing the RCAF crest.

Then, there was a brief hush as the air force blue convertible bearing the Royal couple entered the parade square through the wrought-iron gates to the north. These gates were the gift of the commonwealth nations to Canada, a memorial to the Commonwealth Air Training Plan carried out in this country during World War Two.

Six red-coated RCMP officers on motorcycles flanked the Royal car and led it slowly to the front of the royal blue dais at the southern edge of the parade square.

Army Battery Fires Royal Salute

As the car crossed the square, guns of an army battery boomed out the royal salute of 21 guns. One Peterborough gun crew took part in the firing of the salute. At the same time, the guard of honor presented arms with the heavy slap of many hands against gunstocks sounding as one.

Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Slemon, CB, CBE, greeted the Royal couple and the entire group in and around the parade square faced the colors as the Royal salute was played by the band of the Trenton air station.

In company with Flight-Lieutenant J. M. Wicken the Princess inspected the guard of honor drawn up in open

Hand Over Suez Garrisons If Egypt Joins Pact - Britain

LONDON, Oct. 13. (Reuters)—Britain will hand over her garrisons in the Suez Canal zone to international control if Egypt agrees to become a member of the proposed Middle-East command, it was authoritatively stated here today. The four powers sponsoring the proposals—Britain, the United States, France and Turkey—invited Egypt today to become the fifth founding member of the command on a basis of full equality and partnership. Foreign Minister Mohammed Salah El Din Pasha, whose government this week denounced its defence alliance with Britain and is threatening to throw 10,000 British troops out of the Suez Canal area, received the proposal.

The defence set-up for the Middle East had been agreed on by foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty powers at their session in Ottawa last month. They were worried about the effect of defences of seething Nationalist discontent in the Middle East.

Salah El Din told reporters his acceptance of the proposals amounted to "nothing more than acknowledgment of receipt" under customary diplomatic procedure.

Separate Plan

(In London, a Foreign Office spokesman said Britain had also submitted a separate proposal on the Sudan to Egypt. The spokesman declined to reveal its contents.

(Britain recently reaffirmed its stand that the Sudanese people should have a voice in deciding

Captured Red Officer Says Korean Army Wiped Out

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Oct. 13. (AP)—A captured North Korean officer today told United Nations' intelligence officers "the North Korean army now is practically non-existent." His statement came as infantrymen of the United States 23rd Infantry Regiment scorched out the last 35 Korean Reds holed up on bunkers on the slopes of the northernmost peak of Heartbreak ridge. A pooled dispatch from the front said the mopping-up action was one of the bitterest of the Korean war.

All across Korea fighting exploded to an extent unequalled since the Reds' offensive last May was crushed.

UN Planes Killed Brother Korean Says

MUNSAN, Korea, Oct. 13 (AP).—A 15-year-old Korean boy today told United Nations' investigators his 12-year-old brother was shot and killed Friday by strafing UN warplanes on the fringe of the Kaesong neutrality zone.

His story was designed to support the latest Communist charge of neutrality-zone violation by the allies. The charge Friday jolted hopes for an early resumption of armistice talks.

AP correspondent Robert B. Tuckman, who accompanied the UN liaison officers in their investigation of the charge, said "correspondents at Pamunjom generally felt the Communists had presented enough tangible evidence to back up their case — although there still were enough unknown factors to make a clean-cut opinion impossible.

Red and UN liaison officers scheduled another meeting for Sunday morning at 10 a.m. (8 p.m. Saturday, EST) in a new effort to get the stalled talks going again.

Dollar Exports Down For UK

LONDON, Oct. 13 —(CP)—A sharp fall in Britain's dollar exports gave new urgency today to growing talk of another financial crisis.

Preliminary trade figures for September show that exports to Canada fell to £8,500,000 from the August level of £14,300,000—the lowest figure this year and only 54 per cent of the peak value reached in July.

Exports to the United States, at £9,600,600, were £3,300,000 below the previous month's value.

These figures, announced Friday night by the board of trade, bring Britain's trade gap to £927,500,000 for the first nine months of 1951. The gap is simply the excess of imports over exports.

Financial writers here are consistently gloomy about Britain's prospects. Whoever wins the Oct. 25 election, it is widely felt, will have their hands full preventing a crisis equally as severe as those of 1947 and 1949.

An aspect of the present situation stressed by commentators in business journals and by financial editors is that this time other countries in the sterling area are accumulating large sterling balances for which they will soon be demanding something in return.

It is estimated that Britain now is spending about £400,000,000 a year more than she earns.

80 HELD IN COUP

CARACAS, Venezuela, Oct. 13 —(AP)—Eighty persons were reported arrested today following a government announcement that "terrorist elements" tried unsuccessfully Friday night to assassinate Venezuela's three-man military junta.

Trenton Gay For Welcome To Royal Couple; Crowds Waited For Hours

By T. J. ALLEN

The town of Trenton put on a gay, homely red-white-and-blue face for the Princess and her Duke and the thousands of visitors that crowded into it Friday. Bunting, flags, paper streamers and "Welcome" signs (including many amateur devices) decked houses, porches and front yards. From the junction station at the north, Stirling road, end of the town where the royal train arrived at 2:30 p.m. to the eastern Highway No. 2 end towards the RCAF station, Trenton was a flutter of frippery. Even weatherbeaten warehouse fences and old wooden sheds were partly covered.

Visitors were beginning to park in their cars as early as 10:30 a.m. on side streets and front lawns where thrifty householders rented parking space at prices ranging from 50 cents to a dollar. Improvised sandwich and soft drink stands were open for business from early morning. One booth was charging 20 cents for hot dogs. A home and school association had a booth which did not take advantage of the inflationary mood of the day: milk was five cents a glass and sandwiches 10 cents.

Peterborough Takes Part

By 11 am the Peterborough city police detachment of six officers had arrived at the police station at the main intersection for briefing, dozens and dozens of provincial were milling around, and outside the station in the square the Havelock Pipe Band was warming up.

The Havelock pipe band was one of three which entertained the crowds before and after the princely cavalcade passed, and played during the procession. The other two were the Peterborough Salvation Army and the Trenton Citizens Band.

Rescue Women Trapped By Fire

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 (CP)—Firemen carried two women down extension ladders to safety early today as a two-alarm fire gutted the Athens Grill on downtown Bank Street doing damage estimated at $50,000.

Mrs. John Hiotinis and Winnifred Poisson were trapped in a second-storey apartment by the fast-spreading flames in the restaurant below. Firemen quickly hoisted an extension ladder and carried the two women to the street.

Seconds after they were rescued the flames broke through the apartment floor.

Mrs. Hiotinis, wife of the restaurant proprietor, said she awoke about 4 a.m. to hear a "cracking noise" downstairs. Opening a door, she was faced by a wall of flame and smoke and slammed it shut.

Cost Of Living Debate Likely

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 — (CP) — Demands for government action to halt the rise in living costs are expected to be heard Monday when debate on the speech from the throne is launched in the Commons by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

Mr. Drew will be followed by Prime Minister St. Laurent, M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader.

The way for the party leaders to participate in the debate was cleared Friday when the traditional motion for adoption of an address in reply to the speech from the throne was moved and seconded. The mover was Robert Cauchon (L., Beauharnois) and the seconder J. A. Simmons (L., Yukon-Mackenzie River).

Post Office Shows Deficit

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 — (CP). — The Post Office Department showed a deficit in the year ended March 31, 1951, for the first time since 1939, it was reported Friday in the Department's annual report, tabled in the Commons.

The deficit was $1,326,788, with total revenue $105,545,456 from all sources and total expenditure $106,872,245. It compared with a surplus of $1,888,914 the previous year.

The report noted that "continued increase in the costs of operation had resulted in a steady worsening of the Department's financial position." The surplus has dwindled steadily from a peak of $12,585,910 in 1943-1944.

"As it was realized this situation could not be allowed to continue," the report added, "arrangements were made during the year for a number of adjustments in rates, effective last April 2, which it is expected will bring the revenues more closely into line with the actual costs of the service rendered."

7 Canadian-Built Ships Now Hiding In Red China

HONG KONG, Oct. 14 (CP)—Seven Chinese-owned ships flying the Canadian flag and built with Canadian money today were hiding from their creditor behind Communist China's watery curtain.

The ships' crews were reported to be detaining them for fear of seizure in lieu of a payment of their $12,000,000 debt to Canada.

Privately-owned Ming Sung Industrial Co. had the passenger vessels built in 1945 under credit arrangements guaranteed by nationalist China and Canada. When the Chinese civil war sent the Nationalist regime packing to Formosa, the Canadian government took over the debt.

The Ming Sung Company has since been operating cargo runs out of Hong Kong to Communist-held Canton.

Ming Sung's Canton office telephoned Hong Kong Friday night that the ships were being detained. It blamed the action on "crew members who protested further sailing until Canada reconsiders her attitude "on repaying the loan."

The company claims it has met its obligations so far, but has been asking more favorable terms for the remainder of the debt.

(It was learned in Ottawa Thursday that the Ming Sung Company defaulted on the initial $1,275,000 payment of the loan, and that Canada would have to make it good to the three Canadian banks which jointly extended the credit.)

The company said that Canada cannot do much about collecting the debt as long as the ships stay in Communist waters.

Dutiful Wife

TORONTO, Oct. 13. (CP)—The Duke of Edinburgh is a solicitous husband and Princess Elizabeth, a dutiful wife. The air was chilly as they were about to drive off Friday from Malton Airport and the Duke was overheard to say as she stepped into the limousine: "It's cold here. Tuck your feet in, dear." The Princess did so, wrapping a thick rug about her legs.

Dumps Stolen Chemical Foam Fills Apartment

PARIS, Oct. 13 — (Reuters)—Laboratory assistant Robert Corniliaud poured a bottle of stolen chemicals down the toilet Thursday night and to his horror saw it grow into a mountain of foam which soon filled the bathroom and ran into the rest of his apartment.

All night he fought the bubbling stream, shovelling away with a spade. His only success was a tell-tale mound of froth in the street outside. It attracted a policeman and led to Corniliaud's arrest for stealing the bottled genii, known as dihydrostreptomycin.

The stuff, worth about $1,800 a bottle, is a by-product of streptomycin, and Corniliaud, 27, had lifted it from his employer thinking it was penicillin. He wanted to sell the drug to pay for an operation his wife had undergone.

But scientists discussing the theft said dihydrostreptomycin was dangerous, and Corniliaud overheard them. He tried to dispose of his loot, and it bubbled up on contact with the open air.

Train Schedule Remains Until Spring

"The present revised CPR train schedules between Peterborough and Toronto stand until spring."

This statement was made today by James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, in reporting the results of a discussion with W. D. Buchanan, general passenger agent for the CPR re the new schedules.

Mr. Fraser reported Mr. Buchanan as explaining that the 7 a.m. train from Peterborough wasn't carrying enough passengers to make it pay and it was decided to try the later 8:00 a.m. departure to see if more passenger business could be obtained.

The general passenger agent assured Mr. Fraser that the matter would again come under consideration in the spring and action will follow if a need is shown.

Mr. Fraser said that he was shown actual daily passenger figures for the 7 a.m. train for different periods during the past year and that there was much room for improvement in the number of passengers.

Mr. Buchanan explained that the change in the evening departure train from Toronto to Peterborough had been changed from 6:30 to 7:15 p.m. to more effectively insure connections from west of Toronto.

Mr. Fraser also reported today that he had suggested to Mr. Buchanan that the next time changes were made, the CPR might use the service of the Chamber to gain a consensus of the industrialists, businessmen and professional men of Peterborough.

Expect King Convalesce At Windsor

LONDON, Oct. 13—(CP)—The King may soon be ready to start his convalescence after his serious lung operation, it was learned Friday.

He may leave his room in Buckingham Palace for his Windsor estate, 22 miles away, any time after this weekend.

His five doctors Friday issued their first bulletin in five days and the 19th since his Sept. 23 operation saying: "During the past five days the King has continued to make uninterrupted progress."

The bulletin gave no further details but it was believed the doctors were fully satisfied about the absence of any complications during the post-operative period, usually fraught with danger in lung resection.

Since the operation the King has been confined to his room in the palace. Shortly after his operation medical bulletins were issued twice a day. But they became less frequent as the King's condition improved.

Out Of Bed

Recent reports were that the King is well enough to get out of bed at lunchtime and is impatient for more activity than his doctors think advisable.

Lt.-Gen. Frank Berryman, chief organizer of the tour, said Friday before leaving for Australia that "the King is making a remarkable recovery."

The Royal lodge overlooking Windsor forest now is being prepared. It is near enough for regular vistis by the King's doctors.

Later he may go for a long sea cruise.

His whole period of convalescence however, may not be spent at Windsor because a higher altitude is considered preferable for convalescence to the low-lying land of the King's parkland estate.

EUROPE BOUND—Members of the 43rd Division offer a final salute to the United States as they parade through Norfolk, Va., before sailing for duty in Europe. High-ranking officers of the Army and Navy reviewed the 4,500 men of the Division before they sailed.

Ontario Plowmen Take Top Prizes

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 13 (CP)—Two Ontario plowmen from York County carried off the major prizes—free trips to Britain—at the 38th International Plowing Match which ended Friday.

Eighteen-year-old Eugene Timbers of Milliken, who won the horse plowing competition, comes from a plowing family that has won several major awards at international matches. He was coached by his father, Ed Timbers.

Winner in the tractor plowing class was Norman Tyndall, 24, of Richmond Hill, who is president of the York County Junior Farmers Association. He headed a list of 28 entrants in the test.

A third trip winner—this one of the international Livestock Exposition in Chicago—was Elmer Erb of Millbank. He carried off the prize for the inter-county competition with tractors.

"What you have done in the last four days will have its effect on people all over Canada," he told an audience of 1,750. He said the match emphasized that good plowing is essential to good farming.

MORE ABOUT—

Say Princess

For the royal couple it will be hard to surpass Friday.

Because it was their longest and most triumphant day. It was a day that started not in Toronto but 275 miles to the east and took them through scenes of greeting in five smaller cities that were lavish in themselves. It lasted 15 hours.

Cornwall, Brockville, Kingston, Belleville and Trenton poured forth more than 200,000 people to wave flags, to cheer and shout and, at Brockville, to break through police lines.

To that, lesser places such as Morrisburg, Prescott and Picton added other thousands even though there were no stops of the royal train and at the best they could only see the royal couple waving from the observation platform.

Use Superlatives

They reached Toronto and landed at Malton airport at 4:57 p.m.

What happened from there on had reporters dusting off their strongest superlatives.

It began without any unusual spectacle—possibly 5,000 spectators, a guard of honor, a welcome by Lieutenant-Governor Ray Lawson and Premier Frost, the thunder of a 21-gun salute.

But it soon began to snowball as the cavalcade of long black cars moved southward towards the city of 700,000.

They drove first in an open convertible because the Princess wanted the people to see. The Prince told her she should keep warm and wrapped a rug around her.

As night came on and daylight surrendered to dusk and dusk to darkness and a moon came up, they drove slowly behind the escort of red-coated mounties on motorcycles.

There were people for miles along the route.

Just Creeping

There were so many people that the Royal visitors told the driver to go slower and slower until they were creeping along. It got cold and as the darkness strengthened they shifted to a closed car so the lights could be on them and show them to the people.

Some people later said the lights weren't on and that they could hardly see the Princess at all, but their complaints were lost in a wall of shouts that went up as the car moved into the city, up through cavernous Bay Street and into City Hall square.

The scenes in front of City Hall were what veteran reporters could only describe as fantastic.

Like Hollywood Setting

The shouting, clamorous enthusiasm that rolled up from at least 70,000 throats, the Princess smiling as she has seldom smiled before on her tour, the Prince, keeping his usual position a few feet back of her, the giant blue-and-red decorations, the great lights that blazed down and turned the whole, seething scene into a Hollywood-like extravaganza.

Then the Royal couple went into the City Hall to sign the visitors' register and something happened that summed up the whole bewildering impact of the day.

Couldn't Remember Date

The Princess couldn't remember the date when she went to write her name. The Mayor had to tell her.

A few hours later they went to a private dinner given for them in the Ontario Parliament Buildings by the Lieutenant-Governor. There were 25 guests and they ate French dishes at Elizabeth's request.

The Princess wore a white satin evening dress, an ermine wrap, a diamond bracelet; the Prince civilian evening dress with decorations.

When they came out, it was about 11 pm, and 5,000 people were waiting on the Legislature's grounds to cheer them all over again and to sing one final song for the day: "God Save the King."

Truck Hits Girl Crossing Street

Five-year-old Dianne Wilson of 814 Water St., received a slight concussion and bruises when struck by a truck on Water St., just north of Inverlea St., at 1.15 Friday afternoon.

James Reid of 14 Mill St., driver of the truck told police the girl ran into the path of his truck from the east side of Water St.

According to bystanders, there was a bus parked just north of Inverlea St. which may have obstructed the child's view.

Mrs. Wilson Turner of 800 Water St., Harry Blewett Lakefield and Richard O'Brien of 302 Swanston St., who saw the accident agreed that the driver swerved to try and avoid hitting the girl and that he was not exceeding the speed limit.

The injured girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wilson. She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where she was attended by Dr. Leslie J. Calvert.

Constable Cecil Bowyer investigated.

Collegiate Girls Score Scoop

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP). — If you were an embryo newspaperwoman aged 16 and practically got onto the platform where the officials doings were going on, would you call that a scoop?

Lenore Woollings asked the question today.

Lenore and Audrey Aquilina, also 16, wanted to "write something" for their East York Collegiate students' newspaper. They stationed themselves in the main entrance of Toronto's city hall at 2 p.m. yesterday—four hours before Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh were due to arrive.

Said Lenore: "Whenever anyone came up to ask who we were, we wouldn't say. We'd just start asking him questions and then he would go away."

While the official press corps, each man and woman armed with two special passes, was shooed into a special box well away from the reception dais, Lenore and Audrey stood for the entire ceremony right behind the dais, not more than 10 feet from the Royal couple.

Said Lenore: "She's really lovely when you get up real close. Would you call that a scoop?"

Yes, Lenore, it was a clean beat.

Ocean Cable Needed For Clearer Phoning

LONDON—(CP) — British engineers hope some day to lay a special cable across the Atlantic which will make trans-Atlantic telephone calls as clear as one from the next block.

The cable would free Atlantic telephone services of the dependency on atmospheric conditions which often interfere with radio-telephone facilities.

Engineers working for the British post office, which controls communications, feel they are gradually overcoming their difficulties. Next year the first deep-water submerged repeater cable is to be laid between Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, a cable distance of about 700 miles.

Eestimates here differ on when the Atlantic cable may be a reality. Some say 10 to 20 years, others much sooner in event of an emergency. The cost would be something like £7,500,000.

Capture Red

The North Korean officer gave principal credit to Allied artillery, which pounded Red positions on Heartbreak Ridge unmercifully for weeks.

Another captured officer said his division of 4,000 men suffered 2,000 casualties in killed or wounded in the 30-day battle for Heartbreak Ridge and had been sent only 500 replacements.

Fight To Last

The last of the Reds on Heartbreak's northernmost peak had holed up in the suicide bunkers, determined to fight to the last.

The last three bunkers were cleared by flame-thrower and grenade attack at 5:30 pm.

On the central front three Allied divisions drove 1½ miles toward Kumsong along a 22-mile front. The US 24th Division and two South Korean Divisions made the push.

Tanks and artillery backed the drive against the Reds' main supply depot and headquarters for central and eastern Korea.

On the western front, a battalion of the US 7th Regiment was shattered and cut up by waves of attacking Chinese Reds southwest of Yonchon.

A regiment rescued remnants of the battalion, but only after loss of ground some 35 miles north of Seoul.

The Eighth Army communique Saturday said an estimated battalion of Reds attacked the First Commonwealth Division west of Yonchon. The Communists were thrown back.

Mayor Discreet Man Takes No Chance

BUFFALO, NY, Oct. 13 (AP)—The greetings of the city were extended to the state convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union Thursday night by the city budget director, who said Mayor Joseph Mruk had "a previous engagement."

The Rev. William H. Tempest, Council of Churches, then told vice-president of the Buffalo the delegates that a newspaper clipping might explain why, as he put it, "the mayor didn't dare come personally."

The clipping: "National Wine Week, which will be observed nationally Oct. 13-20, was proclaimed today by Mayor Mruk."

Houde Aids Hospital With Radio Marathon

MONTREAL — (CP) — Mayor Camillien Houde gave a children's hospital campaign here a $25,000 shot in the arm with a nine-hour marathon radio show.

Mayor Houde acted as disc jockey on a nine-hour program in French and more than $25,000 was promised by listeners before he ended. During the effort he changed shirts four times, drank eight soft drinks, and consumed a great quantity of hot dogs and sandwiches.

In addition to the cash pledges, more than 1,000 voluntary workers were obtained by the stint. During the show, Mayor Houde did not make a direct appeal for funds as the purpose of the broadcast was to make the campaign known and enlist workers. Ste. Justine Hospital, which received the assistance, enters the last stretch of a drive for $4,000,000 from Montreal and district.

Well-known figures in radio, sport, business and the newspaper world appeared to assist the mayor in the program.

Welsh Heiress Turns Over Her Castle As Part Payment Of Inheritance Tax

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP). — A 28-year-old heiress is giving up her 190-room marble castle in Wales because of the high cost of living in Britain.

Lady Janet Harper yesterday turned over to the National Trust, which acts as government caretaker for some of the country's historic homes, her 104-year-old Penrhyn Castle in part payment of inheritance taxes.

She had been living in four rooms of the castle with her husband, a London lawyer. Lady Janet inherited the massive marble mansion in 1949 upon the death of her unucle, the fourth Lord Penrhyn.

With it came 40,000 acres of agricultural and forest land in North Wales, a slate quarry employing 1,200 persons, a seven-mile railway linking the quarry with Port Penrhyn, dozens of farms, and a financial headache.

Death duties (Inheritance tax) on the estate amounted to about £528,500.

So Lady Janet is giving the government the castle and land in lieu of £365,000 payable against the death tax. She is keeping the quarry.

For the moment Lady Janet and her husband have moved in with her mother, the Countess of Harborough, who has a pretty big place of her own at Brocklesby Park, near Grimsby.

Penrhyn Castle is the largest lump of property to be taken over by the National Trust, which now controls 12 huge homes sold by families to pay death duties.

Mayor Not In Fit Condition Lindsay Official Charges

LINDSAY, Oct. 13—A special meeting of the Lindsay board of water commissioners was adjourned abruptly Thursday afternoon when a motion by Water Commissioner Maurice Collins that, "the mayor is not in a fit condition to attend," was seconded and carried.

The motion followed some heated conversation between Mayor Lamb and Mr. Collins with both men on their feet.

The meeting was called to confer with Mr. Redfern, the town's consulting engineer. Mr. Redfern was to give the water board his opinion on what was necessary to increase Lindsay's water pumping system.

Hear Redfern

When the meeting opened Mayor Lamb made a motion that Mr. Redfern be heard. The consulting engineer told the board that due to increased water consumption more water was needed. He explained that Renfrew had recently opened a new plant which turned out two million gallons a day and was capable of turning out three million gallons with the addition of a filter.

At this point the mayor rose and asked for a seconder to his motion to hear Mr. Redfern. The motion was seconded and a vote taken.

Mr. Redfern went on to explain that the plant in Renfrew, complete with filtration plant, low lift pumping station and 2,000 feet of 16-inch water main had cost $320,000. He said that it might cost more today.

Mayor Lamb asked if there was enough water in Scugog to supply a new firm with an additional half million gallons per day. Mr. Redfern said there was ample water.

Mr. Collins asked if the Scugog compared in capacity with the river in Renfrew. He also noted that according to canal authorities there were protracted periods when there was no water flowing over the dam at the Lindsay St. locks.

Before Mr. Redfern could make a reply, Mayor Lamb noted that since Mr. Redfern had already answered this question, Mr. Collin's question was . "ridiculous."

Battle Starts

At this point began the heated discussion which ended in Mr. Collin's motion to adjourn the meeting.

Mayor Lamb stated that there had not been a proper vote taken on the adjournment motion. Chairman Gordon said that there had and Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Collins both indicated that they had voted in favor of adjournment.

The mayor then said, "if that is the way you are going to run the water board, I will make it my stand at the next election that we have a new water board."

Trenton Gay

Formed up along the route in town were the 50th HAA Regiment and the 28th Technical Squadron of Peterborough, and the 4th Field Regiment of Lindsay. In strategic places to see and be seen were 500 PCVS cadets, the Lakefield HS cadets, Peterborough sea and air cadets; Lindsay Collegiate cadets, and Fenelon Falls high school cadets. Pupils of all the counties neighboring Peterborough, from Durham on the south to Haliburton on the north jammed into the streets and reserved places provided for schools.

Excitement mounted when the pilot train arrived at the junction at 2 pm and the streets were jammed with people who lined the entire route. Half an hour later the royal train arrived; Mayor Couch met the Princess and the Duke, and about 40 Trenton residents were presented at the platform to Their Royal Highnesses.

All this was got over in six minutes; the Princess and the Duke embarked in the long Air Force blue convertible, which was open. Other dignitaries got into official limousines and preceded by a squad of scarlet-clad mounted policemen, the cavalcade moved off at a brisk pace of about 15 mph.

The crowds were so busy looking that a great many people forgot either to cheer or wave. Princess Elizabeth waved. The Duke saluted and waved. Neither stood up in the car. The vision of royalty whipped past the eager and gratified crowds out to Highway 2, which had been blocked off to all traffic for more than an hour, and the cavalcade reached the main air station gate one minute before the schedule time at 3:04.

Makes Brief Speech On University Visit

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP)—Text of Princess Elizabeth's speech during a visit to Hart House of the University of Toronto:

Mr. Chancellor:

I thank you for your welcome to my husband and myself. It gives me great pleasure to be greeted by this university which has so venerable a history for so young a country, and which has made so notable a contribution to the life and learning of Canada through its many faculties and federated colleges.

I think that this university has indeed followed its own motto, "Velut Arbor Aveo" (May the Three Flourish), for its roots are deep and firmly set in the soil of Canada.

May it long continue to grow with far spreading branches, strong and fruitful.

Women Rush Enumerator List

Members of the Peterborough Women's Liberal Association worked until midnight Friday night preparing a list of enumerators for the city's 61 polling divisions.

This piece of rush work came about because of a misunderstanding. Returning officer Douglas Lawrie has said Friday he expected a list of enumerators from the Liberals in Peterborough.

Charles Elliott Liberal candidate in the 1948 provincial election said today that on Thursday Mr. Lawrie told him there was no hurry about preparing a list. Then local Liberals discovered that some enumerators were being sworn in.

Mr. Elliott said he telephoned the returning officer who said he had misread the telegram instructing him to get lists of enumerators from both parties.

Mrs. John Duignan, president of the Women's Liberal Association, was advised of the situation, and she and her group went to work immediately to prepare a list which was to be handed to Mr. Lawrie today.

To Build 30 Houses On Park St. Land

Building of some 30 houses on the G. Walter Green property, Park St. north of McDonnel St., is the prospect in a letter to the council by the new realty firm of Herbert Mason and Noel Rishor.

They wished to buy for John M. McCallum a smaller adjoining property to round out its area. This parcel is owned by the city. Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis estimated its value at $704. Details are: 30 ft. frontage, $504, and a broader piece at the rear, $200.

The letter reported that Mr. McCallum has an option to buy the Green property, previously the estate of Judge G. M. Roger.

Iranian Opposition Foils UN Mediation

UNITED NATIONS, NY, Oct. 13 (AP)—New Iranian opposition to any Security Council intervention in the British-Iranian oil dispute today clouded United States efforts to solve the problem.

The Council has scheduled a meeting for Monday to consider a double-edged British resolution.

The US has announced its support of the British draft, and has been urging it on others.

But the Iranian Deputy Premier, Hossein Fatemi, told reporters Friday night that the Security Council has no business in the dispute. He has rejected anything other than direct negotiations with Britain for compensation of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. properties, and then only on the basis of the new oil-nationalization laws in Iran.

ROYAL COUPLE ARE GIVEN ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME AT TRENTON

IN BRIGHT OCTOBER SUNLIGHT, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh stopped at Trenton and drove through the streets of the town jammed with thousands of people from the railway station to the RCAF air station.

AT TRENTON AIR BASE the Princess and the Duke inspected a white-belted honor guard of airmen inside the gates of the station.

ARRIVING AT TRENTON, the Royal couple walked under a carpeted canopy from the railroad station to their car for the journey through the town's streets. Defence Minister Brooke Claxton can be seen behind the Duke.

SMILING BROADLY, the Princess and her husband wave to the crowd of an estimated 70,000 who swarmed into Trenton from the whole area (many from Peterborough) to catch a glimpse of the Royal couple as they drove from the railroad station to the RCAF air base under ideal skies.

FOUR SILVER KEYS, hand-wrought, were presented in a hand-carved birdseye maple chest to the Princess. The keys, bearing emblems of Great Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, will each open a section of the Memorial Gate presented to the RCAF for its Second World War record.

THE ROYAL VISITORS completed their afternoon in Trenton and the air base all too soon for the people who saw them briefly drive by and the RCAF personnel who were their hosts. On schedule at 4.32 p.m., the Princess with the Duke behind her mounted the steps into the RCAF aircraft which would carry them to Toronto, where tens of thousands waited.

STANDING ON THE AIRFIELD before they boarded the aircraft for Toronto, the Princess and Duke seemed little tired by the strenuous day they had already had and undismayed by the reception still ahead in Toronto.—(Examiner Staff Photos by Nickels and Gordon Parks).

An Important New Atlas

The appearance of a completely new Atlas is an event of importance and the Oxford Atlas which has just been published will be widely discussed by people of many kinds and varied interests. What particularly calls attention to this book is that all the maps in it have been newly drawn; and they are based upon information collected by the compilers and editors of the book itself. Most atlases are prepared in some measure, by relying upon maps previously used, with whatever corrections seem necessary. That the compilers of the Oxford Atlas should have undertaken so great a work, and carried it to completion in five years, is in itself remarkable. When we add that five new map projections are employed, and that maps are presented which give information about the density of population and the use of the soil, it will be seen that this new atlas represents a remarkable achievement in scholarship.

* * *

It has already come under the fire of criticism. It has been complained by professional geographers that the marking of roads and railways on the maps is not detailed enough, and may be misleading. Errors have been found: it appears that Calcutta has been placed on the wrong bank of the Hoogli. But not many of us will be in a position to be bothered by such comparatively minor matters. People who demand the utmost accuracy in roads and railways use special, large scale maps; few of us, going to Calcutta, would be likely to dispute with the railway company because it did not take a course indicated on a map which we had left at home. Without any pretence at a geographer's knowledge of such matters, we may say that to our layman's eye the maps in the Oxford Atlas are clear, fascinating and revelatory; they tell us things which we had not seen on any other map.

* * *

We are glad, also, that Mercator's projection has not been used exclusively, for, as is well known, that way of showing the world on a map distorts some countries and makes them larger than they are in reality; one country which gains greatly from Mercator is Russia, and at present we do not want Russia to look any bigger than is needful. We must add, also, that Peterborough is rightly placed on all the maps in which it appears. Calcutta may have been shifted a little, but Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes are exactly where they should be.

* * *

We are glad to notice, also, that the names of the men who have drawn the maps are shown on each page. This was a good old custom which went out of use toward the end of the eighteenth century, and we have become accustomed to anonymous maps; indeed most children imagine that maps are not drawn at all, but are infallibly accurate depictions of the earth's surface. It is good for us to know that maps are drawn by fallible men, like ourselves; such knowledge increases our admiration of a great piece of work, while warning us that human error may be lurking—well, for instance, in the neighbourhood of Calcutta.

Canada In Conference

The Government of Canada has received invitations to take part in 36 international conferences during the two months September and October. It has not accepted them all; but judging from the conferences attended in August—one of the slack summer months for conferences—civil servants, cabinet ministers and embassy and legation officials will be kept busy running from the First International Congress of Mass Radiography at Sondalo, Italy (September 1-3) to the First Pan-American Congress on Veterinary Medicine at Lima, Peru (October 20-26), with all sorts of world conferences and North Atlantic Treaty council meetings.

Last August Canada took part in ten international conferences of varying urgency and importance. According to the bulletin of the Department of External Affairs, they were: Conference to Discuss Creation of European Army, Paris, 13th Session of ECOSOC, Geneva; Ninth World's Poultry Congress, Paris; Second Conference on Mechanical Wood Technology of FAO, Igls, Austria; Extraordinary Administrative Radio Conference, Geneva; Ninth International Congress of Entomology, Amsterdam; International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics, Brussels (attended by twelve Canadian scientists, from government services and the universities); Regional Conference of Foot-and-Mouth Disease (FAO); Eighth Congress of the International Institute of Refrigeration, London.

This list pales before the glitter and variety of the international conferences of September and October; 36 of them. We forbear to name them all but they vary from the 14th Conference of Beekeeping, Leamington, England, through the Sub-Committee on Rules of Procedure and Working Methods of the Legal Committee of ICAO at Madrid, to the Sixth International Conference and General Assembly of the International Union of Travel Organizations which ended in Athens (Greece) yesterday. There are, of course, the giants among conferences, such as North Atlantic Council meetings. Incidentally, in none of these lists have we mentioned the meetings of continuing boards and commissions on which Canada has representation. There are dozens of them.

Thus Canada has many irons in the international conference-hearth fires; and many Canadians—elected and appointed government officials, men and women from government agencies, and from industry and the universities—are travelling around the face of the globe month on month on behalf of Canada, in its service and at its expense.

Out of such a plethora and medley of congresses surely the international world and Canada in it will derive some benefit. No Canadians will begrudge the time and money spent if out of the confusion and disorder comes harmony and advancement.

A Chance For Missionary Work

Elsewhere on this page we print a letter from four Cornish girls who want pen friends in this city. They say with admirable frankness they they would prefer that these friends be boys. Indeed, they specify that they should be American boys. Now, although Peterborough boys are American boys in one sense, they are usually referred to as Canadians.

These girls appear to be in a state of some confusion, for their letter was addressed to "Peterborough, Ontario, Canada, U.S.A." We can only conclude that they believe that Canada is a state or dependency of our great southern neighbour.

Here is a chance for Peterborough boys to do some missionary work. They can write to these girls—and we hope that they will be polite and friendly in doing so—and explain to them that Canada is not a part of the U.S.A., but a self-governing Dominion of the British Commonwealth. They can explain the Statute of Westminster, a document which we find is very little understood in Great Britain.

From time to time we have commented on the ignorance of British and U.S. geography which exists in Canada; apparently there is deep confusion in whatever Cornish children are taught about Canada.

Twaddle About The Princess

Canada is greatly excited over the visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, and when people are excited they sometimes behave, and speak, rather foolishly. We are sorry that so much of this excited foolishness is found in the writings of some of the newspaper correspondents who are following the royal pair; the press, at all times, should keep its head and temper enthusiasm with a little practical good sense.

We want to know everything that is important or interesting about the Princess and her husband, but we do not feel that it is necessary to record what is trivial. If the Princess is sometimes nervous, and has trouble with her gloves, what about it? If Prince Philip puts his elbows on the table, or if the Princess pokes the fish on Premier Duplessis' plate with her knife, have we not the authority of Shakespeare for the saying that "nice customs curtsy to great kings . . . . we are the makers of manners, and the liberty that follows our places stops the mouths of all findfaults." Let us not forget that Queen Victoria ate chicken out of her fingers; royalty, like all really well-mannered people, does what seems best under the circumstances, without reference to rules in books of etiquette.

We must smile, also, when moonstruck reporters put into the mind of the Princess notions which originated with themselves. To read that "Mounties, in red jackets she's probably daydreamed about, surround her"; is irritating; it is not good reporting to put ideas into people's head, or words into their mouths.

Upon the whole the reporting of the royal tour is excellent. But we entreat the sob-sisters and the bilge-brothers to restrain their hysteria.

U.K. Emigration To Commonwealth

by J. HALCRO FERGUSON

THE large-scale migration of Britons and Europeans to white-settled Commonwealth countries is advocated in a pamphlet published in London today by the Migration Council. The Council, of which Sir Norman Angell is honorary president and Sir Frank Whittle, the jet designer, is chairman, also proposes the wholesale shipment overseas of United Kingdom industries.

❖ ❖ ❖

IT urges first a large-scale, organized migration of cross-sections of Britain's population and industry, of "families, groups of families and larger economic groups each centred upon a factory". And with this migration "should go large numbers of sturdy continental European families". Such movements, the report stresses, would be entirely voluntary. To achieve the objective desired, the Council suggest:— The setting up a permanent British Commonwealth and Development Organization; the creation of similar Councils wherever desirable; co-operation with other bodies having similar aims; study and research on such problems as housing and transportation; and co-operation in promoting survey studies of Commonwealth areas or industries awaiting development.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE report claims that the strength of the Commonwealth is sapped because of the unbalance of "its white people and its industries". It points out that the United Kingdom has a population of 543 per square mile, while Australia has four, Canada nine, New Zealand nineteen, South Africa fourteen, and British Africa nineteen (these last including all races). Of the 74 million people of European stock in these six European-settled British countries, over 50 million live in the United Kingdom, where also the bulk of the Commonwealth's industry is concentrated.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE economic danger resulting from this situation, the report says, is as grave as the danger in war-time. The trading and industrial conditions which favoured Britain in the last century have changed to her disadvantage in this. It goes on to cite:— "The struggle by the people of Britain to export the things they need for themselves, in order to pay for enough to eat and enough raw material to keep their factories turning; the austerity they have had to impose upon themselves; the dependence, for a time, upon American loans and gifts; the economic crises which have followed every trade recession in dollar countries".

ON the other hand the Council points out the benefits a big inflow of people would bring to under-populated areas such as Australia and Canada. In support of this thesis the report quotes the parallel of the United States. "At Lincoln's death in 1865", it states, "the population of the United States, Whites and Negroes combined, numbered little more than 30 millions. They inhabited a country devastated by a murderous war in which formidable casualties had drained away much of the best blood. They faced a bitter racial conflict still unresolved, and they possessed a badly depreciated paper currency.

"Yet thousands born into that situation lived to see the nation number nearly 150 million, enjoying the highest standards of life which an entire people has ever known, able to furnish half the world in its need, and with so remarkable an industrial machine that, at a crisis, it could produce the strongest military might on earth".

ALL this, the Council points out, was made possible by mass immigration. The Commonwealth, they feel, could benefit in the same way, and blossom within a lifetime into "the mightiest and most prosperous power on earth". Its natural resources are greater than those of the U.S., its food resources are unparalled, and it is better situated strategically and industrially than any other Power or group of Powers.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE pamphlet, which is liberally illustrated with diagrams and photographs, puts a telling case, but it tends to simplify the picture. In the first place, in its belief that it would be possible voluntarily to transfer entire populations or industries en bloc, it probably over-estimates the eagerness of Britons to go overseas. It also tends to skate lightly over the serious frictions which might be set up in the recipient countries by such a large-scale invasion. It makes no mention of the deliberate discouragement of such immigration by the present Nationalist Government of the Union of South Africa, and it begs a very large question, indeed, in implicitly regarding South Africa and the Rhodesias as "White countries". Large-scale European immigration to those territories could cause dangerous local repercussions.

❖ ❖ ❖

NEVERTHELESS, in general terms the thesis is one which deserves very careful study, and the case for redressing the balance between the over-populated and under-populated parts of the world is unanswerable. The serious problem is the human factor, and the Council will need all its energy, enthusiasm and patience to overcome that.

'Barbaric Yawp'

(Christian Science Monitor)

Keats, with a muted English autumn in mind, called it the "season of mists and mellow fruitfulness." The ripe and drowsy days, golden with gathered sheaves, rosy with thudding apples, gently melancholy as the violet mists of evening fold the earth—what a symbol of a land rich in history, practiced in contentment, "close bosom friend of the maturing sun."

But what is this brilliant hoyden, this wind-blown extravaganza, this indescribable explosion of vermilion and lemon, mustard and plum? It is October following the first frosts across the Canadian border, full of the reckless, spendthrift energies, the casual magnificence, the exuberant abundance of a still young land. This, like the poet Whitman, sounds its "barbaric yawp" over a startled world.

Autumn, it appears, speaks with many different accents—and we welcome them all.

PUTTING HIM OFF

A man went to his doctor and requested treatment for his ankle. After a careful examination the doctor inquired: "How long have you been going about like this?"

"Two weeks."

"Why, man, your ankle is broken. Why didn't you come to me before?"

"Well, doctor, every time I say anything is wrong with me, my wife declares I'll have to stop smoking."

THE SHOT HEARD 'POUND THE WORLD

The Theatre And The Taxpayer

(A B.B.C. TALK)

TYRONE GUTHRIE, man of the theatre and newly-appointed Director of the Old Vic gave a talk recently to BBC listeners. In 1941, when "Britannia was more heavily engaged than ever before with her helmet, shield, and trident, it was appreciated that the pen and the harp were no less indispensable" and Parliament decided that some tiny proportion of the National Income must help the Arts to weather the storm. This was the beginning of the Arts Council of Great Britain. In this talk, Tyrone Guthrie discussed the mutual responsibilities that have arisen between State and stage.

Guthrie pointed out that the Puritan tradition had died hard, and a powerful body of opinion still regarded the playhouse as the devil's temple. But a far larger, far deadlier body of opinion is that which regards the whole theatre as part of the entertainment industry—as "Show Business"—and looked upon, say, a performance of "Antony and Cleopatra" as being in the same category as a show which might be called "Scanty Panties". It was grieving, but true, that this point of view commanded such influence in a country where the dramatic tradition was arguably among the most important contributions Britain had made to the benefit of the human race. One has only to think of the work of Shakespeare, Marlowe, Jonson, Congreve, Sheridan, Wilde, Shaw, Bridie, Burbage, Alleyn, Cibber, Garrick, Kean, Macready, and Irving. If the theatre is merely one among many competing services offered for profit and to beguile the leisure hours, then the State would not spend taxpayer's money on it. Guthrie believed that such expenditure is justified on the theory that certain aspects of the theatre are important to the well-being of the people. He disassociated himself from the words "cultural" and "educational", for even at its highest, and its most noble, he felt that theatre was primarily entertainment. Entertainment could have a serious purpose and as he said, Charlie Chaplin at his funniest was still a deeply serious artist.

The policy of the Arts Council is that support shall not go to any management operating for private profit; profits must be ploughed back and support is normally given only to managements who present a policy. That is why the greater part of the Arts Council's support for drama goes to established repertory theatres, with a consistently high standard of practical competence. As Director of the Old Vic Guthrie could speak from experience, for the Old Vic was not only the first protege of the Arts Council, but also received the largest share of its financial allocation. Without such assistance, the high standard of the company just could not be kept up. The productions of the company were not measured by economic standards; the assistance of the State enabled artistic considerations to take precedence of the theatrical manager.

Tyrone Guthrie continued by indicating the many duties of the theatrical manager. For instance, now that the Old Vic had become a national institution, it played not only to London audiences, but has about forty touring dates during a season. Again, when a director was appointed on the strength of past achievements he had to decide upon productions that are "serious without being dull, entertaining without being cheap." He also had a responsibility to the producers under him. Guthrie felt that producers must have complete freedom with their own productions. However, the Arts Council was not a government department. While Great Britain's normal constitutional liberties continue to function, the State will not exercise a censorship over the programme it helps to sponsor. Tyrone Guthrie concluded by giving as his belief that the dependence upon state finance does not jeopardize the artistic liberty of the theatre. "So long as we continue to think that liberty of thought and feeling are important, so long will the constitutional safeguards of our liberty be respected," he said.

Let Them Stick To Their Lasts

(Ottawa Journal)

Dr. O. M. Solandt, head of the Defense Research Board, and one of our truly great Canadians, spoke at a McGill University dinner last week and said something that needed saying. Briefly it was that scientists should stick to their lasts, stop sounding off their views on matters of which they were ignorant. Said he:

"The Second World War brought pure scientists out of their laboratories and ivory towers and showed them they were exceedingly competent in dealing with applied problems in their own fields.

"Unfortunately, in some cases this success led both the public and the individual scientist to assume that scientists were omniscient. During the past five years we have seen far too many examples of scientists straying from their fields and making ill-informed and often naive statements on subjects about which they knew very little."

All too true. During the past two years, for example, we have had scientists airing their views on the military and political implications of the atomic bomb, with often what they said utterly unrealistic.

Dr. Solandt went on to puncture an idea that is all too prevalent. Thus:

"Unfortunately, the public are often apt to assume that because a man is a great authority in his own field his statements in others should be regarded as authoritative. This tendency has often been a source of embarrasment to honest and competent scientists."

A scientist's word on politics or on world affairs may be no more valuable than a politician's word on science, or no more valuable than a doctor's word on engineering or international finance. Yet in recent years we have seen political pronouncements by an Einstein which, though obviously naive, amateurish and impracticable, were hailed as all but infallible.

Somebody once wrote that if a government were formed of all the great military, scientific and literary geniuses of history, it would probably end up in a mess. Equally likely, it would be, we imagine, that a national or world government formed of all the world's leading scientists would end up in a similar mess. There is a wide, wide gulf between government, embracing all the problems of humanity, and the things of a scientist's laboratory.

Sir: Your letter with regard to Soldier in Korea, and having sent you $2.00. The poor chap couldn't have it sent if he hadn't forwarded the money, and they are only too glad to get any news from their home country, so there is no praise coming your way for sending it, it was only one of your duties to send it. And also your note in answer to Mrs. F. J. Parsons' letter of October 10 in which you stated that the Examiner neither has nor desire powers of compulsion, so please tell me why they are resorting to compulsion, with reference to the extra edition on Saturday, if some of the facts were put in your regular Saturday paper it would make one feel they were really getting a paper, in the first place. There is no law in this country, whereby a business concern can compell a customer to take goods he has no use for, and thereby penalize them by not allowing them to purchase that which is their lawful right to have. I fully coincide with Mrs. F. J. Parsons and sincerely hope others will take up the issue. I positively do not want the extra edition and will be looking forward for any regular paper on Saturday, hoping you will see fit to send it.

Your Garden:

How to Prepare Dahlia Bulbs And House Plants For Winter

By HENRY PREE

The peak of the dahlia blooming season has been reached and little remains to be done other than to remove faded flower heads, pray for continued warm weather to open the remaining buds and wait for the first frost to kill the tops.

Then dig the tubers, cutting the stems six or eight inches above ground. Work off most of the soil with a blunt-pointed stick, then with your fingers, place in an airy sunny spot, turning each clump bottom up, to dry for a day. Let some soil remain to keep the tubers fresh and prevent them from breaking.

When reasonably dry pack them stems down, in newspaper-lined boxes or baskets and store in a cool, frost-proof place for the winter. Sand, soil, sawdust or peat-moss should keep them from shriveling.

It is wise to dampen this packing two or three times during the winter. Be sure to fasten labels to the stumps of your favorite varieties before digging. It is advisable to stand the box on blocks or bricks to allow passage of air under the container.

* * *

House plants that spend the summer out in the garden should be prepared now for their winter sojourn indoors. Most plants will be happy for three years in the same pot if they are given regular feeding and the top half-inch of soil replaced with fresh soil once a year.

Thus repotting is necessary only for plants which have been neglected or have outgrown their pots.

To determine whether or not a plant requires repotting remove it carefully from the pot after first moistening the soil. If the roots are crowding the outside of the earth ball, then the plant needs a larger sized pot.

Free and perfect drainage is vital for any plant. Unless it grows naturally in water, it will make a sudden departure once it discovers that its roots are in stagnant or too-damp soil.

When the drainage layer of stones or broken pot is in place, the pot should be filled one-quarter full with soil, slightly dampened, and the roots of the plant should be spread on this and arranged naturally.

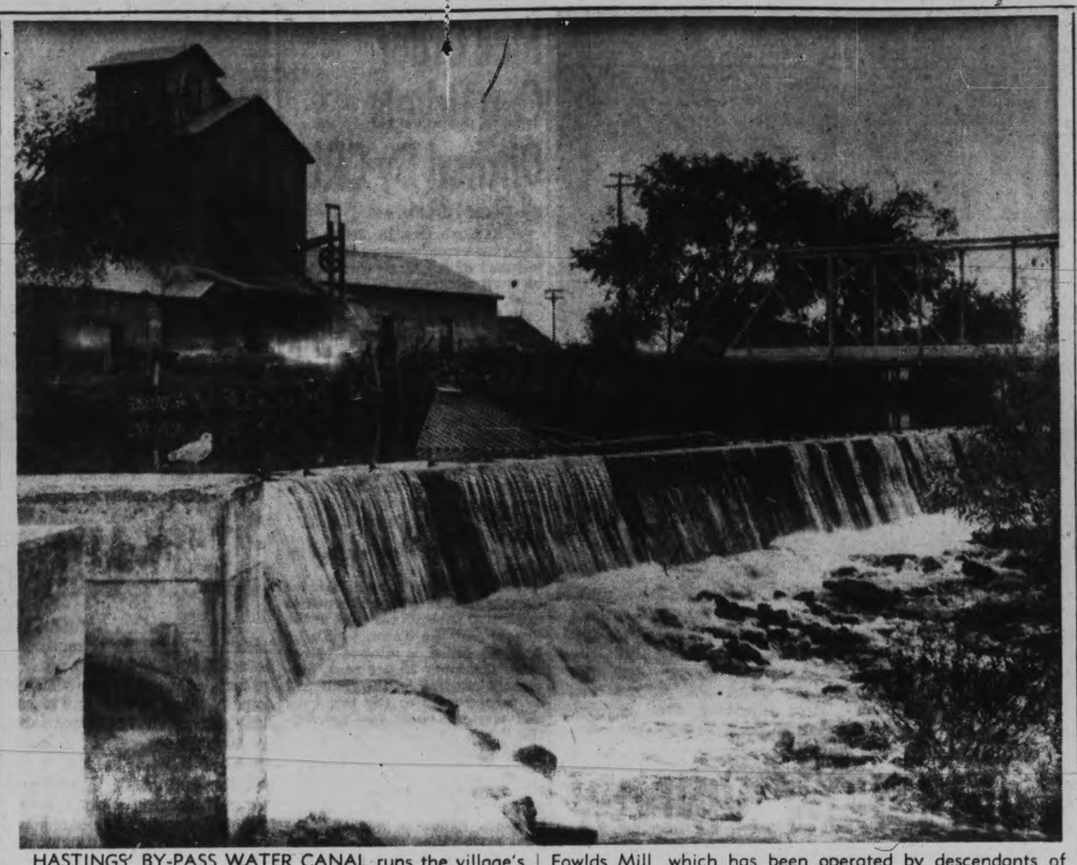
The remaining soil should be filled in and tucked firmly about the roots.

Firm planting gets the roots off to a good start, and expert greenhouse men use a blunt piece of wood to tamp the soil down.

Gardening Questions

Q.—When should the leaves of our Peonies be cut back?—L.B.

A.—Do not cut down the foliage of Peonies until late autumn. Its presence is necessary to the welfare of the plant. The leaves will not grow anymore, but should be left until they are killed by frost. Add a little fertilizer strong in phosphorus, such as a 4-12-4 mixture to the soil about the plant to assist the roots in storing up energy.



* * *

Q.—Last year the gardens of this neighborhood were afflicted with a black tomato blight which practically ruined the crop. This year it seems to take the form of a blight or disfigurement of the tomatoes. Would putting lime on the soil this autumn kill this disease, or is there some kind of effective spray?

A.—The blight affecting your tomatoes is a physiological disease known as Blossom-end Rot. It is usually caused by a lack of soil moisture just when the plant needs it most. To obtain this moisture the plant draws upon the fruit which is 96 per cent water and as a result a rot occurs. Neither lime nor spray will help, regular watering and a mulch about the plants to reduce evaporation is the answer. Remove affected tomatoes.

Q—We have just moved into our new home. When may we start planting foundation evergreens?—W. C.

A—Evergreens may be planted at this time. However purchase freshly dug plants at a reliable nursery. Do not plant those which one sees now at roadside stands, most of them are leftovers from the spring planting season. Newly planted everygreens will need ample soil moisture both in soil and on their tops to restore and encourage activity of the roots. A good soaking once a week until frost time will be beneficial.

Commercial Value of Trent Waterway Overlooked

By R. F. CHOATE

Installment VIII

How many among us know what they are trying to talk about when they use the word canal, or river, or lake, or waterway? If any of these words lack a definite denotation or connotation we shall surely do well to abolish it.

Sifting out our gibberish we may ask ourselves: What is the concrete referent, or basic relevant interest, to which we must direct our attention? The thesis to be supported here is that the Trent in the wholeness of its original conception is essentially a canal.

The Trent as first conceived as a canalization project was seen as a navigational link between Lake Huron (Georgian Bay) and Lake Ontario. Thus it would conform to the necessary and sufficient function (not merely subsidiary function) of a canal in its generalized concept, as exemplified the world over. It would be a link or nexus between larger uniformities, as oceans or seas are linked by the Panama, the Suez, the Gota in Sweden and others. A canal, as we shall note by our definition, is an artificial watercourse, a construction of man. But it is not merely a ditch filled with water, as is sometimes mistakenly supposed. It is not merely an aqueduct or an irrigation ditch though doubtless it may serve in a subsidiary sense as such. Doubtless, too, a canal is or ought to be a waterway (which of course it isn't when one end is closed to navigation). But looking at the matter conversely we may see the line of distinction; a waterway is not always a canal, as we shall see by our definition. It may be a fairway.

The Gota An Example

The historic Gota is much like our own Trent though it conforms genuinely to the traditional concept of a canal since it does not run from nowhere to nowhere or from somewhere to nowhere. It incorporates many lakes and rivers like the Trent but it connects those larger uniformities, the Baltic and the Kattegat, in true canal fashion.

A little reflection upon the ages long enterprises in canal construction may be rewarding. Such work has engaged the attention of some of the world's great intellects. Perhaps we shall not generalize too hastily if we say that the primary value of these canals was realized chiefly in the degree to which they connected. The dominance of the "connectedness" idea is perceived at a glance at Suez and Panama where the linking of the seas greatly shortened the world's trade routes. Construction in both these cases as in mostly all others of the kind was long delayed by the forces of sectionalism and obscurantism as the St. Lawrence seaway is now being delayed.

Panama

At Panama the natural obstacles were all but terrifying. The isthmus which was a "place of skulls" after the tragic failure of the French workers under de Lesseps, was a supreme challenge to the great engineer. Goethals, and to the equally great Surgeon-General Gorgas, whose sanitary war upon the deadly mosquito, carrier of yellow fever, provided the necessary condition for ultimate triumph. Altogether it was a triumph of the human spirit.

We cannot here review extensively the many changes of phase undergone by the Trent canal project since its inception. The Lake Huron-Lake Ontario route which in Champlain's time had been the first pathway of the white explorers was envisaged later as a canal route for military and defensive purposes. Concepts were transformed gradually. The military notion was subiated by a more comprehensive idea in which the route was seen as an artery of commercial transport. Then came another plus of conceptual values and the Trent was transformed into pretty much what it is today—a recreational playground route.

New Opportunities

Through all this transition the navigational aspects of the problem have never been entirely lost to view. It is only within recent years, since the coming of the motor car, that the larger steam craft of earlier years have been replaced by smaller boats. We are now in the day of the cabin cruiser and we are ill-prepared to provide it scope to realize its touring potentialities.

A fully-navigable Trent certainly would attract many of the continent's finest cabin cruisers and other passenger craft. With clear sailing at the Severn end, the visiting parties could enjoy a leisurely sight-seeing trip from "somewhere to somewhere"—let us say from the Thousand Islands to the Ten Thousand Islands of Georgian Bay, with broad cruising interests at either end and all the way between.

But these, too, are Diesel days, bringing with them commodious passenger-carrying craft well fitted to operate on fixed routes, as between Gotesburg and Stockholm, on the Gota canal, one of the most popular of Europe's tourist attractions.

And so also these are days of uncertainty as to when the inexorable Law of Diminishing Return will flash the red light against some forms of traffic which grow more costly and take such a heavy toll of life on our overcrowded highways.

English Alert

We shall be blind indeed to the signs of the times in other parts of the world if we fail to note the tremendous revival of interest in the operation of the canals of the United Kingdom. Old, abandoned water courses are being restored as the Inland Waterways Association, led by such men as Sir Alan Herbert, carry on their campaign to make an end to the neglect of canal routes on which the picturesque "narrow-boats" carry so much of the country's freight at so low a cost. The economies of inland water transport are being re-examined with savings to shippers of all kinds of commodities.

The last few months have witnessed gala and highly-interesting Boat Festivals at which converged through the inland waterways canal craft of all types from the length and breadth of England. Surely an object-lesson for Kawartha people who can do no better than sit on the banks of their broad and glorious Trent telling each other, parrot-like, that the glory of canal navigation has departed for all time.

The present is no time to talk brashly or glibly about the outmoding of the navigational values of the Trent, in the spheres of either passenger or freight carrying. The voices of our fathers which once sounded the call "On with the Trent!" may speak vibrantly again with the message: "Wake up and see the Trent through!"

Travel Slowly, See England

BON VIVANT

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND

What England lacks in superhighways and high speeds it more than makes up for in scenery. Before coming over here I had heard that you could not make good time on English roads because they were narrow and winding, and also because the average English car was not capable of sustained high speeds. In part this is true.

What I was not told was that by roaring through the country at sixty miles an hour you missed a great deal. England is loaded to the gun'ales with scenery and points of historic interest. Travel at high speeds causes you to miss much of this, so the English, very wisely, have designed roads upon which, whether you like it or not, you are going to get a chance to enjoy some of it.

I have never been keen on English cars, and having driven one for a month, I see no reason to

There is a harmony
In Autumn, and a lustre in its sky,
Which thro' the Summer is not heard or seen.

P. B. SHELLEY: Hymn to Intellectual Beauty, 1816.

change my opinion. They are not the car most Canadians are accustomed to driving, lacking both the comfort and power we deem essential. I gather they are built to serve the purpose of providing transportation. Not luxurious transportation, but adequate and reliable.

The English car lacks power, at least the kind we knew about, and requires a lot of gear shifting. The English, being a sturdy, hard-working race, don't seem to mind a hand to hand struggle between man and the machine, every time they change gears. Here, of the effette countries, we are pandered to with finger tip and automatic gear shifts, regard this as a bit of a chore, however, I am still managing to get where I want to go without too much trouble.

Don't run away with the idea that all English cars are like this. There are some large, luxurious jobs, Rolls, Bentlys, Jaguars, Daimlers, and such, purring about the streets of London which flaunt superb coach work and apparently effortless driving. It hasn't been my good fortune to enjoy one of these, but they certainly look very nice.

I have fault to find with one piece of equipment on English cars, and nothing but praise for another. My fault finding is with the space for luggage. The boot is very small, most of them—even on the large, high-priced jobs—being able to take only two or three bags, and a great many only one. This does not seem to bother the English car owner. He puts a rack on top and piles it high with his lares and penates. He does get what he wants where he wants it and when he wants it, but it seems a bit strange to me, as outdoor baggage in Canada went out about the same time as the running board luggage rack.

I have great praise for the shelf in the English car which is just below the dash. This is a wonderful convenience. Handy for maps, sun glasses, a snack for the kiddies, small parcels, and a miscellaneous assortment of odds and ends which you want but won't open the glove compartment to get, even if it would hold them all. The manufacturers of our cars could well adopt this convenience and give the owners of their cars one more bit of luxury.

Winding Narrow Roads

English roads are not as wide as those in Canada, and on the majority of them the hedges grow right up to the paved portion. They are winding and visibility, due in no small measure to the hedges, is not good, but practically all of them are paved. If you explore remote country lanes, you do so on a paved surface. The paving incidentally is well kept up and I've yet to hit a pot hole in the road surface.

I travelled the other day along the Great West Road. This is a four lane, divided highway, very like the Queen Elizabeth Way from Toronto to Niagara Falls. However, it had a couple of refinements the Queen Elizabeth Way lacks. These were a paved cycle path on which two cyclists can ride abreast, and a paved pedestrian footway.

Land of Cyclists

I liked these two items especially as they took cognizance of the fact that there are other means of locomotion than by motor car. England is a land of cyclists, and I have noted a great many in my travels, touring the country, living out of a rucksack. Very posh motor bikes are also popular, complete with enclosed side car. It is a common sight to see father driving, mother on the pillion and the kiddies in the side car, with luggage festooned about the whole, setting off for the annual holiday. I understand these bikes give about 100 miles to the gallon, which is an item.

PROVINCIALISM
The frog in the well knows nothing of the ocean.
JAPANESE PROVERB.

The gasoline is very inferior, and the other day when I had a chance to drive a large American car, I found it knocked and banged atrociously. As I know this make of car very well, and as my English six also knocks and bangs under pressure, I accept the gas theory.

Despite the fault I find with English cars, I do find the English scenery more than compensates for my troubles. It is a most pleasant change from a landscape littered with dirty barn yards and dilapidated farm buildings to enjoy vistas of hedgerows, thatched cottages and green fields, with the odd mountain to relieve the monotony.

Seaway May Restore Port Hope Harbour

Now that the St. Lawrence Seaway seems about to become a reality, all the harbours on the Great Lakes will take on new importance. Peterborough's harbour is Port Hope. Port Hope, as a shipping centre, has badly fallen off in importance since 1900, but it may get a renewed lease of life within the next decade, particularly if both the Port Hope and Peterborough areas expand industrially. The following paragraphs sketch the history of Port Hope's harbour.

A large marshy area lay at the mouth of the Ganaraska when the white man first arrived, and beyond it an island divided the river which, at the confluence of the two arms, the waters of the river poured out into the lake through a narrow gap or bottleneck.

All during the seventeen nineties and early eighteen hundreds, the sailing vessels had had to stand off from shore to unload their cargoes, which were ferried ashore. In order to expedite shipping, Port Hope had been constituted a port of entry in 1819, but no attempt seems to have been made to build harbour or wharf accommodations at this time—although the steamboat had made its appearance on Lake Ontario.

Company Formed

A decade after Port Hope had been declared a port of entry, the Port Hope Harbour and Wharf Company had been incorporated. By the terms of its charter, the company had been bound: "To construct a harbour which should be accessible to and fit, safe and commodious for the reception and shelter of the ordinary description of vessels navigating Lake Ontario and to complete the same by May 1st, 1844," under penalty of loss of its charter. Eventually, in 1832, a small pier had been constructed at which steamers could dock and a steamship wharf and harbour constructed which ran out where the eastern pier now stands.

At the wharf, the harbour had a nine-foot six-inch depth of water, The schooners of those days, ranging from 110 to 130 feet in length, drew a four-foot six-inch draw when empty, but when loaded they displaced about nine feet, and it took much skill in navigation to manoeuvre in and out of the harbour.

Up to 1840 there was little organization and little permanency in lake navigation. Vessels were owned by private individuals as a rule, and from year to year were changed from one route to another but, that year, the Niagara Harbour and Dock Company inaugurated the Royal Mail Line of Steamers and thereafter there was daily service on the lake during the summer months.

Piers Extended

After 1850, the Port Hope dock would take schooners of 137 feet in length, the pier having been extended out much farther into the lake. To form a protected harbour, another pier had been run out a corresponding distance on the west side of the creek's mouth but, in stormy weather and occasionally even in moderate weather, it was impossible for steamers to approach the land. Much loss was occasioned to merchants and travellers, and Commodore Hodder of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club described conditions graphically. To quote: "During a south or south-west gale this port cannot be made by large vessels drawing over nine feet of water, with safety owing to the tremendous swell rolling in from the lake; besides which the piers only one hundred and twenty-five feet apart at the mouth and the basin very small, there is not room to check the speed of a vessel or to snub her without danger to herself or others."

In 1855 a new harbour was built and by 1867 it extended over five acres, projecting over 1,200 feet into the lake and 800 feet within the shoreline. A depth of 14 feet outside and 11 feet inside the shoreline was provided, as well as wharf accommodation of nearly 5,000 feet.

The Port Hope Harbour corporation had borrowed largely from the Municipal Loan fund—borrowed beyond its ability to pay, since most of the capital for construction was contributed locally. In 1867, it was taken over by the Federal Government and much money spent on maintenance and repairs. In 1878 it was one of the best, if not the best, harbour on the north shore of the lake, and local shipping through the port was of considerable magnitude up to 1900.

Theatre Ballet No Junior

(Ed. Note: Dame Ninette de Valois, director of the Sadler's Wells ballet companies makes the following statement in response to several queries from the Press about the Sadler's Wells organization touring Canada.)

"Since my arrival here with the Sadler's Wells Theatre Ballet I have been puzzled by reference in the Press to the 'junior' company of the Sadler's Wells organization.

"Functioning as it does at the Sadler's Wells Theatre, the company now appearing in North America is in fact the sister company to the Sadler's Wells Ballet performing at Covent Garden.

"The Sadler's Wells organization is made up of three units, the Sadler's Wells School, the Sadler's Wells Theatre Ballet and the Sadler's Wells Ballet.

"At the Sadler's School, youngsters become dancers and fresh talent is provided for the Sadler's Wells companies. When we feel the dancers are ready for professional status, they may become members either of the Sadler's Wells Theatre Ballet or the Sadler's Wells Ballet.

"The Sadler's Wells Theatre Ballet is the resident company of the Sadler's Wells Theatre.

"The Sadler's Wells Ballet, the company which toured North America the past two seasons, is the resident company of the Royal Opera House Covent Garden.

"Each troupe has its own identity, its own personality and its own repertoire, although a few works are common to the repertoire of both companies.

"On occasion, depending upon need, dancers may be switched from one company to another. For example, Donald Britton and Stanley Holden here now, were formerly with the Covent Garden unit and three members of the corps de ballet of the Sadler's Wells company previously toured here with the Covent Garden troupe.

"I trust this answers any questions which have been raised and will help to identify the Sadler's Wells Theatre Ballet."

You may not be a hunter. You may not even know which end of a gun to look into or to point at anyone, but, in your everyday conversation you use phrases and expressions that would lead one to think you were a veritable Leatherstocking.

Many of these expressions have been handed down since the first round of logs were laid. How many of the following do you pepper your daily conversations with?

Did you every buy anything 'Lock, stock and barrel'?

Do you know some character who, in your estimation, is just a 'Flash in the pan', or, a 'Sharpshooter'?

Or another who, in stature, is as 'Straight as a ramrod'?

When you plan to achieve some goal do you 'Draw a bead on it' and 'Set your sights high'. And if you achieve your objective do you 'Score a bulls-eye' and if you do not, did your plans 'Misfire'?

In an endeavour to keep your wits about you on some occasion do you resolve ahead of time to 'Keep your powder dry' and if you fail in this do you 'Fall short of the mark' because you went off 'Half-cocked'? It was probably the result of 'Hair-trigger nerves'.

If you are doubtful about making your opinions heard do you 'Hold your fire' or if you are the shrewd voluble type do you arrive at the right answer by 'Hitting it dead centre'?

And when you know that you are about ready to pass from this vale of tears do you console yourself with the thought that you have always been a 'Square shooter'?

Fan memory's embers and you will probably recall more expressions along the shootin' vein.

The boys at Headache House (LCB) also dispense great quantities of district information, game laws, game bags and so forth. One point they have not gotten clear, I understand—may be others in this boat, too—about the big game bag in this district this year.

A hunter with a license may shoot, ONE of either a buck, doe or fawn OR an elk in the same classes. ONE ANIMAL, that is. ONE.

Also, it is perfectly legal, providing the hunter is a license holder, to hunt big game with a shotgun loaded with heavy slugs.

It is not legal to do any practice target shooting on the Sabbath. The law says "A gun must not be discharged on Sunday." Does this clear you up, Rob Roy?

Enlarging on our one-deer-per-season-hunter theme, I see an interesting item by columnist Donald F. Schram of the Detroit Free Press. He says that the secretary-manager of the Greenville, Mich., C. of C. is promoting a contest, parade and ball in that city which will be topped off by crowning the registrant who has killed the most deer in that district this season, "the champion deer hunter of the world." A wonderful achievement, that.

Thought the Canadian lacrosse champs, the Petes' Timbermen, might bring me a fishing tale or two from the coast, salmon and all that sort of thing. But no. One or two of the stick bashers took a couple of small ones and the rest of the team contented themselves with visiting a salmon cannery.

Up the Blind Alleys

The opening and Thanksgiving duck and partridge shoot had everyone fooled. Hunters did not expect too much from the marshes but with the sudden closing in of November-like weather, the sport was fine at Pigeon, Buckhorn and Rice Lakes. The weather was so changeable that the honkers V-ed south, though perhaps they have slowed down their flights by this time.

Partridge hunters were disappointed. Cold wet weather drove birds deep into the shelter of dense swamp cover. Now that the brown bombers have dried out and back on normal feeding ranges they should offer some good sport this week-end.

Who are the sporty? duck hunters down the Otonabee who failed to get any birds and ended up by blasting some tame ducks in a farmer's barnyard. The same types who squawk about posted land. Case and names are on the City Police blotter.

Monday night winds up the fishin' season for '51 and from the size of the large pile of Examiner-Lucky Strike entry slips, it has been very good. Certainly there have been no whopping 'lunge that we like to brag about so much but the other species have put up a great showing. Must weed out the results, and publish them, shortly. Am glad to observe that people take this contest very seriously. Many eager fishermen have tried to find out from me how they stood in the running; have patience, brothers, the truth will soon be known.

Column is a bit short this week. It is not for lack of material but pressure of out-of-town assignments. And sort of tuckered out after the Royal Tour in Trenton on Friday.

It was a grand show.

Injuries Dog Chicago Team In New Blow

By MEL SUFRIN.
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Chicago Black Hawks, complete with the familiar adhesive plaster and bandages, repeated an old refrain today as they prepared to help Toronto Maple Leafs open their share of the new National Hockey League season.

The Hawks, whose injury troubles last season brought sympathy from even their most hard-hearted opponents, are singing their old sad song.

Reputed to be 25 per cent improved over last year's last-place club Chicago will be without at least three men for tonight's game. Fred Hucul has a possible fractured breastbone, Bill Badsby has a broken rib, and Max MacNab is still recovering from assorted injuries.

Several other players are reported suffering from bruises and other ailments. However, before the odds-makers start handing the game to the Leafs, it should be stated that it's likely to be a fight all the way. Injuries aside, the Hawks have such stalwarts as Black Jack Stewart and a bunch of former Detroit Red Wings to throw at the Stanley Cup champions.

Unknown Quantity

One other game is scheduled for tonight—the much-improved Boston Bruins visiting Montreal Canadiens who opened the season with a 4-2 victory over Chicago Thursday.

The view of an impartial observer might give Canadiens some indication of what they're up against. Conn Smythe, Toronto managing director, if he can be described as impartial figures the Bruins are the unknown quantity that might produce the big surprise of the season.

Montreal coach Dick Irvin was inclined to agree.

"They were only beaten 1-0 by the Red Wings in the opening game at Detroit" he said. "We're in for a rough weekend.

Canadiens figured on pre-season estimates to be the most improved team in the league, visit Boston Sunday night to complete a home-and-home weekend.

Renew Rivalry

In other Sunday night games, Toronto and Detroit renew their bitter rivalry at the Olympia while Frank Boucher's New York Rangers journey to Chicago.

The Sunday night game will be the opener for Rangers, and Chicago fans will get a look at a team described by Boucher as "at least a goal a game better than last year."

Coach Neil Colville says he knows Rangers are a "much better scoring team than last year." Thus, the key to the team's success "will be our defencemen. We've made a major shift in our backlines, and if it shapes up the way I think it will, then New York will have its best team since the old Stanley Cup champions."

One addition to the New York rearguard crew is Jim Ross, a husky bouncer, described by Boucher as "our best defenceman to date."

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Professional hockey will return to Syracuse tonight after a 10-year absence.

Syracuse Worriors, formerly the Springfield Indians, open the American Hockey League season against Indianapolis in Syracuse's new $4,000,000 memorial building.

The last professional hockey game in Syracuse was played in the State Fair Coliseum in 1941 by a Syracuse club in the now defunct International League.

The Worriors came here Friday night from Lindsay, Ont., where they had been training for four weeks.

Death Friday claimed the second of two famous west coast baseball scouts for New York Yankees.

Bill Essick, christened William Earl 70 years ago, died in Los Angeles. The most famous player Essick signed for the Yankees was the great Joe DiMaggio.

Last month Essick's old sidekick and associate, Joe Devine, died in San Francisco. Baseball people credit their astute scouting over the years for much of the Yankee successes.

Winston Churchill's first racehorse, Colonist II, has run his last race.

The French-bred grey was injured when one of his plates worked loose and cut him in a race at Goodwood in August.

Trainer Walter Nightingall said Friday the horse will never be fit for racing again.

Colonist II won 13 of his 24 races in England.

Churchill has six other horses besides Colonist II, the chief hope now for the Chocolate and Pink Silks is a French bred three-year-old filly, Cybarine, a full sister to the grey who won stakes of £2,000.

The tale of alleged tail-tieing at Hamilton race track came to an end Friday with the final decision going against the man who brought the charge.

The Ohio State Racing Commission upheld the suspension of track stewards of G. T. Becknell, Emory, Tex., horse owner for conduct detrimental to racing. He had charged the tail of his odds-on favorite Detroit Tiger, was tied to the starting gate at Hamilton last Aug. 22.

Not content at merely upholding the suspension, the commission extended it until Dec. 20. It said it had "reached the conclusion that tail tieing or other improper practices alleged by Mr. Becknell actually did not occur."

New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, unbeaten in exhibition play, Friday night defeated Cincinnati Mohawks of the American Hockey League 4-2. It was the sixth victory for the New Yorkers who open their regular season Sunday night in Chicago.

Season Begins Tonight For Badminton

The birds will be flying this Saturday night at the Market Hall when the Peterborough Badminton Club opens the 1951-52 season. A lot of interest has been shown this year and it is expected that the club will have the largest membership since the war. A new plastic shuttlecock has been developed in England which is said to be as good as the feathered bird and will last much longer, which will make the game much less expensive to play.

New Officers

At a meeting of the executive the following officers were elected: president, Bob Baker; vice-president, Reuben McDonald; treasurer, Rod Stuart; club captain, Roy Johnston; secretary, L. H. Collingwood; conveners, Irene Jones and Verna Rose.

It was decided at the last annual meeting that a boy should be provided to light the fires and handle the sale of shuttlecocks, three nights a week. Lunch will be served on Saturday evenings. Four new nets were purchased and erected for opening night.

Those interested in joining the club should contact any of last year's members or the secretary, who will provide application blanks.

Another Kell Gets Chance In Big League

PHILADELPHIA Oct. 13 (AP) —Another Kell is getting a chance to become a major league baseball player and if he's half as good as his brother he'll make the grade

Arthur Ehlers general manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced Friday the club was bringing up 22-year-old Everett Kell, brother of Detroit's great third baseman, George.

Young Kell hit .293 and stole 23 bases for Savannah of the Class A South Atlantic League last season. He's rated a better than average fielding second baseman.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

It's called "savate," we believe, this business of French wrestling where the feet may be used in kicking opponents. Zorra the French Tarzan, as he's billed, is quite an expert with his dogs in mat bouts. Big, loose and fast, he can kick a guy in the chops as readily as toss a punch in that direction. He's matched with Lord Athol Layton — he of the side-hand slash to the throat — in the main grapple bout Tuesday eve in the Brock Arena. Should be quite a tussle. Newcomer Lou Sjoberg goes against the colorful Indian matman, Chief Suni War Cloud, in the semi-final. How can a war cloud be sunny? The prelim has Bill Stack meeting Dan O'Connor. Quite a card.

St. Kitt's scribe rises to remark on Petes' Mann Cup win: "Rated as a handpicked all-star team before the Ontario series got underway, Petes faltered once or twice along the championship route, but regained their stride before the OLA playoffs and proved that they were one of the top eastern teams in the past five or six years. Rumors have it that many of the champs will be leaving Peterborough before 1952, and it is sincerely hoped that such Garden City aces as Harry Wipper, Jerry Fitzgerald, Bob Thorpe and Nit O'Hearn may be picking up an Athletic jersey when Coach Joe Cheevers calls the roll early next spring." Don't count too much on it, chum.

High School Grid Tilts

Still time to take in a football game or two this aft down at Morrow Park. A high school twin bill there, starting at 1.15 or so. Cobourg plays St. Peter's juniors in a group fixture first, followed by an exhibition betwixt Whitby and St. Peter's seniors. Lots of lively action in these grid combats, and the short football season makes it imperative for fans to take in all home encounters if they wish to see much of ther favorite sport. PCVS junior "A" and senior "A" squads are playing today in Oshawa, both in league contests. Yes, autumn and the football season are rolling rapidly along now.

Frank Gnup's local Orfuns really showed the grid fans at Morrow Park something last evening. They not only trimmed Toronto's Ryerson Tech 33-5 in a four-point fixture, but they flashed some mighty fine football in the process. A hard-hitting line, a smart variety of plays, plenty of foot on the plunges and end runs, besides real hefty hoofing by Chuck Paul. He got distance. Bill Huntley was at his best and accounted for 13 points, besides tossing a couple of touchdown passes. Lally Lalonde, Don McGillis, Clive Naismith and Murray Dewart were other scorers. But they were all in there fighting and showing lots of form. Visitors passed well and fought it out to the finish, but were outclassed. We still can't figure how Cobourg beat the Orfuns this season.

Trying For Team There

Quinte columnist writes: "The drastic action of the OHA in suspending the Nylons will vitally affect hockey in Kingston this season, not to mention Belleville and Peterborough, where the Kingston team always proved an exceptional drawing card. Frank Buckland said that the OHA would do all in its power to assist Kingston authorities to secure a senior entry, if it is at all possible at this late date. The circumstances of the case were such that the OHA was forced to take action in the matter and, according to the evidence, it had no other course than to mete out the above-mentioned punishment. Capt. Jim Sutherland, Kingston's grand old man of hockey, was also present at the meeting.

* * * * * *

Mike Rodden of Kingston points out that the Nylon Club itself is not under suspension, and that a senior "B" club will likely operate there this season. Says Coach George Patterson, Doug Patterson (his son), Johnny Armstrong and Eddie Plumb are blamed by Manager McNight for baring the scandal. The latter is said to have called that spring meeting to order and outlined what the club should do, the players present voting in agreement. McKnight's threat to take the suspensions case to court bothers the OHA not a whit. Mike, after dealing in detail with the OHA suspension meeting a few nights ago, concludes: "Buddy Aiken wept as he left the room. The saddest chapter in this city has been written but the lesson taught is one that will no doubt serve well the purpose of guidance and honesty of purpose for many years to come."

10th Round Victory But Out 2 Months

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP). — Welterweight Chico Vejar of Stamford, Conn., wondered what price glory today.

The New York State Athletic Commission physician, Dr. Vincent Nardiello, told Vejar he will be out at least a couple of months as a result of his 10-round victory over Sonny Lou Volpe of New York Friday night.

Chico had eight stitches taken over his left eye and two more under his right after the rough battle.

Volpe is nursing a broken right thumb.

Mail Order Cup Tickets Ditched By CRU

By JACK SULLIVAN.

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP).—The one-year experiment of distributing part of the Grey Cup tickets by mail order has been ditched. Now, the eastern and western Canada football clubs will look after the complete sale of the 27,000-odd tickets for Canada's No. 1 sports classic.

This was disclosed Friday following attempt of a committee by the Canadian Rugby Union—ruling body of the game in the country—to figure ways and means whereby the fans who pay the freight of clubs throughout the season are given a half-decent chance of sitting in on the Nov. 24 spectacle.

In brief, the plan works this way:

The Big Four and Western Canada Unions each will continue to receive their 30 per cent of the tickets and the Toronto Rugby Football Union is allotted 10 per cent. The other 30 per cent, previously handled by the CRU will be turned over to the Big Four and western clubs for distribution."

Early Start

The meeting also decided that:

1. The game will start at 1 p.m. EST instead of the usual 1:45 p.m. kick-off. "Toronto was on daylight saving time last year due to the power shortage but now that it is going by standard time we cannot take a chance of darkness interfering with play," Insky said.

In event of a tie after the regulation 60 minutes two 10-minute overtime sessions will be played.

2. The $12,000 tarpaulin, ordered by the CRU after last year's swampy field will be ready in 10 days or two weeks and, depending on weather conditions, it will be put down on Toronto Varsity field a week before the game.

Hastings Beat The Petes 30 Years Ago

HASTINGS, Oct. 13 (ENS). — While the Petes are now Dominion Senior A lacrosse champions, old-timers may recall the time 30 years ago when a Hastings team eliminated Peterborough in OLA junior play. The Toronto Beaches in turn erased Hastings in provincial semi-finals.

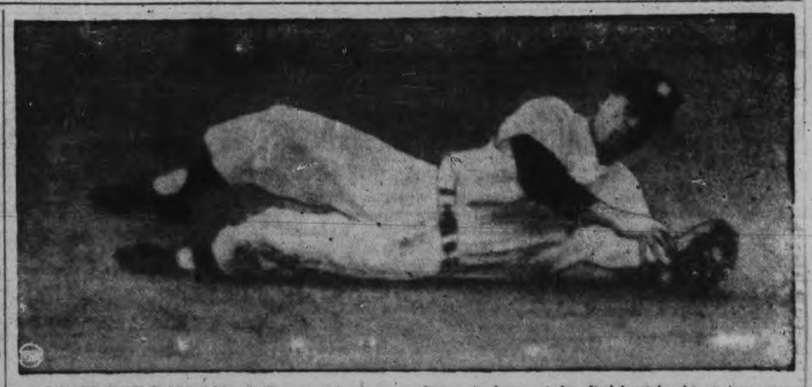
Hastings was a lacrosse hotbed in those days and many older fans claim it was rough play that gradually made the old field game give up the ghost. The Hastings paper of September, 1921, said: "The Beaches of Toronto put up a stellar game against our boys yesterday when they won by the score of 24 to 8. While our boys worked hard all the way, they were ot in it with the class that the visitors' lineup presented and, if they are all under age and eligible to play junior, we will take off our hat to them and believe they will carry off the junior honors."

Beat the Petes

The Hastings team earlier beat Peterborough. The Examiner said of that: "Hastings won their group here yesterday defeating Peterborough by 8 goals to 6 in an interesting game starting in a drizzle and ending in a downpour. Hastings were heralded as probable winners by a wide score, but Johnny Sutherland's lads gave them a stiff argument all the way. In the last period they scored four goals and had Tim Coughlan's youngsters on the run, but this effort came too late. Hastings got the last goal just to show that they weren't stampeded.

"It was a clean game, capably handled by Pat Kelley, goaler of the Campbellford intermediates, whose decisions were impartial and above criticism. Hastings had their regular line with the exception of Clapper. In Bruce Richardson they have a splendid player. Otto Scriver and Rogers are good defencemen. Stevenson on the home is also effective, but Gould was allowed few chances today. Fred Scriver worked well all afternoon.

LeBarr Good



"LeBarr had a big day, and his stops kept Peterborough in the running to the last bell. Had the homes been exchanged the score would have been vastly different. Chris McCarney played his first game and was decidedly good. Eddie Foley and Johnny Ward blocked well. Johnston, Brown, and Jimmy Lawson were good in centre field. Brown and Johnston showed a big improvement. Mein and Miller handled themselves well and Killoran and Rosenfield showed flashes of good lacrosse. The teams:

"Hastings: Goal, C. Whitred; point, O. Scriver; C. point, W. Whitred; 1st def., W. Tate; 2nd def., H. Rogers; centre, F. Scriver; 2nd home, S. Stevenson; 1st home, P. Walsh; out home, B. Richardson; in home, J. Gould; spares, O. Cruikshanks, K. Kennedy.

Peterborough: Goal, L. Lebarr; point, E. Foley, C. point, C. McCarney; 1st def., J. Ward; 2nd def., A. Johnston; centre, L. Brown; 2nd home, J. Lawson; 1st home, K. Mein; out home, S. Rosenfield; in home, J. Killoran; spares, A. Miller, J. O'Toole, C. Doughty."

INDIAN FILMS

A system of legal censorship of moving pictures on the British model has been in existence in India since 1910.

SAVES THE DAY—Hank Bauer, Yankee rightfielder, makes a game-ending grab of Sal Yvars' line drive for the last out, to give the Yanks the game and the series. Yvars, a pinch hitter, slashed the first pitch to right field with the tying run racing around to the plate. But Bauer grabbed the sinking liner, fell down and came up with the catch that saved the series.

Orfuns Trounce Ryerson In Four-Point Grid Fray

Peterborough's Orfuns kept in the ORFU senior "B" race here last night by trimming Ryerson Tech of Toronto 33-5 before a good-sized and noisy grid crowd. A band and cheerleaders, brought by the visiting squad, added to the noise and color in the exciting and clean contest as Frank Gnup's local crew showed decided superiority throughout. They racked up a 12-0 lead in the first quarter and made it 18-5 at the half, scoring a touchdown in the third and adding two more unconverted tries in a convincing display in the fourth frame. At that, Orfuns were fined 70 yards in penalties to 60 for the losers, each team having 13 first downs. Ryerson completed seven passes to five for Peterborough, but kicked in with eight fumbles to three.

Huntley Stars

Bill Huntley sparked the Gnup attack by scoring two touchdowns, converting three, and throwing two touchdown passes, gathered in by Don McGillis and Lally Lalonde. The latter also tossed a pass which was taken by Clive Naismith for a try. Murray Dewart got the other major score. Bolton's try in the second quarter was the only Ryerson score, though the visitors battled gamely all through and clicked for a flock of nice passes.

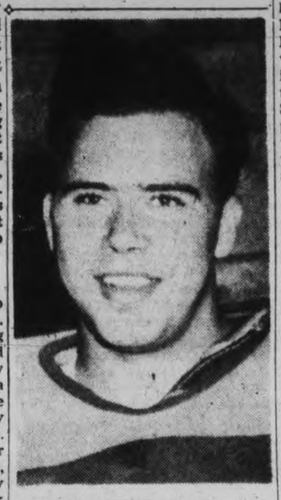
Chuck Paul's long hoofing was a feature in the home win, and the powerful work of the line offensively and defensively gave the backfield plenty of protection. Some neat tackling was seen, too, by the winners. Their main fault was in roughing or interference penalties drawn. But the team as a whole clicked in fine and crowd-pleasing fashion, showing plenty of open play and lots of versatility as well as hustle. The game was a four-point one.

Set Them Up

A blocked wick set Orfuns up halfway through the initial inning, Huntley's later going around end for 20. Hodson got two and they opened the enemy up with a forward attempt, Huntley then bucking through and kicking the convert. Hubert Knox, formerly of this city, recovered a fumble but Johnston blocked a kick and Burne recovered. They lost possession later and a Kay-to-Sharpe forward moved Ryerson up, but they lost out shortly and Orfuns drove again. A Huntley to Don McGillis pass was ruled complete and a Toronto penalty hurt them. Huntley tossed a nice one then to Don and he got the touch, Bill kicking the point.

Matthews had a 12-yard runback next quarter and Naismith took a Huntley pass. Later, Thompson took a short kick when Ryerson held with a few yards to go. Huntley skirted and then plunged over, hoofing the extra. After Scriver took a pass, McCaughey intercepted another and Mundry and Fennell began to roll for Ryerson. They used the old Statue of Liberty play several times to move the sticks, and eventually set Bolton up for an end run and converted try. Jerry McGillis shook loose for 12 before the half.

Neat Runback



Dewart's 20 - yard runback opened the third, and Jerry, Spike and Bill bucked to move the sticks. J. McGillis on a reverse went 40 to the Toronto 15, Matthews got four, Jerry six more on an extension and then Dewart's quarter sneak paid off, but it was not converted. Toronto drove but Beatty's hard tackle knocked Sharpe for a loss. Nickle got around end for nine and Farr and DeCarlo opened up holes in the drive. Lalonde intercepted a pass but it was called back on a penalty. Fennell extended for eight and they kicked then with Hodson carrying it back 10. They tried a fake placement but it missed, and Trimm threw his man for a loss near the close.

Ryerson opened it up in the fourth but Fitzgerald stopped them with a stiff tackel for a loss. Jim Conlin went nine. Later it took Thompson, Johnston and Scriver to halt Kirkpatrick on a run. Menzies halted Bolton, but Fennell reversed the field for 20. Nickle snared an onside kick to race 30 to Toronto's 10-yard chalk and Lalonde took Huntley's toss for a try, not converted. Fennell reeled off two big gains and Mundry got another, but Lalonde intercepted a pass. Paul Scriver's kick was fumbled and Don McGillis recovered. Lally, on a double reverse, gained 12 more and then he passed to Naismith on the next play on Huntley's handoff for a major score, the convert missing. Teams:

Ryerson—Flying wing, Urbanic; halves, Kirkpatrick, Mundry, Bolton; quarter, Anderson; snap, Roughly; insides, Ovis, McCoy; middles, Moore, Annis; outsides, Fear, Sharpe; alternates, McCaughey, Fennell, Kay, Purser, Stirling, Prendergast, Sales, Lucas, Bartell, Buckner, Dawes, Koblanski, Knox, Laughlin, Stricharuk, Passmore, Hessel, Fredo.

Orfuns—Flying wing, Lalonde; halves, Huntley, Matthews, Hodson; quarter, Dewart; snap, Graham; insides, Lynch, DeCarlo; middles, Beatty, Fitzgerald; outsides, D. McGillis, Naismith; alternates, Paul, Burns, Farr, Trimm, J. McGillis, Thompson, Lynch, John Conlin, Berry, Baker, Jim Conlin, Bartley, Menzies, Howe, Corner, Nickle, Scriver, Johnston.

Officials, J. Guerney, J. Mumford, J. Glover.

GOES GREAT—Chunky Bill Huntley was in great grid form for Orfuns last night as they defeated Ryerson Tech of Toronto 33-5, Bill scoring two touchdowns and tossing two touchdown passes in a swell all-around showing.

City Bowling League Goes With 10 Entries

The Men's City Bowling League, comprising 10 teams this year, with a mixture of well-known bowlers competing against a team of teen-age boys from Duffus alleys and a team made up from the local detachment of Provincial Police, sponsored by the Kawartha Garage, rounds out the entries for the 1951-52 season.

The league champions of the last two seasons, Schockeys, failed to make an appearance this year, so a new champion will take the Duffus Trophy when season's end rolls around.

The exceutive for 1951-52 includes capable Johnny Playford, a well-known city league competitor, as president, with Bill Stanbury as vice-president and Mel Akers returned as secretary-treasurer. Bill Stanbury leads the league with a 927 triple and in singles with a neat 372. McGillis Hotel crew have pinnage of 3555 and team single of 1327. McGillis also leads the league in total points with 20 compiled in four nights since the league began to operate Sept. 20.

Last Thursday evening, Cavanagh's showed the way with pinnage of 3365. Jack Wade, of McGillis, had a neat triple of 814 and Mel Akers took single honors with 363. Ted Moore's had a team single game of 1252. Other good scores were M. Akers' triple of 802, and single games Jack Wade 307, Joe Denault 305 and Godfrey LaPlante 303.

There were 4-2 point margins taken by Clapper's, Bassell's, De Laval, Cavanagh's, Ted Moore's over McGillis Hotel, Duffus Recreation, Anthony's, Sunoco's and Kawartha Garage respectively.

Advisory Club Gives SPS Grid Uniforms

Formal presentation of 20 rug- by outfits was made to the St Peter's junior rugby team by St Peter's High School Athletic Advisory Club at a recent meetin in the K of C hall. The presentation was made by President R S. Hull and Glen Moher, of the purchasing committee, and they were received on behalf of the team by Father John Coughlan athletic director.

The team, playing junior "B' in a COSSA league with Port Hope and Cobourg, have won al their games so far under the coaching of John Lynch. Winner of their group will have the opportunity of playing off with the other group winners here on November 17.

St. Peter's seniors, who received their outfits from the Advisory Club last season, are playing a series of exhibition games until their playoffs with St. Michael' squad in the Catholic Conference later in the season, Mr. Hull stated. To date, the seniors have not had a point scored against them

Both rugby teams were honored at a banquet last year and the meeting decided to make this a annual event with this year's date yet to be set.

Father Coughlan told the meeting that three hockey teams from the school have been entered in the bantam, juvenile, and midget city league. The possibility of peewee team was also included in their hockey plans for the coming season.

Error Gives Jacklich Win

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13 (AP) —Due to an error by the referee Buddy Jacklich, 132, of San Francisco, won a third round technical knockout over Laver Smith, 127½, of Los Angeles Friday night in a scheduled 10 rounder at Hollywood Legion Stadium.

Jacklich's victory, accomplished by butting his head into Smith's face, may be only temporary, however. Clayton Frye a member of the California Athletic Commission, conferred hastily with referee Frankie Van then announced to the booing fans that he would recommend the fight be called a draw.

Frye said Van admitted making an error in giving the fight to Jacklich. Under California rules it should have been called a draw inasmuch as Jacklich was a point ahead at the time he accidentally butted Smith.

The butt opened a gash over Smith's left eye and rendered him unable to continue. Had he been ahead on points, he would have been awarded the verdict under the State rules.

Leafs Open Season No. 5 Sweater Missing

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP). — When Toronto Maple Leafs open their National Hockey League season against Chicago tonight sweater "No. 5" will be missing from the Leaf lineup.

That's the sweater belonging to Bill Barilko, who fired the winning goal that gave Toronto the Stanley Cup last spring and has been missing since Aug. 26 on a fishing trip with Dr. Henry Hudson, a Timmins dentist, in northern Ontario.

No. 5 will be hung up in a locker in Leafs' dressing room where it will stay, presumably, until its owner is found.

PLANTS MAPLE TREE — Princess Elizabeth plants a maple tree on the main driveway into Government House in Ottawa. An oak tree was planted a few feet away from the maple by the Duke of Edinburgh during their two-day visit to Ottawa.

GIFT FOR PRINCESS—A delicate stone carving of an Eskimo mother and child, shaped with crude tools by a Cape Dorset Eskimo, will be presented to Princess Elizabeth just before she and the Duke leave Canada for home. The presentation will be made by Resources Minister Winters on behalf of Canada's Eskimo people who populate the northland, when the Princess and the Duke visit Halifax Nov. 7-8. The carving is the work of Munamee, an Eskimo from Buvojuak, Cape Dorset. This photo is by Bert Beaver, Montreal.

Abraham And Jacob
A Contrast In Natures

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD

A puzzling and embarrassing incident in the Bible is the story of Abraham's lapse from truthfulness in representing his wife, Sarah, to be his sister, when they were confronted with danger in Egypt (Genesis 12:10-20).

The incident is so at variance with everything else that is recorded of Abraham, a record remarkable in every way, that one can only regard it as the sort of lapse that does sometimes occur in the lives of men whose general character and action are on a high plane.

It seems strange to think of a man of faith and courage, a peaceful and magnanimous preventer of strife between his herdsmen and Lot's, and the utterer of a high and beautiful prayer, resorting to a cheap lie. He lied out of fear for his own life and gave no thought to the fate of Sarah.

It was a lapse in the life of a good man, not at all indicative of the high character in which everywhere else Abraham appears. The case of Jacob, Abraham's grandson, is very different.

Jacob, in his early life, at least, does not appear as a good man, lapsing into a temporary act, or character, of weakness or evil. In contrast there is in him something fundamentally bad. He is a schemer and trickster, mean and selfish. A glimmering of something better appears in his romantic love for Rachel, and he does ultimately give every indication of having become a better man.

But no glossing over of the evil in the early life of Jacob can make him better than he was. The evil in him was deep, underlying his trickery and vicious scheming. Yet that early evil makes the transformation in his character all the more significant.

Two things, I think, stand out boldly as we consider Abraham and Jacob. One, as we think of

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1951 VOL. CIII. No. 86

THE ROYAL STANDARD WAS PLACED in position on the C5 RCAF aircraft at Trenton Air Station on Friday by its Captain, S/L Stewart F. Cowan. Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh had just arrived by car on the air strip and, a minute or so later, enplaned with their party and took off for Toronto. Take-off was exactly 16:32 hours.—(Gordon Parks for Peterborough Examiner).

Impressive Ritual As Air Force Welcomes Princess

By T. J. ALLEN

Grandeur brooded over the great Trenton RCAF base Friday afternoon, from the poised moment before the wide Commonwealth Memorial Gates opened to bring Princess Elizabeth and the Duke before the vast concourse of her airmen and people; to the final moment when the Princess walked through the gates again 29 minutes later, to be driven to the officers' mess for tea, and thence to her majestic plane. It was an unfamiliar and solemn grandeur. It stifled outward expression of joy and enthusiasm. There was little cheering; little clapping. People were held in awe. They seemed to be overcome not only by the sight of the Princess and the Duke, by the glittering ceremonial, by the display of air might; they seemed to be overcome also by the realization that all this was theirs—their Princess and handsome Duke; their magnificent Air Force; their bronzed and glorious sunlit country. The conjunction of all this in one supreme half-hour was too great and unfamiliar to be borne lightly. They did not shout or cheer or smile; they stood solemn, impressed into high seriousness by the Royal visitors and the occasion.

Even when all was over and some of the grandeur had wisped into the air with the great C-5 which carried the Prince and Princess off to Toronto, silver in the maturing sun, the emanation remained; people did not gossip and crack jokes; dash hither and yon; run for their thousands of parked cars; or even toot horns in the two-mile long halted traffic line an hour later. They hugged the memory of the great occasion to their hearts, and were silent.

Magnificent Setting

A grand setting it was, and a grand day. Viewed a few minutes before the Royal party arrived, from the vantage point of the station water tower, 175 feet high above the parade ground and flat-roofed white hangars and messes, the setting was magnificent. To the north, hills flattened in perspective, bronze and glowing in autumn colours; to the south the very blue Bay of Quinte, and Prince Edward county greener than the northern hills; north across the static ribbon of highway, along which the procession was soon to come, were hundreds and hundreds of parked cars, looking small and huddled as ants in a vast field of runway pavement and cleared land.

In a far corner was a collection of planes, banished for the day to clear the runways. Only a half-dozen North Stars, Mitchels and other proud machines were on the actual landing field. In the centre, waited the great royal plane. Near at hand, below the water-tower, were the crowds surrounding the parade square, silent, waiting. On the square two bands, the colour party, the motionless ranks of blue-grey, formed up in ceremonial order.

Sound the Still

Nothing moved except pennants and flags rippling lightly and a puff of smoke from somewhere in town.

Then, faintly, came a slight sound of cheering. A quiet off-stage voice caught accidentally in the loud-speaker system was heard: "There it is; the green light."

Then a loud voice, fraught with importance: "Trumpeters. Sound The Still." So was heralded the Royal approach. Guns boom a Royal salute—twenty-one times the boom reverberates, heavy but not loud, a muted ground bass to fanfare.

And here is the Princess, looking very slim as she steps out of the long open limousine; too frail and beautiful to have thrust on her the weight of this massive and solemn moment.

Her personal Royal Standard is broken from the masthead over the dais: the quartered flag with its orange and gold opens full.

She chats with her escort, the bemedalled Air Vice-Marshal, as she mounts the dais where important people stand to receive her. A young woman of 25, simply dressed in russet-brown, the kind of simplicity which greatness wears. (Reporters who have been with the Royal tour since the beginning whisper to each other as they stand beside the dais that it is the smartest and most becoming cos-

Award For House Appealed By Seabrook

Barry Seabrook, whose property at 492 George St. was expropriated for the new city hall site, is appealing the $11,550 arbitration award of Judge S. L. Smoke.

Seabrook, represented by Alex Elliott, KC, is asking for $18,150 plus higher interest. In the original claim he asked $16,500 for the property, $1,650 for the forcible taking, and $3,000 for loss of rents —a total of $21,150, plus interest.

The property included a lot 49 feet by 118 feet, a garage and an 11-room brick house with two bathrooms.

Downstairs the house was divided into two apartments, one with four rooms and the other with two rooms. Each apartment had a separate entrance but there was one bathroom. The second floor had five rooms and one bath, the occupants having the same outside door as the tenant occupying the four-room apartment on the ground floor.

70 Years Old

The house was 70 years old, set on stone foundations, with a cellar under the rear part of the house. It was of solid brick construction with 14-inch walls.

The expropriation bylaw was passed in December, 1948.

Judge Smoke, the arbitrator, made the following award: $10,500 as an estimate of market value at the time the expropriation bylaw was passed; $1,050 as compensation for the compulsory taking of the property, plus four per cent interest from May, 1950.

The award is subject to a mortgage in favor of the estate of Thomas Tindle, late of Smith township, amounting to $4,400 plus five per cent interest.

Witnesses who gave evidence for Seabrook placed more emphasis on the future possibilities of the property than they should have, Judge Smoke ruled.

Appeal Grounds

Some of the chief grounds for appeal, as outlined by Mr. Elliott:

Greater regard should have been paid to the earning value of the property and its value to the claimant and the replacement value less depreciation.

(Judge Smoke) "erred in failing to take into consideration that . . . the property had been frozen and its price depressed for a long period prior to the passing of the expropriation bylaw because of the general public knowledge of the action taken by the . . . city council to acquire the property."

Mr. Elliott also contends that insufficient regard was paid to evidence on what a willing purchaser would have been willing to pay at the time of expropriation.

Mr. Elliott also argues that "undue importance" was given to the evidence of the city's expert witness, W. H. Bosley, as to the value of the property.

HURT AT ROSENEATH

A. Brown, of Oshawa, suffered a fractured leg in the last heat of the 2.25 class race at Roseneath Friday. He was driving "Arian Strange" for F. White, of Oshawa. Just after leaving the wire, the horse reared up and swung to one side, pitching Brown off his gig.

WESTERN HARVEST

Fine clear weather has accelerated threshing operations throughout the west this week, in practically all sections. CNR reports that "it will require at least a month of it to complete the crop." In the Okanagan Valley of BC most of the fruit is now in packing houses.

Prove It!

TRENTON, Oct. 13—(CP)—Scotland Yard found out Friday Canadians are keeping a careful guard on their royal visitors too.

One of the famous Yard's officers guarding the royal couple started off across the parade square at the RCAF station to accompany them on an inspection of the field's set of memorial gates.

An RCAF policeman quickly blocked him off. The bodyguard couldn't produce the requisite credentials, so he never did get to the gates. But he picked up his charges later.

Douglas Lawrie Planning Election Voting

With the provincial election on November 22, just a little over a month away, returning officer Douglas J. Lawrie has a big job on his hands seeing that the voters' list is correctly prepared.

This is the third provincial election Mr. Lawrie has supervised as returning officer for the electoral district of Peterborough West.

His office is located in the Centennial Building at 252½ Charlotte St., and on Friday afternoon, Mr. Lawrie and two assistants were busy preparing material and information for the enumerators.

On Monday, 122 enumerators will start ringing doorbells in the city's 61 polling subdivisions to get the names of all eligible voters.

Work In Teams

The enumerators will work in teams in the urban area—two to each subdivision. One enumerator on each team will be chosen by the Progressive Conservatives, the other will be selected by the Liberals whose candidate ran second in the last provincial election.

This is the first time that two enumerators have been appointed in each urban subdivision for a provincial election (there are two enumerators in federal elections.

In the 52 rural subdivisions which are included in the Peterborough electoral district, one enumerator will make the rounds.

"There will probably be the same number of subdivisions (113) as there were in the last provincial election," said Mr. Lawrie. "The only difference will be that some people living in the north end of Smith township and North Monaghan will be in the city this time".

There are 11 subdivisions in the city which were in rural subdivisions in the 1948 provincial election.

Sworn In Friday

Some enumerators were sworn in Friday and the rest are being given the oath today so they will be ready to start Monday morning. The enumeration has to be completed by next Thursday, October 18.

Mrs. Frances Hope of 219 Stewart St. was the first enumerator to call at Mr. Lawrie's office Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Hope could not recall exactly how many times she had been an enumerator for provincial elections but said she knew she had done it "several times."

HELP CIVIL DEFENCE

The Civil Defence committee has been granted use of a room at Central school for training purposes. Beginning Oct. 23 they will meet every Tuesday for 13 weeks. Cost of the extra janitor service will be met by the committee.

Health Department Moves Into New City Hall Under Protest—Dr. Kelly

Quarters In New Building Not Adequate, No Room For Expansion Already Planned, Not Given Due Consideration By Council

Tempers were on edge Friday afternoon at the Peterborough department of health. The department had to move and they didn't like it. Preparations were underway for the actual move into the new city hall today. But it was not the trials and tribulations of packing that were behind the very obvious bad humor. "We're moving from the Turner house in to the city hall under protest," Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH, said. "And it isn't sour grapes protest either. We don't think our case has been given due consideration by the members of the city council."

The doctor went on to explain that despite continued efforts by the department staff to meet with the council and explain difficulties which will arise as a result of moving to the new quarters, they were not given audience.

Definite Word Tuesday

Dr. Kelly said that he had approached both the mayor and the chairman of the Board of Health concerning the matter, but had received no definite word on the matter until Tuesday of this week.

"The mayor told me then that we would definitely have to move. His reason—to follow the policy of the committee to have all civic departments in the new building. For the last few months, the only satisfaction I've been able to get is the remark, 'We'll see.'

"We're disappointed. We had hopes of giving the citizens of Peterborough the best possible health services. This order to move has not only put a stop to further expansion included in our plans, but will seriously stifle our present program. In fact some of our activities will have to be stopped altogether.

Could Save Money

"The ironic part of this whole situation is our plans for the future had included a project which would save the city money."

The medical officer explained that the Peterborough department had received a request from an adjacent municipality to discuss the possibility of establishing a health unit there. If this health unit became a reality it would make the Peterborough civic health service eligible for a provincial annual grant of between 25 to 30 per cent of the cost of maintenance.

The services which will have to be discontinued will be the child health clinics held at the department quarters.

In addition, if the preliminary talks now being carried on between the boards of health and education towards amalgamation of health service in the city's public schools develop into agreement, the department won't be able to carry out the program for lack of space.

Other reasons why the department officials don't want to move can be best explained by a comparison of the two locations.

In the Turner house, there are 12 adequate and spacious rooms for offices, storage and the clinics. There is also a good-sized waiting-room.

Smaller Offices

The new city hall quarters consist of seven rooms. The office space is much smaller. There is no room for clinics, and no waiting-room. One small room only has been given for storage.

"We have had as many as 100 in the department at one time in the past," Dr. Kelly said. "What will we do with them if this happens after we move?"

"The Turner house is satisfactory not only for our present activities, and also with very little cost could be renovated to accommodate any future expansion of services."

"We feel that the council has not given us adequate opportunity to present our case."

Liberals Call Convention To Get Candidate

A nomination meeting to name a candidate to contest the Peterborough riding in the Ontario Legislature has been called for October 18 by the Liberal party.

Arthur Lewis, president of the association, in announcing the meeting said that Donald Baxter, MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox, would be the speaker. Mr. Baxter was first elected to the legislature in 1948, winning in a three-corner fight, defeating the Speaker of the Legislature Hepburn.

Several names are being mentioned including that of one prominent woman, but all Mr. Lewis woud say was that it would be an open convention and would be held in the Canadian Legion Hall at 8.00 p.m.

Who Will Be 1st In New Jail Come Monday?

Today is moving day for the police department.

Business is going on as usual, while records, office equipment and other new furnishings are moved to the new city hall.

Over the weekend, the police department will continue to operate from the present police station and prisoners will be jugged in the present jail building before being moved to the county jail until Monday. Prisoners are not kept longer than overnight in the old cells.

It is not expected that there will be much competition for the dubious honor of being the first "guest" in the new jail when the police department begin operating from their new quarters on Monday.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

CLOCK INSTALLED

Workmen at the new city hall have installed Peterborough's new town clock. It is expected to be running by the start of the week.

ASK McDONNEL PARKING

City council is being asked by the Board of Education to abolish the one-hour parking limit on the north side of McDonnel St., beside the collegiate. At present parking facilities are insufficient. No parking is allowed on the south side of McDonnel. Both teachers and students are inconvenienced by the existing setup.

BUY GAS FURNACES

Gas furnaces instead of blow torches will be used in the near future to heat soldering irons in the sheet metal class at South Central school. Recently a vocational student was burned when gas spurted from a torch as the student was adjusting it; the torch was then enveloped in a sheet of flame. The Board of Education has authorized the purchase of three small gas furnaces for the job.

Royal Car Skids Into Ditch On Highway 7

It was announced earlier that the 40 sleek cars provided by two companies for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh and other members of the Royal entourage will be sold after the tour in the general areas where the cars are last used.

The cars are being moved all over the country in a leap-frog movement to provide adequate transportation in each centre where the Princess will leave the train.

While being driven to Toronto for the civic reception there for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, the Royal car, used in Ottawa on Wednesday went off Highway 7 Friday near Kaladar.

Reports say that the driver, tired from the day's work at the Ottawa reception for the Royal couple, went to sleep at the wheel and the car went off the highway into a deep ditch.

No one was injured but the custom-built car was damaged along the right front and rear side. A softdrink transport, which came along shortly after the incident, pulled the car out.

At noon Friday the car was taken to Williamson's garage, George St. south, by one of the employees, after it had been stripped of all the Royal attachments at the scene of the accident.

Owned by the Ford company the car was placed in Williamson's garage over Friday night under "lock and key." Today it was moved to another of the garage's buildings until instructions were received about the car.

Library Visit On Program For 3,000 School Children

Approximately 3,000 children from Peterborough's public and separate schools are visiting the public library as a part of the school curriculum in 1951.

This is the fifth year that these classroom visits to the library have been conducted. During the year 88 classes of students will make four visits to the boys' and girls' department of the library.

The visits are made every morning during the week and consist of book talks given by Miss Lillian Wesley, boys' and girls' department librarian, and Miss Barbara Ettinger, assistant.

Pick Out Books

Following the talk the children are allowed to browse in the library and select books to take home. In their selection, the children are guided by the advice of the library staff, so that books suitable for their age and school grade are chosen.

"These classroom-library visits have two important advantages," Miss Wesley said today. First, many children come to the library in these classes who would never come otherwise. Secondly, we are able to guide the children in their reading to a much greater extent than if they just made casual visits outside of school hours."

The success of these visits has been proved by a jump in circulation figures since they began. In 1947, when the classes were started, the circulation in the boys' and girls' department for the year was 25,848. The circulation figures for this year up until the end of September are already 44,013.

PETERBOROUGH UTILITIES COMMISSION

HOUSE No. 461.—Facing the river near Amherstburg, Ontario, is this snug red brick house, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gibb. Not only does Mr. Gibb live in the house, but he designed and erected it himself, giving every detail the care and attention needed to produce the kind of house he and his family wanted. Special requirements included lots of windows, a breakfast nook, a first floor bedroom and bathroom, a roomy sun porch, and last but not least, an extra-large master bedroom. Roof is of cedar shingle stained green; with dormers, entrance detail, and trim painted white. Unusual feature is soldier coarse of brick along grade line, clearly visible in the photograph. For working drawings, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

BIG NOSE

The nose on the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor itself is four feet six inches long.

DREARY CLIMATE

There is snow, rain or fog almost every day of the year on both the east and west coasts of the Kamchatka Peninsula off Siberia.

Resume Shipments

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 13 (AP) —The Argentine government will resume frozen meat shipments to Britain immediately, trade sources reported Friday. Frozen meat shipments to England have been at a standstill since August 14 when Argentina was forced to cut off British shipments because of a critical shortage in the domestic market.

Controlled Heat A Must In Today's Modern Homes

New trends in home design, particularly the swing to the popular ranch-style or rambler house and homes without basements, have brought about added emphasis on the importance of having a well-engineered heating system, states the Minneapolis-Honeywell Co. Most homes owners now realize that a thermostat is the key to the heating system.

Cost Relatively Small

The cost of automatic heating control is small, compared to the cost of the home, usually amounting to less than one per cent, yet it is all-important. It assures comfort, safety and economy.

In choosing a thermostat, the householder should ask: Is it adapted to the needs of my particular house and household? Does it have the most modern improvements? Will one thermostat do the job, or should my house have zone controls?

Thermostats, like watches, vary in quality and craftsmanship. "Bargain" thermostats, like cheap watches, are not always accurate or dependable. In choosing a new thermostat you literally present it with a "blank cheque" to spend your fuel dollars and since a cheap, inaccurate instrument may waste heat, it is false economy not to get the best.

Three Standard Models

The three standard models of thermostats popular today are the clock-style, the semi-automatic and the manually operated. Each can be installed when the house is under construction or can be used to replace an ordinary old-style thermostat.

The clock or Chronotherm model automatically matches the room temperature to the living schedule. During the day it controls the burner to maintain the exact temperature desired. All night it automatically lowers the room temperature. Since government figures show that lowering temperatures during the sleeping hours will save from 9.6 to 21.9 per cent of the fuel (depending upon the climatic zone in which you live), this is an important item. In the morning the Chronotherm automatically raises the temperature to the daytime level before the family begins its day.

A timing device in the semi-automatic thermostat provides day-night operation. Simply set the timer each night before retiring. This thermostat will then maintain the lowered room temperature during the night and raise it automatically in the morning. It differs from the Chronotherm only in the fact that is necessary to set the timer each night.

The Acratherm, or manually-operated thermostat, maintains exact temperature, but it is necessary to change it by hand, if a different degree of heat is desired. A simple finger-tip dial at the top of the instrument makes it easy to re-adjust the setting to meet daily requirements.

Improper location of the room thermostat may be responsible for erratic operation of an otherwise good heating or winter air conditioning system. In many cases it is necessary to have more than one thermostat to make adjustments for different parts of a house. This is particularly true in ranch houses spread out over large areas.

This brings up the question of how many thermostats to use and the best location for them.

Location Very Important

If you are using only one thermostat, do not install it in a room which has unusually large areas on east, south or west sides. Any thermostat no matter how good it may be, can measure only the temperature of the room in which it is located. In this instance, the device would be actuated by the sunlight heat while other parts of the house remained uncomfortably cool. A thermostat should not be exposed to a current of cold air from the windows or outside doors and it should not be located within three feet of an outside wall. Also, it should not be placed near a fireplace.

Homes that are small and compact may not require more than one thermostat. It should be located in the living room area near the central part of the house. If the house has unusual features, however, a second thermostat may be needed. For example, it would be well to have additional thermostats in a basement play area and upstairs bedrooms.

The problem of determining the number of thermostats for any large home is basically the same as for rambler houses. Heating engineers today suggest a plan of zoning a home for heat, with a thermostat for each bedroom area, living room area, kitchen and recreation room. While the initial cost will be higher than for a single thermostat, fuel economy will result in the long run, because it is possible to shut down the heat in unoccupied rooms.

Old School Bell Given To Principal

BANCROFT, Oct. 13 (ENS).— To the list that contains the names of collectors of unusual objects can be added that of W. R. Robinson, principal of North Hastings High School.

As a boy, young Ritchie Robinson attended SS No. 2 Faraday, known locally as the Tin School. After graduating from Ontario Agricultural College, Ontario College of Education and teaching in a number of high schools he returned to his native village to be the first principal of North Hastings High School, when the continuation schools of North Hastings were consolidated into one high school area in 1946.

At a recent meeting of the Bancroft - Faraday Township School Area Board the old school was sold to the township of Faraday as the new 3-room building at Paudash was accommodating the pupils from the Tin School.

A request from Mr. Robinson was granted. He asked for the old bell from the tower of the school.

City's Carved Coat Of Arms Put Up In Council Chamber

Considered a masterpiece of workmanship Peterborough's coat-of-arms arrived Friday from Toronto and was placed in the council chamber of the new city hall. Featured in the council chamber, the coat-of-arms is the work by A. Scott Carter, Toronto artist and expert on heraldry. Mr. Carter, at the request of the city council, hand-carved the coat-of-arms from three pieces of white pine, making the finished product approximately three feet by four feet.

Th coat-of-arms has attracted favorable comments from various Toronto artists on the handwork and painting. They consider it to be one of the finest coat-of-arms in Canada.

E. A. Outram, city clerk, said that the city of Toronto's coat-of-arms can't be compared with Peterborough's.

Few Authentic

In November, 1950, Peterborough became one of the few cities in Canada with an authentic coat-of-arms devised and granted by the College of Heralds in London, England.

Earlier in 1950, Peterborough's centennial year, the matter of replacing the old unsanctioned so-called "arms" of the city was brought to the attention of the city council by an Examiner editorial. The old arms were neither heraldic nor well designed.

The council then, through Mayor M. J. Swanston, petitioned the College of Heralds for a grant of legitimate armorial bearings.

The speed with which the College of Heralds acted was shown in the dating of the warrant: May 9, 1950.

Sketches History

All the coat-of-arms point out various phases of Peterborough's history.

The shield has a green background, representing the 'champs' (French for field), a reference to the first explorer's trip (Champlain) through this district in 1615. The green can also refer to the Emerald Isle, from where most of Peterborough's early inhabitants came in 1825. It also refers to the fields and forests in the district.

The sword pointed downwards recalls the veterans of the British armies who fought in the Napoleonic Wars and in Canada in 1812 against the Americans, both receiving after the wars grants of land in this vicinity.

Across the shield is a six-barred wavy arrangement of alternate blue and silver, representing the Otonabee river and the many lakes and rivers in and near Peterborough.

The most important accessory is the crested helm, mounted above Peterborough's shield of arms on a wreath of green and silver. A beaver, grasping in its left paw a golden key pointing upwards, representing the key of St. Peter, a tribute to the Roman Catholic church, one-third of the city's population, to the religion of the Irish immigrants, a reference to Peter in city's name, the city of Peter.

Next most important accessory of the shield is the "sopporters" a Canadian stag on the left and a lion on the right.

The city's motto is placed across the ground at the base of the shield. It is unchanged from the motto "Nature Provides Industry Develops" which the city has had for a long time.

But it is translated into interpretive Latin: "Dat Natura, Elaborant Artes." More broadly the translation is that Nature give bountifully and the arts, craft and energy of the people develop and elaborate nature's gift. It refers to Peterborough's abundant natural resources and her industries.

Find Comedians Have Peculiar Habits

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13 (AP)—Are you a coin-jingler? A hair-curler? A lint-duster?

Each of us has some quirk of personal behavior. Comedians have them, too. A comic, who will have to remain nameless, was discussing the habits of his colleagues this week.

"In pictures you can cover them up with cutting or retakes," he observed. "In radio it doesn't matter! You can't see them. But in television you can't miss them.

"Even the most polished performers have some habits they can't hide. You'd never think that Milton Berle is ever at a loss for a gag, but he can be. How can you tell? He lets out a growling noise that sounds like 'urrrr' and distorts his mouth."

"Sid Caesar is a cougher. He lets out a big cough every now and then. Jerry Lester combs his hair. Bob Hope draws his little finger over his eyebrow. George Jessel lays his index finger on the side of his nose. Jack Benny sticks his hand in his pocket.

"Me? I scratch."

Broadway Route

Some observers are always harping on how movie people go to Broadway to be discovered. Yes, it has happened, as in the case of Betty Grable. But what about some more recent examples?

Lee J. Cobb was a hit in "Death of a Salesman." Likewise Paul Kelly in "Command Decision" and Jessica Tandy in "A Streetcar Named Desire." And did these three stage stars return to Hollywood in triumph? Not exactly. They resumed playing largely secondary roles.

June Lockhart was a comedy hit on Broadway a few seasons back, but she failed to cash in when she returned to films.

Critics raved about Patricia Morison in "Kiss Me, Kate," but she hasn't drawn a movie assignment yet. And Anne Jeffries drew applause in "Kate," "Street Scene," and other musicals. Still no films have come her way.

If cashed before August 1st, 1953, simple interest is paid at 2% per year (calculated monthly). This is because "dividing up" the first coupon payment over the period of 1 year and 9 months comes out to this "rate-per-year". This "rate-per-year" gradually increases as each coupon becomes payable until, for a bond that is held for its full term, the average annual interest rate reaches 3.21%.

Suez Canal

SUEZ CANAL, 103 miles long, in operation since 1869, connects Mediterranean with Red Sea. It is a vital link in Britain's lifeline to Far East. It carries nearly half of Western Europe's oil and many of its factories' raw materials from the Far East.

EGYPT'S SQUEEZE on Suez jolts Britain and the West. The fate of the Western world's largest, best supplied and most strategically placed military bastion in the stormy Middle East is involved in the grave dispute between Britain and Egypt. Egypt's hasty moves to cancel a 1936 treaty that allows British troops in the Suez and the 1899 agreements under which the Sudan is jointly administered by Britain and Egypt come as a severe blow, following hard upon Britain's forced withdrawal from Iran. The Newsmap above shows strategic importance of the Suez Canal, considered the keystone of Western defense of the Mediterranean. Cairo's moves to eject British troops from Suez came as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower met with U.S., French and British chiefs of staff in Paris to rush plans for a Middle East defense with Turkey and Egypt as primary bases. Inset map shows closer view of big ditch, guarded by British troops at Port Said, Suez and Ismalia.

Good Manners Do Count

By NANCY CLEAVER

Good manners have always been important and they still matter in modern life even as they did in the Age of Chivalry. Rules of etiquette change and are discarded with the passing of time. There are different codes of behaviour among different classes of society and in different countries. But the qualities of mind and heart from which courtesy arises remain unaltered. Parents who are eager that their children should grow into well mannered people do well to consider not only rules of conduct and polite phrases, but the traits of character which are the foundation of etiquette.

An excellent definition for good manners is that they are "the happy way of doing things." A person who is kind and considerate by nature will not find it difficult to practice "the happy way of doing things." Sincerity and fairness are two other essential qualities in satisfactory contact with others. Self control and respect both for others and for one's self also contribute to pleasant behaviour. A sense of humor is the thing which saves the situation many times. Last, but not least, common sense often dictates what is the right thing to do.

A little child in the home copies the manners, whether they be good or bad, of those around him. Courtesy, like measles, is "catching." Formal teaching of rules is never a substitute for observation and experience in living. This does not mean that a child of courteous parents may not sometimes act in a rude fashion.

A child who is ill, or frightened, or exhausted may be discourteous and uncooperative. Sometims a child acts in a boorish way in imitation of the actions of a chum. Once in a while, a child may do an unexpectedly rude thing as a bid for attention. Sometimes the best treatment for rudeness is to isolate the child. At other times, it is wise to ignore some small discourtesy in front of a visitor, but discuss the child's behaviour later with him.

"Good manners" has a rather vague, impersonal sound to a youngster. But "being friendly" has a very definite meaning. A little child is often naturally shy in the presence of strangers and may feel no necessity for showing friendliness. The attitude of kindness to others is one which is gradually learned. Mothers cannot expect too much of a little child, but they can encourage a son or daughter to be friendly and suggest definite ways to show friendliness. Sometimes it is a good plan to make a little game of using courteous phrases such as "please" and "thank you".

As boys and girls enter adolescence they usually become more conscious of their own need for knowledge and practice in the correct way to behave in different social situations. The lonely, anti-social "teen ager" is often acutely aware of his lack in training in social amenitities. Then agers need to have their own friends and be accepted by their own group of chums. A boy or girl hates to make a social blunder in the presence of the opposite sex.

A great help to feeling at ease in the presence of others is for boys and girls to have the chance to welcome friends in their own homes. Another real need is for a Youth Centre under satisfactory supervision where boys and girls in their teens can meet together for parties, discussions and sharing of hobbies and athletic interests. Manners (and morals too) take care of themselves when adolescents have the chance to work and play together in the right atmosphere in a place of their own.

No Foreign Subs Seen Off Coast

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 13—(CP) — No unidentified submarines were reported off the east coast of Canada last summer, giving the impression that Russia may have completed its observations, Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy, flag officer of the Atlantic fleet, Royal Canadian Navy, said in an interview Friday night.

Admiral Mainguy was flown to London from Halifax by the RCAF to address the first tri-service banquet of the London United Service Institute held at HMCS Prevost.

Commenting on the rash of reports that submarines had been sighted off Halifax during 1950, Admiral Mainguy said he had received none during the past navigational season.

TIME STANDARD

The Royal Observatory at Greenwich, England, on which all world time zones are based, was established by Charles II in 1675.

A MILLION WAIT—As Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh land from the plane at Toronto's suburban airport, Malton, more than 1,000,000 persons from the nearby city and other parts of the province waited to give them a tumultous welcome. The Royal couple flew here from Trenton, Ont., landing at 5 p.m. EST, Friday for the start of a two-day visit.—(CP from Toronto Telegram).

"At last! I have a PLAN FOR SAVING that works!

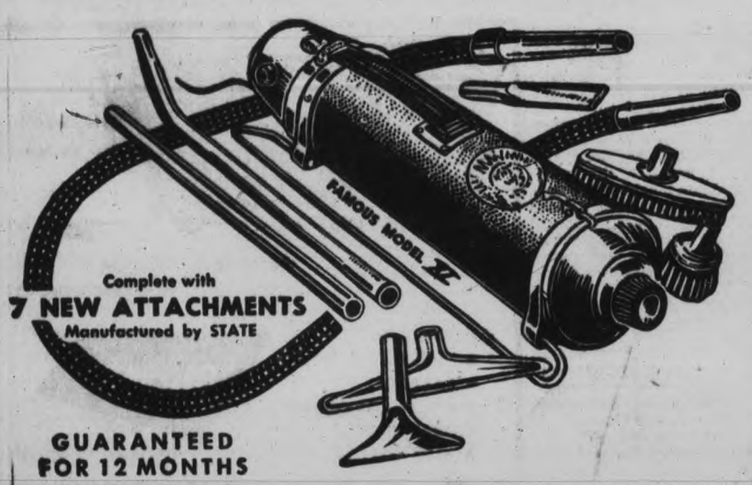
"I'm something like you. I've a good job . . . a family . . . plenty of things I hope to do . . . plenty of places I hope to see someday. And, like you, I have bills to pay . . . am concerned about the future . . . wish I could save more money.

"Luckily, my wife is good at family finances. She can make a dollar go farther than anybody I know. We sat down and did some figuring. To put it briefly, we decided that the best way to make our savings grow was through life insurance.

"So we called in the Mutual Life representative. He was good at family finances too.

"We talked it over . . . figured it all out. Now, with a Mutual Life policy we have a plan for savings that works."

"AND EVERY DOLLAR SAVED IS BUSY PROTECTING US"



That's something to remember. An insurance policy is not only protection for your family; it's also a plan for family saving that works.

Spry Grandmother Drives Attlee On Stumping Tour

LONDON, Oct. 13 (Reuters). — A spry little grandmother of 55 is whizzing about England behind the wheel of a modest family sedan on a 1,000-mile tour of the country as chauffeur to her husband, Prime Minister Attlee.

Violet Helen Attlee probably gets more fun out of elections than anyone else in England. She loves every minute of the hectic campaigning.

This year, as in every election since the war, she is driving her husband through England for his stumping tour.

She now is about halfway in this year's nine-day tour with election day still 12 days off and the schedule met all along the way.

It means fast driving—a steady 70 through the green country roads—with husband Clem Attlee sitting beside her muttering over points for the next speech.

Carloads of newspapermen are strung out behind the Attlee car. And many a reporter climbing out wearily and mopping his brow can attest to Mrs. Attlee's driving stamina.

A Great Help

But political experts reckon she contributes much more than road skill to her husband's career. Her down-to-earth housewife's approach—call it political intuition—is credited with steering the Prime Minister out of many a tight corner.

Mrs. Attlee herself seldom speaks at her husband's rallies.

A little shy and nervous of microphones, she calls herself "just not political."

Twenty-nine years ago her engagement to Clem, home wounded from the First World War, brought a frown from her family. Clem was professionally a lawyer but already had made his name in the headlines as a Socialist crusader in London's slums. Mrs. Attlee's family was well-to-do, and distinctly non-Socialist.

It was some time after the wedding in 1922 that Mrs. Attlee joined her husband's Labor party.

"I took a little while to be convinced—but it was my own decision," she says.

Mrs. Attlee never counted on her quiet, serious husband to become Prime Minister. "I was flabbergasted," she said after he rode to office in 1945, "but now I wouldn't have missed it for the world."

During the last six years she has found the role of Prime Minister's wife a busy one—200 letters a week to be answered, prizes to be awarded, ships to be launched, clubs to be joined, receptions to be organized.

But still she has always found time to turn up in the gallery of the House of Commons for Clem's big speeches.

Also she must run the Premier's official residence, the ancient 70-room square block of a house at 10 Downing Street, surrounded by government buildings and just around the corner from the House of Commons. The Attlees spend their week nights in an eight-room apartment there.

Often at Chequers

Weekends and time off they spend at the official country residence, Chequers.

Their own house, a country cottage of six bedrooms called Cherry Cottage, has been rented.

Britain's fashion experts keep a wary eye on Mrs. Attlee's hats. They have earned her a reputation. Sometimes it will be a smart straw framing the face or a perky one roosting atop her bobbed grey hair. But more often it is more imaginative—sometimes with a cluster of towering tail feathers pointing upwards, for example.

Clothes, though, are usually simple—black or dark blue for town and tweeds for country.

Christie-McKinlay London Wedding Of Interest Here

Of interest to a number in this city is the wedding today at London, Ontario, of Miss June Marie McKinlay, daughter of Mrs. McKinlay of London and the late Mr. Murdoch McKinlay, formerly of Peterborough, to Mr. Arthur Russell Christie, son of Mrs. Marguerite Christie, also of London.

The ceremony took place this afternoon in Colborne St. United Church by the Rev. Murray Stuart. Theodore Gray was organist, and James Stoner the soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. William McKinlay of Peterborough. Her gown was of white nylon marquisette over heavy satin. The moulded bodice featured a cuffed portrait neckline fitted in with tiny shirred rows of French lace and the full skirt ended in a cathedral train and over the hips was a curved peplum of shirred, tucked lace. A satin crown trimmed with orange blossoms held her fingertip veil of illusion and she carried Bettertime roses.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. J. R. Baker, and bridesmaid Mrs. H. E. Wakeling were in frocks of old gold and moss green faille taffeta styled with full bouffant skirts, emphasized by formal fitted bodices topped with short boleros with stand-up collars and bracelet sleeves. They wore taffeta caps with matching feathered trim and carried arm bouquets of bronze mums and poms.

Groomsman was Mr. H. E. Wakeling and the ushers J. R. Baker and Robert Sharp.

For the wedding the bride's mother wore emerald green velvet with matching hat, bag and shoes, white gloves and a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother wore wine velvet with black accessories and Johanna Hill roses.

After a reception the couple left for Cleveland and other U.S. points by air. The bride travelled in a beige whipcord suit and wore brown accessories, a brown squirrel neckpiece and corsage of bronze 'mums.

"Rainbow Hair" Relieves Boredom

NEWARK, NJ, Oct. 13—(AP)—Golden apricot in the morning silver topaz at noon and sparkling sherry after sundown.

Description of a rainbow? No, just the coiffure color scheme of the future.

He said it's all part of the little women's urge to get away from routine.

Tushnet demonstrated how the change of shade can be accomplished in a matter of minutes with a plastic applicator.

He admitted the color change may entail new clothes and millinery to match the hair—and possibly even a new husband.

Rev. G. D. Young, BA, BD, officiated.

The church was decorated with pink and white gladioli and chrysanthemums. Wedding music was played by the organist, Mrs. Alex F. Fraser and solos were rendered by Mrs. E. C. Prentice.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in white satin and lace with sweetheart neckline caught with pearls. She also wore a necklace of pearls the gift of the groom. Her veil was of silk nylon net and was in a halo shape caught with pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink Brairecliff roses.

Wedding attendants were Misses Marion Reynolds, Ruth Bateman and Mary McGregor, frocked respectively in yellow, mauve and green taffeta with matching picture hats and matching bouquets of chrysanthemums.

The best man was Thomas Culbreth of Niagara Falls, NY. Don Bailey and Albert Leonard were ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held in St. Andrew's church hall with catering by Circle 1 of the WA of the church. The bride's mother received wearing a gown of wine velvet and matching hat and corsage of white carnations.

The groom's mother, who assisted, wore a gown of Normandy blue crepe, matching hat and corsage of Lester Hilbred roses.

The honeymoon was spent in Niagara Falls, NY, and Buffalo, NY.

For travelling the bride wore wine velvet, with light grey accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. They have taken up residence in Marmora.

Out-of-town guests were present from Madoc, Belleville, Peterborough, Toronto, Niagara Falls, NY, and Buffalo, NY.

FIRST STEAMBOAT

The first steamboat, the Virginia, ascended the Mississippi river as far as Fort Snelling, Minn., in 1823.

Norman D. Sopha Wed In Almonte

MARMORA, Oct. 13 (ENS)—The wedding took place in Almonte recently of Miss Louise LaForce of that town and Norman D. Sopha, son of Mrs. Cynthia Henderson and the late Philip Sopha of Marmora. The ceremony was performed by Canon John Cunningham. The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a floor length gown of baby blue satin with net overskirt, sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. Her veil of blue silk net was held in place with a crown of blue sequins. She wore long blue gloves and her bouquet was of red rosebuds and white chrysanthemums.

Her sister, Ann LaForce, was bridesmaid dressed in a floor length gown of Nile green satin with hoop skirt, short puffed sleeves and sweetheart neckline. She wore long white gloves and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and white chrysanthemums. Her veil of silk net was held in place with a crown of silver sequins. Mr. Lloyd LaForce, brother of the bride, discharged the duties of best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents after which the couple left on a short honeymoon. For going away the bride wore a navy blue gabardine suit with green accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds.

They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts. They have now taken up residence in Marmora.

QUESTION: I would be grateful if you will give me a hint as to how to retain the shape of tart shells. Mine always shrink out of shape or are lop-sided and are not attractive looking like the ones in the bake-shop. I feel there must be a secret I am not aware of. I prick them with a fork before baking and have tried covering them for the first few minutes they are in the oven. — E. M. S.

ANSWER: It is quite simple to remedy this. Fit your unbaked pastry over the outside of the tart tins. That is why bake shops use individual tart tins to make their tart shells on. I have fitted the unbaked cut-out pastry circles over the bottom of the tart tins in a pan of one dozen—like a muffin pan—but you must be nimble fingered to do this. Even when you do bake your tart shells on the bottom of the tart tins you must prick the pastry with the fork tines before baking to prevent it puffing unevenly. I know this will keep your tart shells even and hope I can help you again.

QUESTION: We got your good recipes obtained through using skimmed milk powder, but cannot obtain the powder here. I phoned for a can of milk powder and they sent me whole milk powder. It was 98 cents per can. It would make 4 quarts, but would be much dearer than the pasteurized which is 16 cents per quart here. I told two merchants about it and they tried wholesalers, with no results.

So if you could kindly inform me where it could be obtained I should be very grateful, as the cost of living is soaring each week. My husband is retired, 80, and unable to earn, and we can't begin to live on our income.

If you cannot inform me either by letter or in your column, I will conclude you do not not know where . . . I know many, including merchants, would be glad to have this product made available. — K. G.

ANSWER: I have started the wheels rolling and will soon be able to tell you or have someone else contact you, what progress I am making. If it turns out that the manufacturers or wholesale grocers will not handle it in your town I will have a supply sent to you.

QUESTION: Would you please print a recipe for pork fried rice? It consists of rice, mushrooms, pork and some kind of seed sprinkled on top. I don't know for sure what else it calls for. It is served with a brown sauce. I would appreciate it very much if you would explain just how it is made.—P. E. N. S.

ANSWER: The recipe for fried rice that I am giving you comes from the proprietor of a Chinese cafe. He thinks the seeds you refer to are sesame seeds, but says "All Chinese cook diff'lunt."

Pork Fried Rice

In heavy iron pan beat ¼ cup peanut oil and when it is very hot but not smoking, add 1 cup raw, washed and dried long grain rice. [illegible] is not dried after it is w[illegible] will spatter when adde[illegible], so watch for this. Add [illegible] can pieces of pork (or chicken or shrimp) cut in ½-inch strips that are 1½-inches long (or the size of pieces of meat in the dish you are hoping to reproduce), and one-half pound washed and sliced mushrooms. Saute together for about 5 minutes then add another ¼ cup peanut oil. Have heat low. When the rice and mushroom absorb this add 2 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon each salt and MSG (the Chinese call this white seasoning), cover and simmer over very low heat until rice is tender. If desired all of these ingredients may be cooked separately. If this is done most of the liquid should go on the rice. Divide the remainder between the pork and the mushrooms and divide the seasonings. Combine the ingredients when served and sprinkle with sesame seeds. Soy Sauce should be passed or added to the mixed ingredients.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife of Invalid Needs Some Consideration

DEAR MISS DIX: What is the difference between nagging and talking? My husband and I, both in our late forties, have been married fifteen years. We love each other dearly and have been very happy. He has had stomach trouble all his life, and as I feel sorry for him, I have spoiled him quite a bit. Now I have become very nervous and am under doctor's care. I have always worked hard, but am unable to do as much as I used to. When I ask my husband to put his own things away, he says I am nagging. Any suggestion I make to him he calls nagging. I ask him nicely, don't fuss and if he won't do as I request, I do it myself without comment. Is that nagging?

M. B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The difference between nagging and talking is in the point of view. It's always the other party who is the nagger! Judging from your story, I'd say your husband had more tendency to nag than you have, but there are two reasons for it. One is his stomach condition. A digestion that doesn't work is the hardest thing in the world to live with, and responsible for more naggers and chronic complainers than anything else. It's hard on the sick person, and hard on his relatives.

Sympathy Helps

Sympathy and understanding are the only means to handle the patient; in your own nervous state it's difficult, I know, but to preserve peace in the family, exercise all the tact you can. The second thing wrong with your husband is the fact that you have always spoiled him. Once you begin to spoil either a husband or a child, it's difficult to backtrack and suddenly begin to exercise discipline.

For fifteen years you picked up after your man, put his things away, did jobs around the house that rightfully should have been his work. You can't suddenly make him do these things himself. Naturally he thinks you're nagging when you make requests he never heard before.

No matter how ill or nervous you may get, don't expect sympathy yourself. Hubby has had years of exacting special attention because of his ailment, which he has no intention of relinquishing. If your doctor can make him realize you, too, need attention, you're lucky!

What can you do? Nothing much, except proceed as you have been, eliminating any semblance of nagging from your conversation. If you can't do things, and your husband can't or won't, leave them!

DEAR MISS DIX: I was waiting for a bus the other day when a boy walked up to me and asked to take me home. I refused his offer, so he kept on talking for a while, then walked on. He knows some of the girls I know and seems like a very nice boy. I would like to know him, and wonder if it would be all right to invite him to a picnic I am having soon. I am 17.

KITTY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since you have mutual friends to serve as an introduction, you could invite this young man to your picnic. Discretion must be exercised in the cultivation of casually met acquaintances. Usually, such friendships can be cemented through a church or similar organization to which you both belong, or through other friends.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend has begun to lose interest in me. Is there anything I can do to regain it?

C. C.

ANSWER: When a boy loses interest, the best thing to do is pack the romance in stardust and begin all over again. If you feel his affection is ebbing, don't hang on like a lost hope; be one step ahead of him. Perhaps his heart is just wandering temporarily and will come back to you. Don't borrow trouble, but if your really see a parting in the offing, be prepared!

Children To See Princess At Hockey Game

Possibly no one from Peterborough will see the Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh as well as some of the crippled children who are being taken to Maple Leaf Gardens for the special Saturday night hockey game and the visit of the royal couple. Some of the 10 or 12 crippled children making the trip are unable to walk and for them box and rail seats have been provided. The others and the eight underprivileged children from Peterborough will have good seats in the block set aside some weeks ago by the Shriners of Toronto.

Twenty-five tickets were made available to the Rotary-sponsored crippled children here by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children branch at Cobourg and Mr. Paul Irwin handled arrangements. Mrs. Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pilon and Mr. Alex. Clark are escorting the crippled children.

The extra tickets are being used for children now under the care of the Children's Aid Society, some of whom have one or both parents in sanitariums. They are going in care of Bill McFarlane of the YMCA and are being driven by Joe Watson and L. H. Ingram.

Women Brokers Invade Wall St.

NEW YORK. — Wall Street is wooing the women. The citadel of the stock exchange, once a man's world, now has 385 women brokers (almost twice the number it had five years ago), thousands of women clerks and millions of women customers.

Some of this warm interest in women is a matter of cold business. Some of it is due to war.

"With full employment and the draft to consider, Wall Street must look for women clerks and machine operators, just as industry looks for women riveters," says one brokerage firm. "It is a definite trend. Today 50 to 60 per cent of the employees in some Wall Street firms are women."

The women customers' brokers —though only a small percentage of the total—have attracted more attention than any other women in Wall Street. In a job so hard many a man would not tackle it, some handle hundreds of thousands of dollars a month. They take clients' orders to buy and sell stocks and bonds, give investment advice and draw up long-range investment plans with due regard for clients' jobs, finances, ambitions and retirement plans.

Older Women Drs. Receive Awards

NEW YORK (AP). — Three women doctors who have been breaking precedents all their lives set another mark for women this week.

The trio, who together have lived 225 years, were awarded the American Public Health Association's 1951 Lasker awards. Each woman has practised medicine for more than 50 years.

Dr. Florence Sabin, 80, Nov. 9, is director of health and charities for Denver and sparkplug of sweeping public health reforms in Colorado.

Dr. Elise l'Esperance, 71, director of the Strange Cancer Prevention Clinic at the New York Infirmary, raises and shows ponies for a hobby, writes and edits.

Dr. Catharine Macfarlane at 74 carries on a medical practice, is active on the board of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, lectures and writes on her specialty.

Marmora Couple Wed 50 Years

MARMORA, Oct. 13—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus Bertrand celebrated Thursday their golden wedding anniversary in the home in which they have resided for the past fifty years. They were married in the old brick Church of the Sacred Heart parish which was replaced by the present one by the Rev. Thomas Murtagh, parish priest for many years.

Mr. Bertrand was born at Petite Rocher, New Brunswick, 92 years ago. When a young men, he came to Marmora and engaged in the work of a building contractor. He built a number of the buildings in the business section of the village as well as the town hall, the Separate School and several dwellings.

Mrs. Bertrand was formerly Catharine Quinn, of Marmora township, one of a family of eight whose parents died while the family were quite young. Mrs. James Slattery, Seaforth, Ontario (nee Madeline Bertrand) is a daughter who with her husband was home for the wedding anniversary.

Mrs. H. A. McNally is a daughter of Mr. Bertrand of a former marriage.

A high mass of thanksgiving was offered in Sacred Heart Church on Monday in gratitude to God for a long and happy life and good health, even until this day. The Rev. J. A. O'Neill, their pastor, was celebrant. Later that day a turkey dinner was served in their home attended by members of their family and immediate friends.

Mr. Bertrand has been more than a carpenter and might well be classified as a cabinet maker, for a portion of the furnishings of the Sacred Heart Church were made by him and his own home contains much furniture, the work of his own hands. Until recent years, his voice gave expression to the liturgical chant of the church as choir member.

An interesting feature is seen in the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shannon also were celebrating their golden wedding anniversary at the same time with the high mass of thanksgiving for them being celebrated the day before. The two families have lived side by side on Madoc St. for the past fifty years.

Election Bait

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—New labor laws passed by the Frost government at the last Legislature were enacted "purely as election bait," George Bagwell, Toronto lawyer, charged on Friday night at the Liberal nomination convention here. C. C. Calder, a member of the last House, was chosen candidate for London.

Impressive Ceremony

tume they have seen her wear yet.)

A young woman of 25 born a Princess, whose destiny is to rule. She seems alone in the great concourse. As she sits on the platform her facial expression is rather strained (cords of her throat are working nervously, her chin twitches); as she stands for the National Anthem, or to receive the Guard Commander, his sword proferred, or for the presentation of the Colour, she is very serious.

Duke Beside Her

But she is not alone. Prince Philip, whose chair is always advanced a few inches ahead of others in the front rank, leans forward, turns to speak to her, his elbow resting on his knee. She smiles. How handsome the Duke is; tall, very fair, aristocratic rather than regal, intently at ease. The Star of the Garter glitters on his naval uniform. As he stands with his wife, his left hand plays with the hilt of his sword. As he sits watching, he cups his chin in his hands.

The ceremonies proceed. The bands pay now softly and impressively; now gaily and quickly. The troops have been inspected. They parade through intricate drills with spectacular precision and despatch. Both the Princess and the Duke lean forward in their chairs, not missing a turn.

The Presentation Party advances; and this was perhaps the most moving episode of the afternoon. They advance in slow march, magnificently done, while the band intones Elgar's march from "Pomp and Circumstance." The officer charged with the gift holds it on a velvet cloth; the brown maple box is open. The party advances with intense and stately rhythm to the foot of the dais.

It was a great moment, and the RCAF carried it off with splendour. The dignity is charmed and warmed as the Princess very humanly bends forward to look at her gift and to chat with the Prince about it.

Then there is the noble spectacle of the Advance in Review Order. The phalanxes move abreast, forward towards the dais, bringing their rifle butts to the pavement with so precise and thunderous unity that the Wham! splits the sky and brings an involuntary Ah! from ten thousand spectators' throats. The Royal Salute is given, the Colours are dipped to the ground; the Princess stands motionless and serious, her program leaflet clutched in her left hand. The Duke salutes. The band begins 'O Canada' proudly, it sounds, rather softly at first working towards a triumphant chorus: "We stand on guard for thee."

Aerial Salute

On the northern horizon, between hangars, appears a formation in the blue sky, six bombers and twelve fighters. Their thunder comes near. "God Save the King" swells. Now the planes are overhead and their roar is mighty. They swoop low. The platform party lift their eyes, as every one else does, to this aerial salute. At that moment the last phrase of the band's anthem sounds even above the machines: "God Save the King." The drums continue their roll, and out of the southern sky, startling the heavens with their swift flight, come three Sabre jets. At a speed of 600 miles an hour they pull up to loop and wing a three-feathered symbol of grace and power, there between the earth and sky of Canada. In a second they have disappeared—in a minute they are already 60 miles away.

The ceremonies ended, the Princess with the Air Vice-Marshal at her side, and behind her the Duke and in procession the other members of the platform party, cross the parade square to view the Memorial Gates and to leave through them. Here again is the impression of grandeur, as the Princess walks slowly through the blue-grey uniformed, and rigid lines, past the flags and the bands.

As she disappears from view enveloped in pomp and circumstance and in another hour required by duty to begin another strenuous visit in Toronto, it is like a symbol of her entire future.

It is a future inevitably hers, and hers alone, destined forever to move through pageant and strangers, to go first among all, first in all, and to step forever through a never-ending series of gates, never to run freely across the lawns of private delights.

As this quiet figure, so lovely and small for greatness, passed from their view, Canadian hearts felt for her an affection and respect which great conduct and a dedicated spirit called from them that brilliant and splendid afternoon.

Marmora WI Aiding Blind

MARMORA, Oct. 13—(ENS)—Although counter attractions occasioned a smaller attendance than usual, the meeting of Marmora Women's Institute, held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Sweet, did not lack in interest or enthusiasm. The president, Mrs. H. P. Naylor, occupied the chair.

The roll call was "What I eat for breakfast."

A letter from Miss Annie P. Lewis, of the Home Economics branch, drew attention to a series of broadcasts which members might listen to with interest and profit.

In response to the annual circular from the Department of Agriculture, it was decided to apply for the legislative grant as all conditions can be met by the local branch. In the absence of Mrs. E. C. Prentice, Mrs. P. Gordon, of the library furnishing committee in which the IODE work jointly, reported upon the new blinds and drapes that had been placed in the library.

With Mrs. M. Kouri, Mrs. Gordon was appointed as committee to obtain estimates on the sanding and varnishing of the library floor which the Institute would like to undertake.

Final plans for the canvass for the National Instiute for the Blind being held at the end of this week as well as the Tag Day on Saturday, were settled, canvassers being given their sections of the village and canvassing material with returns later going to Mrs. F. R. Wells, local represetnative of the National Institute.

The chartering of a bus that members and their families who wish might have a day's outing to the Royal Winter Fair is being looked into, in the hope such will be practical.

Mrs. P. Gordon gave a paper on "Home Economics." The program consisted of a humorous reading by Mrs. F. Sweet, a few rounds of bingo and a contest in which parts of the body formed the answers.

Lunch was served by the committee in charge. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Kerr, it being Citizenship and Education night.

New Collegiate To Get Football Grounds

The Board of Education want the grounds of the new collegiate ready for the use of rugby teams next year. And they are taking steps this fall to get them into shape.

As a result of a recent survey, the accommodation committee recommended that the northern half of the grounds be plowed and levelled this fall so it can be seeded in the spring. The sod in this half is poor and spoiled by weeds.

The southern half is described as fair sod and only requires a good rolling in the spring.

Board officials this year had difficulty finding practise space for the colegiate teams when they were barred from Nicholls Oval. They are using the Exhibition grounds and the Quaker Oats field.

LINCOLN, R.I., Oct. 13 (AP) — Police Friday night warned thieves to be careful of the loot they got earlier in the day from the office of the M. A. Gammino Quarry. The loot—nine boxes of dyn

Roseneath Fair Receipts In "Royal" Weather $1,000 More Than 1951

"Bless her heart, look at the royal weather she brought us," was the tribute of President Fred J. Slade of Roseneath Fair Friday when it was suggested that Princess Elizabeth at Trenton was "opposition."

For his 25th year as president it would unquestionably have set an all-time attendance record. Whatever the thousands of the crowd, the gate receipts were $1,000 more than last year.

As another index, Mayor Max Swanston of Peterborough who opened the fair, was held up half an hour in getting out of the grounds at 5 o'clock. That indicates the traffic jam leading to the exits.

Diploma To President

The surprise of the afternoon was the presentation to Mr. Slade of the Ontario Department of Agriculture's diploma for "meritorious service to agriculture." This award arrived by mail about 3 p.m., delivered to the fair grounds from Hastings.

Clarence Varcoe, secretary, explained to the crowd at the main stand the unexpected circumstances of the receipt of the Ontario department's honor to Mr. Slade.

"For that reason the presentation has to be informal," he said, "and on behalf of the department and our board I am most happy to extend my own congratulations to our president for this distinction."

"I hadn't the least idea that anything like this was coming," said Mr. Slade. "I am deeply gratefule to the department. I have only tried to do my bit through the years. I have worked with the best board of directors any man could have. I never heard one unkind word in all our deliberations. I would like to say that it has been an honor to work with them."

Mr. Slade thanked the people for their support. "I sincerely hope that the Princess and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, are having as good a time as we have."

Peterborough Greetings

Mayor Swanston spoke briefly from the east stand where Major Earle Drope presided with a special program chiefly for the young people, including contests in public speaking, singing, nail driving and so on.

"As Mayor of Peterborough, whom I have the honor to represent, I bring you the greetings of our citizens and council," His Worship said. "We greatly appreciate the goodwill and friendly business relations which you of Northumberland county have always shown toward us.

"I congratulate you on the splendid record of Roseneath Fair. You have made it one of the best of the smaller fairs in Ontario by the hearty spirit of co-operation that flourishes in this community.

"Your reputation for warm and friendly public relations has been a factor in attracting thousands of people from many miles in this part of our province. It is something you cannot buy because it comes from your dispositions and from your hearts.

"The evidence of prosperity which we can all see here is the achievement of your directors, supported by your community. Mr. Slade has been a director 32 years, and has now been president 25 years. Your secretary, Mr. Varcoe, has been a great help in that office for 32 years. It is quite evident that they have deserved your continuous confidence.

"May I add my own word of thankfulness that His Majesty the King has recovered sufficiently to enable Princess Elizabeth to visit us. We know that she will receive a glowing welcome in her tour of Canada. She is a charming daughter of the Royal household who in the persons of the King and Queen have been a strong support and example to all their people around the world. May God continue to guide and bless them."

Bancroft Beauty

Two Bancroft girls vied for top prizes in the beauty contest. Mrs. Unema Trotter was a manifestly popular winner of the first prize of $35, and Miss Mabel Graves must have been a close second for $25 on the judges' cards. Miss Lillian Yearwood of Port Hope was third.

Youth and winsomeness were obvious qualities of the fifteen girls from different sections of Central Ontario who presented themselves to the judges, Mrs. M. J. Swanston of Peterborough, and Mrs. A. L. Haverson and Miss E. McMahen of Oshawa.

The Baby Show

Only four infants were entered in the younger group of the baby show. The awards by Dr. D. E. Mikel and Dr. B. M. Woods of Cobourg were:

Babies under seven mnths: 1 Barry Wayne, son of Mrs. Earl Woodcock, Peterborough; 2 Karen, daughter of Mrs. F. Somerville, Cobourg; 3 Elwood, son of Mrs. Everett Adams, Brighton; 4 "Billie", son of Mrs. L. Cable, Cobourg.

Of the numerous babies in the 7 to 15 months, the winners were: 1 Joan, daughter of Mrs. Dan Calnan, Warkworth; 2 Ronald, son of Mrs. Edward Reid, Trenton; 3 Lucas, son of Mrs. Hilda Davey, Cobourg; 4 John, son of Mrs. Andrew Aird, Batimore.

A Peterborough Interest

Peterborough would have been interested in the demonstration by Herb Cardwell of Wallace Point for Lemery Distributors Ltd., for whose new factory on Lansdowne Street West, Mayor Swanston turned the first sod Thursday.

Power chain saws, a power post-hole digger, and fire fighting pumps of McCulloch Company manufacture are being displayed and sold by Mr. Cardwell. He attracted continuous attention throughout the day.

Robin Mallory, Cobourg, was master of ceremonies, for the grandstand program.

Dancers from the Marion Laird school of dancing, Peterborough, provided entertainment features on the main stand. Wishart Campbell, baritone, with CFRB, began his vocal solos with "Land of Hope and Glory" in honor of Princess Elizabeth's visit..

Miss Eileen Sheppard of Honolulu drew the first prize for spectator coming the longest distance; second went to Miss Nancy Lamb of Frankfort, Germany.

Some of the judges were: Dr. Arthur Johnston of Peterborough, light horse; Fred Denyes, Brighton, heavy horses. Clarence Coons, Lakefield, dairy cattle; Ben Bleeker, Holloway, beef cattle; C. H. Curtis, Warkworth, sheep; Boyd Ayre, Hampton, swine. J. R. Ball, Baltimore, grain.

Some of the cattle exhibitors were: J. Edwin Wilson & Sons, Garden Hill, Guernseys; M. H. Pimmett & Sons, Indian River, Shorthorns; T. J. Convey, Dartford, Holsteins; A. Linton, Herefords.

Television Too

Four television sets shown by retailers in the manufacturers' buildjng attracted a lot of attention all afternoon.

Possibly, the Roseneath crowd may turn up a winner of one of the seven automobiles for which tickets were being sold. First draw is by Oshawa Oddfellows and Rebekahs. Others were Marmora and Stouffville Legions, another Kingston Kinsmen.

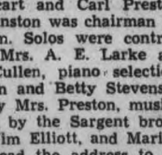
Roseneath Fair owns two merry-go-rounds whose receipts are all gravy. Bob Simpson had riding ponies for children. Scores of booths comprised a midway out of all proportion at least in number, to the average township fair.

Most of them offered as prizes a cheap variety of what the pitchmen call "slum," mostly painted dolls of some material that was hardly plaster of Paris.

S. J. Fitzgerald, Shannonville, director for district No. 3, of the Ontario Agricultural Societies, said Mr. Slade had earned by years of sound service the diploma received from the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

"I understand that this may be his last year as Roseneath president," Mr. Fitzgerald said. "They have a strong board, but whoever follows Mr. Slade will have no easy job. I have visited 17 fairs this year, and the entertainment I saw was all clean."

Springville Church Observes Anniversary



SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 13 (ENS) Mervin Rowan, formerly of Springville, and his bride, the former Jacqueline Maxwell of Bancroft, were honored by the congregation of Springville United Church Wednesday evening.

They were presented with a trilight lamp and a cushion. The presentation was made by Harley Cathcart and Carl Preston. M. H. Johnston was chairman for a program. Solos were contributed by Mrs. A. E. Larke and Dianne Cullen, piano selections by Doreen and Betty Stevens, a contest by Mrs. Preston, musical selections by the Sargent brothers and Jim Elliott, and Marilyn Bowles read the address to the bride and groom. Speeches of congratulation and good wishes were made by Bruce Elliott, Bruce Sargent, Gordon McIntosh, Walter Brown, Morgan Cullen, Walter Bowles, and Allan Stevens. The happy couple voiced their appreciation and invited their friends to visit them at their new home in Bancroft.

Suffers Minor Injury When Struck By Car

Glen Ball, 237½ Princess St., was slightly injured when struck by a car while crossing Aylmer St., at Lake St., at 10.30 Wednesday evening.

The driver of the car, Robert Batley of 283 Townsend St., told police his car struck Mr. Ball twice, knocking him down the first time, and hitting him again before the car could be stopped.

Mr. Batley took the injured man to Dr. Ralph Clark who turned him over to Dr. Robert Bell for treatment.

In addition to a cut over his right eye, Mr. Ball is said to have received a bruised shoulder, elbow and wrist and several minor cuts and scratches.

The accident was not reported to police until Thursday evening. Constable C. J. McGillen investigated.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

New Westminster Salmonbellies trounced Orillia Terriers 19-12, winning the Canadian senior lacrosse championship final in three straight games, 14 years ago tonight. The British Columbia line-up included four players previously with Orillia, who had won the Mann Cup each of the three previous years.

DiMaggio Decides To Quit Ball But Yanks Delay Official Report

By ED CORRIGAN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP). — The question of whether Joe DiMaggio, whose spectacular career with the New York Yankees began 15 years ago, is going to retire, apparently was settled today—the clipper has made up his mind to quit.

He declined to come right out and say he was finished, but he made it plain before heading for California by plane Friday night that he was delaying the inevitable only in deference to the wishes of Yank president Dan Topping, with whom he talked for two hours Friday.

"I have made up my mind to retire and that is my present intention," said the great outfielder. "I have given it considerable thought."

"You might feel differently a month from now," Topping told DiMaggio. "Why don't you go on your trip to Japan (where DiMaggio and teammates Billy Martin and Ed Lopat, along with lefty O'Doul, will entertain the troops) and give this matter a little more thought."

DiMaggio agreed.

What it all adds up to is that DiMaggio has retired but not officially. The chances are that he will make it stick although he has changed his mind before.

Want Him Back

That the Yanks and players themselves want DiMaggio back there is no doubt. He has been an inspiration to them throughout the years, and many are the rookies who merely have tried to look like him. As manager Casey Stengel remarked after the Yanks won the world series from the New York Giants:

"We couldn't have won without you, Joe."

While he was in a slump in the beginning of the series, DiMaggio was downcast. He's a perfectionist. At one point, someone told him he was valuable even if he were doing nothing—just an inspiration.

DiMaggio growled that nobody was a help to a team when he couldn't carry his share of the burden.

There is no denying that the Yanks would be willing to give Joe the same $100,000 he received this year if he decides to come back.

But his reasons for apparently calling it quits are compelling. He knows he is not the player he was, say three years ago, and that he is on the downgrade. With a lifetime batting average of .329, he hit only .262 last season and clouted but 12 home runs.

For another thing, he has been bothered with physical ailments for some time, and realizes he needs the rest from the long, 154-game grind.

Turnabout At Roseneath Wins For Ed Stanbury

ROSENEATH, Oct. 18 —With a string of 38 victories to its credit this season, Jimmy McIntyre's Turnabout hung up two more for its new owner, Ed. Standbury of Campbellford here Friday.

Turnabout finished second to Duke McKinney of the Harry Ingles stable, Brighton, in the first heat of the 2:20 class, and was first to the wire in the second and third.

Placing of the other horses in this class was: Buddy C. Grattan (Clarence Budd) 3-2-2, Flicka II (Basil Samons) 4-4-5, Rocket Hanover (H. Bone, Port Hope) 5-5-3, Olive M. Baldwin (Nesbitt, Apsley) 7-6-6, Miss Chipso (Stan Blewett) 6-x-x.

Turnabout, an Axworthy Gratton offspring, was bought by Mr. McIntyre of Peterborough in April last year from his uncle, Harry Elmhirst of Keene. Now a five-year-old, its best race this year was at Thorncliffe, Toronto, for a mile in 2.09 2-5.

Stan Blewett's remarkably consistent Victory Hi took the three heats of the free-for-all in a field of five. Driven by Orville Fallis his track time for the first here yesterday was 2:03.

The others placed as follows: Tiny Todd (DeFosse, Trenton) 3-2-2, Silk Grattan, owned by C. W. Hodgson, MP, Haliburton, and driven by R. Dowson of Port Perry, 2-4-4; Thor Grattan (Hie & Gordon, Cobourg) 4-3-3, St. John (DeFosse) 5-5-5.

Results of the 2:26 class were: Hal Grattan Patch (Hie & Gordon) 1-1-2, Gadabout (S. Blewett) 3-2-1, Texas Lee (H. Ingles) 2-3-3, Black Duty (H. White, Colborne) 4-4-4, Bonda Grattan (C. Budd) 5-5-5, Miss Belle Grattan (M. Brown, Oshawa) 6-6-6, Arion Strange (F. White) 7-7-7.

Speculation Dominates Week's Markets

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Public speculation dominated Toronto Stock Exchange dealings again this week as unprecedented activity pushed average daily volume to more than 6,000,000 shares.

It was a short week—the exchange closed Monday for Thanksgiving and at 1 p.m. Friday in observance of the Royal Visit to Toronto but during the 18 hours of business, more than 24,000,000 shares changed hands.

Market characteristics were similar to last week. Activity centred in low-priced western oils and speculative golds.

Market interest in Saskatchewan and Alberta developments followed reports of strikes. Issues such as Redwater-Piccadilly, Richfield Petroleum, Tower Petroleum, Acme Gas, Anchor Petroleum and Flank Petroleum showed daily turnovers ranging to more than 400,000 shares. Net gains were generally moderate; profit-taking appearing after a substantial advance.

Golds Quiet

Senior gold producers were quiet while investors and speculators waited to see what policy the mines would pursue following Ottawa's Saturday announcement that Canadian gold would be permitted to enter the "free" market. Most observers felt that cost-aid, plus the government price of $35 an ounce would keep big producers away from the open market. Small producers, however, might benefit from participation in the "free" market since their cost-aid benefits were generally small. Current price on the open market is about $39.

Junior producers and prospects reflected this opinion. American Yellowknife, Aumaque, Buffadison, Consolidated Astoria, Little Long Lac and Louvicourt posted daily turnovers ranging from 100,000 shares to more than 600,000 shares. A few recorded substantial gains and, unlike oils, tended to hold their advances.

Toronto and Montreal started the week Tuesday with little trend. Papers and industrials dipped in Montreal while industrials remained mixed in Toronto. All sections eased in Toronto Wednesday as papers and industrials dipped slightly in Montreal. Both centres moved indecisively Thursday. Industrials brightened in Toronto and Montreal yesterday. Papers also drew moderate support.

Quiet Dealings

New York opened the week Monday in a mixed and indecisive mood. Prices dipped Tuesday with strong activity in mining shares. The market drifted lower Wednesday in quiet dealings. The trend reversed Thursday as stocks climbed while buying boardened. The New York market was closed yesterday in observance of Columbus Day.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials up .26 at 359.18, golds down 1.07 at 86.93, base metals down .48 at 197.55 and western oils up 1.96 at 124.91.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .24 at 30.13, Utilities off .4 at 87.8, industrials off 1.7 at 243.5, combined off 1.3 at 191.6, papers off 2.2 at 833.22 and golds up 3.31 at 72.22.

In New York, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 10 cents to $101.10.

Suspended Sentence

KITCHENER, ctO. 13—(CP)—Louis Forgett, a Waterloo plumber, today was given a suspended sentence after being convicted of the theft of $3,000 from a jar plastered into a cellar wall. The court was told $2,500 was returned to police during the investigation and restitution had been made for the remainder. Forgett found the money when he was engaged in a plumbing job at the home of John Walters.

Hurricanes Hand Barrie 6-4 Defeat In 1st Game

By The Canadian Press

The 1950-51 Memorial Cup champion Barrie Flyers went down to defeat in their initial start as the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" series opened Friday night. Waterloo Hurricanes handed Coach Hap Emms' Flyers a 6-4 defeat in Barrie. Kitchener Greenshirts, the OHA's new entry, trimmed Windsor Spitfires 6-1 at Kitchener while Guelph Biltmores downed St. Catharines Teepees 6-3 in Guelph in two other games played Friday night.

The Barrie-Waterloo game saw a total of 27 penalties handed out by referees Ken Holmshaw and Pearcey Allan.

Armstrong, Connelly, Oliver, Treen, Mader and Horton scored for the winners while McKenny, with two, Whalen and Campbell scored for Flyers.

Kitchener spotted Windsor the first goal, credited to Bobby Dunham after a Greenshirt defender deflected it into his own net then came back to outclass them in every department to record their initial win.

The game featured a match-misconduct penalty to Spitfires' Rod McIlroy in the third period. An automatic $10 fine goes with the penalty.

Paces Winners

Orval Tessier paced the winners, collecting a pair of markers, with Mike Holowaty, Graham Hoyce, Joey Schnurr and Gary (Duke) Edmundston notching singletons.

A sell-out crowd of 4,200 saw Biltmores score the opening goal and lead throughout in posting their 6-3 triumph over St. Catharines.

Andy Bathgate, with two goals, was Guelph's leading sniper. Ken Laufman, Ron Murphy, Harry Howell and Billy McCreary scored the others.

Foley, Cullen and Frank Martin scored for Teepees.

All 10 teams in the loop will see action tonight. Toronto Marlboros will be at Galt Black Hawks, Toronto St. Michael's at Oshawa, Guelph at Windsor, Kitchener at Waterloo and Barrie at St. Catharines.

The Toronto inaugural will be an afternoon doubleheader Sunday at Maple Leaf Gardens, Oshawa meeting Marlboros and St. Mike's tackling Galt in the last game.

Two Accidents Tie Up Traffic

LINDSAY, Oct. 13.—Traffic on Lindsay St. south was blocked for more than half an hour Thursday afternoon when a car driven by a Sunderland woman crashed into a hydro pole, and a CNR yard engine collided with a car driven by a Lindsay man.

Mrs. Lena Skakie, Sunderland, told police she had been driving south on Lindsay St., and was about to turn right onto an intersecting road. Her daughter jogged her arm as she started the turn and the car climbed the south curb, hitting the pole.

Seventy-five - year - old Robert Weldon was shoved 27 feet in his English model car when it was hit by a yard engine. Weldon told police he didn't see the crossing watchman flagging traffic. Weldon was unhurt.

Engineer of the yard engine was Howard Reynolds.

Are you in the know?

What to do about "mousy" hair?
☐ Keep it under your hat
☐ Try catnip tea ☐ Take a capsule
If you're a Jeanie with dull, drab hair . . . you can spark up tired tresses with a colour rinse (not a dye) that comes in capsules—washes out with the next shampoo. Harmless! Dreamy shades! Choose the one best for you—slightly lighter than your natural locks. To give you the protection best for you at "problem" time, choose Kotex. You see, Kotex gives softness that holds its shape. And those special flat pressed ends of Kotex prevent revealing outlines!

Which helps sidestep dry skin problems?
☐ A steamy shower ☐ Stay indoors
For that "peaches" look, dry complexions need cream—(lanolin-rich). No call to smear Mom's best pillow cases. Instead, at curfew, slather your face and retreat to a steamy shower. Then blot off excess cream with Kleenex* tissues. Good grooming habit. Saves face. And at calendar-time, to save embarrassment, make it a habit to ask for Kotex—the napkin with the exclusive safety centre. This special safeguard wards off worry; gives you Grade A confidence.

3 ABSORBENCIES: Regular, Super, Junior
More women choose KOTEX* than all other sanitary napkins!
*T.M. Reg.

How to "be sure" of daintiness on certain days?
☐ By trusting to luck
☐ By bathing regularly ☐ By using Quest Powder
On "those" days, you can't leave daintiness to chance! Bathing's important, but it's not enough. And authorities say no napkin alone can give complete deodorant protection for all women. Choose Quest Powder! Because instantly, on contact, Quest positively destroys odours. Get a can of Quest Powder today! Ask for it by name!

P.S. Have you tried Delsey? Delsey* is the new bathroom tissue that's safer because it's softer. A product as superior as Kotex . . . a tissue as soft and absorbent as Kleenex*. (We think that's the nicest compliment there is.)

Pay Pensioners $735,000,000 In 24 Years

OTTAWA, Oct. 13. (CP)—The federal government has paid approximately $735,000,000 to Canada's aged since old-age pensions first were inaugurated in 1927, it was disclosed Friday.

A report tabled in the Commons by Health Minister Martin showed that the annual federal payments have increased from a mere $132,000 in 1927 to almost $100,000,000 in 1951. The report covered administration of the Old-Age Pensions Act in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1951.

Pensions of $40 a month are paid to persons 70 and over who have lived in Canada for 20 years and who can prove their need of assistance. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost out of revenues raised by taxation. The provinces pay the remainder.

Starting next January, the federal government will pay pensions of $40 a month to all 70 and over, regardless of means, provided they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years. It has offered to share on a 50-50 basis with the provinces the cost of similar pensions to the needy between 65 and 70.

The report showed there were 302,000 receiving pensions at March 31. Under the new legislation, the number of pensioners is expected to jump to 700,000.

Tables showed that the average monthly pension in all provinces was below $40 a month. The average in British Columbia was $36.95; Alberta, $37.63; Saskatchewan, $37.51; Manitoba, $38.34; Ontario, $37.79; Quebec, $37.71; New Brunswick, $36.48; Nova Scotia, $35.65; Newfoundland, $38.01; and Prince Edward Island, $34.38.

The report also showed that 11,198 needy blind persons 21 and over were receiving pensions at March 31. The average payment to them was slightly higher than to old-age pensioners.

Federal payments to the blind since the Blind Persons Act became operative in 1937 totalled $22,925,973.

order. The men stood steady, their fixed bayonets shone and their white webbing bleamed as Princess Elizabeth walked slowly down the ranks.

(The Princess, holding to the fashion she set in her other Canadian appearances, wore a single color—brown. Her coat was a medium brown, her pumps were of brown suede and her small hat was a lighter brown.)

Princess Elizabeth resumed her place of honor at the front of the dais, and the commander of the guard ordered the trumpeters to sound the "advance."

Airmen Parade In Special Formation

Led by a 72-piece trumpet band from the Trenton station, the main body of airmen marched onto the square to form a huge, shallow V with the open apex pointed to the iron gates.

Through the opening marched the color party, followed by the presentation party. Air Marshal Slemon gave a brief speech, presenting solid silver keys for the Commonwealth gates to the Princess.

The keys were contained in a polished birdseye maple box, lined with sealskin. On the cover of the box was carved a maple leaf.

"The RCAF is proud of these memorial gates, symbolizing, as they do, the solidarity of the air forces of the commonwealth. We ask you therefore to accept as a memento of your visit with us today the keys to the memorial gates, which we now present as a token of the loyalty and affection of the Royal Canadian Air Force," he said.

As the RCAF band played "Pomp and Circumstance" in slow time, the color and presentation parties, slow marching, moved toward the dais. The color party split, four men going to each side, and the presentation party advanced through the opening.

Presented With Memorial Gate Keys

FO Mel Burdette bore the box containing the keys to Air Marshal Slemon, who in turn presented them to the Princess.

Princess Elizabeth moved forward to the microphone as though about to speak, but returned to her seat without addressing the gathering. She was scheduled to give a brief "Thank-you" speech and was holding some notes in her hand.

Then came the march past, with all troops assembled on the square participating. The Princess stood easily at attention, and the Duke, in his lieutenant-commander's uniform of the Royal Navy, saluted smartly, his carriage erect.

Again the Royal salute was played at the conclusion of the march past, and then God Save The King.

Aerial Salute

On the final note of the national anthem, 12 Mustang fighters, flanked by six Mitchell bombers and led by a single Lancaster, flew an aerial salute to the Royal couple.

Shortly after the 18 aircraft had passed overhead, flying from north to south, three Sabre jet fighters flew up from the south in V formation about 600 miles an hour, climbed and formed a "Prince of Wales Feathers"

In this manoeuvre, the centre aircraft flies upward and the 'planes at either side turn away from it, all three eventually rolling out of the climbing formation at the top of the climb, and leaving three perfect exhaust rings at the start of their climb.

The jets were actually about 10 seconds late. At Thursday's practice show, their timing was perfect, several RCAF officers said.

Royal Pair Inspect RCAF Gates

Moving in precision, the parading airmen formed a line through which the Royal party walked to the memorial gates to inspect them. The walk to the gates was accomplished in slow time, the band again playing "Land of Hope and Glory" for a slow march.

At the gates, the Royal party boarded cars again and were driven to the officers' mess, where about 300 people—military and civilian—gathered for a brief reception.

During the few minutes the reception took, the two RCAF bands entertained the crowd and around the parade square with music and intricate marching formations.

Minutes before the Royal party left the reception to board their aircraft, the airmen formed two double lines about 20 feet apart through which the cars of the entourage were driven slowly.

Princess Forgets Weariness

Paradoxically, the Princess seemed to be less tired as the day wore on. In the short drive from the mess to the aircraft, her smiles were more frequent, and her face less white.

Then, after brief farewells by the side of a four-engined RCAF transport, the Princess and her consort took off for Malton airport and a visit in Toronto.

Condemn Sales Practices, Suggest Action

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 — (CP). — A four-man legal and economic committee has condemned two opposing sales practices in Canada, but recommended immediate government action only against one.

The MacQuarrie committee, in a 12,000-word report, has described resale price maintenance and "loss-leader" practices as against the public good, but suggested immediate action only against price maintenance. It was set up especially to study the combines legislation.

The report, on which the government hopes to fashion a new weapon against high prices, was tabled in the Commons Friday by Justice Minister Garson.

Mr. Garson is expected to bring down new legislation within the next few weeks to making retail price-fixing illegal, regardless of whether the trade is within a province or between provinces.

Resale price maintenance, which the committee found extensive in Canada, is the practice of a manufacturer or supplier suggesting that the retailer maintain the price of his product at a certain level.

Cheapens Product

"Loss-leader" practice is one by retailers to cut the price of some quality and well-known product below cost to attract customers to other goods. Manufacturers have stated this tends to "cheapen" the product in the eyes of the buyer.

The committee, headed by Mr. Justice J. H. MacQuarrie of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, described both practices as "monopolistic" and against the public welfare.

But it considered there was no immediate danger from "extreme forms of price-cutting" in this period of "inflation and relative scarcity" and therefore it was not imperative to make an immediate "and hasty recommendation regarding that practice."

Yet in Hamilton, a price war seemed in full swing resulting from the government's disclosure in the Throne Speech last Tuesday that it planned legislation against retail price-fixing.

Specifically, the committee, which has been studying combines legislation for more than a year, recommended:

1—That the government make it an offence for a manufacturer or supplier to recommend or prescribe minimum resale prices for products.

2—Make it illegal for a manufacturer or supplier to refuse to sell, to withdraw a franchise, or to take any other form of action as a means of enforcing minimum resale prices.

Abraham

Abraham, is that no man should be judged by any one incident, or phase, of his life. Even good men may lapse and fail at times, and should be judged only by their whole record of character, purpose and achievement. And the other, as we think of Jacob, is that no man's character, however evil, is necessarily fixed. Even a bad man may become a good man.

The experience of passing from badness to goodness, from death unto life, as the Apostle John defines it, we commonly associate with the saving power of the Gospel. But Jesus did not invent or originate the Gospel. He proclaimd, and gave effect to, what is in the eternal nature of God and man. He spoke of Abraham as seeing His day, and in seeing it being glad. So Jacob, in the experience of life, and in the providence of God, may be thought of as similarly anticipating the day of the Gospel.

His wrestling with the divine messenger (Genesis 32:24-30) is the widely accepted symbol of man seeking God's blessing and a better way. But the evidence in the transformation of Jacob I find in the incident of his returning, wealthy and prosperous, to face the possible, and just, vengeance of Esau, whom he had wronged. Esau appears nobly in that incident. But Jacob, by thinking only of others and their safety, sheds his selfishness and redeems his tarnished past.

Charge 3 Men With Possessing $30,000 In Gold

DETROIT, Oct. 13—(AP)—Three men, accused of possessing $30,000 in gold, were arrested here Friday by United States customs agents, who claim the precious metal was smuggled in from Canada.

The trio, who pleaded innocent to charges of illegal possession of gold, were identified as John Pearl, 40, and Eugene Volpe, 40, of Toronto, and Joseph Contino, 42, a Chicago bartender.

Pearl had 2½ ounces of gold on him and another 21½ ounces were found in the glove compartment of his car, police said, adding that it apparently came from mines in Ontario.

Additional gold, customs agents said, was found in a hotel room to which an undercover agent led other officers. He added the room was rented by the accused trio and that they were arrested in the room.

Agents claimed the three were willing to sell the raw gold for $24 an ounce, although the current black market price is $80 to $100 an ounce.

The three men flatly denied ownership of the gold, but were ordered held. Pearl's bond was fixed at $5,000 and that of the others at $1,000 each.

200,000 From US Help Windsor Greet Elizabeth

WINDSOR, Oct. 15. (CP)—The Canada-United States border vanished today in acclaim to a Princess. It was Windsor's day on the Royal tour of Canada but the reception accorded to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on their eighth day in the dominion was international. The towers of across-the-river Detroit formed a backdrop to Windsor's reception as the Royal couple moved from point to point during a 3½-hour visit to Canada's southernmost city.

For color and scope, the demonstration for the heir presumptive to the throne and her consort topped that of 1939 when the King and Queen spent 34 minutes in the city whose name was taken from the town in England where the Royal family has a castle.

Early estimates of the crowds that saw the Prince and Princess at a half-dozen ceremonies and along a 15-mile drive through Windsor streets ran as high as 400,000—about half of them Americans from Detroit.

Crammed With Boats

Before the Royal pair as they left the train where they had spent the night at a siding near the Detroit River was the world's busiest waterway crowded with shipping—crammed almost from shore to shore with flag-bedecked small craft of two countries.

In swift procession, the Prince and Princess—she in a mustard colored wool suit, straight-cut skirt and long jacket and he in a navy blue lounge suit—were officially welcomed to Windsor by Mayor Arthur Reaume.

An unofficial welcome to Detroit was extended by Mayor Albert E. Cobo whose city contributed a contingent of 40 motorcycle officers, a police band and nine hand-picked detectives to the Windsor reception. On behalf of the State of Michigan, Governor Mennen G. Williams extended a welcome.

That was the official welcome. As in other centres visited so far on the tour, the unofficial greeting was the vociferous acclaim of the crowds that lined the Royal route.

Late Starting

Today's official program was six minutes late in starting. The couple were to have stepped from their train at 9:45 am. But the slight delay meant nothing to the waiting crowds.

In signing the civic guest book the Princess sat in a chair which the King used in 1939 to open the Ontario Legislature.

Among those presented was Maj. Fred Tilston, VC, of the Essex Scottish Regiment, almost decimated at Dieppe. Maj. Tilston lost both legs in the Second World War. He won the VC in the Hochwald Forest.

Iranians Close Door To Britain In Oil Talks

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—An Iranian spokesman today closed the door to any further talks with Britain on the oil dispute except on the question of indemnities and the sale of oil.

This development came a few hours before Iran's aged premier was to go before the Security Council to tell the United Nations why it should stay out of the Iranian-British oil muddle.

The spokesman, Hossein Fatemi, deputy premier of Iran, told a press conference that Iran is resolved "to exploit its oil immediately, and since there is no sign of good will from the other side of the dispute we doubt that any recommendations for resumption of negotiations would bring any useful result. On the contrary, it may intensify the situation."

Must Sell Out

Fatemi said that the government of Iran may face the danger of disintegration because of the loss of revenue from the oil industry. He said the government does not reject the idea of paying any possible indemnity to the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and added that the government is obliged to sell its oil to any customer.

He said Iran would rather sell its oil to the customers of the last three years. He explained that these included most Western countries, Pakistan, India, Turkey, some other Middle East countries and Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Fatemi said the Soviet Union bought no Iranian oil during that period.

"Therefore, the government of Iran is searching for freedom of action in order to exploit its oil," Fatemi said, "and it is not ready to postpone its measures for the elimination of poverty and unemployment on the excuse that a resumption of negotiations would bring better results."

Asked definitely if his statement closed the door to any further talks with Britain except on the point of indemnities and the sale of oil, Fatemi said "exactly."

Berserk Man Wounds Five

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP). — A man who apparently went berserk early Sunday was charged by police with wounding five persons with assaulting and robbing another and with possessing an offensive weapon.

Police said that Gerald Shaw also known as Gerald Sullivan, 24, of Toronto, slashed William McIntosh with a spring knife in a downtown restaurant, then, with a companion, Arnold Gray, 22, assaulted and robbed Frank Shier of Toronto in an alley.

Then, police said, the two broke in on a party in a private home several blocks away, where Shaw slashed five persons with the knife.

Bernard Tullipe was knifed across the scalp. Gerald Powers was slashed on the arm and his wife, Norma, across the elbow. Ferdinand Gascon was slashed across the buttocks.

It was Gascon who stopped the knifer. He grabbed a heavy chair and brought it down across the man's head and shoulders.

New Baby Vanishes From Hospital Crib

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Oct. 15 (AP).—A new-born boy vanished mysteriously from his crib in St. Anthony's Hospital Saturday and his grief-stricken parents pleaded that he be returned.

The infant, Lawrence James Lyons, was born by caesarian section last Tuesday to Mrs. Frances Lyons, 37.

His disappearance touched off a widespread search by police of Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. In Michigan City, police carried on a grim search of garbage cans and sewers and questioned countless persons. But they said they still were virtually without clues.

Meanwhile, the child's bewildered father, James, 37, service station operator, and the pain-wracked mother hoped their plea to "take good care of our baby and bring him back" would be heeded.

Cold, Snow Strike Prairie Provinces

EDMONTON, Oct. 15 (CP) — Princess Elizabeth may get her first taste of Canada's winter on the prairies. Snow and heavy frost chilled residents today while they prepared for the Royal visit.

The weather bureau said a polar air mass rapidly spreading across the prairies may last as long as three days. This would cover the period of the prairie visit of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Driving north winds of 30 to 40 miles an hour whirled snow like confetti in western cities. The temperature dropped to 19 at Red Deer, Alta., and it was 31 here at 9 a.m. Penhold, halfway between Edmonton and Calgary, reported six inches of snow.

The cold air is expected to cover Manitoba by tonight.

Asks Inflation Tackled

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, today asked the government to tackle the problem of inflation "in a way which will assure the general welfare and security of all Canadians."

Storm Hurls Troop Ship On Jap Reef

358 People Killed On Mainland By Lashing Typhoon

TOKYO, Oct. 16. (Tuesday) —(CP)—A typhoon which devastated the southern tip of Kyushu, Japan's southern island, today was reported to have killed 358 persons.

Incomplete casualty reports also said that more than 900 were seriously injured and 267 were missing.

Nearly 30,000 homes were reported destroyed and more than 10,000 homes flooded.

Advance winds of the typhoon drove ashore a troop ship with 400 United Nations soldiers aboard and following winds prevented their rescue from the stranded ship of many of the troops. Huge waves battered the 7,000-ton Kongo Maru.

46,000 Homes Destroyed

Ashore at least 46,000 homes were destroyed or flooded. Authorities said the casualty figures were far from complete.

The Kongo Maru, 450-foot US-leased Japanese ship, was hurled on the reef in the Korea Strait Saturday by advance winds of a typhoon that struck southern Japan Sunday.

A navy announcement said the skipper and 42 crew members, all Japanese, would stay aboard the vessel unless forced to abandon ship.

Six American soldiers were injured at South Camp Fuji, southwest of Tokyo, as the typhoon's 75-mile-an-hour fringe winds struck the tent encampment this morning. Damage at the camp was estimated by the Army at "thousands of dollars."

A tent area at Camp Mower, US installation in the Yokohama area, was flattened by high winds but no military personnel was injured.

Japanese newspapermen reported nearly 200 Japanese casualties from the late-season STORM HURLS

NATO Prepares Way For Turkey

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP)—The 12 Atlantic allies cleared the way today for extending their defence pact to Russia's southern borders and over the whole Mediterranean by arranging for the admission of Greece and Turkey.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization issued the text of a protocol or supplementary agreement, which after it is signed by all 184 countries concerned will:

1. Bring Greece and Turkey into full membership of the alliance.

2. Extend the area of the allies' commitment to help any NATO member who might be attacked.

By amending the terms of the original alliance, the protocol thus will push the allies' area of responsibility over a big new chunk of Europe, over the entire Mediterranean and the strategic and vital Dardanelles.

Main clause of the protocol provides for the amendment of the sixth article in the original treaty text once Turkey formally joins as a full member. That article defined NATO's area of responsibility.

Local French Elections Give Pleven Big Endorsement

PARIS, Oct. 15—(AP)—Local elections ending Sunday gave parties supporting Premier Rene Pleven's pro-American foreign policy a smashing endorsement.

Parties of Pleven's middle-of-the-road coalition and those supporting his foreign policy in the National Assembly won 1,280—75 per cent—of the 1,660 seats at stake.

Within the coalition, the right-of-centre Independent Republican-Peasants' Alliance emerged as the most potent party, capturing 468 seats on departmental (county) councils. This represented a gain of 142 for the rightists, at the expense of Socialists and Communists.

The Communists won only 78 seats—98 fewer than they held previously. The right-wing De Gaullists, who also attacked the United States, won 150 seats for a gain of 80.

The elections, held on two successive Sundays, were for more than half of the members of the department (county) council. Local issues and personalities generally are at stake, but the Communists and De Gaullists injected international affairs this year.

Pleven interpreted initial victories last week as a grass-root endorsement of his policies.

Sunday's run-offs gave the seats to those with the highest number of votes; the previous tally required a clear majority.

The local councils have a total of 2,945 members. The remainder fall vacant in 1954.

FIRST PETERBOROUGH CITIZEN to pay her taxes in the new City Hall early today was Mrs. Lillian Corkery of 547 Rogers St., Right. Mrs. Lillian Clysdale of the tax department said that things were not too confusing after the swift weekend move from the old buildings. Ridgway Admits Strafing Of Kaesong Area

MUNSAN, Korea, Oct. 15 (AP) —Allied and Communist liaison officers wrangled for three hours in Panmunjom but got nowhere in their efforts to get the stalled cease-fire talks started again.

The only hopeful sign noted was an agreement to meet again Tuesday at 10 a.m. (8 p.m. EST Monday.)

An official United Nations summary said the Reds continued to insist on a five-mile neutral zone around Kaesong, former site of negotiations. The allies want the five miles reduced to 3,000 yards—less than two miles.

This, and a Red demand that security arrangements be settled by the main delegations rather than by liaison officers, appeared to be the main stumbling blocks in getting truce sessions underway again.

One potential threat to the resumption of talks apparently was removed with the allied admission that three UN warplanes strafed the Kaesong-Panmunjom area late Friday afternoon.

Incident Closed

Unofficial Communist sources indicated the Reds considered the incident closed.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway Sunday night accepted UN responsibility and promised prompt disciplinary action. The supreme allied commander also expressed his "heartfelt grief" at the death of a 12-year-old Korean boy and the wounding of the boy's two-year-old brother in the attacks.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, an official UN spokesman, said Monday's liaison meeting ended on an "inconclusive note."

Nuckols said no new proposals were submitted by either side. It was the longest single liaison meeting since the Reds broke off negotiations Aug. 23.

He said the allies rejected the Communist proposal on security areas because it did not retain a provision for reducing the size of the Kaesong zone.

Both sides have agreed to establish a 3,000-yard zone around Munsan, the allied advance base, and a 1,060-yard zone around Panmunjom.

Nuckols reported there were lesser questions facing the liaison officers but he told newspapermen "if agreement is reached that both sides have a 3,005-yard security zone, then I think the liaison officers would be well on their way" toward resumption of full-dress talks.

Duke, Princess Plan Spend Week In Ceylon

LONDON, Oct. 15 (Reuters)—Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh are to spend a week in Ceylon in February on their way to tour Australia and New Zealand.

An announcement from Buckingham Palace said tonight:

"The Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh have accepted with pleasure an invitation from the government of Ceylon to visit Ceylon in February."

The royal couple, now on a tour of Canada, are making a trip to Australia in place of the King, who is sick, and the Queen.

Allies Advance 2 Miles Against Weaker Resistance

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Allied infantrymen stabbed nearly two miles deeper into North Korea today and captured five more hills against weakening Communist resistance on the blazing central front. Field dispatches said Red defences crumbled completely at some points. Huge marine helicopters ferried ammunition to the front as three United Nations divisions pounded close to Kumsong, a major Communist supply and headquarters bastion about 30 miles north of parallel 38.

Allied warplanes roared out of sunny skies in support of the infantry.

By noon Monday the three-day Allied drive had netted gains up to five miles. Twenty-four hill positions had been captured.

On the eastern front, there was brisk fighting on both sides of Heartbreak Ridge. The Allies captured three hills there Sunday.

The central front drive was spearheaded by the veteran US 24th division, flanked by the South Korean second and six divisions.

Not Pick Of Troops

Most of the Chinese troops seen were teen-aged boys or middle-aged men.

The comparatively-easy advance against only 'moderate' resistance raised two questions for the Allied high command:

1. Is this a general collapse of Chinese defences on the central front?

2. Or is it merely the feeble delaying action of low-quality screening troops?

The answer is likely to come soon. At some points along the line Allied field guns are within range of Kumsong. If the Reds mean to defend this important road and rail town they will have to make a stand quickly.

There was always the possibility the Reds stripped the central front of the crack troops, and shifted them to reinforce the eastern and western fronts.

Jet Squadron At North Bay

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 — (CP). — The RCAF is to have another jet fighter squadron, the Air Force announced today. It is to be equipped with F86E Sabre jet fighters and to be formed at North Bay, within the next few weeks.

Another operational unit will be added to the RCAF's expanding air defence command with the formation of the new squadron, No. 430.

Sqdn. Ldr. J. F. (Stocky) Edwards, DFC, DFM, 30, of Battleford, Sask., will command the new squadron.

Sqdn. Ldr. Edwards was one of the RCAF's most distinguished fighter pilots of the Second World War.

He destroyed 14 Messerschmidts and one glider with 18 more Messerschmitts listed as damaged or probably destroyed.

For security reasons, the RCAF announcement did not say how many of its half-dozen or so regular fighter squadrons are jet aircraft.

Search Bush For Fugitive

KINGSTON, Oct. 15. (CP) — Police scoured bush and countryside Sunday in search of a fugitive from the Ontario Mental hospital.

Police said Louis Benedict, 50, walked off the hospital grounds Oct. 3 and is believed to have broken into a home here Saturday night. He was said to be armed with a rifle.

Ontario Provincial Police scouted the area in a plane early Sunday but failed to pick up a clue. They said Benedict had a long list of convictions for breaking and entering. Nothing was taken from the house.

The search was stepped up after Ross Aylesworth, tourist resort operator at nearby Cataraqui, reported seeing a strange man with a rifle. Aylesworth said he saw the man in the garden Sunday morning after discovering his home had been broken into.

Nothing was stolen from the Aylesworth house.

Hannam Praises Price-Fixing Action

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 — (CP).—H. H. Hannam, president of the 400,000-member Canadian Federation of Agriculture, today described the government's proposed action against retail price-fixing as "courageous," and said it would help "halt inflation."

The hint in the Throne Speech last Tuesday that the government proposed to make resale price maintenance illegal was welcomed by the Federation, which had urged the government to take such action a year ago, Mr. Hannam said in a statement.

He maintained that goods sold under national brand, and such farm supplies as machinery, fertilizers, chemicals, are "all affected" by such a practice.

Waving Red Flag Sparks Melee At Attlee Rally

WOLVERTON, Buckinghamshire, England, Oct. 15 —(AP)— The waving of a red flag touched off a pushing and slapping melee today at a political rally addressed by Prime Minister Attlee.

Attlee had just finished an election appeal to a crowd of 600 in a downtown square when tempers flared. A man in a wheel chair had held aloft throughout the speech a banner with the Russian hammer and sickle on one side and a Union Jack on the other. The banner bore the words:

"Socialist—the red flag. Conservative—God save the King. Vote for a party that is pro-British."

The Communist party has ordered its followers to vote for the Labor candidate.

Just as Attlee stepped into his car a handful of men and women rushed the banner and ripped it to pieces. Several men standing by the wheel chair resisted. There were angry cries and a lot of shoving but police soon restored order.

Attlee called for a resounding vote of confidence in his Labor government at general election Oct. 25. The Labor party, in power since 1945, had an over-all majority of only five in the last House of Commons.

"We are asking you to give Labor a great majority to carry on with the good work," the prime minister said.

"We shall deal vigorously with monopolies, restraints, and profiteers. But I am not going to promise you today that everything is going to come right at once.

"We shall get through, but only by hard work and a policy of fair shares whereby everybody while working for himself is also working for the good of the community."

Expect Parliament Name King Farouk As Ruler Of Sudan Area

Britain Warns Egypt She Will Use Force To Resist Any Attempt To Drive Her Out Of Suez Canal Zone

CAIRO, Oct. 15. (AP)—Egypt rejected tonight a western proposal that she become a keystone in the proposed Middle East defence bloc against Communism. She also took formal action revoking the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty and the 1899 agreement for joint British-Egyptian rule over the Sudan. To be voted on in Parliament Tuesday was a decree proclaiming King Farouk ruler of the Sudan. Egypt turned down flat the western proposal that an international force supplant British troops now guarding the Suez Canal area—vital point in the defense plans for the Middle East. Britain has said—and repeated today—that she will resist by force any attempt by Egypt to drive the British out of the canal area.

Fouad Serrag Eddin Pasha, Minister of the Interior and Finance, announced the government's decision to a wildly cheering session of parliament. He is strong man in the government Wafdist party.

Total Rejection

Thousands of excited Egyptians milled around the outside of the parliament as the announcement was made. It amounted to total rejection of the western proposal that an international force supplant British troops now defending the Suez Canal.

(The Egyptian answer has already been delivered to the ambassadors of the United States, France, and Turkey, a Paris dispatch said. A French foreign office spokesman declared the four would go ahead with plans to form the defence command without Egypt.)

Following the dramatic announcement by the Wafdist minister, parliament unanimously approved legislation cancelling the laws under which Egypt's 1936 treaty with Britain and the agreement for joint British-Egyptian government of the Sudan were ratified.

King of Sudan

Parliament passed decrees providing for abrogation of the laws under which the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty and 1899 agreement for joint rule of the cotton-growing Sudan by Egypt and Britain had been approved.

The lawmakers approved acceptance of changes in the Egyptian constitution to decide the constitutional position of the Sudan. They reserved action until tomorrow on proclaiming King Farouk ruler of the Sudan's 8,000,000 people.

Parliament will also take up tomorrow decrees authorizing a new Sudanese constitution to be prepared by a Sudanese legislative assembly, and providing for reorganization of the administration of the Sudan.

The government was reported as feeling that creation of the EXPECT PARLIAMENT

No Magic Victory

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 15 (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert A. Lovett gravely warned the United States today it does not yet have the fantastic atomic weapons which can win a quick, easy or magic victory in war.

Truman Offers To Sit Down With Russians

WINSTON- SALEM, NC, Oct. 15 (AP)—President Truman offered today to "sit down with Soviet Russia" to seek agreement upon disarmament and "free the world from the scourge of atomic warfare."

In his first major foreign policy speech since he announced Russia's explosion of a second atomic bomb, Truman renewed a proposal for United Nations control of atomic power which the US suggested "long before the Soviet Union got the atomic bomb." He asked Russia to lay aside its "phoney peace propaganda" and said:

"We are ready now, as we have always been, to sit down with the Soviet Union, and all the nations concerned, in the United Nations, and work together for lifting the burden of armaments and securing the peace.

Will Keep Trying

"We are determined to leave no stone unturned in this search not only for relief from the horror of another world war but also for the basis of a durable peace."

Truman's speech was prepared for groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Wake Forest College campus here. The Baptist institution is being moved here from Wake Forest, NC, under a multi-million dollar grant from the Reynolds tobacco family.

Truman held out little hope of reaching any real agreement with Russia until the free world completes its armaments program. But he warned against "sowers of suspicion and the peddlers of fear" in the United States.

US policy, Truman said, "is based on the hope that it will be possible to live, without a war, in the same world as the Soviet Union—if the free nations have adequate defences."

Nine Men Killed In Mine Blast

MORGANSTON, W.Va., Oct. 15 (AP)—Nine men—and possibly a tenth—were killed in a coal-mine gas explosion today a few minutes before they were to have started home from work on an overnight shift.

General Superintendent E. W. St. Clair of the Trotter Coal Company's Bunker Mine, where the 7:05 am EST blast occurred, said rescue crews had located the bodies of nine victims.

Uncertainty whether there still was another victim was caused by unconfirmed reports that one of 10 men working at the explosion scene was injured and removed from the mine earlier in the shift.

Nobody Knows Size Of Prince Charles

LONDON, Oct. 15 (CP). — Buckingham Palace officials said regretfully today they could not help the city of Calgary in preparing a cowboy outfit for Prince Charles.

Nobody in Calgary knew the measurements of Princess Elizabeth's first child and Buckingham Palace was not much better informed. Officials there wouldn't even hazard a guess.

A London dressmaker, however, estimated the young Prince is about three feet, three inches tall, 11½ inches across the shoulders and 13 inches from shoulder to cuff.

These measurements are considered fairly average for a three-year-old boy and the Prince will be three Nov. 14.

Royal Tour Fits Into Pattern; Hit In W. Ontario

WINDSOR, Oct. 15. (CP)—The train with the crown on its flank came to a stop gradually, missed the red carpet by a fraction, inched back to the right position and stopped and stayed there. Two men in blue uniforms came down the stairs from the rear platform. One was carrying a blanket, the other a blanket and a mink coat. The crowd, thick around the station, waited. For a moment nothing happened and then a small, pretty, pale slip of a girl in red came out and down the stairs, a tall, blonde man behind her, and a mayor stepped forward to greet them, the crowd threw up a wall of sound, the guard of honor snapped to attention and the flash bulbs popped and then the band was playing for the Royal salute.

It was like that in seven more Ontario cities Sunday.

By nightfall today, at least 3,000,000 Canadians will probably have seen Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. They will be at Kapuskasing, in Ontario's northland, after a flight from here.

One week after they arrived in Montreal, the tour was fitting into a pattern but it was a momentus and occasionally turbulent pattern such as the country has seldom seen. It seemed to be getting bigger and better all the time.

Formal Segments

Its formal segments lie in official handshaking and dinners and visits to all sorts of places, hospitals, legislatures, schools, rinks, parks. Its formal segments lie in the drives through the streets to get to those places, in the other exposures to the people who mass in the streets, around the stations, in the parks in the tens of thousands, waving flags, cheering, sometimes chanting "we want the Princess," sometimes not making much noise or outward show at all.

Sometimes the informal sweeps aside the formal, rolls aside the officialdom that is present wherever this young couple goes. That happened Sunday night in London when thousands broke through the police barriers and swarmed around the rear platform while the Princess looked down nervously and the Prince, laughing as he often laughs, leaned over the rail and chatted to the delight of the people, until the train pulled out.

By 12.20 a.m. EDT, today, the train was in Windsor siding for the night. It got here 50 minutes late at the end of a 14-hour day.

Lots of Americans

It was another big and triumphant day. It started in the early hours with departure from Toronto and it carried the Royal couple through the rich areas of the Niagara peninsula and southwestern Ontario to this border city where a quirk of geography allows them to look north into the United States and the skyscrapers of Detroit. Officials here expect 400,000 people to throng Windsor today and they think half of them will be Americans.

Sunday took the Royal couple to Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Brantford, Woodstock, London and Chatham and took them slowly through lesser places so more crowds in thousands could see and wave.

They went to church in Niagara Falls, saw the Falls and called them magnificent, got a thundering ovation from Hamilton school children and won them a holiday. Their train left them behind briefly in St. Catharines, and they were the centre of scenes in London which made 115 persons the victims of fainting, heart attacks and falls.

Gifts kept showering down upon them through this week-end, among them a hockey puck from the exhibition game they saw in Toronto between Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks, an ivory telephone from Brantford, the home of Alexander Graham Bell, a bouquet from the wife of the mayor of Niagara Falls, NY, a gold and platinum brooch from Ontario through its government, a complete baseball outfit for Prince Charles and a Santa Claus doll for Princess Anne from Chatham.

Philip Success

For the ebullient Philip, it was two more days of the successful and the unexpected. He addressed a Toronto luncheon Saturday and won the admiration of 1,700 guests for his eloquence and maturity. Sunday he read the lesson in Anglican Christ Church in Niagara Falls and piloted the Royal train 14 miles.

The 30-hour Toronto visit went on all through Saturday with a constant succession of events that ranged from a ceremony in Toronto University's stately Hart House where hundreds of professors made the walls bulge with cheers to visits to the exhibition grounds and Riverdale Park which drew an estimated 200,000 people and had the police calling for help.

At Niagara Falls, they went 140 feet down through the rocks to see the cascade from below and behind. In the stone church, while 5,000 people stood quietly outside, Philip left his front pew to read the lesson, a lesson in humility from Chapter 14 of the Gospel of St. Luke.

Nearly Miss Train

At St. Catharines, while 40,000 watched and chuckled, the Princess laughed when the Royal train started out without them, but it was all a mistake—someone had asked that it be moved so the crowds could see better. The train was stopped in time and there was another mishap—the mayor forgot to give them an illuminated scroll and it had to be sent on to Hamilton.

In Hamilton, 100,000 people put forward a greeting that was climaxed by the ear-splitting cheers of thousands of school children who cheered all over again when they were informed the Princess had asked that they be given a school holiday today.

In Brantford, they rode through the streets sitting up on the back of an open car while floodlights lit the procession through cheering thousands. They signed the Bible of the Six Nations Indians, adding their names to those of all other persons of royal blood who have visited Canada and were shown a Queen Anne communion plate brought to Canada by Indian runners after the American Revolution.

In Woodstock, 30,000 persons heard a massed choir of 500 children sing a greeting during the 10-minute stop. Only 10 persons were presented—two more than St. Catharines' record low of eight for the tour. It was a contrast to Niagara Falls where one alderman alone met them three times.

In Chatham, as the night grew late, 20,000 people waited to cheer and the royal couple stayed longer than the scheduled 10 minutes to chat with lines of servicemen on their way back to the train.

King Thanks House For Kind Message

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 (CP)—The King, through the Speaker, today thanked the Commons for a recent message expressing gratification at his constant progress towards recovery.

Speaker Ross Macdonald told the chamber he has received this message from the King's private secretary:

"The King sincerely thanks all the members of the House of Commons for their kind message which has given His Majesty great pleasure."

Cars Collide As One Enters Driveway

Both cars were slightly damaged when two cars collided Saturday afternoon as the driver of one car was attempting to turn into his driveway on Park St.

Howard Scell told police he gave a right turn signal before swinging toward the centre of the street to turn into his driveway at 5 Park St.

J. A. Munro of 287 Park St., who was travelling behind, claimed the signal indicated a left turn and the two vehicles collided when the car driven by Mr. Munro attempted to pass Mr. Scell's car just as he made a sharp right turn into his driveway.

Constable Louis Rodreque investigated.

Eskimos Give Stone Carving As Gift To Elizabeth

OTTAWA — (CP)—A delicate stone carving of an Eskimo mother and child, shaped with crude tools by a Cape Dorset Eskimo, will be presented to Princess Elizabeth just before she leaves Canada for home.

The presentation will be made by Resources Minister Winters when the Princess and Prince Philip visit Halifax Nov. 7-8. It will be given to her on behalf of Canada's Eskimo people who populate the northland she has never seen.

The carving is the work of Munamee, an Eskimo from Nuvojuak, a camp in the Cape Dorset region of southwest Baffin Island. It was the finest item in a large collection of Eskimo craft recently brought from the north by representatives of the Canadian Handicrafts Guild.

It is a carving of an Eskimo mother carrying a child in her caribou parka. The mother is sitting tending a kudlik, or soapstone lamp.

Munamee, who delighted members of the guild expedition with his work, has only the crudest of tools. He shapes a blade from scrap metal and gives his carving its final smoothness by buffing it with harder stone. The stone from which the carving is made is extremely delicate and liable to damage.

Princess Elizabeth will be warned of this when the presentation is made.

Stamp-Licking Price Hit By Inflation

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15 (AP)—The price for stamp-licking has gone up.

That may not concern most persons but it does Edwin P. Haworth of Kansas City. His business depends on getting commemorative stamps licked and put on envelopes the first day in the city where they are issued.

The 76-year-old dean of the United States' first day stamp pursuers was talking about the high cost of stamp-licking here Saturday at the Trans-Mississippi Philatelic Society.

He reported the labor rate for a good stamp-licker had jumped from 60 cents to $1.40 an hour in the last few years.

And what's more, he says, "Even at today's wages labor is hard to find in some cities."

Haworth buys and mails thousands of commemorative stamps to persons wanting them with first day cancellation dates from the honored cities. To do that, he travels from 12,000 to 25,000 miles a year.

Kentucky Fox No Match For Grandmother, 64

GLASGOW, Ky., Oct. 15 (AP)—Old Brer Fox was no match for Mrs. N. C. Smith, a 64-year-old grandmother weighing less than 100 pounds. Mrs. Smith found the fox raiding her henhouse. With his chicken dinner in jeopardy, the fox leaped on her. In the ensuing battle, Mrs. Smith's arm was slashed, her thumb bitten, and her legs scratched, but she managed to choke the fox to death.

typhoon that struck southern Japan Sunday.

The grounded troopship, the 450-foot Japanese-owned Kongo Maru, was blown on a reef in the Korea strait Saturday by winds that preceded the actual arrival of the typhoon.

Reach Vessel

The US Navy attack transport George D. Clymer and two salvage tugs reached the battered and listing vessel shortly after noon today.

The Navy said an attempt will be made to take the troops off the ship at low tide tonight. It said the vessel probably could be saved.

Most of the troops were believed to be Americans. They were en route from Sasebo, Kyushu Island, to Pusan, Korea.

National rural police said the typhoon killed 42 Japanese.

Kyodo news agency said 68 were killed, 83 injured and 34 missing, and more than 34,600 houses were inundated. Many Japanese fishing boats were lost.

The storm split in two today and the two prongs moved over south-central Honshu, Japanese main home island, toward the Pacific Ocean. Its winds had dropped from 75 to 50 miles an hour.

Dollar Down

MONTREAL, Oct. 15 (CP). — The American dollar today opened at 5¼ per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 1-32 from Saturday's close. That is, it took $1.05¼ Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.94-11-16, down 1-16 from Saturday.

Stock Market Prices Slip Steadily

TORONTO, Oct. 15 — (CP).—Stock Market prices slipped steadily today in early afternoon dealings. Industrials opened strongly, but met profit-taking within the first hour.

Volume for the first three hours was 4,769,000 shares.

Utilities formed the market's strongest section as papers lost early support. Foods, textiles, manufacturing companies, retail store and miscellaneous industrials were mixed. Agricultures and constructions showed little change. Liquors, refining oils, and banks weakened while steels dipped sharply.

Western oils slipped in steady profit-taking. Ajax Petroleum, Calvan Consolidated, Commonwealth, Jupiter, New British Dominions, Redwater - Piccadilly, Scurry and Vulcan showed declines to 25 cents. Central-Leduc, Home Oil, Security Free and Trans Empire countered the trend with moderate gains.

Consolidated Smelters jumped $2 and International Nickel climbed ¼. Barvue, Labrador, and United Asbestos showed strength. Falconbridge, Pend Oreille and Quemont eased.

Senior gains edged higher with a majority of fractional gains.

The influential independent newspaper Al Ahram said the cabinet had decided not to discuss defence proposals from other nations until Egypt's demands on the Suez and the Sudan—that Britain get out—are met.

Al Misri reported earlier that Egypt was consulting with other Arab nations to decide on a common policy of opposition to the western suggestions.

No Interference

2. Iran wants the council to decide that it has no jurisdiction in the matter and take no other action. An Iranian spokesman indicated Iran would accept the good offices of a third party government or individual but it would not accept any official security council action. Iran insists the oil affair is an internal matter.

Some council members have said there would be a chance for passing a resolution calling only for new talks. But Britain is standing firm on the reference to the international court's recommendation, saying it represents the rule of law.

Mossadegh arrived a week ago to tell the council his government's view. Tehran reports of his bad health, and of his tears and faints at moments of political and emotional stress, preceded him. He appeared weak and weary on arrival here.

French General To Fight Moroccan Arab Nationalists

RABAT, French Morocco, Oct. 15 (AP)—Arab Nationalists in Morocco "are preparing the ground for Communism and my job is to fight and defeat them," says Gen. Augustin Guillaume, new French resident general.

North Africa, he asserted in an interview, is the southern flank of Europe. If North Africa should fall under Communist influence, all the powerful armies being formed in Europe would "be as nothing."

Guillaume took over the top job in the French protectorate of some 8,000,000 Moroccan Moslems last week.

"My profession is a soldier," he said. "I have fought all my life and I am very glad to find enemies here to fight. These fanatics use terror and lies for their purposes. I will fight lies with truth."

Guillaume declared "There is always a link up between these fanatic groups and Communists. If it is not on the surface now, it will appear eventually.

"Look at Malaya, Indo-China and Indonesia, where so-called Nationalists were found to be Communist organizations. They are terrorists, extremists, racists, but not just Nationalists."

French officialdom in Morocco claims no more than 10,000 Moroccans are members of Nationalist parties. Some such parties, claim hundreds of thousands of supporters, and an issue of the Paris Communist paper, L'Humanite, thundered that the Nationalist movements in Morocco represent nearly all the population of Morocco.

French spokesmen point to such Communist newspaper articles as proof of the link up between Nationalists and Communism.

Find Americans Anxious Meet Princess

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP)—Washington-weary Senators and Representatives, hopeful of adjournment next weekend, have an argument developing right in their homes as to why they should stay in town two weeks more.

It comes from their wives, currently opening handsomely-crested invitations to a reception at the British Embassy honoring Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh Nov. 1. And many, if not most, of them want to attend.

The Princess and her husband are due here Oct. 31 for a three-day visit as the guests of the President and Mrs. Truman at Blair House.

British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks and Lady Franks are sending out 2,000 invitations to the largest event ever planned at the stately embassy on Massachusetts Avenue.

Bigger Than For King

About 800 more invitations are being sent out for this event than for the embassy reception for the King and Queen when they were in the United States in 1939.

Sir Oliver and Lady Franks are trying to gather a representative group of Americans for the reception. As a starter, they invited the entire membership of Congress.

"We thought that way the Princess and the Duke would get to meet people coming from all sections of the country," said Lady Franks.

Outside of Congress and key government officials and chiefs of diplomatic missions, the Franks decided to confine invitations to people living in the Washington area.

Invitations will go to the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and to the United Mine Workers—and because UMW leader John L. Lewis lives in suburban Alexandria, VA., he will receive a bid.

Old Council Chamber Scene Of Desolation

The old Council Chamber looks as if a battalion of enemy looters had passed through it. Wire cables are ripped up; several of the aldermanic desks have disappeared; the mayoral dais has gone, leaving a gaping mess against the wall, but the panelled backdrop to the mayor's dais still hangs on the wall, its base off. Above it, oddlooking in the midst of the desolation, is the small metallic reproduction of the Canadian coat-of-arms and at the right standing on its pole among rubble and dust is a furled union jack. There are no signs on any of the street doors or windows that the glory has fled and that the city clerk and others are now inhabiting more exalted areas. A stranger in town would think that the city had gone out of business.

"So Long As I Eat" Changes OK–Philip

TORONTO, Oct. 15 — Princes get hungry, just like ordinary folk. A few minutes before the Duke of Edinburgh was scheduled to make his appearance in the banquet hall of the Royal York, Saturday, for the Board of Trade luncheon, a hotel official approached His Highness and mentioned a change in the order of procession.

"It's all right with me as long as I get something to eat," the Duke replied with a broad smile.

Ten minutes later the guest of honor was attacking a filet mignon and doing full justice to the repast.

Changing Of Guard Renewed At Palace

LONDON, Oct. 15 (Reuters).—For the first time since the King underwent his operation three weeks ago the ceremonial changing of the guard took place today at Buckingham Palace.

But the band of the Coldstream Guards played in relieving the Scots Guards in the south forecourt—as far as possible from the King's rooms.

Since the operation, the ceremony had been carried out nearby at St. James' Palace so as not to disturb the King's convalescence in the northern wing.

No bulletin on the King's health was issued at the weekend though his doctors are continuing to see him daily.

Food Biggest Item For French Family

LONDON— (CP) — A Frenchman spends mroe than half his income on food. English families spend less than a third.

The English, on the other hand, spend eigth times as much as the French on rent. They spend about twice as much for fuel.

These conclusions on Anglo-French differences were reached after surveys among working-class families in the two countries. The results, published by the Institute of Statistics at Oxford, show that 52 per cent of French incomes were devoted to food, compared with only 13.9 of the English.

The surveys were made in 1948. The British Medical Journal, commenting on the "striking discrepancy" in food consumption, said one consolation is possible— it looked as though the "calorific" value of the national diets were roughly similar, "though the French registered a substantially higher intake of animal protein."

Aneurin Bevan Challenging Attlee For Leadership Behind Scenes

LONDON, Oct. 15. (AP)—Explosive Aneurin Bevan is challenging Clement Attlee's right-wing leadership of the Labor party behind the scenes of Britain's Oct. 25 general election.

The two men and their followers have built a formal facade of unity for the duration of the campaign. Both want to keep Winston Churchill's Conservatives out of office. Nevertheless, left-winger Bevan has publicly said he will ume campaigning for a new party policy as soon as the election is over.

Britain's next prime minister but one: that seems to be Bevan's target in the bitter, internal struggle for power, whether the Labor party wins or loses the election.

A new middle-role for Britain in the east-west cold war could emerge if the tempestuous, crusading former coal miner from Wales were to succeed and to translate his theories into action.

The outcome of the feud also will decide what sort of socialism Britain is to have in the future.

More Socialism

Bevan stands for more Socialism in Britain, for less rearmament, for uncompromising state control of big business.

British workers like him because he has risen from among them.

His policies have received rank-and-file support partly because many of the things he urges are what the rank and file wants to hear.

He has urged, for instance, that the Allies can fight Communism best not with guns but by beating down poverty. He has argued the west has exaggerated the danger of the Soviet's aggressive designs.

The United States is trigger-happy and needs to be "restrained," he has said.

Bevan seeks to match his idealism with realism. He does not oppose British rearmament. He does say the arms drive—because it is too big and too fast—will defeat its own ends and expose the country to grave economic and political dangers.

Attlee and his righthand man, Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison, believe in an economy which is about 20 per cent nationalized and 80 per cent in the hands of private owners.

From Personal Experience

Bevan's radicalism stems as much from his personal experience as it does from his intellectual convictions.

He was one of 13 children, five of whom died in the squalor of a four-room house in Tredegar, South Wales. He went into the coalpits at 13 and worked underground for seven years.

But the round-faced, word-juggling Nye is no communist.

He ostentatiously takes time off to attack the "tyranny" of Russia's system and revolution. But he is careful, too, to charge that the Kremlin Reds went wrong on the world largely because of Conservative Leader Winston Churchill's war of intervention against the newly-born Soviets in 1918.

First significant trial of strength between the conflicting leaders came last month at the annual parley of the 8,000,000-member Trades Union Congress.

It disclosed the existence of a consistent opposition—on pro-Bevan—vote of around 2,000,000.

Bevan himself is believed convinced that his policy has been endorsed by the rank-and-file. Many other labor men think so too.

Bevan is ready to wait two or three years for his big chance.

His labor followers argue that, given peace, their party will win the general election after this one—if indeed they are beaten this month.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME—The very evident enjoyment of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh is shown as they drive slowly past an estimated 38,000 children who packed the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand on a gloriously sunny Saturday morning in Toronto. Honour Where Honour Is Due

We hope that the suggestion that the new collegiate school in the South End be called the Kenner Collegiate Institute will meet with the approval of the public and the Board of Education. Two names are of special importance in the history of education in this city—Armour and Kenner. As the late Dr. H. R. H. Kenner was associated for fifty years with secondary education, it is fitting that a new secondary school should perpetuate his name.

The influence of the late Dr. Kenner on Peterborough is not easily estimated; the precept and example of a fine teacher enters into the very bones of his pupils, and it is impossible to say when it will reveal itself in thought or action. Several generations in this city felt the influence of Dr. Kenner's philosophical balance and warm intellectual humanism, and it will remain with them until they die; possibly they will hand something of it on to their children. If Peterborough has any honours to bestow in the academic field, who has a better right to them than H. R. H. Kenner?

There is a Latin tag which is the motto of one of Canada's greatest schools: Palman qui meruit ferat. Roughly, it means "Honour where honour is due". We hope that Peterborough may honour the late Dr. Kenner in the way which he would best have liked.

The Press At Trenton R.C.A.F. Station

Newspaper reporters and columnists, photographers, news-reel camera men, National Film Board people, radio broadcasters, magazine writers, American journalists, English commentators—a host descended on Trenton by train, plane and car last Friday when the Princess and the Duke visited the town and R.C.A.F. base. The Air Force was magnificently prepared for the Princess and the Duke; it was splendidly prepared for the press.

A large work room in the main administration building was reserved, with type writers, teletype machines, telegraph facilities, runners to take reports, telephones. A dark room was prepared for photographers. In the officers' mess building a lounge was ready to receive them and a score of officers were present as hosts, to show the press men around, explain the facilities and give whatever information they could. Mimeographed copious notes were available on the royal couple's Trenton schedule (with timing analyzed to seconds), on the ceremonies, chief officers taking part and the distinguished guests. A substantial buffet lunch was prepared and served handsomely in the lounge to visiting reporters. They were welcomed as guests with an important job to do.

A half-hour before the royal couple arrived at the base and after two R.C.A.F. buses had fetched the press, radio and screen reporters who are travelling on the royal train, senior air force officers briefed all the reporters on the very efficient arrangements which had been made and the location of the vantage points which had been reserved for them. Thus no time was wasted; diagrams made them familiar with the settings; there was no confusion and the reporters were able to work with a minimum of intrusion into the public view and the dignified proceedings.

Such co-operation is greatly appreciated by press men. The R.C.A.F.'s hospitable acceptance of them was a recognition of a mutual responsibility to the public, both present at the base and those who have to depend on reports. The arrangements were so admirable, detailed and helpful that the press men properly believe and report that such efficiency, expertness and friendliness in this matter was a true reflection of the spirit and capacities of the entire R.C.A.F.

Censor Needed

President Truman's announced censorship proposal, and his attack on newspapers and slick magazines at a recent press conference, revealed that the United States and its allies would be well served by some form of censorship in that country. It would not, however, be quite what Mr. Truman had in mind, as far as we can gather. What he seemed to want was an all-wise system that would prevent publication of any heedless, foolish, or dangerous remarks made by anyone in the Government or its services, apparently including himself.

That is obviously impossible. Yet some censorship system which would prevent high-ranking U.S. Generals, and the Commander-in-Chief, from making damaging disclosures would be of inestimable value—so much so that the Central Intelligence Section of the U.S. Defence Department wants such a system. For lack of a better, the section supported Mr. Truman's unworkable proposal.

One of the incidents which led to the demand for censorship was the release of the most important Smythe report on atomic energy by General Leslie Groves. The report was naturally published by the thousands of newspapers of the United States, and horrified scientists immediately protested that any alert scientist could piece its vital secrets together and practically know how to make an atomic bomb. General Groves hurriedly demanded that the report be recalled, but one of his staff remarked that would be something like trying to stuff an egg back into a chicken.

Another blundering revelation came at the time when a strong group of military opinion favoured a preventive war with Russia. They could properly hold that opinion in private, but General Orvil Anderson, head of the U.S. Air War College, advocated it publicly. This revelation of one group of military thinking was interpreted as "policy" abroad, and dismissals and denials did not altogether remove the impression.

It is now reported from Washington that a model of one of the latest U.S. secret weapons rested on Mr. Truman's desk throughout the past summer. It was a guided missile. He showed it to many callers, told of its accuracy against enemy planes. No restriction of secrecy, it is said, was placed on those to whom he talked. That sounds incredible, but the report is four days old and it has not yet been denied. And it adds to the conviction that censorship restrictions should be applied rigidly to certain persons and groups in the United States, although what agency would apply them to Mr. Truman poses a problem indeed.

Cost-Of-Living Index In Newfoundland 102.7

The dollar now buys only as much as 52 cents bought in the years 1935-39. That is a fact behind the recent Bureau of Statistics reckoning of the cost-of-living index during August. It reached another new peak—189.8 (100 being the index of the average cost of living during the years 1935-39). It is to be hoped that the fractional rise during the month of .9 is an omen of stability, and that the pressure of inflation is losing its gust. An indication that this may be so is the decline in the wholesale index for thirty industrial materials; that index fell by two points during September.

Food prices are still the highest items in the general index, although they declined slightly: three-tenths of a point to 251.1. Actually, in dollar terms, the amount of food one can buy now for a dollar is the same as one could get in the years 1935-39 for 39 cents. Thus is the index properly named "cost-of-living." It is costing almost three times as much to stay alive now, food being the sustaining item—as in the five pre-war years.

The most costly place to live in Canada seems to be Montreal: the index for that city has now reached 196.0. That is 6.2 more than the average for Canada. Vancouver is next on the list of large cities with an index of 190.2. Toronto fares better than either, and even better than Saskatoon; Toronto's cost-of-living index stood at the beginning of September at 185.4.

Reading such a high-priced list we were startled to discover that the cost-of-living index for St. John's, Newfoundland, was a mere 102.7. Ah! we thought—what a wonderful advantage federation with Canada has been to Newfoundland! Either the cost-of-living there dropped greatly after Confederation; or the cost was inordinately high during the years 1935-39 for which years the index base of 100 was established. The true explanation is something less cheerful. Newfoundland did not bother to compile an index when she was a colony. Now, as a Canadian province, Newfoundland's 100 base is the index of only last June. Therefore Newfoundlanders' living costs rose 2.7 in the two summer months. The average rise for all Canada in July and August was 2.2.

Is Montreal the most expensive city in Canada to live in? The index does not really tell us. Its index figure is highest—196, compared with Toronto's 185.4. But the two sets of figures are not really comparable, for both are based on their own living costs in the years 1935-39. The 100 of those years for Montreal is not necessarily the same 100 as Toronto's. If in 1935-39 it was cheaper to live in Montreal than in Toronto, then Montreal may still be the less expensive city. At least, Montrealers can take Dutch courage from such an assumption.

A writer calls the atom bomb "a two-way weapon." If it will bring us back from wherever it blows us, it won't be too bad.

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

OF all the institutions peculiar to the North American continent, perhaps Thanksgiving Day is most worthy of imitation elsewhere, certainly more so than chewing gum or gangsters. We have certainly much to be thankful for in material comforts. And yet this institution arose at a time when people would appear to have little cause for thanks by our modern standards. They were thankful only for the most important and basic things of life, which we in our time are too apt to take for granted. It is pertinent to ask ourselves whether we have used to the best advantage the blessings showered upon us. In particular we should reproach ourselves for having allowed our cultural progress to lag so far behind our material progress. Nevertheless there are signs that we are waking up to the dangers of spiritual impoverishment.

LISTENERS to the CBC Wednesday night programmes should make a note to tune in on the 17th, when Healey Willan's opera Deirdre will be given a studio performance. This was to have taken place on the 3rd, but owing to the royal visit it was postponed. I think I am right in saying that Deirdre has the distinction of being the first Canadian opera ever written; if this is not so I would like to know what is. Dr. Willan is one of the very few Canadian composers with an international reputation, based largely on his church music, which is of a very high quality. He is not, however, a Canadian by birth; he was born in Balham, a suburb to the South-East of London in 1880, but has lived in this country ever since 1924 and has not revisited his native land since before the last war. He has managed to combine a busy life as organist, lecturer, choirtrainer and teacher with that of a composer, and his output is surprisingly large and varied. During the last few years he has tended to give up more of his teaching activities and concentrate on composition and the music of the Toronto church at which he is precentor and organist. As precentor he is responsible for the choice of music as well as its execution. It is obvious to anyone who knows Healey Willan that the music of the church is his first love, and everything connected with it is a labour of love.

RETURNING to Deirdre, it was commissioned some years ago by the CBC and received its first performance in 1946. The forthcoming broadcast will be a full-length affair. The CBC usually presents drastically abridged versions of broadcast operas in order to comply with the ever-insistent demands of programme time. The results of this cheeseparing are usually very unfortunate: composers don't write operas in half-hour chunks. Then again I find the facetious remarks of commentators intensely annoying. I make no apology for intruding my personal feelings into criticism; criticism that excludes the personal equation is not worth the paper it is written on. Moreover a good deal of it is a sham; it pretends to be "impartial" and "objective" and yet is riddled, not to say raddled with bias and crude prejudice. Even criticism that confines itself to ascertainable facts is biased insofar as the critic knowingly or unknowingly selects the facts that support a certain hypothesis and finds it convenient to ignore facts that do not fit in with his Weltanschauung. After this warning to my public to insert mentally throughout my writings phrases such as "I think" and "in my opinion" let us for a second time return to our muttons and talk about opera.

❖ ❖ ❖

OPERA demands qualities of a somewhat different order than those required for other types of music. The egregious failures of countless operas composed by men famed in instrumental and vocal music should act as a terrible warning to would-be composers in that medium. Schumann's "Genoveva", Schubert's four operas and five operettas, Mendelssohn's two operas, and many others by composers scarcely less eminent should stand like sunbleached bones seen by a traveller in the desert. It is not sufficient to have a wide literary culture; both Schuman and Mendelssohn had considerable literary talent and were extremely well-read. It demands above all a sense of the theatre. It will not do, for instance, to take a stage play and just set it to music; the opera would last far too long in the first place, and in the second it would contain far too much argument and not nearly enough lyrical moments. Thus the problem of the librettist is to condense his material.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE composer, on the other hand, must dilute his musical thought. Paradoxically enough, pure instrumental music is too dramatic. This is because it is more closely-knit. Music and drama are certainly not incompatible; they have been associated together from the remotest ages down to the present day. It is, however, an uneasy partnership; when the music comes to the fore the dramatic action, as it were, freezes, and vice versa.

❖ ❖ ❖

OWING to its dual nature opera has long been the happy hunting ground of theorists. Rimsky-Korsakov maintained that legendary subjects alone were suitable, while the Italian "veristi" (Mascagni, Leoncavallo) took their material from the low life of their time. The more I hear and see of opera the more I am driven to the conclusion that all theories are right so long as the work itself "comes off". An opera is not a thing to be undertaken light-heartedly: the composition alone amounts on an average to about one thousand pages of manuscript, and the expense and labour of producing it are enormous, as are also the risks in putting on a new work. That is why we are regaled ad nauseam with Carmen, Cav & Pag, and Faust, all sure-fire box-office successes. Hanslick, the famous Viennese music critic (whom Wagner held up to ridicule as Beckmesser in Die Meistersinger), once asked Brahms why he had not written an opera. Brahms replied to the effect that it would be as hard for him to marry as to write an opera, but that after the first experience he would probably perpetrate a second!

STILL HUNGRY

A city gentleman attended a dinner given by a hostess whose hospitality was notoriously inadequate. Her dinners were frequently referred to as "samples", and invitations to them were not accepted with alacrity the second time. Her wealth was great, however, and her social persistence was untiring, so there were usually some guests at the table.

This dinner was of the usual inadequate kind.

The hostess said to him amiably: "Now, do tell me when we may expect the pleasure of having you to dine with us again."

"Immediately, Madam," was the unexpected and decided reply.

Fort Pelly Vanishes

(MONTREAL STAR)

ACCORDING to a Canadian Press dispatch from Yorkton, Saskatchewan, the remaining ruins of the once-famous Fort Pelly are being knocked down and covered up by bulldozers and the site on the Assiniboine river will become a wheat field.

Like a lot of other buildings and sites connected with the early days of Canadian history Fort Pelly appears to have suffered complete neglect. Fortunately in many other cases a last-minute awakening has rescued and where possible restored historic buildings or at least marked their sites and preserved them from encroachment. Fort Pelly, once one of the most important gathering places and trading centres in the prairie country has apparently been less fortunate. The report of its impending disappearance says that the main building was used as a stable and not even maintained as that.

What seems hardest to understand however, is the failure to preserve the old records of the place. They appear to have been left lying about in the ruins, some to be carried off by the occasional visitor, the rest to disappear. In view of the good work of the Historic Sites Commission and the increasing interest in the early history of Canada by scholars and research historians the report of what has happened and is happening at Fort Pelly is hard to understand. The fine series of volumes being put out by the Champlain Society in Toronto has put into the hands of those interested a remarkable collection of old documents, correspondence, records, etc. (much of it from the archives of Hudson's Bay Record Society) which preserves a picture of "the great lone land" which no doubt would otherwise have been quite unknown to later generations. It would be surprising if the lost Fort Pelly records had had nothing to add to our too scant knowledge of the early days of our own country.

Knights-Errant, We?

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

CANADIANS, in the gracious words of Princess Elizabeth at the state dinner in Ottawa, are "the knights-errant of our tragic world", and she says of us that we are ready "to ride abroad redressing human wrongs".

The Oxford dictionary has two meanings for a knight-errant: "A mediaeval knight who wandered in search of adventure" or "A person of a chivalrous or adventurous spirit".

It is, of course, the second meaning Her Royal Highness had in mind—"I know", she added, "that wherever the weak are oppressed or justice set at nought by lawless power Canada will always be in the forefront of the defence."

Those are words good to hear, and even in our incorrigible modesty we cannot deny the evidence of two world wars, or the records of United Nations.

"I have", said the Princess again, "always cherished a dream of coming to Canada," and clearly she has given more than passing interest to this huge continent—"Here the most spacious monarchy and the most powerful republic dwell side by side in easy friendship, conscious that the lamp of liberty may burn as true under either form of government". She is fully aware that here we have set the world an example of international harmony, and of course the credit is no more ours than our neighbour's—rather less, if anything, because in this splendid relationship Canada as the small country of the two is far more dependent on the friendship of the United States than the U.S.A. is dependent on us.

These thoughts so well expressed by Her Royal Highness were not new, perhaps, but it is gratifying to have them come from so distinguished an observer of the Canadian scene.

Problem Of Starlings

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

Two electric power failures in a single day, temporarily affecting homes in West Saint John and the north end, were caused by flocks of starlings alighting in such huge numbers on high-voltage lines that they bridged the gap separating the wires, causing a short circuit. Repairmen found piles of dead starlings at the foot of one of the power towers.

It was not until 1928 that the first starling was seen in New Brunswick. Today they assemble in huge flocks in the fall—some to migrate southward and some to stay—and when a cloud of them alights in a tree it becomes a creaking mass of bird life.

As many as 5,000 at a time have been watched from the windows of the New Brunswick Museum on Douglas Avenue, swarming on the mountain ash trees nearby and stripping them of their berries.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Wherewith shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good, and what does the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God? (Mic. 6: 6, 8.)

❖ ❖ ❖

And Samuel said, Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams. (1 Sam. 15: 22.)

For the law having a shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices which they offered year by year continually make the comers thereunto perfect....For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins. Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me....

Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second. By the which will we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all....

For by one offering he hath perfected forever them that are sanctified. (Heb. 10: 1, 4, 5, 9, 10, 14.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The C.B.C. has introduced many people to good music—but at least one music shop assistant seems to have turned a deaf ear to its efforts.

A customer asked for a vocal score of Elgar's "Dream of Gerontius." After looking through a pile of music this young woman told him: "I'm sorry, we don't have the one you want, but we've got 'I'm always dreaming of you' if that will do."

Forest Dangers

(North Bay Nugget)

"Unless the Fall turns out to be a wet one it is almost a certainty that many beauty spots throughout the north that have brought joy and health to tourists and wealth to the province this past Summer will be just charred ruins when those same people return next season."

This discouraging prophecy, based on past experiences was made by a forest protection officer of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests as the vivid colours of Autumn dressed up the northern forests for their last farewell to Summer. But these same Autumn hues, he warned, heralded in the dangerous Fall fire hazard period.

With the hunting season at hand and many sportsmen visiting the northern lake regions for their last fling at fishing, the officer said it was a sad fact that each Fall fires were started by careless wood travellers that wiped out vacation spots and destroyed wilderness beauty that would take years for nature to replace.

Film Censorship Big Handicap Director Says

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 15 (AP)—Last week a host of film figures invaded the country in an effort to re-sell the movie industry to the United States. Today director William Wyler offered another plan to win back theatre patronage:

Ease the censorship code.

Wyler directed such films as "Wuthering Heights," "The Little Foxes," "Best Years of Our Lives" and "Mrs. Miniver."

"It's time we stopped making all our pictures so they can be seen by children," he remarked. "The kids go to the movies anyway. The people over 30 are the ones we have to get back into the theatres, and we can do that only by making more adult films."

Good Taste

Wyler added that he doesn't advocate lurid or sensational films.

"But I think the hard-and-fast application of rigid rules should be eliminated," he said. "There should be a liberalizing of the code so that adult subjects can be treated, as long as they are done in good taste.

"Naturally, the children have to be protected. But that should be done by the parents, not the film industry."

The director emphasized that taste is important in the handling of censorable material. He illustrated with "A Place In The Sun," which concerns a child conceived out of wedlock.

"There were things in the script which the censors said could not be passed," he said. "But George Stevens took a chance and shot them anyway. When the final picture came up for review, the censors said it was all right."

Star System

The film maker offered two other suggestions for rebuilding film patronage:

1. Making stars out of directors and writers.

"I think the producers have made a mistake in placing all the emphasis on actors in the billing . . . why couldn't directors and writers be publicized so the discriminating movie-goer could better know what to expect . . . ."

2. Longer playing time for pictures.

"The theatres play out pictures too fast . . ."

Pondicherry Smugglers' Paradise While Customs Men Get Grey Hairs

By ADRIRNNE FARRELL

NEW DELHI, Oct. 15 (Reuters)—Pondicherry, tiny French settlement on India's southeast coast, today is a smugglers' paradise.

Gold, liquor and diamonds, legally imported into Pondicherry, are being smuggled every day across the borders into India in such quantities that Indian customs men have been seriously thinking of erecting a barbed-wire fence around the entire colony.

In India the price of gold is 25 per cent higher than in Pondicherry.

Whisky, diamonds, imitation pearls, perfumes and bicycles also move along the smugglers' routes from French into Indian territory.

French officials argue that they cannot be responsible for the ultimate destination of all imported goods.

Do Their Best

So the Indian customs have to cordon off as best they can the 115 square miles of territory, knowing that, for every ounce of gold they intercept, the other 15 ounces in the pound gets through.

Customs difficulties are increased by the fact that Pondicherry is not a compact unit. It consists of one large section surrounding the town and 11 small enclaves scattered in Indian territory and sometimes separated only by a few miles.

This enables smugglers to dart safely from one piece of French territory to another until they reach an unguarded section of the main frontier and can get across.

Most of the smuggling is organized from the Indian side of the frontier.

Almost all commodities are cheaper in Pondicherry than in India because of the low duties. The coffers of Indian customs posts are filled with every kind of confiscated treasure ranging from gold sovereigns and solid egg-shaped lumps of gold to fountain pens and watches.

Special Cabinet Meeting Discusss Seaway Plan

OTTAWA, Oct. 15. (CP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway project was discussed at a special Cabinet meeting Saturday but officials were reluctant to disclose details.

Transport Minister Chevrier, reached at his home at Cornwall, said in an interview Sunday night that the matter came up for discussion and that "further progress" was achieved.

Any statement beyond that remark, he added, would have to come from Prime Minister St. Laurent. Mr. St. Laurent, at home with a slight cold, could not be reached for comment.

Normally, the Cabinet meets earlier in the week, usually on Wednesdays, but because of the heavy Royal tour schedule here last Wednesday and Thursday, Mr. St. Laurent decided to hold off discussions on a number of Cabinet items until Saturday. The seaway was one of them.

Blames Bankers

At Burlington, Vt., Senator George Aiken (Rep. Vt.) charged Saturday night that "New York and Boston bankers and Utility people are opposing the St. Lawrence seaway."

Aiken, a longtime advocate of public power, told the annual Vermont State CIO convention that "the same group of selfish people who oppose the seaway in Washington are attempting to move into Canada to try to stop that country from going ahead alone with the project."

He said that while Canada's great wheat crop is bottled up because of lack of power and of transportation, Great Britain is purchasing millions of bushels of wheat from the Soviet Union.

"This would not be the case if the proposed St. Lawrence seaway were in operation," Aiken said.

"There are many readily accessible minerals in New York, New England and northeastern Canada which could be put to use if we had the power to produce it," Aiken said.

"Canada is desperate for power and transportation and the United States is opposing its best friend by not co-operating with them," he said.

2nd Flash Bulb Scares Princess

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP)—It happened again Sunday. Another photographer's flash bulb exploded near Princess Elizabeth, surprising her, to add a new incident to the story of the Royal couple and the cameramen covering the tour of Canada.

Last week, a bulb exploded five feet from the Princess in the Archives at Ottawa. She was startled. This time it happened as she was boarding the Royal train at the end of a visit to Niagara Falls. She was at least surprised.

There were 20 feet between the Princess and photographer Pete Tenzen of the Toronto Star, when it happened.

It was no secret among those covering the tour that the Princess has been a bit startled at the methods and numbers of photographers. She is reported to have had to master a fear of the flashes that keep going off in her face repeatedly wherever she goes. By now, she appears to take them in stride.

Think It Unnecessary

Both she and Prince Philip have asked the photographers why it is necessary to have so many of them—one newspaper had nine photographers covering one single event—why they have to use flash bulbs and whether photographers don't think it is "unkind" to spectators to block their view so often.

At Toronto Saturday, the Prince finally exploded himself and directed a cluster of photographers to fall back because they were blocking the crowd's view. When they didn't do so, he beckoned to a Mountie and got him to do it.

PCVS Gridders Split Two With Oshawa

OSHAWA, Oct. 15.—Peterborough PCVS senior and junior A rugby teams broke even in their double-header appearance on the Oshawa gridiron Saturday afternoon, the seniors winning a 27-11 decision over the OCVI-OCCI Combines in the first game of their home-and-home series while the PCVS juniors ran into a snag, losing a nip and tuck 11-7 decision to the surprising local Collegiate lads.

A powerful ground attack, backed up with experience and size, proved the deciding factor as the senior Garnet and Grey squad took their convincing victory from the Combines.

Forbes paced the Liftlock City scoring narade with two touchdowns while Brown and Jensen added one apiece. Dave Langhorne, Peterborough's quarterback, turned in a fine game both in his generalship and personal scoring contributions, kicking two converts, a pair of rouges and a field goal, for a total of seven good points himself.

Good Passing

Bill Kelley, Oshawa field general, was one of the best for the homesters, passing to Rob Harris for both of Oshawa's major counts; and Harris with his receiving was a key factor in Oshawa's fine aerial attack. It was the only weapon which the Combines were able to use successfully in coping with Peterborough's powerful plunging and end runs.

The Liftlock City line, headed by Frise was almost perfect in defensive strength, every member of the forward wall turning in a powerful tackling and blocking performance. The winners forged to the front in the first quarter, were held fairly even in the second stanza but had it all their own way again, with the wind to help, in the third and then held their lead through the final 15 minutes of action.

Referee—Bill Dell, Oshawa.

Pulled Upset

The win by the Oshawa Central Collegiate juniors came as a bit of an upset, but was well earned by the homesters, who came from behind to win the game.

Nick Chasczewski and Moe Petronishun were in charge of the game most of the way and Oshawa drew first blood in the dying seconds of the initial quarter when the former ran the ball over from 12 yards out. The touchdown was not converted.

The local Maroon and Gold crew weakened in the second stanza to allow the visiting Liftlock City gridders to come up and take the lead. A long pass from Corbett to Hollingsworth, after an Oshawa kick had been blocked in midfield, gave the Peterborough lads their lone touchdown and it came between two single points gained on kicks, to make the count 7-5. The convert attempted was blocked by the central line.

Full of Fight

After their half-time pep talk the homesters came out full of ginger, and Chasczweski booted one 40 yards to make it 7-6. Right after this Johnny Planeta recovered a kick on Peterborough's own six-yard line and raced over for the touchdown that won the game.

Neither team scored in the final quarter although Central threatened seriously in a couple of spots.

Kearns, Corbett and Hollingsworth were the pick of the visitors.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Thursday has been set for the hearing of additional evidence at St. Catharines in the case of jockey Robert Wankmueller of Newark, NJ, under suspension now in connection with the enquiry into fixed races in Ontario.

Tupper Bigelow, chairman of the Ontario Racing Commission, has notified Wankmueller's solicitor in Fort Erie of the date. The jockey is free on $5,000 bail until Oct. 22 when he will appear in magistrate's court here on a criminal charge in connection with the probe.

Wankmueller's solicitor said he is confident that additional evidence to be presented to the Racing Commission Oct. 18, will make a difference in the jockey's case.

Tennis star Nancy Ann Chaffee and baseball luminary Ralph Kiner were married Saturday.

The ceremony which united two top sports personalities, was delayed about 10 minutes by the size of the crowd, more than 1,000 jamming the church and sidewalks at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Sonny Whitney's Counterpoint poured it on in the stretch Saturday and caught the Great Hill Prince just at the wire in the two-mile jockey club gold cup to register a startling upset before a disbelieving throng of 36,664 customers at Belmont Park.

In one of the greatest races old Belmont Park has seen, jockey Dave Gorman brought the sturdy son of Count Fleet to a challenging position in the last half mile, and Counterpoint just made it in a close photo finish to become the fifth successive three-year-old to win the coveted classic.

THE FINISHING TOUCH is added by Gord Snape, ball carrier, (above) as St. Peter's linemen punched a hole in the Cobourg line allowing him to score the second TD in Saturday's game at Morrow park. Three plays earlier Snape jaunted for 34 yards to place the ball in payoff territory. St. Peter's won the game 11-0.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

As a parting gesture for the year to the Petes' senior lacrosse champs of Canada, we've compiled their playoff scoring marks. Eastern Canada and Mann Cup. Ike Hildrebrand was well out in front in the playoff series with Fergus and Mimico, showing what a loss he was to the club out west—Ike having to hit the hockey trail at that time. Jerry Fitzgerald's absence—but for one game—was felt, too, as he was a high scorer in the eastern sawoffs. Bob Thorpe and Harry Wipper were consistent all through these series, as was Russ Slater, who was high man out west. Nit O'Hearn shone in Vancouver after a so-so showing in the Eastern Canada doings.

* * * * * *

Don Ashbee was missed, too. However, a glance at the cup figures shows that the three replacements did pretty well. Denny Peterson was well up, Merv McKenzie was solid both ways, and Don McPhail (in on only a part of the series) left his mark. Curly Mason actually scored most goals out west, though several had more points. Ross Powless made a fair showing, also, as did the rest. Em Creighton didn't see too much action. Figures don't lie, yet they don't tell the whole story, as some players proved their value in their checking ability. Also, scorers in B.C. are stingy with assists compared to the eastern methods.

Ballsters Stage "Do"

And the senior baseballers wound up their season on a pleasant note Saturday night with a "do" at Wallace's Point for executive, players, wives and a few guests. Bill Dadson received the Jack Legris Trophy at this time as most valuable player on the 1951 club—and his buddies were in full agreement with the choice. It is hoped next year to rebuild the COBL to include four clubs up this way (Oshawa, Petes, Belleville and one other) and maybe work an interlocking schedule with four like Kingston, Gananoque, Napanee, Brockville or a somewhat similar setup. The Viaduct Loop competition turned out to be a lemon last summer. Oshawa and Petes were much too strong.

* * * * * *

Deadline for OHA entries is Nov. 1 and some 100 teams to date have filed applications. Total should run 50 or 60 higher. We hope they ice a strong senior "B" squad in Kingston to complete our grouping. Gananoque is not expected in this setup, and that's good. Incidentally, some fans thought we were being overly critical (and possibly hurting Petes' gates) last spring when we panned the showing of Kingston Nylons here, saying they weren't playing up to form. Subsequent events proved that they weren't and that they didn't want to win. That's why nearly all that team recently was suspended by the OHA.

Saints Take A Pair

SPS gridders captured a pair of victories Saturday aft in Morrow Park. Senior Saints were down 11-5 to Whitby in their exhibition tilt at the half but finished strong to take a 28-17 verdict. They hustled when they had to, and were in against a good squad, to earn the duke after being held well in check the first two frames. 'Twas the first time this season Johnny Lynch's lads have been scored on in a game. The junior St. Peter's crew won their second in two starts in the lakeshore loop schedule with an 11-0 decision o'er Cobourg. Didn't play their best football at that, but 'twas enough to ensure victory. Foley, Byrne, Hickey, Snape and McGillen turned in a neat chore for 'em.

* * * * * *

PCVS footballers divided on a scheduled "A" team twin bill in Oshawa on Saturday. Junior Garnet and Greys dropped an 11-7 decision in something of an upset as the Motor Citizens came from behind in a keen struggle. A pass from Corbett to Hollingsworth made for the only Peterborough try, other points being on kicks. Bev Goulding's seniors clicked nicely for a 27-11 triumph in the first of their home-and-home with the Collegiate Combines of Oshawa. Forbes had two touchdowns, Brown and Jensen going over once each. Some nifty quarter-backing by Dave Langhorne, whose trusty toe accounted for seven points. The line was solid. Barrie or Orillia will be clashing with the senior PCI-ers this week, the winner going into the big Red Feather tourney as COSSA representatives. The Falls is not rated as COSSA for this tournament.

Only Fair Season For Cricket Club

By C. H. IRESON

The Peterborough - Whitaker Cricket Club played 19 games the past season, winning six, losing 10 and drawing three. It was a fairly successful season and provided sport for both "A" and "B" teams here in the Toronto District Council. The "B" entry was made this year to make use of all available players and to sustain interest in this century-old Peterobrough game.

The P-W club expends a lot of money on equipment, charging no admission price nor taking up a ground collection. The climate here means that both cricket and soccer football are played in the summer—football is a winter sport in England—and thus some Old Country athletes, who play both games, went in for football. This left the cricket club at times without the services of good players to fulfil county matches. The "B" team, for this reason, was not such a success.

However, many players in Peterborough and a keen executive plan to carry on again next season.

The P-W club won from Grove and Oshawa in May, drew with Port Hope in July, lost to Oshawa in September and drew with Ottawa Valley the same month. The "A" team lost in June to Oshawa, Dentonia and St. Edmund's, defeating Dentonia early in July but later losing to the West Indians and to St. Edmund's. In August, this team beat Oshawa and Parkdale. The "B" team lost in May to Avro, dropped a decision in June to North Toronto but won later over Grace Church "B." It lost in July to North Toronto and drew with Dovercuort in August. The local club lost out to Carleton in a county cricket contest in July.

TCS Defeats Malvern

A second half rally paid off for TCS after Malvern had built a 10-6 lead. Trinity touchdowns were scored by Board, Muntz and Clark. Ware and Copland crossed for the Malvern TD's.

St. Peter's Get Two Wins In Grid Games

Number 13 may be unlucky for some people and teams, but for the St. Peter's High School football team it's lucky, especially for the senior Saints.

On Saturday, Oct. 13, the senior Saints were behind 11-5 at half time in their game with Whitby High at Morrow Park. In the first 13 plays of the second half they had won the game by scoring three touchdowns to take it 27-17.

Coach Johnny Lynch's junior Saints were far from impressive in the opening game of the double-header against Cobourg High but won 11-0. Thus they kept their winning streak intact.

Again Carl Brioux, stocky Saints' plunger, led the seniors to their third straight win, the first time this year that the opposition has crossed their touchlines. His work was helped by runbacks on Whitby's punts by Frank Farley and also by the quarter-back directing of Jack Richardson, whose throwing arm accounted for a fair air attack.

Faltered Once

In the first half, Whitby's line of Jermyn, Barnes, Patterson and McLean kept the Saints away from two touchdowns and then robbed them of another in the fourth. They matched the Saints' Leo Sullivan, Paul Grough, Jim Clarke and others throughout the game, faltering only in the third, the most costly time.

In the opening two minutes the Saints worked to the three-yard line but were turned back. But Whitby quick-kicked, only to the 35-yard line where John Armstrong returned it to the 16. He then snared a Richardson pass for 12 yards, to place Brioux in position for a touchdown plunge through centre.

But Whitby returned in the second quarter with a 57-yard march which fell short at the one-yard line. The Saints fumbled and Whitby's Irwin recovered on the one. Borchuk scored easily but Ward's attempt for the extra point by running was foiled.

Whitby continued to press and midway through the quarter Ward started another scoring match from the 30-yard line. Beckman, Irwin and Ward carried the ball to the three where Fallaise scored around the left end. Ward's convert was good, putting Whitby up 11-5.

In three running plays by Brioux, Farley and Murray Byrne in the first minute of the third, the Saints tied the score when Brioux, cut over the left side and Richardson converted. A 27-yard runback on the kickoff by Farley started the second scoring play, this time Bob O'Rourke plunged for 12 yards followed by a 45-yard run by John Jones for the score when he broke through the Whitby team into the clear. Again Richardson converted. Farley, again on a long runback, set the scene for the third straight score. Brioux, Richardson and Jones plunged for yards, finally O'Rourke going over. Richardson on the convert made the score 23-11.

Asling started Whitby off to a score midway through the fourth. Irwin followed up his plunges with a 12-yard plunge. Then Beckman passed 22 yards to Don Wilson who scored. Ward's convert point made it 23-17. On the last play John Jones intercepted a desperation pass by Whitby's Beckman and went unmolested around the right end to score.

Second Win

The juniors seemed off their usual game when they defeated Cobourg 11-0. This was their second win in two starts in the Lake Ontario district junior "B" league.

About the only bright spot during the game was the return to the lineup of Dick Foley, plunging back, who was hurt in the opening game with Lindsay. Foley, in spite of the layoff and a painful side, led the Saints with ground work. Frank McGillen, a former backfielder now on the line, was one of only a few getting the holes in the smaller Cobourg line. He also did the Saints' punting, twice recovering his own kicks. Jumbo Pearce, the Cobourg quarterback, was Cobourg's only standout, playing a fair running, passing and kicking game.

The Saints' first score came early in the second half after Dick Foley, Murray Byrne and John Hickey placed the ball in payoff territory, Foley finally crossing. Frank McGillen converted for the extra point.

Gord Snape jaunted 34 yards shortly after to put the ball on the Cobourg 12 where Foley and Hickey plunged to the two-yard line. There Snape charged through the centre to score.

French Wrestler To Test Layton

Lord Athol Layton is confident of continuing his ring triumphs when he meets Zorra, the French Tarzan, in the feature wrestling bout in the Brock on Tuesday night. However, the big Briton will be up against a powerful, skilled and resourceful opponent when he collides with Zorra. The French Tarzan's specialties include a dizzying airplane spin, a fearsome drop-kick with one foot and a legal kick with the side of the foot which is reputed harder than a boxer's punch.

In the semi-final, Chief Suni War Cloud, the Indian deathlock specialist, will oppose Lou Sjoberg, talented Minnesota star. Bill Stack of Oshawa will wrestle Dan O'Connor of Ohio, in the first event.

Lacrosse Snipers

Ike Hildebrand led the Petes' lacrossers in scoring with 34 points in the Eastern Canada playoffs with Fergus and Mimico. Russ Slater was top payoff man for the champions in the Mann Cup finals with the Combines in Vancouver, having 16 points in those seven games.

Curling Skips Meet

A meeting of the skips of the Curling Club is called for Thursday, Oct. 18, at 8 p.m. It will be held in the club's parlor. The main object of this meeting is to choose schedule rinks for the coming season. There will be other business as well.

If a skip finds he cannot be present, please have the vice-skip there. It is important—your cooperation will be greatly appreciated by the committee.

Bantam Crown Captured By Young Petes

Peterborough bantams blanked Weston 22-0 in Burlington on Saturday afternoon to capture the Ontario Lacrosse Association bantam "B" championship. OLA officials declined to permit the "B" victors to challenge for the "A" title, won the same day there by St. Catharines. However, these officials did admit that had Peterborough been listed as an "A" team in the windup tourney, the young Petes would probably have won that series, too.

Turning in a smart passing attack from start to finish, the Liftlock City crew rolled up the count steadily. They checked back well and goalie Heffernan earned his shutout with some fine saves. Leading the attack, as they have been doing regularly, were Grant Simmons, Pete Heffernan, Ron Jay and Larry Ferguson. The whole team clicked in fine fashion.

These boys, most of whom have had two years in peewee play here, were under the coaching in provincial playdowns of Nit O'Hearn until he left. Ed Woodcock and Wilf Heffernan were co-managers, but Ed took over the coaching later with Wilf sole manager. They eliminated Toronto Green Gaels first and then took Brampton in OLA semi-finals, being listed for "B" bantam finals then against Weston. They played here all season in the four-team PMLA bantam setup, an all-star squad when being chosen for provincial play.

Hawks Score Pair Of Wins While Red Wings Lose, Slide To 3rd Place

By The Canadian Press

It's probably only an early-season pipe dream, but the first weekend of National Hockey League activity brings up the intriguing possibility that the mighty Detroit Red Wings may have sold their league title down the river to Chicago. With six of last year's Red Wings, plus a host of other Detroit alumni of earlier vintage, in their lineup, the Hawks fought their way to a tie for the top of the league standings with a pair of victories while the Wings lost their only start and slid into a three-way tie for third place.

George Gee, whom the Wings returned to Chicago this season after purchasing him from the Hawks three years ago, picked up five scoring points as last year's NHL doormats humbled the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 and edged New York Rangers 3-2.

Montreal Canadiens, led by Maurice (Rocket) Richard, kept pace with Chicago Black Hawks by earning a split in their two games. Richard scored two goals Sunday night to help the Habitants to a 4-2 win over Boston Bruins in Boston. Bruins took Saturday's game, 2-1.

The only other game Sunday night saw Toronto, sparked by Tod Sloan and Sid Smith, come from behind to edge Detroit 3-2.

Gee scored twice and assisted on the third goal to give Hawks their triumph before 11,782 hometown fans. Veteran Bep Guidolin, on a pass of Gee, scored the other marker.

Sinclair Stars

Reg Sinclair hit for both New York goals, off a pass from Ed-Laprade at 5:09 of the opening period and again, at 19:18 of the third, on a pass from Jack McLeod.

Richard's tallies against Boston came within 50 seconds, the first going through goalie Sugar Jim Henry during the third minute of play while the Bruins were playing short-handed.

During the 13th minute, Richard, who plagued Henry during most of the evening, set up a goal for fellow-winger Bert Olmstead.

Tod Sloan scored twice within 56 seconds late in the second period as the Leafs tied the count and went ahead to stay. Both teams had a man in the penalty box on the first goal by Sloan, and Larry Wilson was still serving his time when Sloan came through again.

Smith drew assists on all three Toronto tallies, including Toronto's first goal by Danny Lewicki.

Start Early

Detroit scored in the first two minutes of the game, Fred Glover deflecting Marty Pavelich's shot home. Metro Prystai, on a peculiar play, scored Wing's other goal. Prystai slipped through the defence, took John Wilson's relay, and just managed to jab the puck through goalie Al Rollins' pads.

Saturday's games defied all pre-season form charts as Chicago and Boston—dubbed the two clubs least likely to succeed for 1951—flattened their highly-rated opposition.

Jim Peters, Pete Babando and Guidolin, all former Detroiters, whipped in second-period tallies against Toronto to offset Sloan's counter in the second minute of play. The Leafs never recovered.

At Montreal it was a Chicago castoff, veteran Adam Brown, who provided the tie-breaker in the final frame after Boston's Dunc Fisher and Canadiens' Elmer Lach had matched first-period goals.

Gaye Stewart Bows Nicely To Princess

By DOUGLAS HOW.

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP). — It may come as a surprise to the rest of the National Hockey League to learn that the venerable and violent Mr. Black Jack Stewart unveiled unsuspected talents in Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday.

The tough guy of Chicago Black Hawks bows nicely—well, adequately anyway.

He did it for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, who came to see the Hawks play Toronto Maple Leafs in a scoreless 15-minute exhibition display and liked it so much they stayed twice as long as they were scheduled to do.

Perhaps Mr. Stewart's technique was not as polished as that of Mr. Teeder Kennedy of the Leafs but 14,000 fans, predominantly young fans, didn't consider that unusual since it has been known for some time that Mr. Kennedy's manners surpass the manners of Mr. Stewart.

Mr. Stewart's technique, as far as one could see as these two team captains were introduced before the Royal box, was marked similarly to his hockey technique. He bows, in other words, with a short and choppy motion in contrast to the deeper, more eloquent method employed by Mr. Kennedy.

Delights Duke

On the ice, Mr. Stewart's activities were a source of major delight to the Duke in particular for the Duke was seen on more than one occasion to throw back his head and laugh with glee as Mr. Stewart felled a foe by employing his body in ways which quite overshadowed his bowing technique.

The Prince, Leaf boss Con Smythe said later, turned out to be an avid hocked fan, one who goes to games quite frequently in London. The Princess told Mr. Smythe she had seen hockey on television.

While thousands of children — including 1,000 crippled children in ringside seats—watched the play, they both took a great interest. It was obvious to the whole rink that the Prince has a predilection for rough play.

In fact, he made no effort to hide it. He roared with laughter a number of times, particularly when a leaf defenceman slashed at a Hawk in a manner which implied the most unkind intentions.

The Princess was less obvious about it but Mr. Smythe later reported that she, too, took an interest in this sort of abuse and, indeed, asked why there were no penalties.

It remained for Mr. Bep Guidolin of the Hawks to fulfill this Royal wish in the last minute of play when he embraced a Leaf in a gesture which led to his banishment for a holding penalty.

BUDGIE THE TUTOR — A blue budgie named "Blueboy" flies about Grade VI classroom at Buchanan elementary school in Calgary and teacher Verna Milburn says he's the best assistant she ever had. The little instructor flits from pupil to pupil perching lightly on a shoulder or hand to rest. It is considered a privilege to have "Blueboy" perched aloft, and, besides, it encourages children to sit quietly so he won't fly away.

Crowd Stuffed At Royal Dinner

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP) — The woman in the strapless evening gown tucked the maple sugar into her pearl-grey handbag.

Into it also went the candied fruit and biscuit.

She explained:

"I'm stuffed. Besides, I have to take something home."

It was going on at every table.

It was Ontario's dinner Saturday night for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. It seemed that all of Toronto's society—952 of them, anyway—and the two Labor Progressive (Communists) members of the legislature were there in white tie and tails and floor-length dresses.

But few saw the Princess over the sea of heads in the immense ballroom of the Royal York Hotel. Tables farthest from her head-table place of honor were perhaps 100 feet distant.

Toronto's two-day public welcome to the Royal visit dwarfed everything that had gone before.

So did the dinner. It was of 10 courses and 2½ hours. There were four wines, including champagne.

W. C. GRANT

HAROLD R. SCOTT

H. R. Scott, W. C. Grant Likely Candidates For Conservatives, CCF

Liberals Undecided About Nominee
Three Parties Will Hold
Nomination Meetings Tuesday, Thursday

Candidates for both Progressive-Conservative and CCF parties are available, but to date, the Liberals have no one. The Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, is almost a certainty for the PC nomination. Indications are he will run if nominated. The Conservatives hold their nomination meeting Tuesday night. W. C. Grant, city lawyer and reeve of Lakefield, is a strong possibility for the CCF nomination at their meeting Thursday night. John Morton, CCF provincial candidate in the last election, has indicated he will not stand for nomination.

Charles Elliott, Liberal candidate in the last election, is not expected to stand this year, although it was thought earlier he might. No other names have been mentioned for possible Liberal candidacy.

The Progressive Conservatives will be the first of the three parties to hold a nomination meeting. It will be Tuesday at 8:30 pm in the Canadian Legion Hall, Murray Street. The Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, will be the main speaker. Others on the program will be Senator Iva Fallis, Gordon K. Fraser, MP, and the Hon Harold R. Scott, the present member.

Both the CCF and Liberal associations have called nomination meetings for Thursday at 8 pm—the CCF at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Simcoe Street, and the Liberals at the Legion Hall.

Baxter To Speak

As yet the CCFers have not settled on a speaker, but the Liberals have chosen Donald Baxter, MP for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Today enumerators started to work in the city compiling a voters' list. There are two enumerators for each of the 61 urban sub-divisions, but one for each of the 52 rural sub-divisions. They must complete their work by Thursday.

The provincial election will be November 22, more than three years and four months after the previous one.

Mrs. L. Thompson In Hospital Expecting Baby

Mrs. Lillian Thompson, 35, awaiting trial on a charge of murdering her husband at their Howden Ave. home, was taken during the weekend to St. Joseph's hospital where her baby will be born.

She is already the mother of four children—Betty, 12, Kenny, 14, Roy, 15, and Nancy, 11. Her fifth child is expected sometime this week. Dr. Ralph Clark, jail surgeon, is attending her.

A 24-hour guard of city police is being maintained at the entrance to her room.

Mrs. Thompson is alleged to have shot her husband, Roy, with a .22-calibre rifle. The bullet pierced his heart. He was a war veteran and had recently started out for himself in the scrap metal business. An ironical twist is that he was killed on his 37th birthday.

At the preliminary trial there was evidence the two had quarreled about him taking the family car for the night. Both her daughter Betty and a neighbor heard Mrs. Thompson say she fired the shot.

She was committed for trial Sept. 24 by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, and will be tried at the assizes which open Oct. 29.

Police Force Operating In New Building

A phone call from Chief Constable John Thompson at 7:25 this morning was the first call received by Sergeant Leo Murphy when the police department started operating from their offices in the new City Hall today.

The last of the office furniture and records from the old police station in the city buildings was moved into the new quarters over the weekend. However by midmorning, the radio was still operating from the old station.

Contact was maintained between the two stations from a police cruiser parked at the back of the new City Hall which relayed information received by telephone so that instructions could be rebroadcast to other cruisers.

Until the cell blocks in the new building are ready, prisoners are being house in the county jail.

Makeshift

Although the department is operating from its new quarters, makeshift and temporary arrangements are necessary as all the work on the offices has not yet been completed.

Some doors, lacking handles on the outside, locked when they were closed, and had to be propped open so that officers could get in from the outside.

Several officers felt much confusion could have been avoided and that the operations of the department would not have been disrupted as much if the new quarters had been finished before they were obliged to move in.

However, the moving date for the police department had been laid down in a schedule prepared some time ago.

City Staff Starts Work In New City Hall Building

Peterborough's civic administration was setting its house in order this morning in one of the most attractive, substantial and commodious municipal buildings in Canada. Occupation of the new city hall was an epochal event invested only in the familiar routine of arranging departmental office furnishings in their new quarters. Last and heaviest of them had been vanned Saturday from the old premises. Probably the spirit of the place, the household gods, accompanied them.

Only the official Union Jack at the mast-head over the deserted precincts of the city council, waving in a warm October breeze remained of all the significance of municipal estate.

The warren of vacant rooms, variously altered for expansion during the years in the old building, was empty. Their abandonment was rather dramatically emphasized by such a trifling remnant as a solitary telephone left on the floor of City Engineer Chalmers' office from which the desks and tables were gone.

Asked To Wait

For the information of the public it may be said that business was going on as usual and without serious interruption, but citizens are asked to remember that details of finishing the interior are not yet completed. They are advised to defer their interested visits until the day of the official opening and housewarming.

That postponement will fall within the wishes of the council. Planning of transfer anticipated the temporary bustling in the strangeness of new offices as the staff became accommodated to them.

The official opening will be Friday, Oct. 26. Mayor Chamberlain, of Peterborough, England, is coming for that function. Ald. Herbert Young, chairman of the reception committee of the council, has in hand the arrangements for open house for the following Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings for the convenience of the citizens.

At any rate, it was the council's intention that the city hall departments should be settled in the new building with appearance and reality of permanence when the official opening takes place. For instance, the finishing of the main vestibule with its Peterborough district map outlined in floor mosaic is not yet complete.

Widen Sidewalks

Board of works men this morning were breaking up the George St. sidewalk for replacement that will widen the street in that block opposite Confederation Square. Other work was in progress on the rolling of the public parking space at the rear of the city hall, facing into Water St. The new lawn along George was watered.

For eventual effect of completion the council is now two weeks ahead of the opening of the municipal building, a fact which has already been explained in public announcement.

It was also mentioned that generally the contract is completed with time to spare in advance of expectations last winter and spring. Only the details already indicated remain of the responsibility of Eastwood Construction Company.

City counucil meets tonight for the first time in 60 years or more away from the old chamber at Simcoe St., but in the spirit of waiting upon official transfer this session will be held in the committee room, and not in what is perhaps literally Peterborough's new public forum. The new chamber will not be used until the formal opening Friday, Oct. 26.

Gov't Houses May Rent At $50

LINDSAY, Oct. 15—Further developments in the proposed governmnet financed houses to be built in Lindsay took place last week with a visit to the town of two representatives of the Department of Planning and Development.

The representatives were A. E. K. Bunnell, chief consultant of the department, and Major W. W. Scott.

The department is still waiting to hear from the Lindsay council before stating what the proposed houses will cost. An estimate also has to be made of the cost of the land and of the laying of services.

The houses are expected to rent at about $50 per month and cost approximately $9,000.

$200 Income

Regulations regarding to whom the houses may be rented have not been announced officially, but it is believed that prospective tenants will have to have an income of $200 to $300 a month to guarantee continuity of rent.

The site of these houses may be some town-owned property in the east ward.

The housing project is part of a provincial program to build houses at the rate of about two to every 1,000 population. Lindsay with a population of about 10,000 is entitled to 20 houses under this scheme.

Dedicate Rooms For Knox Church Sunday School

Another step was taken Sunday in the history of Knox United church when new Sunday School rooms in the basement of the church were dedicated.

The ceremony, conducted by the Rev. H. G. Douglas, was first started at the close of the morning service in the church assembly and then carried on in the Sunday school hall. Most of the congregation attended.

H. J. McCannan, representing the men of the congregation said that Knox church was building deeper trying to meet the needs of the rising generation.

"As our city has expanded, so too the city of God is growing in our midst."

Centre Of Friendship

Mrs. Roy Laing, who represented the church women, congratulated the church members on the expansion work adding, "It will be used, we trust, as a centre of friendship by different organizations.

Harold Murdoff, superintendent of the Sunday school, said, "These new rooms and the assembly hall will provide a congenial environment for the instruction of Christian teaching."

The Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon, Trinity United church, as past president of the presbytery, congratulated Knox church on its improvement program.

The construction work was started early this year and was only finished recently by the three contractors and volunteer work by the church men.

From a dirt floor basement, the church has built a modern kitchen, a large bright assembly room and eight other rooms, each forming a part of the Sunday school department.

The church will hold an open house for the public Wednesday night.

Alfred C. Hall To Address UN

Alfred C. Hall, information secretary to the United Kingdom's high commissioner and deputy director of the UK office in Ottawa, will speak to the Peterborough branch of the United Nations Association tonight at the public library.

A graduate of London University, Mr. Hall served during World War Two with the Royal Artillery and later the intelligence corps.

In 1943 he joined the Foreign Office staff, serving as a diplomatic secretary in Algiers, Jedda, Cairo, Tehran and Moscow. Then in 1949 he was loaned to the Commonwealth Relations office for his appointment to Canada.

James E. Girven At Helm Of CGE

James E. Girven became today works manager of the Canadian General Electric Company in Peterborough. He succeeds Ian F. McRae who has been appointed assistant to vice-president K. J. Corkery, Toronto.

Citizens are giving a complimentary dinner to Mr. McRae at the Empress Hotel Wednesday.

Succession of chief executive in the local works goes back beyond Mr. McRae to Carl Solmonsen and prior to him the late E. G. Patterson. That period of CGE operations reaches to the turn of the century when Mr. Patterson followed Chief Engineer Barton who was works manager for nearly a year. The preceding manager was named Stephens.

In slightly more than 50 years there have been four works managers represented in the term of Mr. Girven beginning today.

It is understood that various other appointments of rather broad scope are in prospect, although some of them may not be immediately effective.

Ennismore Parish Honors Rev. V. J. Gillogly

The members of the parish of St. Martin, Ennismore, said farewell Sunday to the Rev. V. J. Gillogly on the eve of his departure Tuesday to his new appointment charge at Port Hope.

At the conclusion of the 10 am mass, he was presented with a farewell address and a cheque in appreciation of his pastorate of 16 years in the Peterborough township. The presentation was made by Reeve James Gifford on behalf of the congregation, following the reading of the address by the Rev. Lawrence McAuliffe.

Emphasis was placed not only on the spiritual leadership of Father Gillogly, but also his interest and activity in the improvement of the rural life of his community, particularly in agricultural practice.

Overwhelmed

Father Gillogly told the parishioners they had overwhelmed him, and had done "too much." In his appreciation of their parting remembrance he recalled the presentation of an automobile for his use which they had made to him last year. That was a very generous and thoughtful gift, he said, and the further gift of a purse on his leaving the parish was something he could not have expected.

Father Gillogly said the years he had spent among the people of Ennismore and also of Peterborough County would remain in his memory all his life.

The Rev. P. J. Lynch of Trout Creek, a native of Otonabee Township, takes charge of the parish Tuesday.

Father McAuliffe, who read the address to Father Gillogly, is a member of the Society of Foreign Missions. He spent some years in China until the Japanese invasion when he escaped over the western frontier, was picked up by the American Air Force and was retained by them as chaplain. He was stationed with them in India, and finally on his way home he had made a complete circuit of the globe. He is now waiting until he leaves on a new appointment in the Dominican Republic.

Two Minor Accidents Reported To Police

Two minor car accidents Sunday night resulted in $490 damage to the vehicles but no injuries to the occupants, provincial police report.

Joseph Rae, 22, Norwood, was driving east on Highway 7 when he stopped, just east of the city limits. Another eastbound car, driven by Ernest Jones, 44, Hastings, crashed into the rear of Rae's car, causing $90 damage. Damage to Jones' car was estimated at $200.

OPP Constable Jack McKendry investigated.

Bill Vandenberg, 17, 650 Brown St. was shaken up when his car ran into the ditch on the 9th line of Dummer township and struck a couple of boulders. The front fenders, grill and radiator received $200 damage.

The accident was five miles north of Norwood. Vandenberg told OPP Constable Harold Armstrong that he pulled over because a passing car was taking up too much of the road.

Use Waste Gases To Ease Sulphur Scarcity

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Waste gases will soon be helping to solve Canada's shortage of sulphur.

Construction was started today at Copper Cliff, near Sudbury, on a plant which will take the fumes from the giant smelter of International Nickel Co. of Canada, Ltd., and convert them into liquid sulphur dioxide.

This will be used in the manufacture of newsprint, sulphite pulp and other products which now depend on elemental sulphur imported from the United States.

The plant is being built for Canadian Industries Ltd., by Fraser Brace Engineering Co. (Ontario) Ltd., and when completed about a year from now, will have an initial capacity of more than 90,000 tons a year.

Big Saving

Each ton will replace and save the importation of a half-ton of elemental sulphur; and thus, initially, will replace 45,000 tons of elemental sulphur, or nearly one-quarter of Canada's present sulphur imports.

More than 20 years of research and experiment by chemists and engineers of INCO and CIL make the plant possible. As far back as 1932 CIL found that liquid sulphur dioxide could be made from INCO's fumes—but at too high a cost to compete with imported elemental sulphur.

Then, in recent years, INCO developed what is known as an oxygen flash-smelting process for its operations. The research men went to work again—this time successfully; and a pilot plant produced liquid sulphur dioxide at an economic price.

Next step was to try out the product in the making of paper at Fort William, and, it is stated, it was found to have technical advantages over elemental sulphur. Decision followed to build the plant on which work started today.

It will be the second plant getting a basic raw material out of INCO's smelter fumes. For some years CIL has been producing sulphuric acid from them, and it now plans to increase this production shortly by more than one-half.

Appointed International Scout Director

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (CP)—Appointment of Maj.-Gen. D. C. Spry, CBE, DSO, CB, of Ottawa, as deputy director of the Boy Scouts international bureau was announced Sunday night.

The announcement said Spry, chief executive commissioner of the Boy Scouts' Association of Canada, will continue in that post, in which he has served since 1946.

His new job as deputy director of the international bureau will be part-time. He will have complete responsibility for international scouting in north, central and South America and the Caribbean area.

Spry became Canada's youngest general when in 1944, at the age of 31, he was promoted to major-general. He became vice-chief of the Canadian general staff in 1946 and resigned several months later to take over the top executive post of Canada's scouts.

Buckingham Palace Expense Puts King Deeper In Debt

LONDON, Oct. 15. (Reuters)—The King is having money trouble the Sunday newspaper, The People, claimed Sunday.

The paper says the vast expense of running Buckingham Palace is putting the King deeper into debt every year.

His yearly allotment of $1,165,000 is insufficient, not because he and the Royal family are extravagant, but because he must support "a vast army of court officials, who in their turn require the services of an even vaster army of Royal servants."

Out of that amount, $720,000 go for purposes that "in no way contribute to maintaining the King, his wife, and Princess Margaret," for whom the parliamentary grant is intended.

These deficits have occurred annually since the war and were met from the King's private savings. But how the savings are depleted and the King must institute economies to cut down expenses, The People says.

The paper suggests that these financial worries partially brought about the King's ill health.

Of the 250 servants employed at Buckingham Palace, only about 25 actually wait on the Royal family. The rest wait upon household officials and the upper grade of servants.

"The Royal homes are among the last outposts in Britain in which the Victorian custom where upper servants are waited upon by lower servants is still observed.

"It is a strange anomaly that the homes of a truly democratic Royal family are still governed by an incredible degree of class distinction."

Niagara Falls Magnificent Princess Says

By DOUGLAS HOW

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct 15 (CP)—Princess Elizabeth got the teeming mists of Niagara Falls in her blue eyes Sunday and pronounced this staggering scene "magnificent."

She was left as breathless as anyone else as she went 140 feet down through a tunnel in the rocks to feel, hear and see the incredible power of these waters both from behind and below them.

A transient wisp of rainbow, emerging from the mists that tower and boil out of the foot of the torrent, touched her Edinbugh - rose - colored waterproof coat as she stood on a platform only 25 feet above the river, looking up into the Horseshoe Falls. The waters fell a few feet away. The Princess held up the hood of her cape—especially made in Galt—to keep the spray off but she was wet by the time she left.

Before that she got even closer. She went down another tunnel which ends behind the falls and there stood within a few feet of the cascade unable to see anything else, in a position where the spray catches the breath and the whole dynamic force of this phenomenon seems to weigh down upon this slim passage through the rock.

The Royal couple once again showed marked curiosity and knowledge about the place they were visiting. They even asked about the fatal barrel plunge over the falls last Aug. 5 that took the life of Red Hill.

summer to western Canada and British Columbia.

Woman Most Dangerous Of All Animals—Shaw Said

LONDON, Oct. 15 (Reuters)—George Bernard Shaw once described woman as "the most dangerous of all the animals," it was revealed Sunday.

Letters written by the Provocative Irish playwright are to be auctioned in London Nov. 6—one year after Shaw's death at the age of 94.

Writing to the late Edward MacNulty, a life-long friend, he said of women:

"The Victorian theory about woman is a ludicrous delusion. She is the most dangerous of all the animals. If you come to that view of the situation, the attempt to hypnotize her into believing herself weak was bound to fail."

The Shaw letters are being sold by McNulty's daughter.

In a typewritten not dated 1908, Shaw discouraged his friend from entering the newspaper business but spoke of his own success in these terms:

"I am often spoken of as the millionaire Socialist. I haven't the least idea what our exact income is. When I married my wife she put her income roughly at £4,000 . . . I have touched as much as £13,000 in one year.

"I am neither a rich man nor a successful man as riches are imagined, but simply a great man, a man of genius . . . and how small and timid a thing the reality the the great man is, you very well know."

Early Promotion Predicted For Duke

LONDON, Oct. 15. (Reuters)—The Sunday Pictorial said Sunday that the Duke of Edinburgh is likely to be promoted to the rank of commander in the Royal Navy soon after he and Princess Elizabeth return from Canada.

An Admiralty official declined to comment on the report but noted that such promotion would mean a break with naval tradition.

The Duke was promoted to lieutenant-commander July 16, 1950, and it normally takes two years to get the full commander promotion.

The paper said that the Duke's qualifications are exceptional. He had been first lieutenant of a destroyer leader in a crack Mediterranian flotilla and, as lieutenant-commander, had commanded the frigate Magpie.

Kitchener Whips Waterloo 4-1; Marlies Win

By The Canadian Press.

With two victories in as many tries, Kitchener Greenshirts are sitting on top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League standings today.

The Greenshirts are sharing the top rung with Toronto Marlboros and Kitchener fans are beginning to sit up and take notice of their junior hockey team—the first in 15 years.

The Marlboros moved into the first place deadlock Sunday afternoon by coming from behind to record a 2-1 victory over Oshawa Generals in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens before 3,100 fans.

The Green shirts were "kings for a day" when they posted a 4-1 win over Waterloo Hurricanes in Waterloo Saturday night. They defeated Windsor Spitfires 6-1 in their opener last Thursday.

There were five other games at the weekend. Galt Black Hawks and Toronto St. Michael's battled to a 4-4 tie in the second half of a Sunday doubleheader in Toronto. In other Saturday night games Barrie Flyers handed St. Catharines Teepees their second straight loss, 3-2, in St. Catharines; Oshawa rapped St. Mike's 5-2; Marlboros edged Galt 5-3 and Spitfires held Guelph Biltmores to a 3-3 tie in Windsor.

Third period counters by Bill McFarland and Eric Nesterenko gave the Marlies their Sunday victory. Winger Roy Luyden furnished the Oshawa goal in the first period.

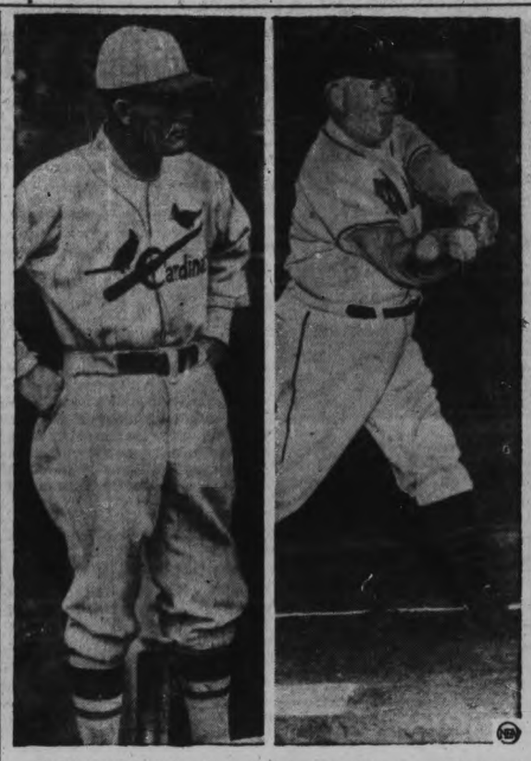
Suffers Injury

The game was marred by a first-period injury to Oshawa's Fred Edcher. The speedy winger suffered a skate cut on the back of his neck requiring 12 stitches. General's goalie, Bob Shropshire, also was injured, but returned to play after a seven minute rest in the final period.

Tommy Fyles paced the Galt attack, scoring two goals in the 4-4 saw-off. Mike Buchanan and Neil McDonald accounted for the others. Bill Lee, Jim Logan, Bob Sabourin and Ron Wallace scored for St. Mike's.

Gary (Duke) Edmundson, former Edmonton junior and last season with Regina Pats, clicked for two goals to lead the Kitchener attack. Greg Hicks and Orval Tessier, two Timmins products, scored the others. Jerry Horton notched the lone Waterloo marker.

The Biltmores came from behind twice to earn their overtime deadlock with Spitfires. After coach Alfie Pike removed goalie Terry Hagen, Chuck Henderson pumped home the tying goal with only 49 seconds remaining in the third period.



Spits took the lead at 7:01 of the overtime session on a goal by Rod McElroy, his second of the night. Bilts produced the final tie with only 58 seconds left as Ron Murphy whipped in Ken Laufman's faceoff draw.

Dean Prentice potted Guelph's first tally while Brown scored the other Windsor marker.

St. Catharines drew 11 of the 16 penalties handed out in dropping their contest with Barrie Flyers, the Memorial Cup champions. Pierre Pilote, Don Savage and Paul Emms connected for the winners while Gerry Foley and Pletsch scored for Teepees.

FARTHEST SOUTH

Point Pelee National Park near Windsor, Canada's most southerly mainland extension, is in the same latitude as Rome.

THEN AND NOW—Rogers Hornsby, left, was at the peak of his brilliant career as the second basing manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals in 1926. A much-stouter Hornsby, right, will hit infield practice as pilot of the Browns next Spring.

Argos Subdue Ottawa 28-19 At Tiger-Cats Crush Alouettes

By The Canadian Press.

The only thing certain in Canada's big-time football is that Calgary Stampeders, two-time Grey Cup finalists in the last three years, will sit out the Nov. 24 classic. The rest of the picture is as confusing as a picasso painting.

In the Big Four it is Hamilton's hot-and-cold Tiger-Cats in the lead with Ottawa Rough Riders and the suddenly-hot Toronto Argonauts within striking range. The stretch drive for a place in the two-game total-point playoffs has all the earmarks of a dog-eat-dog battle with four points separating the three teams.

Montreal Alouettes, the cellar-dwelling Big Four team, have only two victories in eight games and are just about ready for the showers. Even the most rabid Al Fan wouldn't concede them a spot.

Things aren't as scrambled in the Western Interprovincial where three clubs—against two in the Big Four—hit playoff dirt. Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders are tied for first with 16 points each, two more than Winnipeg Blue Bombers. The Stampeders have a sickly six-point total with three victories in 13 starts.

Toronto Leads

The University of Toronto leads the still-young senior intercollegiate race with two victories in as many outings. The Blues whipped University of Western Ontario 16-7 at Toronto Saturday while McGill made it 14-7 over Queen's at Kingston. Western and McGill are tied for second place with a 1-1 won-lost record. Queen's have lost their two games.

The Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union Saturday games went according to the book. The fast-stepping Sarnia Imperials slaughtered winless Windsor Royals 29-0 at Windsor and second-place Toronto Balmy Beach got up off the ground to edge out McMaster 16-13 at Toronto.

But the Big Four race is capturing the imagination of the autumn sport. The dominion champion Argonauts who suddenly found themselves with a 10-0 Thanksgiving day victory over Ti-Cats, roared from behind three times Saturday to defeat Ottawa 28-19.

It was a big one for the double Blues who have played one game less than Hamilton and Riders and a saving grace for coach Frank Clair whose dumping of quarterback Al Dekdebrun in favor of young Bobby Wirkowski had the grandstand quarterbacks in a dither.

Nobby looked terrible against Hamilton a week ago last Saturday but his Thanksgiving day and weekend efforts made Clair look good. He fired three touchdown passes Saturday to spark the Argo upsurge.

Hamilton just about settled Montreal's outlook with a 21-7 triumph at Montreal Sunday. The Als led 1-0 into the second quarter but the Tiger-Cats untangled themselves with two converted touchdowns in the second and pounded over for another major in the fourth.

Cheap Treatment Said Found For Cancer In US

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 15 (AP)—Two university of Arkansas scientists claim they have developed an inexpensive treatment for cancer.

They have used cobalt, a relatively cheap metal, to replace high-priced radium in the treatment of cancer-diseased tissues of the body.

Dr. Isadore Meschan, head of the university school of medicine's radiology department, and Dr. Raymond R. Edwards, member of the university's institute of science and technology, made the announcement Saturday.

The process involves the radio-activation of cobalt in one of the atomic energy commission's graphine piles. When cobalt is irradiated or charged with radioactive rays it becomes cobalt-60.

Cobalt is an iron-like metal. Cost of production is about $2 a pound. Radium, the rare metal also used for treatment of cancer tissues, costs agout $25,000 a gram or $11,344,000 a pound.

Mechan said his tests showed cobalt-60 to be as effective as radium treatment of cancer. Experiments first were conducted on animals. Cobalt-60 later was applied to humans with success, said Maschan.

Aggies Crush RMC In 23-0 Exhibition

GUELPH, Oct. 15 (CP). — Sparked by quarterback Johnny Reeves, Ontario Agricultural College Aggies turned in a 23-0 win over Royal Military College Intermediates in an exhibition football game here Saturday.

Reeves, star of the game, accounted for 14 of his team's points. He carried the ball for a pair of touchdowns, converted one and booted a field goal. The Aggies speedster shared the limelight with D. Green who stood out for RMC in the backfield.

Aggies gained a four-point lead in the first quarter on Reeves' placement and on a rouge. They were held scoreless in the second quarter as the military students put on drives which brought the ball close to the Guelph goal line on two occasions.

The Guelph team scored two majors in the third quarter and one in the fourth.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens seem set on monopolizing the top spots in the young National Hockey League scoring race. With all six clubs seeing action during the weekend, three veteran Canadiens were in the first four places.

But the surprising Chicago Black Hawks came up with their own candidate for early season honors, George Gee.

Gee tallied twice and assisted once as Hawks edged New York Rangers 3-2 Sunday night. Those added to his two assists of Saturday night when Hawks downed Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1 gave him a first-place tie with Montreal's Elmer Lach and Bert Olmstead with five points.

Lach and Olmstead scored a goal apiece and assisted twice each during the weekend as Boston Bruins edged Canadiens 2-1 then lost 4-3.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard went pointless in Canadiens Saturday fixture but made up for it by tallying twice and assisting once Sunday to give him a total of four points for fourth place.

Tod Sloan scored the tying and winning markers Sunday night as Leafs trimmed Detroit Red Wings 3-2 and Leafs' only goal Saturday night to tie Richard for goal-scoring honors with three. Lach and Olmstead led in assists with four each.

Virgin Appears To Pope Three Times

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 15 (AP) —Frederico Cardinal Tedescini told pilgrims at the shrine of Fatima in Portugal Saturday that the Virgin Mary appeared three times to the Pope during the 1950 Holy Year. The cardinal, the Archpriest of St. Peter's Basilica, attended ceremonies at the shrine as the Pope's delegate.

The Pope, said Cardinal Tedeschini, saw the vision in the rays of the sun October 30, October 31, and November 1, 1950. It was November 1 that the Pope formally proclaimed the dogma of the Virgin Mary's bodily assumption into heaven.

Cardinal Tedeschini, at Fatima for ceremonies closing the extended Holy Year outside Rome, told of the Virgin Mary's reported appearance at Fatima to three children in 1917. Then he added, according to L'Osservatore's account:

"I will tell you an even more marvellous thing. I will tell you that another person has seen this same miracle: He saw it outside of Fatima; he saw it years later; he saw it at Rome.

"The Pope, the same, our Pontiff, Pius XII, he saw it.

"Was this a reward? Was this a sign of divine sovereign pleasure for the definition of the dogma of the assumption? Was this a celestial testimony, authenticating the marvels of Fatima with the centre, with the head of truth and the Catholic magistracy? The three things together?"

The cardinal said the visions came to the Pope at the same time each day—four o'clock in the afternoon—when he "turned his gaze from the Vatican gardens to the sun."

PAYS ROYAL TRIBUTE—Princess Elizabeth paid a Royal tribute to Toronto's servicemen who died while serving Canada when she and the Duke of Edinburgh received Toronto's official welcome at city hall. Research Council Studies Radar Mirage Problem

TORONTO (CP)—The National Research Council is scanning lake Ontario from nearby Scarborough Bluffs in an effort to make lake shipping safer.

In a two-year project expected to cost $100,000 the council is seeking the answer to the problem of radar mirages.

Radar mirages are images received on the radar screens of lake ships of objects which aren't really where the screen says they are. Like ordinary mirages, the images are "reflection" of distant scenes.

To find out what causes the mirages, research workers have their own 2,000 pound radar set in a box that slides up and down a cableway from the level of lake Ontario to 200 feet above it.

Movie Camera Working

A movie camera takes a picture every 30 seconds on the radar screen, recording what the invisible eye sees over the lake.

At the same time recordings are made of temperatures, humidity and other weather data.

When all the facts are put together, the researchers hope to know what conditions cause radar mirages and what to do about it.

The theory is that radar waves, being in the very short 10,000 megacycle range, act somewhat like light waves. If the radar beam gets caught between two layers of air over the lake, it will bounce along between them for as far as 100 miles, and send back a record of the object 100 miles away.

Normally the beam used by ships extends only 20 miles or less.

When the National Research Council has all its facts, figures and finding completed, they will fill a manual for guidance for ship radar operators, and remove the element of chance from radar safety.

Praises Quebec Farming System

LONDON—(CP)—Praises for French-Canadian farmers was contained in a letter to the Times from P. C. Loftus, chairman of a Suffolk rural association.

Contributing to a correspondence on farm production, Loftus said countries could learn a lot about how to handle soil erosion by studying the French-Canadian example.

"In the Province of Quebec," wrote Loftus, "the land has been cultivated for nearly 300 years by the French-Canadian peasant proprietors, and it maintains its fertility with a high output of food, while in other parts of Canada, on land which has been farmed for only about 50 years, there are already alarming symptoms of erosion such as the blowing away of the soil, the first stage in the creation of man-made deserts.

"The French-Canadian works in co-operation with nature and with an understanding of and reverence for the living soil. Many American and Canadian farmers have been apt to regard agriculture as a mechanical factory operation to be used to obtain quick and cheap results regardless of the future."

Duke Praises Canadians For Scientific Progress

TORONTO, Oct. 15 — (CP).—The Duke of Edinburgh, whose special study is science, Saturday commended Canadians for their progress in that field.

The Duke, this year's president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, was speaking to guests at a luncheon given him by the Toronto Board of Trade. It was the only speech he is scheduled to give in this country.

The whole address of about five minutes was devoted to a review of achievement Canada has managed despite its youth, with the emphasis on the scientific side.

There have been notable individual triumphs in Canadian science, Prince Philip said, but perhaps more important was "the unique and very sensible organization of science in Canada."

"From the national and provincial research councils through the associated committees," he said, "a simple and effective pattern exists for getting problems to the right research worker and the right answer back to the peole who need it.

Second To None

"It is also quite evident that the work of the research laboratories, whether they deal with metallurgy, wood pulp, agricultural machinery or forestry, is second to none in the world."

The Duke's knowledge of the design of Canadian science appeared to have been bolstered by a meeting he had in Ottawa on Thursday with 10 of the country's top scientists. At his request, they met him for a talk on the subject.

He had words of praise for Canada in other fields, emphasizing that the comparative youthfulness of the country has not barred it from "achievements of every branch of national life which would make many an older country feel proud."

Most important evidence that Canada no longer is young in accomplishment, he said, is the publication early this year of the report of the royal commission on arts, letters and sciences.

"That report," he declared, "is a remarkable attempt to find out exactly what is present and what is lacking in the national culture.

"It does not try to hide the fact that there is a great deal which is missing but the fact that this report was written at all implies that it will not be missing for long. It is this consciousness of individuality and determined independence which is the hallmark of a successful nation."

Great Individuality

The Duke said he found it particularly remarkable that this individuality has been retained against the background of Canada's development with the same ideals and traditions of the nearby United States.

As a naval officer who fough in the Second World War and helped cover the Canadian landing in Sicily during 1943, he had praise for the three Canadian services and for the British Commonwealth air training plan that trained airmen in Canada from Allied countries.

He added:

"These martial traditions, the history and culture, the scientific and commercial achievements, prove to me that this is a flourishing nation with a lot to look back on with pride, a present which compares very favorably with any other country and a future which is a challenge to all that is best in the Canadian character."

He was introduced at the lunch by J. Gerald Godsoe, president of the Toronto Board of Trade, who said he is welcomed—not only as a member of the Royal family—but as a "hearty, wholesome young man who already has revealed himself as a person of decision and of thought."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Maritime Hospital Found Highlight Of Trip To East

It may sound silly to you sensible people for me to be sitting here in front of a typewriter with my hat on. But I have to have it on don't I—to take it off to these Nova Scotians?

For that is what I'm doing today—taking off my hat to my new-made friends in the Maritimes.

You know, they are not a boastful people. There is no advance fanfare. They pay you the compliment of trusting you to know that if and when you come to the Maritimes you will receive Maritime hospitality.

And by Maritime hospitality I do not mean a cup of tea, a lobster sandwich, a handclasp and a smile. Oh no. I mean a private car and driver at your disposal. I mean the loan of a new typewriter; a cruise with the navy as host out on the Atlantic; luncheon at the local Home and School Club; dinner at the Lord Nelson with the Halifax Herald as your host and Dr. Stanley Walker as your speaker; the surprise of a singing waiter at the formal dinner given by the Province of Nova Scotia at which the Premier spoke to us—and how those press women loved it.

Do you see what I mean? Their best was given to us in full measure—and running over.

It gives you a lift. It also gives you a strange sense of superiority mingled with humility, for I wonder if fresh-water Canadians are quite so sincere—that is when they are convention-minded.

In spite of a late night on Friday after the formal dinner your faithful Mary was at the Halifax market at 7:45 a.m. Finding a two dollar value for fifty cents was worth it all. Believe it or not, I found 1½ and 2 pound jars of fresh shelled clams selling for 50 cents. Enough clams to make a main course chowder for four, even the generous way Haligonians make it. See authentic recipe below.

Or—if you want your clams in the shell you can have a washbasin full for twenty-five cents. There were about 50 clams in the shell in the basin.

Halifax Clam Chowder

One quart fresh clams (or 50 cents worth if you are within walking distance of Halifax market—if not you poor dejected inlanders will have to get along on two 16-ounce cans of them); 4 cups potatoes cut in ½-inch cubes, 1½-inch cube of fat salt pork, 1 sliced onion, 1½ to 2½ teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 cups scalded milk, 8 common crackers are optional. Clean and pick over the clams using 1 cup cold water; drain off liquid through cheesecloth in sieve. (This catches any sand). Heat to boiling point. Chop finely the hard part of the clams. Cut the pork in very small pieces and fry out with the chopped onion genttly for 5 minutes. Parboil potatoes for 5 minutes in boiling water to cover. Drain. Put a layer of potatoes, onions and fat, the chopped clams and a sprinkling of salt, peper and flour in stewing pan. Repeat. Add 2½ cups boiling water. Cook 10 minutes, add milk, soft part of clams and butter. Simmer 3 minutes. Reheat clam water and if desired, thicken and add to chowder just before serving. Crackers may be added or passed.

If you are still with me on my Maritime meanderings, tomorrow I'll tell you about our broiled lobster dinner with Miss Ruth Binnie—supervisor of Home Economics classes in Nova Scotia high schools. So until tomorrow here's salt water in your eye.

Evening Dresses Of Wool Fashion Feature

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON—(CP)—Each year as temperatures drop, shop windows beckon with enticing examples of the latest ways to keep warm.

From the dark, heavy and often stiff fabrics of a century ago, wool manufacturers have developed a versatile range of textiles that get better all the time.

With woollen materials ranging from diaphanous weaves with the transparency of organdy, to the knotty-surfaced, loosely-woven fabrics of grandmother's day, there are stylish clothes for every hour and occasion.

This year's winter coats, for instance, range from travel coats in cosely-knit naps and reps lined with wool or fur, to the smooth sleekness of serge and barathea town coats with tiny waists, full skirts and stylish collars trimmed in mink or Persian lamb.

One of the most interesting new uses of wool is in long evening capes brushing the ground in train effect. Mostly in long-haired fabrics, the capes are simple in design and in many cases are lined with light-weight wools that give cosy warmth to bare shoulders. Worn over crinoline dresses they recall the days of horse-drawn carriages when fur coats were unknown.

Beautiful Gowns

Wool is also chosen for the crinoline itself. Materials range from flimsy jersey weighing one ounce a square yard to broadcloth dinner and evening gowns with voluminous skirts, backless tops and intricate bead embroidery. In cocktail dresses, wool lame jersey gives the scintillating glitter of a brocade, with none of its coldness.

"The height of luxury and sophistication for this year's evening wear is heavily embroidered tweed," said Schiaparelli—first of the Paris designers to use wool for evening wear—in a British fashion publication.

This designer was one of the 22 members of Paris' haute couture who gave a London showing of wool wear for mornings, afternoons and evenings. In a handbook distributed at this fashion show, Sciaparelli suggested a "perfect" all-wool wardrobe—a "real" tweed suit; grey tweed travel coat lined with contrast check and grey flannel travelling suit; grey jersey dress; black formal suit; red town coat; black jersey cocktail dress with adjustable neckline for dinner wear; navy broadcloth evening dress, a full-length, decollete and slim; a white flannel housecoat casually tailored with adjustable neckline.

Of Interest to Women

PRIMATE'S WIFE—Mrs. W. F. Barfoot, wife of the newly-elected Anglican primate, is shown here with a picture of her husband, Archbishop of Edmonton and Dean G. Calvert of Christ Church cathedral, Victoria, B.C. Mrs. Barfoot, a noted dietitian, married the bishop in Toronto in 1942—23 years after they met as Sunday school teachers at St. John's church, West Toronto.

Find New Primate's Wife Expert Dietitian

EDMONTON (CP)—"The Archbishop's palace?"

The slight, silver-haired woman smiled at the suggestion of a new name for her home in Edmonton's west end.

"No, I don't think we'll be calling it that. It has a name already—See House," said Mrs. Lorena Barfoot, whose husband, The Most Rev. W. F. Barfoot, last month at Victoria was elected primate of the Church of England in Canada and elevated from bishop to archbishop of Edmonton.

Mrs. Barfoot attended the synod meeting and took the opportunity of looking up some old friends.

"I saw the clergymen who had married us," said Mrs. Barfoot, a gracious figure in a midnight blue taffeta dress with the gold cross of the Anglican Woman's Auxiliary life membership pinned to it.

"I saw classmates there we hadn't seen for 30 years and clergymen who had visited in our home. I felt as if I were back in Toronto, surrounded by friends I had known since childhood."

Sunday School Romance

In 1919 a young captain came home from the front lines in France with a Croix de Guerre and began teaching Sunday school in St. John's Anglican church in west Toronto. A young Toronto girl was teaching there, too.

A friendship, begun in undergraduate days at university, was not lost as through the years they followed each other's career.

The captain was to become Bishop of Edmonton and the Sunday school teacher, Lorena Richardson, established her name as a dietitian. In 1942 they returned to the church where they met—to be married.

Both had graduated in arts in '21. Miss Richardson went to New York to head the research department of a resaurant chain. Later she joined a chain in Canada.

Sent Abroad

In 1937 she was sent abroad to learn the secrets of European catering, a tour that took her through famous kitchens. The idea of colored icing for wedding cakes to match the pastel bridal gowns caught her eye and she introduced this in Toronto.

"In London and Edinburgh, I saw the catering for the first receptions for the King and Queen following their coronation," she recalls.

When her husband returns from a planned trip to Korea this month, Mrs. Barfoot will travel to Toronto with him for an executive meeting of the church's national synod.

She has three brothers in Toronto, Lowrey Richardson, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange; Leland Richardson, cartilloneur at Hart House, and Norman Richardson, a doctor.

Fashion Pirates Prey On Designers Steal Original Ideas From Paris

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS (NEA).—With a yo-ho-ho and a bottle of indelible ink, the fashion pirates are making life miserable for Parisian dress designers. And the fashion industry is virtually powerless to fight back.

Twice a year—in the winter and summer—the big French houses hold showings to introduce their new creations. And twice a year they find these supposedly exclusive designs have somehow gotten out. A few days after the showings, they're on the market in Rome and London and Stockholm and New York.

How? It's the work of methodical, well-organized fashion pirates, say the Parisian couturiers.

One of the gang — called an "observer"—attends a showing. He or she gets in in the guise of a fashion reporter or a prospective purchaser or a member of the staff of a legitimate buyer.

Rest Is Easy

Once Inside, the rest is easy. The "observers" are well trained. There is nothing so crude as taking notes, although occasionally some amateur pirates do try to make sketches. But the real pros don't need to do that. They have amazing memories. They watch each model carefully, note each detail with a practiced eye, if possible examine the creation close up.

All the while, they are continuing their act. But once the showing is over, they rush to their hotel room and put everything down. They reproduce the model in careful sketches. They write down every detail with painstaking care and phenomenal accuracy.

Sometimes, they telephone their reports—using codes—to their headquarters. Others don't trust to the phone or the mail; they hop a plane and take their information to the headquarters personally.

It's a simple job for talented pattern makers and seamstresses to whip up a copy of the creation from the observer's reports and sketches. And, in a few days, the dress that a Parisian couturier took months and thousands of francs to create is on the racks of department stores all over the world—selling as a "Paris original".

To combat the pirates, the French designers have done everything possible. They've svreened their invitations to showings, to try to keep observers out. They've employed detectives to watch for people making even the smallest note. They make prospective buyers put down a deposit, deducted from eventual purchases. But nothing works.

If the pirates can't gain access to the shwoings, they try other tactics. They bribe low-paid employees of the fashion houses, getting possession of the linen pattern (called a "toile") of the original. Sometimes there is leakage of information from fashion artists or from the small artisan who executes embroidery details on certain models.

Most Troublesome

But, by and large, it is the "observer" technique that is the most troublesome to the designers.

Once the Chambre Syndicale de la Couture — the organization of leading Parisian couturiers—got a red-hot tip on a pirate den. The group's representative and a policeman raided the place. But the gang was evidently warned.

The two raiders were stalled for 30 minutes in an elevator in the building. When they finally reached the suspect apartment, it was empty. Later, the organization learned that every tell-tale scrap and sketch was swept through a communicating door to the next building while the raiders were trapped in the elevator.

More successful was leading designer Christian Dior. He spotted a man at his showing making rough sketches. Dior himself grabbed the observer and turned him over to authorities, who took his passport away—the man was an Italian—and turned him loose. He made his way back across to Italy on foot and has never been in Paris since.

But most of the pirates are too smart to be spotted so easily. There is big money in the racket —some say it runs to millions of dollars annually—and it pays to be careful.

Ways and means to stop the piratical practice are constantly discussed in Paris. Some people advocate barring reporters, photographers and fashion artists from the two big yearly showings. Others say the models should be run through at a swifter pace, so the observers can't havet ime to absorb all the details. But this has been tried without too much luck.

The ultimate solution most designers feel, is some method of copyrighting or registering designs. They think that they should be protected from plagiarists as much as a songwriter or an inventor.

Meanwhile, Parisian designers are suffering. Private buyers don't attend showings in the numbers they once did, because they have no protection that the original they buy won't show up as a $7.98 model two weeks after they spend $250 or more for it. Overseas buyers don't come, because they'll see the same models at home in a short time—and cheaper.

So the Parisian couturiers worry and some go out of business. Those who are left are just hoping for something to come along, something that will make the fashion pirates walk the plank.

F/C Alan Moyles of the RCAF spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Moyles, George St. He was on his way back to Centralia, Ontario after spending the past three weeks in Trenton where he was a member of the Royal Guard which was inspected Friday afternoon by the Royal Couple.

Bright New York Ensemble Fascinates Paris Expert

By DOROTHY WADDINGTON

NEW YORK, — (Reuters) — New York women turn the streets of their city into a blaze of color which makes Paris look almost like a monochrome by comparison.

But for all her gay use of the rainbow, Miss New York does not achieve as much individuality as Miss Paris does against a background that is basically black.

There is a lot to be said for both sides.

Certainly, arriving in New York after years in Paris, I was impressed by the American woman's extensive and varied use of color in her ensembles, and I felt almost drab in Paris black and white. This gay "painter's palette" look I find as American as the chic look in French.

The girls strolling down Fifth Avenue are one of this city's most striking attributes, and for beauty en masse, outrival anything that Paris has to offer. Their well-cut suits are highlighted with brilliant yellows, oranges or greens. Startling red and vivid green accessories accompany navy and black introducing a gay note to the busy streets.

Don't Need Make-Up

These healthy girls have little need for make-up, and most seem sensible enough to leave their sun-kissed complexions with only a dash of powder and a touch of lipstick.

The Parisienne always maintains her chic. Heavy make-up is an essential part of her grooming. Even at 9 a.m. with her eternal fishnet market bag, a French woman is completely made up.

Her hair is always impeccable as everyone, from "Chateau Madames" to secretaries, pay a weekly visit to the "coiffeur." However they never obtain the glossy sheen and soft natural curl so current in this country.

For Long Service

The Parisian wears black, undoubtedly due to the fact that her clothes are planned for many years' service. New accessories will be added every season, but they will consist of a white collar, gold pin or a new way of knotting a long rope of pearls.

The American college girl has available to her a group of clothes that a Parisienne could never find, even in her favorite specialty shop.

Miss America is offered tweed skirts built over a crinoline, adding femininity to tailored fabric. Practical corduroy is more exciting than ever when interpreted in prints and checks and used even for dance frocks.

The girl in this country gives a smart touch to her ensemble with a scarf knotted at the neckline, twin pins at the waist or on the shoulder. But I don't like the way

Luncheon Menu For Princess

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP).—Following is the menu for the private luncheon tendered Princess Elizabeth Saturday by Mrs. Ray Lawson, wife of Ontario's lieutenant-governor:

Sherry cocktail and hors d'oeuvres.

Chicken salad and lettuce cup with almonds and pineapple rings.

Tomato aspic jelly with cottage cheese and pepper circles.

Stuffed dates and pickled pears.

Buttered rolls.

Petite fours and marzipan.

Ice cream frozen in shapes of strawberries and pears on a leaf, colored suitably.

Coffee.

10 of them will wear an identical veil in an identical way.

Combination Good

One of the best features of fashion here is the combination of French and American designing. Often, in Paris, I have admired a little suit worn by a mannequin strutting through Dior's salon—while I wondered how I could wear it. Here, I find an interpretation which retains all the excitement of the original but can go anywhere.

American designers pick up a jutting Fath pocket, a sloping Lanvin or a Desses apron and create a completely new fashion that seems ideally suited to the 1951 way of living.

The best lesson which Americans can learn from the French woman is probably her truly individual way of dressing. Income bracket has nothing to do with her constant search to express her own personality and allure. A good part of her life is devoted to research on her wardrobe, and even if she can afford a Dior model she will modify it to suit her personal style.

Former Bethany Girl Marries

An autumn wedding of local interest was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Padgham, Oil Springs, Ont., formerly of Bethany, on Saturday, when their only daughter, Nancy Catherine became the bride of George H. Byers, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Byers. The Rev. E. S. Wells of Christ's Anglican Church, Petrolia, officiated at the double ring ceremony, before a lovely setting of tall white candelabra and large baskets of gold and bronze chrysanthemums.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was attractive in a lovely fall imported suit of grey English wool with a white feathered hat and carried a white prayer book, topped with a mauve orchid and white streamers knotted with stephanotis.

Mrs. Jack Balls of Detroit was matron of honor and wore a dress of orange velour and matching accessories. Her corsage was orange delight roses and bronze 'mums.

Mr. Jack Balls of Detroit was groomsman for his brother-in-law.

During the signing of the register Miss Doris Thomas rendered a selection of music "Memories."

For the reception the bride's mother wore a dress of navy lace and her corsage was red roses and white 'mums. The groom's mother wore slate grey crepe and lace and her corsage was red roses and white 'mums.

Assisting in serving the luncheon were Misses Harriet Miller and Barbara Wagner of Oil Springs and Rosalie Gervais of Toronto, a cousin of the bride.

Following the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, NY. They will live in Oil Springs.

Marie Bradamore Wed Oshawa Man

A double ring wedding ceremony in St. Margaret Mary's Church, Coboconk, was of Marie Bradamore, formerly of Peterborough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bradamore, Coboconk, to Mr. John Melnychuk of Oshawa. The Rev. L. Cleary performed the ceremony and the music was by Mr. D. A. Morel.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white Chantilly lace and net and she wore a veil of embroidered net caught in a halo with tiny white roses. Her bouquet was a cascade of red roses.

Miss Adeline Bradamore was maid of honor and Misses Edna and Bernice Bradamore bridesmaids, all sisters of the bride. The former wore yellow nylon net over taffeta with matching mittens and the latter were in nile green and mauve taffeta with matching mittens. They wore bandeaux of flowers to match their bouquets of mauve, bronze and yellow 'mums.

Groomsman was Mr. A. Zyerewaty and the ushers were A. Sajar and Maurice Bradamore, brother of the bride.

A reception was held in the United Church hall, with the bride's mother and the groom's aunt, Mrs. A. Sajar receiving.

Afterward the couple left for Ottawa, the bride travelling in a gold suit and topcoat with dark brown accessories and corsage of bronze 'mums.

They will live at 78 Wilson Rd., S., Oshawa.

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"Joe insists on being courteous without losing any time!"

DOROTHY DIX

Wife's Unfounded Jealousy Is Wrecking Her Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married for two years and have two children. My husband wants a divorce. He admits I'm a good cook, housekeeper and mother, but says my nagging about his work is more than he can stand. I believe he likes a girl he has met outside the city but he hasn't admitted it so far. He says he isn't interested in me any more, and wants to take our older child. I do love him very much so it would be hard to do as he wishes.

Dorothy Dix

Do you think I should try to find out who the girl is? My husband is away from home quite a bit owing to his type of work.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You sure hit the jackpot, Helen, when it comes to developing the very faults that take the straightest line to a marital break-up. No marriage could stand up under the onslaught of a wife who was not only a nagger but a first-class detective at ferreting out things that never happened. Your husband must be guiltless of an interest in someone else; otherwise he'd take malicious delight in confirming your suspicions.

Mend Your Ways

Whether you have tried him too far to salvage anything from the wreck, I cannot tell, but I do urge you to make every effort to amend your ways and make an honest attempt to reorganize your life and your marriage. Yours is not the only husband who must travel for a living. A man on the road is much more interested in getting back to his family than he is in falling for other women. It isn't difficult to replace jealousy with faith, and the reward is a happy home. Stop trying your husband's patience with this endless questioning about the girls he meets at work. Face your position in the situation squarely. It won't be flattering, I assure you, but it might wake you up to the despicalbe traits you are exhibiting and the necessity for a quick and complete turnabout.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A number of years ago I met and date a young man. After all these years, I find that he is unmarried and working in a neighboring city. I frequently drive through this city. Would there be anything wrong in my trying to see him?

J. W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There would certainly be nothing wrong in contacting an old friend, but arranging the meeting with finesse may prove difficult. If his birthday, or some other personal celebration, happens to be in the convenient future, you might telephone to congratulate him. An informal note conveying the information that you are often in his neighborhood and would like to see him might also do the trick. In any event, don't expect too much of the meeting. Folks change with the years you know, and you might be disappointed in your erstwhile beau.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband, to whom I have been married a year, is very quick tempered. When he is in a good humor he is very good but when he is angry he beats me. I'm about fed up.

JEAN

ANSWER: You should be fed up! Any woman who permits a man to beat her belongs back in the dark ages where such things were a matter of course. Your husband isn't just "quick tempered." He's a selfish, spoiled, brutal man who should himself be given a good beating. When he next gives one of these exhibitions of childish temperament, walk out of the house for a few hours. Let him cool off. He'll soon come to his sense and when he finds himself without an audience, the temper display will pass.

Failed To Stay At Accident Man Fined $50

LINDSAY, Oct. 15.—James Collins, 842 Lock St., Peterborough, was fined $50 and ordered to pay $50 costs in Lindsay court Friday for failing to remain at the scene of an accident. His driver's license was suspended for six months. A charge of drunk driving was dismissed.

Clifford Love, Port Perry, testified that he was driving east on Kent St. on Sept. 30 when a car pulled out to pass him and scraped the side of his car along the left side. Damage was repaired at a cost of $49.75.

He said that he followed the car at speeds of 60 mph before he stopped it at the corner of William and Glenelg Sts. When stopped the accused was sitting behind the wheel and seemed to be ignorant of the fact that he had collided with another car.

Love reported that he left Collins parked there and went to call the police. When the police arrived the accused was gone.

Drove Off

His wife testified that she and another occupant of her car had stayed with Collins while her husband went for the police. She claimed that while she was there the accused kept asking why he was being detained, and finally drove off after the occupant of the car, a Lindsay woman, had started for home.

Constable Hunter testified that the name of the owner of the car, a Lindsay woman, was learned soon after.

He went to the owner's home and found Collins there and the car in the garage. He inspected the car and found blue paint on the right side which matched the damaged car.

Alcohol Smell

Constable Hunter reported that the accused smelled strongly of alcohol and was unsteady on his feet.

Collins took the stand and told the court that he did not recall the collision nor ever having seen the first witness. He claimed that the only liquor he had had to drink that day were "three shots" after he arrived home.

Magistrate E. A. Gee dismissed the drunk driving charge and fined Collins $50 and costs of $50. His driver's license was suspended for six months.

Elizabeth Makes Windsor Speech

WINDSOR, Oct. 15 (CP)—Text of address by Princess Elizabeth to the children of Windsor in Jackson Park today:

Mr. Mayor and children of Windsor:

I think that you all know that another Windsor far away from here is my home. I spent many happy years of my childhood at Windsor on the River Thames in England, and so it gives me especial pleasure to be able to speak to you children whose homes are here in Windsor on the banks of another fine river.

These two Windsors are far apart, but they are close in spirit and understanding. And this friendship is more than just a matter of words. A few years ago the River Thames overflowed its banks and many families in Windsor were flooded from their homes and lost their possessions. Their kinsmen in your Windsor in Ontario at once came to their aid and sent clothes and money to help them rebuild their lives. The Windsor in England that is my home will always remember that act of generosity and friendship.

The Mayor has told me that you are going to be given a holiday and Tuesday when we are many miles away, we will think of you enjoying it. We give you now our best wishes for your happiness today and always in this great country of Canada.

Detroit Press Gives Tour Top Billing

WINDSOR, Oct. 15. (CP) — Newspapers in nearby Detroit, Mich., have been giving the Royal tour story smash play.

The arrival of Princess Elizabeth and Duke of Edinburgh in Windsor was the lead story in all Detroit papers today, getting big page-one headlines and with stories and pictures spread through several inside pages.

The Detroit Times ran a front-page editorial welcoming the couple and saying:

"We of the United States like nice people. By every standard of the new world, the Princess and the Duke are nice people.

"In decorum, graciousness and the love of fellow man, the British Royal Family has earned the admiration of the world. Their Royal Highnesses of England have raised themselves to new dignity through the strength of their individual personalities."

1,400 Candidates File Papers In UK

LONDON, Oct. 15 (CP).—Today was nomination day for the Oct. 25 general election and four Conservative supporters clinched House of Commons seats without a contest.

About 1,400 candidates filed nomination papers before the deadline. Exact figures on the number of candidates are not expected before late tonight.

The candidates who received acclamations are four Ulster Unionists representing districts in Northern Ireland; two were unopposed in the 1950 election and the other two won by top-heavy majorities. In parliament the Ulster Unionists are allied with the Conservatives.

Except for these four, there will be contests for each of the 625 seats. At dissolution of the last House, the Labor government held 313 seats against 310 for all other parties. Conservatives held 297. There were two vacancies.

Three-way Contest

Winston Churchill expected a three-way contest in his Woodford district with Communist J. R. Campbell and Labor supporter W. A. Archer. At the last minunte a surprise starter, 53-year-old Alexander Hancock, filed as an Independent.

Prime Minister Attlee's nomination for suburban Walthamstow was handed in only 90 minutes before the deadline. He is opposed by Conservative E. D. L. Du Cann.

It was certain that the record field of 1,868 candidates for the 1950 general election would not be approached.

Main reason was a sharp curtailment in the number of Liberal and Communist party candidates this time. Both these parties suffered heavy losses in deposit money last year. Each candidate must put up £150 for the privilege of running. If he fails to poll one-eighth of the votes cast, he loses his deposit.

Plan To Use Surplus Cut National Debt

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 — (CP). — The government is planning to use part of its big surplus to reduce the national debt within the next few weeks, finance officials disclosed today.

The net debt, as estimated by Finance Minister Abbott last March, stood at about $11,400,000,000. The current surplus for the first five months of the 1951-1952 fiscal year is about $500,000,000.

The government plans to apply some of that $500,000,000 against a $500,000,000 bond debt that becomes due November 1.

It appeared likely that at least $250,000,000 or more would be used out of the Treasury to pay the 148 bond issue.

A new issue may be floated to pay off the other part.

Percy Crummey First In New Police Court

Looking quite dapper in a brown checked sports jacket, brown trousers and a colorful brown and yellow tie, Percy Crummey of 565 George St., had the doubtful distinction of being the first to appear before Magistrate W. R. Philp when police court was called to order for the first time in the new City Hall courtroom this morning.

He is a frequent police court visitor.

Crummey pleaded guilty to two charges of being intoxicated in a public place and admitted a prior conviction on the same charge in January of this year.

Magistrate Philp ordered Crummey to pay fines of $50 and $2.50 in costs, or in default, one month on each of the two convictions, the sentences to run consecutively.

The prospect of having to pay fines totalling $105 or spending two months in jail obviously failed to destroy Crummey's sense of humor as he took a good deal of good-natured ribbing from police officers about being the first to appear in the new court room.

Still undecided whether to pay the fine or sit it out behind bars, Crummey is making up his mind in the county jail.

Among First Built Shop To Be Torn Down

The 60-year-old carpenter shop at CGE has become a victim of the times. The expansion program now under way requires the ground on which the carpenter and pattern shop stands.

Planned and built as a power station to service the entire plant, the shop was one of the original buildings erected in 1891-92.

The boilers and electrical machines were installed in 1891 for plant service in a temporary building and the power station was built around this.

When the boom for the carpenter and patternmakers trade was at its height, the power station was changed over.

Thrifty Pupils

TAURANGA, NZ (CP). — The 140 pupils of the Kotukuku school here saved $3,300 in a thrift campaign in less than three years. The local storekeeper played a big part, refusing to sell candies or other articles to the pupils on "banking" days.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS —By Merrill Blosser

Elizabeth Shows Real Informality

VINELAND, Oct. 15 — (CP)— Where was Prince Philip when the Royal train made an unexpected stop here Sunday?

To a surprised group of 25 Vinelanders, gathered beside the railway tracks to wave the train on its way, Princess Elizabeth explained:

"Philip has gone to the front. He wants to drive the train to Hamilton.

"We haven't a chance to do these things at home."

The Princess' comment was the most informal and spontaneous since she and the Duke arrived in Canada last Monday. She removed her hat and gloves after Sunday morning's official stops on the way up through the Niagara Peninsula and, leaning over the observation car platform, looked completely relaxed and friendly as the small group gathered around her.

The Duke drove the locomotive 14 miles from Vineland to Winona en route to Hamilton. The train stopped just west of here to permit him to move forward to the engine cab.

Elizabeth during the brief stop showed an interest in the district's farming activities. The October sun was warm and she remarked of the climate:

"It's milder than England, and so much warmer than up north."

Jungle Queen Waged Bow-and-Arrow War

BOMBAY, Oct. 15 (AP)—Police today arrested a Communist jungle queen who has been wanted for five years for waging a bow-and-arrow war against the state.

She is Godavaribai Parulekar, nicknamed "God Ran" (Queen Goda), who allegedly has been organizing a new Red uprising among timber-cutting tribesmen in the jungles outside Bombay.

The Queen was trapped in a suburban house with seven other Reds and a cart-load of terrorist literature.

See Price War Fizzling Out

HAMILTON, Oct. 15 —(CP)— Hamilton's price war appeared today to be fizzling out. Prices were back to normal at the department store which fired the first shot.

No unusual buyers' rush accompanied the brief flurry of price cutting on nationally-advertised goods. Merchants were surprised at the lack of response after they followed the lead Thursday of the Right House department store which advertised sharply-cut prices on some lines.

Mixmasters, which the Right House cut to $59.95 on Thursday, were back to $73.95 today. Several store managers said today they would halt the sale as soon as other stores quit. Today a spokesman for the T. Eaton Company said he believed the situation has settled down.

Keener Bond, president of Right House, said Saturday most of the featured items; scheduled to sell lower while present stock lasted, had been sold.

He said he was tying in his advertising with the government's announced intention to bring down legislation forbidding manufacturers from fixing retail prices for their products. Some of the cuts at other stores ran as much as $28 on Mixmasters.

The price cuts were mostly on electrical appliances.

Churchill Plans To Stump For Liberal

LONDON, Oct. 15 — (AP) — Winston Churchill, doughty Conservatice leader, is going to stump Tuesday for a Liberal candidate in the Oct. 25 general election.

Oldtimers say it's unique in the history of British politics.

Churchill, once a Liberal himself, will speak at Huddersfield in support of his old friend, Lady Violet Bonham Carter, Liberal candidate for parliament in the Colne Valley constituency.

The Consevatives haven't put up a candidate for the Colne Velley seat. It will be a straight fight between Lady Violet and W. Glenvil Hall, the Labor Party incumbent.

Hall polled 24,910 votes in the last general election 20 months ago. But the combined total vote of the Conservatives and Liberal opponents was slightly higher—25,480.

Colne Valley is one of several districts where the Conservatives have decided to stand aside and let the Liberals fight their battle to unseat Labor. But it is the only one so far in which a Conservative party leader will go to bat for a rival party.

The Liberals held only nine seats in the last 625-seat House of Commons.

Secret Sympathy

Some observers say Churchill has a secret sympathy for the sad condition into which the Liberal Party has fallen and would like to help revitalize it as a "third force" in British politics. Others say he is trying to woo the Liberals into the Conservtive fold.

All Liberals aren't happy about Churchill extending a helping hand to Lady Violet. There are many in the party who are more strongly opposed to Conservatism than to Socialism.

Liberal Party headquarters, when it learned of Winnie's plan, took a cautious attitude.

A statement issued by the party said:

"This is a personal gesture on the part of the leader of the Conservative Party and it should be borne in mind that Lady Violet is and will remain a free independent Liberal without commitments to any other party."

Lady Violet, 64, is a tart-tongued veteran of Britain's political wars. She is a former president of the Liberal Party and member of the board of governors of the BBC.

She once labelled Prime Minister Attlee a "political refrigerator" with a "genius for lowering the temperature of any situation."

Filled 800 Notebooks At Court Trials

CALGARY —(CP)—George A. Morrison, a man who has written 32,000,000 words in the past 38 years, has retired from the staff of official court reporters at the Calgary court house.

During his long term of service he has been the silent but busy recorder of every word spoken during more than a thousand trials. He has fileld about 800 large note books with his neat shorthand notes and without hesitation can refer to his records of 30 years ago and read them as easily as if they were typed.

These notes sometimes tell a grim story of drama and pathos, and sometimes dreary arguments on law.

But as George said on more than one occasion: "It went in at one ear and came out at the point of my pen."

Morrison was born in Toronto where he earned shorthand. By constant practice he increased his speed to 250 words a minute and was able to maintain that speed for long periods.

He started his career as a court reporter in 1913 at the Calgary city police court. In 1915 he was appointed to the staff of the official court reporters by the Alberta government.

Good Photography depends on NICKEL

Hundreds of everyday uses for Nickel have been developed by the Nickel industry through a planned program of research. Today a large share of Canada's Nickel production is being diverted from peacetime uses into channels for preparedness. So the Nickel mine facilities, greatly expanded over the past decade, are again being operated at peak capacity. There is actually more Nickel now being delivered by Canada to the free world than in any peacetime year.

In the drums used in drying photographic film, nickel alloys are used to give long wear and resistance to chemical corrosion.

In the tanks, trays and washers used in processing black and white or color film, nickel alloys give high resistance to corrosion by developing and fixing solutions.

Chairs Not Beds Seen Best For Many Heart Patients

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(AP)—Chairs, not beds, for many heart failure patients are advocated by Dr. Samuel A. Levine, of Harvard Medical School.

Strict bed rest is the usual treatment for acute coronary thrombosis and many types of congestive heart failure. But bed rest can actually be bad for these patients, he writes in the American Heart Journal.

The patients are helped more, sometimes amazingly, by staying in chairs with their feet down for as much of the day as possible, he said.

Heart patients often have trouble breathing at night, and get relief by sitting or standing up.

The reason, he explains, is that the right side of the heart is putting more blood into the lungs than the left side is pumping out to the rest of the body. Blood is trapped in the lungs, and fluid can leak into the air sacs. Constriction of valves, work, excitement, or other things may be causes for the right side to be working harder.

Cuts Down Flow

Standing or sitting up cuts down the flow of blood coming back to the right ventricle, and cuts down the amount it sends to the lungs.

The heart needs rest in these heart conditions, but doctors should think of it as two organs, the right and left ventricles, whose work should be in balance, Dr. Levine said. Bed rest may increase the work of the right ventricle in certain forms of heart disease.

For congestive heart failure, caused by scars on the heart muscle, Dr. Levine advises putting patients in a comfortable bed chair for part or all of the day. Blocking up the head of their beds at night helps gravity keep fluids in the lower part of their bodies.

Chair rest also has brought amazing improvement in people with coronary thrombosis, when a clot blocks the main artery to the heart.

The only exception is if the patients are in shock, or unconscious. Sitting them up then would further cut down the flow of blood to the brain, and would be bad.

The chair treatment goes on for three or four weeks, then patients can begin taking steps and increasing activities gradually.

Declares Princess Credit To Family

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (CP) — The New York Times correspondent covering the Royal tour of Canada Saturday wired his newspaper that Canadians have found Princess Elizabeth "appealingly pretty" and a credit to the Royal Family.

In a brief message, The Times correspondent wrote:

"All Canadians have found Elizabeth appealing pretty and gently dignified, the correct combination both for the symbol of the crown and the prototype of a young wife and mother . . . Philip is the perfect foil for her.

Most Canadians are hypnotized by the long publicity buildup for her tour and the coverage of the Canadian press—which pictures the Royal visit as the public date with history and glamor. The feeling in the Dominion can be summed up this way: The empire's darling baby has grown up to be a credit to the whole family."

Stork Delays Tour At Toronto University

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP)—It's a girl so one of her names will be Elizabeth.

And when Sandra Elizabeth Gail Hutchison grows up she will be able to boast that her imminent arrival held up the Royal tour of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Royal motor procession, en route to Hart House at the University of Toronto, was stopped briefly by police Saturday to permit passage of an automobile carrying Mrs. William Hutchison on a rush trip to hospital.

At the time, Mr. Hutchison said that if it were a boy he would call the baby Philip, and a girl would be called Elizabeth.

Expect Britain To Introduce Job Controls

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LNDON, Oct. 15—(AP)—Whoever wins the Oct. 25 general election, one of the first acts of the new government may be a swipe at the liberty of the working man.

There is growing speculation that critical manpower shortages are forcing Britain to some form of modified state direction of labor.

Both Labor and Conservatives have been opposed to the government arming itself with wartime power to draft labor where it is needed most.

But the lack of men on the job in such vital services as coal mines, railways and aircraft factories is threatening the whole of Britain's rearmament effort. That's why the new government, despite party viewpoints, is expected to try to force workers out of comfortable chairs into the mines and essential war plants.

The working population is bigger today than ever before—23,324,000 out of some 50,000,000 Britons.

Drifting Away

There are plenty of anomalies in the way British workers are distributed. In the last three years employment in candy and confectionary factories rose from 58,500 to more than 80,000; workers in distributive trade increased by 120,000. At the same time employees have been drifting away from industries and public services vital to the existence of the country.

The whole lift of Britain depends upon coal and railway transport. When Sir Hubert Houldsworth, chairman of the National Coal Board, said recently the labor situation in the mines is "most disturbing," he wasn't exagegrating. There now are fewer than 700,000 men working in the pits, and 1-10th of that total moves out yearly. Only half that wastage is due to old age or incapacity—the rest find more comfortable jobs.

To replace the loss of 70,000 men, the mines are getting only 10,000 to 15,000 newcomers annually.

The nationalized railways are equally hard-hit. They need 25,000 more men, mainly shunters and footplate stokers and engineers. Few youngsters are taking on these jobs.

Frenchmen Pour Millions Into Weekly State Lottery

By ERNEST SANDFORD

PARIS, Oct. 15 — (Rueters) — Frenchmen traditionally use every strategy to avoid paying taxes. Yet they eagerly give money to the state voluntarily and anonymously through legal lotteries.

The public pours millions of francs into the national lottery every week.

Government and citizens alike are short of money. Prices and taxes are rising. But the record total of 5,000,000 people a week, or 250,000,000 people a year, buy tickets in the national lottery.

Held once a week, the lottery at present is taking a regular average of 500,000,000 francs (about $1,500,000) from the sale of tickets, mostly in one-tenth shares costing 100 francs (about 25 cents).

Only about 200,000,000 francs of the weekly receipts go back to the public in prizes. The rest is profit for the state totalling between 8,000,000,000 and 15,000,000,000 francs annually.

Names of winners are not published, only the winning numbers.

Winners themselves generally reveal their identities. But often a "big coup" is won be a number whose owner never says a word and the public suspects that the winner is the state itself.

A specified number of tickets are issued for each lottery though generally they are not all sold. If an unsold ticket wins a prize, the prize money reverts to the state.

The lottery has its opponents. But the unanswerable argument of lottery addicts is that if the lottery were stopped, the money would have to be found by further taxation.

When the lottery was first nationalized, it caused a famous divorce case. A man bought a 100-franc ticket. His wife scolded him for wasting money and sold the ticket to a neighbor for 150 francs. It won 50,000 francs and the husband walked out of the house never to return.

SMITH MOVED FAST IN LIFE'S SUCCESS . . .

but he STOOD STILL in Security for his family!

When he first married he took out $4,000 Life Insurance —but then Smith put the Policy safely in the vault and forgot it. He became very busy getting on in life.

—Then he bought a house with a heavy mortgage on it;

—Then the children came along, entirely dependent upon him;

—Then he got several promotions and his salary increased (and his standards of living, too! He was a good spender.)

NOTE:—He still had $4,000 of life Insurance!

AND THEN HE DIED . . .

leaving $4,000 Cash Insurance to cover funeral expenses — mortgage — children's upbringing — widow's standard of living—and—and—

HOW FAR DID THE $4000 GO?

Together with a Dominion Life Representative, Smith could have planned a progressive "PROGRAM" of Life Insurance which would have provided immediate cash for the expense of his dying . . . lifted the mortgage . . . provided a guaranteed monthly income for his widow, in the critical period of bringing up the children to an age of self-support . . . perhaps then an educational fund . . . and after that an Annuity to support his widow for life.

A DOMINION LIFE REPRESENTATIVE IS A GOOD MAN TO TALK TO

He is experienced in more than merely "selling" you a Life Insurance Policy. He is trained to break down problems in Financial Security. He can show you how progressive insurance can be worked out by a scientific, mathematically accurate method, with the Dominion Life's Plan for Security. You'll get the utmost from your life insurance, working with a Dominion Life man.

A Dominion Life Representative will show you how the same policies that now protect your family if you die, will provide a Retirement Income for YOU, if you live!

Elizabeth's Plane Flies At 19,000 Ft. Miss Storm

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16. (CP)—Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh reached Winnipeg from Kapuskasing at 12:06 p.m. CST today by RCAF aircraft. The plane encountered headwinds of 60 to 65 miles an hour on the 650-mile journey and soared to 19,000 feet to reach calm air. It was six minutes late reaching Winnipeg. The Princess wore a robin red coat and hat and a short mink jacket as she stepped down at the RCAF station here. Justice Minister Garson, former premier of Manitoba, presented the lieutenant-governor, Hon. R. F. McWilliams, to the Princess and the Duke.

A wind of 35 miles an hour with gusts up to 44 swept the airfield and high clouds scudded across a blue sky periodically, blotting out the sun. The temperature was 39.

Premier Campbell, on behalf of the province of Manitoba, today presented Princess Elizabeth with $5,000 for "worthy charities."

At Manitoba's official luncheon, the premier thanked the Princess for the "warm and generous" way in which the people of the United Kingdom responded when Manitoba was distressed by last year's Red River flood.

In welcoming the Princess and her husband to the western phase of their Canadian tour, the premier briefly reviewed Manitoba's history since it became a province 81 years ago and then extended a greeting on behalf of the assembled Manitoba mayors and reeves, cabinet members and service representatives and their wives.

The luncheon was held in the mural-walled main dining room of the Royal Alexandra Hotel. The oil murals, by Frederick Challener of York Mills, near Toronto, depict buffalo hunts on the prairies and trading at Red river forts.

UN Says Cease-Fire Line Will Advance With Front

TOKYO, Oct. 16. (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said today United Nations' troops will continue to drive northward in Korea—and Allied demands for a cease-fire line will advance with the front. The UN supreme commander conferred later for an hour with Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief Allied truce negotiator, who flew in from Korea.

Presumably Joy gave a full report on attempts to reopen armistice negotiations, which the Communists broke off Aug. 23.

Liaison officers are still jockeying over the extent of neutral areas to be set up around the negotiators. Communists submitted a new proposal Tuesday. The Allies turned it down.

The liaison officers scheduled another meeting for 10 am Wednesday (8 pm EST Tuesday) at Panmunjom, selected as the site for renewing truce talks.

Want More Territory

A release from UN command advance headquarters in Korea said the Reds proposed enlarging the neutral area around Munsan, where the UN truce team has its headquarters. They also proposed creating a three-mile-wide corridor centred on the road linking Munsan and Kaesong, Red truce headquarters and former negotiation site. Panmunjom is on this road.

A UN statement released at Munsan said this "would increase the area in which violations could occur to about 175 square miles."

The statement said the Allies prefer cutting the area to "less than 20 square miles."

Some $5,000 was found on the captured man.

Woman Observes Her 112th Birthday

NORTH BAY, Oct. 16 (CP) — Mrs. Isabella Sharrow is an old woman—probably Canada's oldest.

A wheel-chair patient in St. Joseph's Hospital here since she suffered a broken hip in 1947, Mrs. Sharrow today celebrated her 112th birthday.

She was born Oct. 16, 1839, in Renfrew. The eldest in a family of 14 children, she helped clear land and carve a home in the wilderness. When she married, she lived in Trout Mills for 45 years, until coming here 20 years ago after the death of her husband.

Plane Hits Mountain 17 Aboard Killed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Oct. 16 — (Reuters). — Seventeen persons were killed when a South African Airways DC-3 burned after crashing into 7,500-foot Ingeli mountain, 90 miles south of Durban, Natal.

The plane hit the mountain Monday night on a cross-country flight from Port Elizabeth, Cape Province, to Durban.

Two children were among the 17 persons, including a crew of four, killed.

Court Convicts Davis Of Spying

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Oct. 16 (AP).—A Swiss federal court today convicted Charles E. Davis of political espionage in connection with charges that he furnished information to Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) and United States agents. Davis was sentenced to eight months in jail and ordered expelled from Switzerland.

Actually Davis, an American Negro, won't have to spend any more time in jail. He had been held for 11 months during the investigation of charges against him. This eliminated any further prison term.

He probably will be sent to the United States as soon as arrangements can be made.

City Given Top Rating On New Municipal Building

"Nothing like it in Canada, and few in Europe" was the compliment paid to Peterborough by Frank Collins, Montreal, CPR industrial commissioner in eastern Canada, an early visitor to the city hall Monday.

Mr. Collins did not wait for an official opening. He and Alex Smith, Toronto, also of the Canadian Pacific Railway's industrial department, made a special trip to see the building in its present completion of all but some finishing touches.

Mr. Collins told City Clerk Outram that the city hall adds another unit to the impressive public buildings that are now within the boast of Peterborough.

He said that representatives of industries would notice this new evidence of sound community progress. The new city hall fitted naturally into the industrial and commercial background of Peterborough with its splendid services for the public in hospitals, schools, modern system of sewage disposal, paved roads and so on.

Mr. Collins said that he could not compare the city hall with the far larger and splendid building in Vancouver, but with an exception or two of that municipal class in population and wealth Peterborough deserved top rating for its new civic administration offices.

RCAF Plane Reports SOS Signal

US Plane Missing With 11 Men Over Atlantic Ocean

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass., Oct. 16. (AP)—An RCAF search plane today heard an SOS that might have come from a big United States stratofreighter, missing on a flight from the Azores with 11 men.

Westover Air Force Base said an RCAF Lancaster "intercepted an SOS at 11:20 a.m. EST while searching in a position about 115 miles southeast of Nova Scotia."

The Westover spokesman said no further details were available on the SOS signal, the second distress call picked up since the giant four-engined craft disappeared on a flight from Lagos Air Force Base, Azores, to Westover.

Thirteen RCAF planes from Greenwood, NS, took of to join in the search. Seven left at dawn, and the other six later.

Through the night some 50 planes had roamed the skies along a great circle route from Westover air force base near Boston, listening for any repetition of a faint SOS heard Monday and looking for any peril light from the sea.

The lost craft a C-97 Boeing military transport, left Lages Air Force station in the Azores—Portuguese islands in the east Atlantic—at 3:45 a.m. EST Monday. It headed for Westover field, was carrying 3½ tons of mail and four tons of other cargo.

It was last heard from definitely at 4:28 a.m., less than an hour after it was airborne. Its radio report indicated it was flying through turbulent air.

Weak Signal

At 2:52 p.m. EST, Kindley Air Force Base at Bermuda picked a weak radio mumble from the air. Executives at Westover called it an SOS from the big stratofreighter, indicating it had been ditched in the sea.

At 6:30 p.m. EST, Westover announced the transport must be presumed down because it carried enough gas to keep it aloft only until 6:20 p.m.

Westover said the search planes launched Monday were from bases as far apart as the Azores, Labrador, Selfridge Field, Mich., and Maxwell Field, Ala. Other planes went out from Westover, Bermuda, Newfoundland, Salem, Mass., and Elizabeth, NC. Several coast guard surface craft also joined the hunt.

Taft Candidate For President

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Senator Robert Taft (Rep. O.) announced today he is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

"I am going to run because I believe I can conduct the only kind of a campaign which will elect a Republican to office," the Senator told a press conference.

A statement said he would enter the Wisconsin presidential primary and also accept the bid of Ohio delegates to the nominating convention next year.

Ready to take issue with Taft supporters on that point were the backers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who so far has kept publicly silent on whether he will seek the Republican nomination next year.

No other candidate of either major party has thrown his hat in the 1952 presidential ring. The Democrats are expected to remain silent until President Truman makes known his decision.

Napanee Grandstand Destroyed By Fire

NAPANEE, Oct. (CP) — The covered grandstand at the Napanee fair grounds racetrack was destroyed by fire early today. The frame structure, overlooking one of the best half-mile tracks in Ontario, had a capacity of 500 spectators.

Firemen believed a transient sleeping in one of the horse stalls might have set off the blaze by dropping a burning match. The roof of the structure fell in as the fire trucks arrived.

The grandstand was built 75 years ago and remodelled in 1924.

PAKISTANI PRIME MINISTER Liaquat Ali Khan, died tonight from a gunman's bullets. He was shot when he began addressing a meeting.

US Pilots Down 9 Red Jets, Damage 5 Others

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Oct. 16 (AP)—United States jet pilots shot down nine Communist jets and damaged five others today in two roaring air battles.

The US Fifth Air Force said one Sabre was damaged.

All but one of the Reds' MIG-15s were hit in history's deadliest jet battle. It erupted late in the day between 33 US jets and more than 100 MIGS. The battle ranged from six miles in the sky down to tree-top level.

The dog-fighting jets raced over the 500 square miles of northwest Korea that form MIG-alley.

It was all over in 15 minutes.

Veteran American jet pilots said it was the roughest fight they've had.

On the ground Allied infantrymen smashed forward on three fronts.

Americans and South Koreans drove nearly a mile closer to Kumsong in Central Korea in their almost uninterrupted advance along a 22-mile front.

The Allies were within five miles of the Communist stronghold after a six-mile advance in less than four days.

Fierce Resistance

On the western front, US 1st Cavalry Division troops smashed into fiercely resisting Chinese, dug into deep bunkers on a hill line northwest of Yonchon. They were locked in close battle at midday.

South Koreans captured another hill on the rugged eastern front.

The day's air battles started when an American Sabre jet pilot shot down a Red jet in a brief battle in Mig Alley over northwest Korea between 17 Sables and 12 MIG-15s. Eleven B-29 Superforts heavily bombed rail lines in the same area, after raining air-busting bombs on Red front-line troops in night attacks.

Tuesday advances on the central front gave the US 24th Division control of most of the higher hills on the approaches to Kumsong.

Only comparatively low and rolling hills lie between thm and the Red assembly point. The town was within easy range of American artillery.

Special Plastic Top For Princess' Car

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16 — (CP) — A transparent plastic top fitted to one of the Royal cars will probably protect Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh from Winnipeg's inclement weather today.

The top was especially designed by the De Havilland Aircraft Company so both the Royal couple and spectators could easily exchange greetings. Made of rigid lucite, it affords all-round visibility and protection from the weather.

The top was hurriedly designed to solve a problem raised in other cities on the Royal itinerary. Many persons complained they couldn't see the Princess and the Duke when they rode in an enclosed car.

De Havilland engineers started construction of the top Saturday. It was flown in from Toronto last night and will be ready for use today.

Official forecast for today indicates rain changing to snow and a temperature of around 35 degrees.

Assassin Kills Premier Of Pakistan

Prime Minister Shot At Big Rally On Start of Speech

NEW DELHI, India, Oct. 16. (AP)—Pakistan's Prime Minister and guiding light, Liaquat Ali Khan, was assassinated tonight by a man supporting the idea of a "holy war" against India.

Liaquat, 56, was shot twice and died in hospital. He was attacked as he rose to speak to a Moslem crowd at Rawalpindi, in the Punjab near the troubled State of Kashmir—the crux of a long-standing dispute between Pakistan and India.

The Pakistan office in London said the incensed crowd attacked the assassin "and tore him to pieces on the spot."

The spokesman said the killer, named Khaksaw, evidently belonged to an extreme right-wing sect of the Moslem religion. This group has been active in the Punjab region, and has expressed its dissatisfaction with "Liaquat's policy of moderation" toward India and other problems, the Pakistan official said.

The sect is led by a man named Alama Mashriqi and it favors "Jehad," or holy war, against India on the Kashmir issue.

Operation Fails

Liaquat was rushed to hospital where an operation was performed, but it failed to save him. The bullets struck him in the chest.

His assassin was seized by the crowd, the revolver still smoking in his hand. He was killed immediately.

An emergency session of the Pakistani Cabinet was summoned immediately in Karachi, the capital.

Jury Returns True Bill

PEMBROKE, Oct. 16 (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court grand jury today returned a true bill against Lloyd Robert Wyse, 35-year-old Golden Lake plumber, on a charge of murder.

Wyse faces trial for the slaying of Lloyd Barber of Killaloe, 51-year-old taxi driver and village councillor. His body, stabbed 13 times, was found in the bathroom of his home April 13.

Called to answer the indictment charge, Wyse replied "not guilty."

The crown prosecutor, reviewing the evidence, said it would be largely circumstantial. He said the jury would be told how Barber's missing car was located in Niagara Falls and of Wyse's financial status.

British Soldiers Operating Trains In Canal Zone Area; Communications With Cairo Restored

CAIRO, Oct. 16. (AP)—British troops were called out at Ismailia today as looting and rioting erupted at several places in the Suez Canal area. With 15 deaths already reported in various clashes, the commanding British general in Egypt announced: "We are not going to be turned out, forced out or knocked out" of the Canal Zone. Britain announced in London its was sending reinforcements. The War Office wouldn't say, however, what troops were being dispatched. Ten Egyptians and two Britons were reported killed in the fighting at Ismalia on the west side of the canal. At Port Said, Egyptian press reports said, five persons were killed and 20 were injured in an eruption of rioting and looting.

Lt.-Gen. Sir George Erskine, commanding British troops in Egypt, told his men that if the Egyptians try to carry out their intention of forcing Britain out of the Suez area, "we shall resist most strongly."

Mounting Excitement

Demonstrations swept Cairo and other areas of Egypt in the mounting public excitement over Egypt's demand that Britain leave the Suez and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

The British troops were called out at Ismailia on the west side of the Suez Canal, where crowds attempted to burn British equipment. Al Balagh said 80 Egyptians and one Briton were wounded in the ensuing fighting.

Post Office Drops Mail By Helicopter

OTTAWA, Oct. 16. (CP)—The Post Office Department has cancelled its proposed experimental helicopter mail delivery service because the aircraft it was to use may be going to the Antarctic with its mother ship, the C. D. Howe.

Negotiations are going on between the Canadian and Australian governments for the loan of Canada's Arctic patrol ship for a proposed expedition into the Antarctic.

Discussions have not been completed but the post office said in view of the uncertainty, it was cancelling its plan to begin an experimental helicopter delivery service in eastern Ontario beginning Nov. 1.

The C. D. Howe, which the Australian government would like to have because of her special construction and ability to make long cruises without refuelling, now is berthed at Quebec City.

Nearly 5,000 Bylaws Pass In Years At Old City Hall

Five thousand bylaws! A month ago it appeared probable that city council reach that total before taking off to its new quarters.

However, the number of these instruments of civic authority dwindled in the last two sessions at Simcoe and Water Streets.

In the new seat of jurisdiction, Ald. T. D. Miller introduced Monday night bylaw No. 4995. Apparently, the legal department of the council just missed by five the round and seeming tremendous number of 5,000. This bylaw was to authorize the sale of debentures in the amount of $100,000 for the Utilities Commission to pay for various works, largely completed, with others in progress or prospect.

Peterborough celebrated last year its municipal centenary. From that fact the average annual sheaf of bylaws has been 50. That included the years when council meetings were regularly one a month. Recently they have been fortnightly, and for a time council was meeting weekly, with greater production of bylaws.

These documents give official warrant to decisions and undertakings, expenditures and otherwise, of the council. No. 4995 was an example of authorizing borrowing of a large sum for the financing of the Utilities Commission extension of their mains and general property.

Two Others

Ald. J. E. Gillespie introduced two other bylaws Monday night. One of them provided for the laying of gravel-mulch top pavement on Lloyd Ave., Ephgrave Boulevard (in the new housing subdivision off Park St. south); Aberdeen Ave., and the west end of Gilmour St.

Another piece of pavement was definied in a second of these works bylaws, — Ford St. from Frank to Chamberlain.

A broad range of local enactments, traffic bylaws are an example, is comprised in those approximately 5,000 that have been accumulating in the records and the vaults of the council during Peterborough's century of municipal incorporation.

Probably many of them have been invalidated by the changes which the years bring to the customs and needs of the citizens. Possibly some of them have been discarded as eventually irrelevant.

The three Monday night received only two readings. They have to get approval of th Ontario Municipal Board, and that approval relates to the expenditure of the people's money. Third reading will follow, when the report from the Board comes back.

Cost Of Living Major Issue In Parliament

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 (CP)—The high cost of living emerged as a major issue for the fall session of parliament Monday as three opposition party leaders joined in asking the government to take steps to combat inflation.

As the Throne-Speech debate unfolded, Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew, CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell and Social Credit Leader Solon Low criticized the government for not taking firmer steps to contain high prices.

Prime Minister St. Laurent repeated the government's belief that the time is not ripe for direct price controls and said it has only one anti-inflationary weapon in its legislative arsenal—a measure to prohibit the fixing of retail prices.

Mr. Drew and Mr. Coldwell followed up their verbal blasts with traditional motions of non-confidence in the government.

The Progressive Conservative motion called for "adequate" steps to "combat inflation and deal effectively with the high cost of living while the CCF thrust urged the imposition of price controls and subsidies.

Mr. Low, prevented by House rules from introducing a motion

UK Wants Learn Square Dance

LONDON, Oct. 16—(CP)—That Royal square dance at Ottawa's Government House seems to have started something.

An orchestra leader telephoned the London offices of the Canadian Press today with this plea:

"Do you know any Canadian who can act as caller at square dances? I've been swamped with requests ever since people saw that picture of Princess Elizabeth dancing in Canada."

The orchestra leader, Frankie Baron, said if he gets the caller he plans to rename his band "The Original Canadian Square-Hoppers."

The BBC said it also is interested in promoting the square dance, Canadian style. A spokesman said the British public always tends to follow a Royal lead.

A picture of a laughing, dirndl-skirted, peasant-bloused Princess taking her check-skirted partner's arm at the dance was published on the front pages of nearly every British newspaper last Friday. A companion photograph showed the Duke of Edinburgh in jeans and check shirt.

UEW Strike Vote Called In GE Plants

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP) — The left-wing United Electrical Workers (Ind.) Monday night called for a strike vote from 50,000 employees in 45 General Electric Company plants.

The union directed that voting be completed by Nov. 5.

A vote in favor of a strike would not necessarily lead to a walkout. But it would put a strong weapon in the hands of negotiators who are seeking a wage increase from G.E.

The union—expelled from the CIO because of alleged Communist leanings—said it has turned down G.E.'s offer of a 2½-percent boost on wages that now average about $1.75 an hour. The UE is asking a 15-cent-an-hour general increase.

Kapuskasing Keeps Royal Visit Neighborly Affair

KAPUSKASING, Oct. 16. (CP)—After a small-town breathing spell from the starchy functions of the big cities, Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip today say goodbye to the east for now and move on to western Canada. Friendly Kapuskasing sends them away by air to Winnipeg, where they begin at noon CST a jaunt that will carry them through the Prairies and British Columbia for the next 12 days. Their take-off was set for 10 a.m. EST after a late afternoon and night spent here with the people of Kapuskasing and nearby communities giving them a warm and neighborly reception and then leaving them time to catch up on the rest they've been finding it hard to get during the first week of their long tour.

The conglomerate 5,000 population of this paper-mill town was bolstered for the big occasion by perhaps another 20,000 persons from the surrounding towns in this Northern Ontario bush country just 100 miles southwest of James Bay.

They yelled just as loudly as any in the east, chanting "We want Elizabeth" as they waited for her to make an appearance on the balcony of her hotel. And they burst police lines for a closer look at the couple.

Get Chance To Rest

But then Kapuskasing, a working-man's town whose mill-foreman Mayor A. M. Stevenson said he realizes the visitors need rest, gave them plenty of time to get to bed early in preparation for the strenuous trip ahead.

The functions, all strictly informal, were cut down to an inspection of Girl Guides, of which the Princess is chief; a visit to the town's paper mill, its sole industry, and a simple reception in the community hall for local officials, in addition to the Royal tourists' brief balcony appearance.

In her short speech from the balcony, Princess Elizabeth had praise for the pioneers of the frontier area who hewed a community out of the rugged bushland and she expressed regrets that she could not visit other frontier towns.

See Paper Mill

On their tour of the paper mill, they saw one of the largest newsprint plants in the country, which turns out paper for several large newspapers in the United States. They spent an hour and 20 minutes in the mill, with the Duke taking a keen interest in the production process.

Princess Elizabeth pronounced the party in the community club "delightful." She was particularly intrigued by bow ties, worn by some of the guests, with pictures of her and the Duke on each wing. She sipped sherry while the Prince sampled a special brandy punch prepared by Tom Stillwell, "Royal bartender" for the occasion.

For the reception, the Princess changed from her travelling suit into a simply-cut slate grey afternoon dress of taffeta. She wore three-quarter length black suede gloves and carried a simple black bag trimmed with gold. A three-strand pearl necklace and a diamond maple leaf pin completed the ensemble.

Interested In Mining

The Princess and the Duke chatted during the reception with Mayor Philip Fay of the gold-mining town of Timmins, 10 miles southeast of here, and asked him about gold-mining operations. They said they were very much interested in gold-mining and wondered why the tour had not brought them to a mining town.

The Rt. Rev. R. J. Renison, Anglican Bishop of Moosonee, presented the Princess with several articles hand-made by Indians of Moosonee, on the south shore of James Bay.

The couple flew here from Windsor, where their visit took on an international flavor when 200,000 Detroiters from across the river joined about as many Canadians in giving them an enthusiastic welcome.

Fifty motorcycle policemen from Detroit supplemented the usual escort of 10 Canadian Mounties and led a procession on a 13-mile drive through Windsor. The Princess appeared more relaxed and seemed to have more fun than on any other day of the trip so far. The Duke, as usual, was in high good humor.

After taking off from Windsor early in the afternoon, they rode high over Lake Huron and the wild bushland to the north in the Canadian government's C-5 luxury plane.

As she stepped from the plane at Kapuskasing, the Princess wore over her suit a fingertip-length coat of a shade described by women reporters as dark mustard. Her hat was of the same material and her accessories were brown. The Duke was in blue civilian clothes.

Envoy Praises News Service

OTTAWA, Oct. 1 6(CP) — M. Hubert Guerin, ambassador of France, today commended The Canadian Press service-in-French to daily papers of that language as "a new sign of the harmonious development of Canadian culture." The service started Sept. 30 on a six-month trial basis.

The ambassador's statement said:

"The initiative taken by The Canadian Press to distribute simultaneously, its news services in English and French is not only an important decision but all the more remarkable in that it is the first service of this kind in the history of the great world news agencies. This bilingual service will greatly facilitate the task of many newspapers in Canada. Its inauguration is a new sign of the harmonious development of Canadian culture. I am sure that it will contribute even more in the future to its enrichment and progress."

State Mourning

Flags will fly at half-mast for three days and state mourning will be observed for 30 days. Liaquat will be given a state funeral in Karachi.

It is not quite four years ago since Mohandas Gandhi, Indian nationalist leader, was shot and killed by a Hindu extremist in New Delhi.

The soft-spoken Liaquat, who has headed the world's largest Moslem state since it came into being in August, 1947, had just risen to address a meeting of the Moslem League here.

The shots were fired before he had uttered two words.

A devout Moslem, Liaquat was born in what now is India. He was active in the affairs of the Moslem League, and when the sub-continent was partitioned, he left to make his home in Pakistan.

A graduate of England's Oxford University, he has nursed Pakistan through many difficulties, including the urgent one of relations with India, and their still unsettled dispute over the future of Kashmir.

Liaquat and his wife visited Canada and the United States last year.

Britain, Iran Still At Odds Over Dispute

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP). — Britain and Iran, still sharply at odds, today moved into the second round of discussion of their oil dispute before the United Nations Security Council.

Iran's Premier Mohammed Mossadegh worked through Monday night on another installment of his speech attacking British handling of oil in Iran.

Today's session is scheduled for 3 p.m. EST.

Mossadegh appeared before a jammed council session Monday. He spoke for almost 15 minutes in forceful, emphatic French before turning over to an aide the burden of his hour-long argument that Britain has exploited the south Iran oil fields, and that the oil dispute is no business of the security council.

No Emotional Touch

For the crowded chamber and the United States television audience, Mossadegh displayed none of the emotional outburst which characterized his speeches at home. He read his prepared statement slowly and calmly. There was not a tear, not a faint.

Mossadegh said he will speak today on a revised resolution Britain has submitted calling for new talks. Britain withdrew an earlier resolution implying censure of Iran.

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb said he will have to wait for Mossadegh's new statement before he can present his final argument.

Jebb said of Mossadegh's accusations against the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company that "some are false some are exaggerated." He also denied the Iranian's charges that Britain used force against Iran.

A handshake meeting between Jebb and Mossadegh, arranged by Secretary-General Trygve Lie in his office after the session, failed to make peace.

An Iranian spokesman said earlier that Iran will take part in new talks with British representatives only to discuss indemnities due the nationalized Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and continued purchase of Iranion oil by Britain.

Prices Dip Sharply On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP). — Prices dipped sharply today in early afternoon trading as stock market support sagged. Industrials opened mixed but met heavy profit-taking within the first hour.

Volume for the first three hours was 3,741,000 shares.

Utilities and foods found moderate support to take over as industrials' strongest sections. Papers, agricultures, liquors and retail stores weakened while constructions, steels and refining oils turned abruptly lower.

Western oils showed a wide list of losses. Ajax Petroleum, Calmont Calvan Consolidated, National Petroleum, Royaliten Sapphire and New British Dominions posted declines to more than $1.

Consolidated Smelters dipped $2 while Falconbridge, International Nickel, Noranda, Quemont, United Keno Hill and Waite Amulet eased fractions.

Senior golds showed losses to about 50 cents. Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger, Lamaque, Malartic and McIntyre were among the losers. Secondary issues showed a majority of penny declines.

UN Says Cease Fire

This could be accomplished by coupling the previous Red suggestion for a 1,000-yard protected zone around Panmunjom and 3,000 around Munsan with the Allied proposal for reducing the Kaesong area to 3,000 yards. Kaesong is in a five-mile protected area under the original agreement. The Reds have balked at cutting it.

Ridgway outlined the current Allied view on a cease-fire line at a press conference.

He said any buffer zone between opposing armies would have to be militarily defensible, with UN forces safe against "surprise attack."

When they last met, the two sides were deadlocked over the location of a buffer zone. The Reds wanted it based on the 38th Parallel, which lies south of much of the front. Since then UN infantrymen have occupied more than 250 square miles of ridges, hills and mountains.

Searching Lake

BARRY'S BAY, Oct. 15 (CP)—Ontario Provincial Police are searching Aylen Lake near this town 100 miles west of Ottawa, for Gordon Fraser, 37-year-old Aylen Lake resort operator, who has been missing since Saturday. Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto today:

Synopsis:

The morning weather chart shows that Southern Ontario can only expect the current warm spell to last at the most until Wednesday night.

A great outbreak of cold polar air has brought blizzard conditions to the southern Canadian prairies and this cold air is moving rapidly toward Ontario. Although this air when it arrives will not be quite as cold, it will make a very noticeable change in the weather, dropping afternoon temperatures to the 40s.

The cold air seems certain to push through into the Kirkland Lake area by Wednesday morning, but exactly when it will reach southern points is still uncertain. Best indications are that the change will come on Wednesday night.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight Wednesday:

Niagara, Georgian Bay, Haliburton, Lake Ontario regions; Hamilton, Toronto cities:

Sunny and warm today and Wednesday. Winds south 15 this afternoon, light tonight, south 20 Wednesday. Low tonight and high Wednesday at Toronto, St. Catharines and Hamilton 50 and 70, Trenton and Killaloe 45 and 65, Muskoka 45 and 60.

Didn't Know Bottles In Trunk

George Turner, of Ida, pleaded not guilty to a charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence in police court today and after hearing the evidence, Magistrate W. R. Philp dismissed the charge.

OPP Constable Roy Feeley testified that he found Turner sleeping in his car on a side road leading off Highway 7 at Fowler's Corner the morning of September 23. Constable Feeley said he found a half bottle of rum and two bottles of beer in the trunk.

Turner denied knowing anything about the liquor being in his trunk. Ross Sage, of Chemong Road, took the stand and said he had placed the bottle of rum in Turner's car in Lindsay without Turner's knowing anything about it.

"It is a small fine," said W. J. Arthur Fair, who defended Turner, in asking that the charge be dismissed, "but there is every reason to believe the man believes what he told the court and that he told the officer the truth at the time."

Egyptian Mob

A British army spokesman in Cairo said he could not confirm or deny the newspaper's casualty reports.

Not Far Away

Within easy flying distance of the Suez is the 16th British airborne brigade on Cyprus. These troops could be sent along to Suez to reinforce the Suez garrison.

A regiment of Egyptian troops was ordered to the scene almost immediately. The Egyptian war department said they had orders to "help police restore order."

The British troops took action to restore order at Ismailia, midway along the canal zone after a crowd of Egyptians looted and set fire to a British army canteen—aid by Egyptian police, British authorities said.

Quelling Disorder

A British army spokesman told a press conference here that the troops were "quelling the disorder." He gave no details.

"The situation in the canal zone has deteriorated," he said. Egyptian police "actually helped the looters," he charged.

He added that the army has taken over operation of railroads in the zone. Egyptian employees were reported to be refusing to work for the British.

Britain's troop strength in the zone is secret but is probably around 60,000. These are the troops Egypt is seeking to oust by scrapping the Anglo-Egyptian treaty which grants them their right there.

(In London, it was announced today that a British soldier had been seriously stabbed in Ismailia Monday and a British bus stoned.)

Ismailia lies on the Sweet Water Canal inside the Suez Canal zone about halfway between Port Said and Fayid, headquarters of the British Middle East command.

It is the largest town in the zone and is used by the troops mainly for recreational purposes.

Soldiers Run Trains

British troops now are operating railroads in the canal zone, the spokesman told the British embassy press conference.

Egyptian newspapers reported the activities of a "resistance movement" in which locomotive engineers were refusing to drive British military trains and taxi drivers were turning away British Army passengers.

Another report from the canal area, telephoned to the newspaper Al Misri, said crowds of Egyptians had attacked British camps near Ismailia and attempted to set fire to the British installations.

Communications between Cairo and the Suez area, interrupted early today were restored later in the morning.

Approve Order

Meanwhile widespread anti-foreign demonstrations in Egypt hailed the approval Monday night by a cheering parliament of legislation ordering Britain out of the Suez Canal area and the Sudan.

A crowd of more than 50,000 greeted Prime Minister Mustapha El Nahas Pasha as he arrived in Cairo after taking the parliamentary acts to King Farouk in Alexandria for signature.

Strong police forces had to extricate the Prime Minister from the great crowd.

The demonstrators

Demonstrators paraded through Cairo and Alexandria shouting "Down with the Americans — down with the United States dollar," as well as anti-British, anti-French and anti-Turkish slogans.

In Alexandria a private car was overturned. There were reports of a strike of 3,000 Egyptian workers on the British air base at Abu Sueir, in the canal area.

Tension was growing in Egypt. One influential Cairo newspaper, the independent Al Ahram, editorially warned Britain:

"Britain knows that if she uses force in Egypt this will mean a third world war, and Britain knows she is not in a position to wage a world war at this time."

Egypt had threatened to cut communications and supplies to the canal forces and to pull out British-hired workers as soon as parliament passed bills breaking Egypt's treaties with Britain.

The parliament approved such legislation last night. Egypt also turned down a five-power Middle East defence pact in which she would have shared the job of defending the vital canal with Britain, the US, France and Turkey.

Cost Of Living

at this time, bespoke his party's support of certain direct and temporary price controls to give the people relief from "the present terrific high cost of living."

Mr. St. Laurent indicated possible hope for lower prices by reporting that he had been told inventories of goods across the country are abnormally high and that some of them may have to be disposed of at "diminishing returns."

He conceded that prices are high and that some sectors of the population are suffering, but said the price level cannot be held fixed in a free economy.

But, despite the high prices, the average industrial wage today bought more than it did before the war and the farmers had a larger share of the national income than ever before.

Facing Defeat

Mr. Drew suggested Canada faced "a major defeat" if the problem of inflation was not tackled. The government had taken some steps to meet inflation, but they had been "disastrously wrong." One of those steps had been the imposition of a special excise tax and the raising of the sales tax.

The taxes should be repealed since the mere fact that the government had accumulated a budgetary surplus of $500,000,000 in the first five months of this fiscal year proved that they were unnecessary.

He repeated his requests of the last session of parliament that the government appoint committees to study defence expenditures and recommend means to reduce government spending.

Mr. Coldwell charged the government with instituting a policy of "rationing by purse" and, in effect, pricing many Canadians right out of the consumer-commodity market.

Create UK Situation

He suggested that Canada and the United States could be blamed for high prices in Britain, where they had gone up despite price controls and subsidies. They had arisen because Canada and the US, which supplied Britain with many of her imports, had allowed inflation to run wild.

Mr. Low urged the government to abolish or reduce some taxes, encourage production and pay subsidies on selected goods. It also should issue interest-free money where necessary and adopt an investment policy for development of industries and resources.

Tobacco Association Seeks Higher Price

AYLMER, Oct. 16 (CP) — The Ontario Tobacco Marketing Association will be asked by district tobacco growers to press for a higher minimum price for this year's 137,000,000-pound crop.

At a meeting Monday night the growers decided to push for a price three cents higher than last year's 44-cent minimum. They claimed growers need at least 2.85 cents a pound more than they got last year to cover this year's increase in production costs.

Labor Centre Used By Council

The Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL) met for the first time Monday night in their new quarters—the Peterborough Labor Centre, 408½ George St., formerly club rooms of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Eleven CCL unions, bargaining agents for more than 1,800 production and salaried workers, have agreed to use the new Labor Centre and six other locals will probably join them.

The Labor Centre provides seating space for 200 people in the main hall, and three offices and a committee room are available.

One office will be the CCL district headquarters and also the local headquarters for the Textile Workers Union; a second will accommodate the three IUE locals —Local 570 (Westclox), Local 524 (CGE production workers), and Local 599 (CGE salaried workers); a third, Locals 230 and 231, Outboard Marine Workers.

None of the Packinghouse locals —Local 210 (Canada Packers, Local 293 (Quaker Oats), or Local 434 (A. Wander Ltd.) has taken office space but all three will use the hall for union meetings.

The Labor Centre, once the home of the Peterborough Crib and Bridge Club and recently used by AA, is being leased by the month.

Intelligent Pony Saves Girl's Life

GATESHEAD, Durham, England, — (CP)—Darkie, a little black pony that pulls an ice-cream wagon, was always a favorite with the children. They fed him cakes and lumps of sugar and generally spoiled him.

One day Noreen Robson, 7, ran from her home to buy ice-cream, fell and rolled almost directly under Darkie's legs.

Darkie's driver shouted, a woman screamed and Noreen lay frozen in terror. The only cool party was the pony, who lowered his head and flicked Noreen out of his path as the wagon passed over the post.

"It was so close the wheel grazed my daughter's hip," said Noreen's father. She only suffered bruises.

School Bylaw Ready For Vote

COBOURG, Oct. 16 — (ENS) — Cobourg town council last night gave two readings to a by-law covering the construction of a new East End public school at an estimated cost of $280,000. The second reading of the by-law was in order that there would be something to place before the voters for their approval at the December elections.

Council heard lengthy representations in regard to a request for a special parking privilege in front of Macklin's Garage, but reserved their decision.

Recognition was given to the union representing Civic Streets Dept. Workers, the same as in the case of Utilities Employees.

Cobourg Reports Two Polio Cases

COBOURG, Oct. 16 —(ENS)— Although the previous weekly report showed no new cases of polio in Cobourg, the health unit report for the week ending Oct. 13, revealed three new cases of which two are in Cobourg and one in Bowmanville.

Cobourg also had five cases of chickenpox, one of mumps and one of whooping cough. The frequency of polio cases this year in Cobourg has greatly alarmed the town, in spite of assurance from doctors that it is not an epidemic or anything about which to get panicky.

However it is felt that Cobourg has had so much polio this year that it might provide valuable material if the health unit made a special study of each case history in order to learn why Cobourg, with no sewage going into the harbor and with flies much fewer than last year, should have so much polio, there being more than 12 cases since August 4.

Board Punishes School Students

BURLINGTON, Oct. 16 (CP)— Because 400 Burlington high school students took an unathorized holiday Monday, the high school board Monday night cancelled interschool sports and closed the school's teen-age canteen, both for an indefinite period.

Four hundred of the school's 540 students staged a demonstration outside the school Monday because they were not included in a holiday granted at Princess Elizabeth's request to Hamilton school children. The students later went home.

Ross Sedgsworth, chairman of the high school board, said Monday night that those students who had not attended school had "brought disgrace upon the school and community."

The Burlington high school board's decision as not to grant the holiday requested by the Princess was influenced by the fact that two half days were to have been lost this week due to interschool rugby, he said.

Bible Society Names Collectors For Canvass

OMEMEE, Oct. 16 — (ENS) — Under the auspice of the local branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society an excellent film, "The House of the Book," was shown Sunday evening at Christ Church.

J .A. Bent, president of the Omemee branch, announced that at the recent annual meeting the old officers had been re-appointed as follows: president, J. A. Bent; secretary, H. Hill; and treasurer, E. Switzer. He drew attention to the great shortages of Bibles to meet present needs. In countries where missionaries are barred, the sending of Bibles is still permitted. The canvass begins at once and is to be completed by the end of October.

Village collections are: east of the river, Mrs. Roy Windrem and Mrs. John Green; from the river to Sturgeon St., Mrs. H. Laidley and Mrs. Roland Clifford; west end, Mrs. Ralph James; between west end and Sturgeon St., Mrs. H. Sisson and Mrs. N. Sheir. In the rural areas connected with Omemee churches collectors are: west of the village, Burt Pogue and W. Reeds; north of the railroad, Mrs. V. Lang and Mrs. C. Atwell; south of the village, J. H. McConnell; east to middle line of Emily, Arthur McQuade. East of that the country churches belonging to Omemee pastoral charges were arranging for collectors in that area. The people were asked to co-operate with the collectors by saving them trips to their homes if they chanced to meet them elsewhere.

The Rev. Richmond was enthusiastic about the work of the Bible Society. They never say no, he said, when missionaries ask for translations of the Bible into difficult dialects. It is very important, he said, that the funds be supplied the Bible Society to make and send Bibles to the millions of unenlightened souls.

Boy's Condition Said Fairly Good

TORONTO, Oct 16 — (CP) — hospital attendants today reported as "fairly good" the condition of 11-year-old Duane Netherly, shot in the head at Iroquois Falls Sunday.

Duane, son of an abitibi machinist, was wounded when he refused to walk over a high railway trestle across the Abitibi river. A playmate told police that three Iroquois Falls boys ordered Duane across the trestle. If he didn't, he would be shot. Duane refused.

The bullet from the .22-calibre rifle entered the top of Duane's head and came out the forehead. The three boys then carried the wounded boy to hospital. They later were picked up by police.

Duane was flown to Sick Children's Hospital where officials said he "slept well" Monday night.

For How Long?

We Canadians are, as a people, as fond of praise as any nation on earth, and at present we are basking delightedly in the sun of royal admiration. Whatever the Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh choose to admire has, for the present, our full approbation and attention. For this reason many Canadians will be glad that in his address to the Toronto Board of Trade on Saturday last, the Prince spoke thus: "To my mind the most important evidence that Canada is no longer a young country . . . is the publication of the Royal Commission's report on the national development in the arts, letters and sciences. This Report is a remarkable attempt to find out exactly what is present and what is lacking in the national culture. It does not try to hide the fact that there is a great deal which is missing, but the fact that this Report was written at all implies that it will not be missing for long." For how long will the desired elements in our culture be missing?

* * *

The question does not admit of an exact answer, but we may be sure of this: nothing will be done about the gaps in our Canadian culture until Parliament has discussed the Report and said what it means to do about it. Many organizations which further the arts and sciences in Canada know that since the Report was tabled in the Commons the private contributions to their funds have decreased, sometimes sharply. Private citizens who have been used to giving to such organizations now say that they are waiting to see what the Government will do. It is important that they should not have to wait too long.

* * *

Rumours from Ottawa suggest that the Report is not likely to be the subject of parliamentary action very soon. The attitude of the Government, and of parliamentarians in general, seems to be that the Report can wait. But this is not the case. The Report cannot wait, because the organizations which have found their funds drying up as a result of the issuance of the Report cannot wait; they must either know that they are to receive state help, or else they must be able to tell their benefactors that they will not receive such help. They cannot be left hanging between heaven and earth, like Mahomet's coffin. Nor is it desirable that Parliament should put off discussion of the Report until public interest in it, and public recollection of its contents, has dimmed. The first move toward stopping the gaps in our national culture lies with Parliament, and we trust that Parliament will be sufficiently stirred by Prince Philip's complimentary reference to the Massey Report to discuss it as soon as possible.

* * *

While on this subject, may we say how much we regret the frequent use of the word "culture" in discussions of the Massey Report. It is the right word, certainly—the only word that fills the bill. But it is also a word which suggests to most Canadians pleasures and pursuits which are beyond their reach and of which they are at once afraid and contemptuous. Canadians are apt to underestimate their own intelligence, and they fear that "culture" is beyond them. Nothing could be further from the truth.

* * *

Culture means, simply, civilization—the state of life in which we find ourselves. We have a culture—a civilization—in Canada, but in some ways it is not good enough for our people. It is not sufficiently broad and varied. Canadian culture will never soar beyond the Canadian people, because they themselves will create it, or borrow it, and thus they will control it. Advances in Canadian civilization will not benefit a few people; they will benefit all Canadians who want to live more interesting, varied and complete lives. There are millions of Canadians who have this desire, and it is for their benefit that the Massey Report was compiled, and for their benefit that some of its suggestions will be carried out. The Government will not and cannot do the whole job, but until the Government makes plain what it intends to do, private activity in this sphere is at a standstill. And, as Prince Philip has suggested, it is time to be moving.

An elephant's trunk is reported to contain 40,000 muscles. And yet it uses the thing chiefly to scoop up peanuts. Nature is incorrigibly wasteful.

A medical columnist refuses to give advice to a correspondent who complains of 'a suety lump' on his neck. If it's on the top of his neck, it could be his head.

Indian Summer Homage?

Ontario has given Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh a warm, colourful October welcome; the weather has been splendidly co-operative. What is so rare as a day in October—such days as these? Southern Ontario invariably gets them some time during the month, but not often in such a series; seldom at such a happy conjunction of occasion and dates. Is it too rash to assert that the gods are kind, and that what should have been good Thanksgiving weather was delayed purposely because the royal visit was postponed a week? Or perhaps Indian Summer has hastened to the festival of royalty, so early that the first strong frosts have not had time to take their dram of summer sweetness.

Along the line of smoky hills,
The crimson forest stands,
And all the day the blue-jay calls
Throughout the autumn lands.

Now by the brook the maple leans,
With all his glory spread,
And all the sumachs on the hills
Have turned their green to red.

Wilfred Campbell's trotting lines run Indian Summer into too early a week. The glory of the maple and the red of the sumach have partly fallen already: perhaps to provide a royal carpet of bronze leaves for the princely visitors. A pretty conceit.

Churchill On "The Italian Lawgiver"

Mr. Churchill's latest volume of history on the war is appearing in condensed form in five instalments in our week-end Examiner, before it is published in book form. In the first instalment last Saturday Mr. Churchill had some remarkably tolerant things to say about Mussolini, late dictator of Italy.

Writing of his downfall, when the King rejected him ('at this moment you are the most hated man in Italy,' Victor Emmanual told him) and Marshal Badoglio had him interned, Mr. Churchill says:

Thus ended Mussolini's twenty-one years' dictatorship in Italy, during which he had raised the Italian people from the Bolshevism into which they might have sunk in 1919 to a position in Europe such as Italy had never held before. A new impulse had been given to the national life. The Italian Empire in North Africa was built. Many important public works in Italy were completed. In 1935 the Duce had by his will-power overcome the League of Nations—"Fifty nations led by one"—and was able to complete his conquest of Abyssinia. His regime was far too costly for the Italian people to bear, but there is no doubt that it appealed during its period of success to very great numbers of Italians. He was, as I had addressed him at the time of the fall of France, "the Italian lawgiver." The alternative to his rule might well have been a Communist Italy, which would have brought perils and misfortunes of a different character both upon the Italian people and Europe.

Is this rather glowing appraisal of Mussolini's regime merely the victor Churchill being magnanimous to the vanquished? Is it a mere adherence to a gentlemanly code to speak no ill of the dead? Is Churchill another Englishman who praised Fascism because Mussolini made the trains run on time?

No, Churchill, writing in this decade with his wisdom after the event reinforcing his wisdom during it, thinks that Fascism saved Italy from Communism. On that score alone, the British war leader withholds condemnation of the Fascist regime. It is a very lenient attitude to take but one which will have greater approval now than it had in any of the twenty-one years during Mussolini's rule. The Spanish dictatorship, the Yugoslav dictatorship and several regimes in the Near East are being supported now by the western political democracies merely because they are anti-Communist. It is a policy of political realism, rather hard for some democrats to stomach.

Churchill says nothing against the internal effects of fascism on Italy and the Italian people. He points no faults with fascism. Mussolini's chief, and it would seem only, fault was that he chose the wrong side: "His fatal mistake was the declaration of war on France and Great Britain following Hitler's victories in June 1940." In other words, Mussolini was not shrewd enough: that was his fault. He guessed wrong. "He never understood the strength of Britain, nor the long-suffering qualities of Island resistance and sea-power. Thus he marched to ruin."

Churchill's view of the late Italian dictator is a remarkably detached one. Why? We have suggested some reasons, but behind them all is a paternalism which Churchill shares with very many Englishmen in their regard for Italy. It is a kind of fatherly detachment; an offhand attitude of the big to the small, the adult to the juvenile. They never looked upon Italian Fascism as a threat to themselves or the world. It was a rather childish deviation to be expected of such easy-going sunny people; sometimes it was a nuisance and the child had to be reprimanded. When the child really became bad and declared war, it was properly punished.

This condescension is apparent in Mr. Churchill's last sentence on Mussolini. He is dismissed thus: "His great roads will remain a monument to his personal power and long reign."

We look forward to the great British statesman and writer's summation of Hitler.

British Elections:

No Stampede At Nottingham

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

THE City of Nottingham delights to call herself the Queen of the Midlands. Indeed, she is different from other cities in England, although she is industrial, with coal mines and lace mills and chemical works and light industry. She is full of wide parks and handsome streets; she has not the black and hopeless prison look of many great Northern cities—the look that caused the Emperor of Russia, who once visited England, to say "Ah God, it is the gates of Hell".

❖ ❖ ❖

SHE is almost as ancient as England's history. Her castle, where Charles the First once raised his hopeless standard, is surrounded by a maze of narrow medieval streets, where old sooty churches stand shoulder to shoulder with inns that bear names like scraps of poetry — the Salutation, the Royal Children and the Trip to Jerusalem. And in the meadows beside the River Trent her people have built between the wars great housing estates for some 20,000 families that keep it a good place to live in.

❖ ❖ ❖

THIS pleasant place returns four Members to Parliament. One is a safe Labour seat, returned by the mining community who would as soon return a Conservative as murder their mothers. The other three are also Labour, but only by margins of between 1,000 to 2,000 that must disappear if the Conservatives are to receive the thumping majority at Westminster that they now expect. And so this city, which has never taken its politics too bitterly, finds itself a sort of cockpit in Britain's General Election, a narrow arena which must show in miniature the way the country is going. As a result the parties have hauled their biggest guns to Nottingham.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN size, the smallest of the constituencies is Central Nottingham. Here some 60,000 electors are crowded in high houses and flats round the City Hall and the shopping centres. Two personable candidates, well matched in age and appearance, represent the two parties. As individuals there is not a pennyworth of difference between them. The Member will be chosen on straight political considerations.

❖ ❖ ❖

THE Labour candidate, who sat as Member in the last brief House is Ian Winterbottom. He is 36, has a private income, fought in the war as an officer in the Household Cavalry, owns a certain amount of land in the country and cultivates it in the time he spares from politics. His Conservative opponent, 36, is Anthony Chean, a tall ginger-headed estate agent, with a taste for racehorses and an easy way with a crowd in a square or a householder at a front door.

❖ ❖ ❖

BOTH know the proper answers to the stock questions that everyone always asks,—the means test, rationing, old-age pensions, the cost of living, whether Churchill is a warmonger and Bevan a Communist. To these, of course, Persia and Egypt have now been added. Winterbottom has the advantage of having been the sitting Member; Chean has the advantage of a large and permanent organization that dwarfs the Labour's little villa where a single permanent secretary and organizer, representing all four constituencies, sits answering letters all round the year.

NEITHER is certain of success. The Labour majority was only 1,700 votes in the last election. Only two in every hundred have to change their mind to make Chean the Member and to send Winterbottom back to his house in the country. And neither can say exactly what this election is about. That is a fairly common condition in British voting. No single issue has seized the electors, filled them with anger or enthusiasm. The local bookies are offering eleven to ten on a Conservative victory—which are very cautious odds.

❖ ❖ ❖

IT looks as if the great issues that sprawl across the front pages of the British national Press are not the issues that move men's hearts in Nottingham. Not many men and women in Central Nottingham are going to vote differently because of what has happened in Persia or Egypt. Any generalization is almost certainly inaccurate and, despite the rich variety of crises that face Britain, the voters are once going to make their choices by a bewildering mixture of personal prejudices, self-interest, careful thought, and flashes of that astonishing group intelligence that rises to the surface in difficult times in England. But it cannot be explained.

❖ ❖ ❖

HERE is a straight conflict which exactly mirrors the dilemma of the British people. Winterbottom, expecting a Conservative offensive, has made himself an expert in foreign affairs, loathes the gradual and painful stages that drove the British experts out of Abadan. Chean concentrates on home affairs, promises higher wages as a result of a more vigorous industry. But in the long run the electors, the mass of whom have never met or heard a candidate, will pass their verdict on how their personal affairs have been affected by the Government in the last six years. The fact that a policy of world significance depends on their verdict, a policy affecting the Middle and the Far East, even our relations with America and with Russia, is beside the point. No one, not even Stalin, is going to stampede the electors of Nottingham.

Peron Turns Over Office

(Montreal Star)

Mr. Peron's current solicitude for fair play and constitutional practice is something new. Until now he has acted like a dictator—seizing newspaper properties, gaining control of trade unions, pushing business and private persons around without so much as a by-your-leave. Now he acts like a politician wooing the people.

Ostensibly he asked for leave of absence from the presidency so that the elections might be carried out free of influence. It makes a pretty touching picture, this of the great man stepping down so that the common people may have their say without undue influence being exerted upon them. It makes a pretty touching picture but it would look a great deal more like democracy at work if Mr. Peron could shake off the background of repression that has marked his administration. Whatever effect his present action may have on the Argentine people, it will take a great deal more than this to convince the outside world that Mr. Peron has suddenly become a democrat.

LET US PREY

U.K. Radio Oratory

(NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE)

STUDENTS of the impact of radio and television on political campaigning will be interested in Great Britain's comparative indifference to these new-fangled devices. Although the British are on the verge of one of the most important national elections they have ever held, they have scheduled only five hours of radio campaigning for all parties, and so far, none at all of television campaigning.

British radio is, of course, government controlled, and its time is not for sale. But five hours between now and Oct. 25, Election Day, have been divided among the contending parties, on an equitable basis, for campaign promises, pledges and recriminations. To make sure that no one gets in any side remarks, political figures who would normally appear on forum or debate programs have been gently but firmly barred from the air during the campaign period.

Aside from the five hours of oratory, an Englishman's home will remain his non-political castle.

Frankly, we don't know whether to envy or pity the British voter. The disadvantages of the curtailed radio oratory are obvious. If you want to hear the election issues argued at length, you have to leave your home and go out to a meeting hall, where the orators must be seen as well as heard.

It's hard on the candidates, too. Prime Minister Attlee, with only a single B.B.C. address scheduled, is currently touring the countryside in a car driven by his wife. Mr. Winston Churchill also has taken to the road where he is required to pat children's heads as well as to address their elders.

But there are advantages, too. Without political oratory, or at least with very little of it, the radio once again becomes man's refuge, filling the night with soap operas and disk jockeys. Campaigners may pursue you through the streets in automobiles, but they can't come into your house. It's an interesting idea, this British system. But all in all, we'll stick to our own. After all, you can always shut the thing off.

Letters To The Editor

FUNNY PEOPLE

Sir: It has been said that there is no one funnier than people. Reading of some objecting to your newspaper going up in price a trifle a week since you added the Saturday supplement has brought this saying home to me.

These same people no doubt are paying two cents a day more for their cigarettes the past week without kicking. After all, they don't need to enjoy their cigarettes—they can quit smoking. They can also do without their daily if they insist on saving a few cents. I like my paper too much. These objectors philosophically pay a dime or more for beefsteak each time it goes up. Nor do they argue if the garageman next week says the price of gas is up. Cars are up, too, by a hundred dollars or so. Also electric ice boxes, clothes, etc. Everything, in fact, including wages.

Apparently, newspapers must not increase prices. Their costs do not increase, nor do their employees get higher wages than they did several years ago—or so some readers seem to think. What is a nickel or a dime these days of rising costs? People are certainly funny about some things.

Sincerely,
REGULAR READER.

DISSATISFIED

Sir: To date, you have printed two letters protesting your method of selling your new "Week-end," and your notes of explanation are not satisfactory. You have issued an ultimatum. Either pay five cents extra on Saturday, or do without your paper for that day. I buy your paper for the local news, and I don't want your "Week-end". My workmates are equally resentful of your high-handed, high pressure sales method, and I understand many are dropping your paper for that reason. Please be fair and put out the Week-end on its own merit.

J. L. R.

HIGHHANDED DEALING

Sir: Having been a reader of your paper for over twenty years I wish to tell you what a large part it has played in my general education and enjoyment. I feel that everyone should know as much as possible about the happenings in their home town.

I am, however, highly critical of the seemingly highhanded manner in which the Week-end Examiner matter has been handled. Many other Examiner subscribers that I know are also indignant over this. Twice now you have stated that no compulsion is used in the sale of this supplement and tonight said that it couldn't be sold in fragments. Yet this afternoon I saw a newsboy kneeling on the sidewalk industriously inserting Week-ends from one pile into the regular Examiner in another pile. Could some of these not be left out thereby saving that much-expensive newsprint, the newsboys' time, the customers' money and the paper's goodwill?

I would gladly forego the pleasures of the Week-end but do not wish at the same time, to miss out on the material in the regular Saturday edition of the daily paper. This seems to me to be too close to a "conditional sale" which, during the war, was illegal and may still be so.

Yours sincerely,
F. MARLOWE BANKS.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us; Selah. That thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations. (Ps. 67: 1, 2.)

❖ ❖ ❖

Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near: let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord.

For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater:

So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it. (Isa. 55: 6-11.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"I want to tell you, sir, that I'm engaged to your daughter."

"Well, dash it all—don't come to me for sympathy. What else did you expect after hanging round the house every night for months?"

❖ ❖ ❖

"I don't understand how you came to marry her," a man remarked to a friend whose marriage had failed. "You admit that you didn't particularly care for her—then how did she get you?"

"Well," came the dry rejoinder. "It's not something you can explain very easily, but I suppose it must have been because she wanted me worse than I didn't want her!"

❖ ❖ ❖

The club secretary hurried over when he saw a visiting golfer addressing the ball a few feet in front of the tee. "I'm sorry, sir," he interrupted, "but in this club we play either from the tee or behind it. Never," he emphasized with a shudder, "in front of it."

The golfer's only move was to re-address his ball."

"I must insist," urged the secretary.

The golfer straightened up and looked hard at his interrupter. "I happen," he said with dignity, "to be playing my second shot."

❖ ❖ ❖

"Behold!" exclaimed the spiritualistic medium, after the usual amount of wriggling and knocking "before you is the spirit of your late wife!"

The client sat still and said nothing.

"Don't you understand?" cried the medium of intercourse with the other world. "It is the form of your departed spouse? Why don't you speak to her?"

"Oh," replied the client. "If it is her she'll do all the talking!"

PCVS Seniors Capture Spot Red Feather Playoff Series, To Meet Alliston Or Orillia

By winning 27-11 from Oshawa Collegiate Combines on Saturday in Oshawa, PCVS' senior Garnet and Grey secured a chance to enter the Red Feather tournament in Toronto on Oct. 26 and 27. Coach G. B. (Bev.) Goulding said today that the seniors will be playing either Orillia or Alliston. That playoff game or games will have to be this weekend and he is hoping to have it played at Morrow park on Saturday afternoon as part of a double-header.

This year there will be two entries from the CSSA district, the tournament committee has arranged for a team from the Niagara district, likely St. Catharines and the others from the remaining three districts.

The six other teams taking part in the annual championship series will represent the Toronto Secondary Schools Atheltic Association, the Toronto and District Interscholasitc Athletic Association, the Western Ontario Secondary schools (and this year the Windsor area), the Eastern Ontario area, Hamilton and Northern Ontario.

Represent NOSSA.

So far only one team has qualified to enter, Kirkland Lake Collegiate, by virtue of a victory over North Bay. It will represent the NOSSA.

The eight teams will contest the event in the two-night double-headers to be judged by a panel of football experts under sports writer Ted Reeve and Syd Reynolds, one-time All-Canadian end.

The winning team will be awarded the Ted Reeve trophy, emblematic of the Ontario Secondary School championship. The trophy was originally held by East York Goliaths.

The panel will also select the outstanding player on each team to receive the John David Eaton gold watch award. In the first Red Feather tournament Roy Armstrong, plunging half for PCVS, received that recognition.

Gross receipts of the two-night tournament, which is sponsored by the Ontario Schools Association, in co-operation with the T. Eaton Company will be turned over to the Community Chest's Red Feather campaign in the communities where tickets are sold.

This year more than 1000 cheerleaders and several bands will decorate the performance on both nights.

Special caravans are expected from Hamilton, St. Catharines and Guelph. Hamilton, which sent 2000 supporters last year, has already arranged to charter 90 buses and expects to send twice as many rooters as last year.

All out-of-town players will be billeted in the homes of Toronto schoolboy athletes and will be feted by the City of Toronto on Saturday, October 27.

After the luncheon the players will attend the Varsity Blues—Queen's intercollegiate game at Varsity Stadium as special guests of Warren Stevens, athletic director of the University of Toronto.

The tournament in the past two years has drawn close to 60,000 fans.

Louis After Title If Walcott, Charles Around

By MURRAY ROSE.

POMPTON LAKES, NJ, Oct. 16 (AP).—As long as either Jersey Joe Walcott or Ezzard Charles is heavyweight champion, Joe Louis will keep chasing the golden crown.

The Brown Bomber made that clear today as he resumed practice for his Oct. 26 10-rounder with undefeated Rocky Marciano in Madison Square Garden.

Asked how long he intends to keep fighting Joe pounded his gloves together and said "as long as either Walcott or Charles is champion, I'm going to keep on chasing.

"I don't know how long that's going to be, but I'll be waiting. I'm going to stick around while either one of them is champion. I can beat them.

"Of course if some 23-year-old kid comes along and wins the title somehow, then I guess I'll have to call it quits," said Joe with a grin. "'Cause then, by the time I get a shot, my grey beard will be hanging around my knees."

Louis was 37 May 13. Walcott turned 37 Jan. 31 according to the record books but there are many in business who believe he is past 40. Charles reached the 30 mark July 20.

Louis defeated Walcott in both their clashes and was badly beaten by Charles in their single meeting. That defeat still rankles.

The old Bomber, hitting hard as ever with his left and still working on his once feared right, hopes to get another crack at Ezzard in Miami this February. He'll have to get past Marciano first.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16 (AP).—Cleveland Indians announced today they have purchased pitcher Lloyd Dickey from San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League. No purchase price was named for the 22-year-old southpaw, who won eight and lost 10 for the last-place Seals last season.

Metras Cracks Down On Mustang Players

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 16 (CP).—It's going to be a week of hard work for the University of Western Ontario's football team as they prepare for their senior intercollegiate Union game against McGill Redmen this Saturday.

Johnny Metras feels that the Mustangs played well below par in their 16-7 loss to the University of Toronto Blues last Saturday.

The blocking of the western line was weak particularly in the first half and the Toronto frontwall repeatedly outcharged them.

The Western coach set about to remedy this situation Monday as he sent his charges through a long blocking drill.

The Mustangs came through the Toronto game without any serious injuries. But Western will miss quarterback Ray Truant for the second straight week. An injury suffered in the Queen's game will sideline him again.

Lindsay Tricolor Tie Oshawa 5-5

LINDSAY, Oct. 16.—Lindsay CI Tricolor played their second straight 5-5 draw here as they held the group-leading Oshawa CVS to one major in a closely played COSSA junior football game.

The Motor City collegians used their weight and height advantage to score a touch in the first quarter, but Lindsay came back to tie it up on a 99-yard drive in the final quarter. An OCVS fumble on the LCI one-yard, recovered by Bud Balentyne, started the locals to five first downs and an unconverted major. Reg Truax tossed a long forward to Tom Stephenson for the touch.

Stamford Whips St. Kitts In 34-0 Rout

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 16.—Stamford Collegiate Institute practically assured themselves the Niagara District COSSA senior football championship and a crack at the Ontario Red Feather title here Monday afternoon when they trampled St. Catharines Collegiate Tricolors 34-0.

The St. Catharines team won the Red Feather tournament at Canadian National Exhibition grounds last year and were also COSSA champions, but loss of key players through graduation proved too great a handicap to overcome in their bid for repeat titles.

The long-range kicking of George McGowan kept St. Catharines on the defensive for almost the entire 60 minutes. McGowan outkicked both Gerry Lansky and Walt Dennis of the Tricolors by a large margin, getting away consistently long boots of 40 and 50 yards. The Stamford ace gave the visitors a 2-0 lead early in the first quarter on kicks to the deadline, then Greg Scobie shot a 15-yard pass to Gil Smith for a touchdown, converted by Jim Miller.

More Scoring

Delaney added another converted major and McGowan kicked his third point to give Stamford a 15-0 margin in the first quarter. The winners ran their lead to 28-0 in the second, were held scoreless in the third as the St. Catharines line offered stiffer resistance, but Stamford completed the route in the final when McGowan booted his fifth single point and Art Darch barged over for the final, unconverted, major.

Stamford — Quarter, Scobie; halves, McGowan, Washington, Smith, Farrell; centre, Fedor; insides, Schankula, Rapleje; middles Sawchuk, Darch; ends, Ruish, Cushman; alternates, Dickson Barratt, Urquhart, Delaney, Maves, Wilson, Sherren, Gallen, Endlac, Miller, Dell, Polock.

St. Catharines—Quarter, Stevenson; halves, Ciesla, Lansky; Cruickshank, Artinian; centre, Coutanche; insides, Kawula, Gdanski; middles, Alexander, Pake; ends, Johnson, Persennaire; alternates, Howlett, Kellogg, Golab, Fletcher, Timlock, Heritt, Corman, Baerge, Vlecrone, Bell, Dennis, Lewis.

City Carpetball

Next week's schedule: Fire Hall 13 vs 2nd Armour 3; LOL 14 vs Legion 4; Glens 1 vs Fire Hall 15, Legion 16 vs Legion 2, SOE vs Legion 11, Legion 6 vs St. George's 12, Quaker 7 vs Moose 9, Legion 8 vs Red Patch 10.

First week results: Glens beat SOE 15-11, 14-10; Firemen 15 defeated Legion 11 by 13-8 and 13-7; LOL won from Red Patch 15-6 and 12-10; the 2nd Armour Troop lost one to Quaker 16-7 but took the other 11-10; Firemen 13 beat Moose Lodge 15-3 and 14-9; Team 12 and Legion 8 have demanded that games scheduled with Legion 16 and Legion 4 respectively be defaulted to them for failure of opposing team to show up; Legion 2 vs 6 games were played too late for this report. Teams unable to play must notify opposing skips no later than six p.m.

If a team can field only three men, another registered player may be secured to play in lead or second as approved by the opposing skip. Should a team winning on default secure four points for the two games and a score of 24-0 on its average?

Vice-president A. Pilling will be getting draw tickets out to members through the skips right away as some have received no books yet. Standing and average will appear next week. Dues should be in now. Skips collect them and give them to the treasurer with names and phone numbers, membership tickets then being issued.

New Westminster Salmonbellies brought the Mann Cup back to the coast for the first time in four years when they defeated Mimico-Brampton Combines 22-7 in the fourth game of their best-of-five series at New Westminster, eight years ago tonight. Salmonbellies took that senior lacrosse championship by three games to one.

Frank Gnup leads his Orfuns into Oshawa this evening for a floodlight grid fixture with the leading Red Raiders. An important ORFU senior "B" melee for both squads and there'll be some hard bashing before it's over. Gnup, a man of Big Four coaching ability, is moulding a strong club out of the Orfuns, but they're meeting a potent pack this time in the Raiders, who downed Cobourg's champ Ghosts 6-1 last Saturday. The Ghosts come here a week from Friday, and Orfuns have no scheduled tilts in between. Local footballers are staging a grid carnival along the Rue Brock this Thursday and Friday nights.

Comes a belated letter from Fraser Skinner of Kingston, whose father was the late Jim Skinner, CPR agent here and a keen sports official for years. Says: "It was thrilling to read that the Petes' lacrosse team have brought a Dominion championship to my old home town. At a time like this it makes one want to reminisce of the old days when lacrosse was trying to get a footing along with baseball. It was about 1920 when a few die-hards endeavored to get the game going. Trouble was that youngsters of that period had never seen lacrosse played, and it was necessary to bring oldtimers out of retirement to teach the game. Such as King Dillon, Jack Creighton, Donovan, and others I can't recall."

Back In Good Old Days

He goes on at some length of those early 20s in lacrosse here. It was the field game, of course, since box lacrosse didn't come in till 1931 here, one year after it was started in Canada. Fraser gives a lot of credit to Harry Tudhope for his time, money and energy for many years in the game. He was on the executive for years when Mr. Skinner was. Doug Miller and Pete King are mentioned, too, as keen workers for the game at that time. Fraser points out that it was strictly amateur around the diistrict then, with cars donated for trips and players buying equipment and meals. Crowds were small and money was scarce, but the team carried on. And now hold the Mann Cup.

The rule on icing the puck in hockey was revised the past summer by the CAHA, and players now must carry the disc over the defending team's blue line ere shooting it into corners. Preivously, the puck could be shot in from just past the centre red line, but that's now out for amateurs. It hasn't changed yet in the NHL. The purpose of the new rule is to eliminate ganging up in the corners and to speed up play. It'll take players and fans a few games to get used to the idea with refs regularly calling play for icing but it will cut out a lot of this business of pitching horse shoes—shooting the puck up and racing after it. You'll see more stick-handling again.

Telling The Sad Story

Listened last night to Dave Price on his Sports Roundup radio show. He interviewed in turn George Patterson and D. L. McKnight of Kingston Nylons and Prexy Jack Roxburgh of the OHA re the recent puck scandal in Kingston. Seems that Patterson, who wanted to ice another senior "B" team there, was refused use of the Kingston arena. So, blaming McKnight for this, he broke the story wide open. McKnight said it was out-and-out revenge, but he also panned the OHA for taking the word of three witnesses against 15. Said he never wanted to go senior "A" but would have been forced to do so. And he felt he had received a raw deal from the OHA, and might take it to the courts yet.

* * * * * * *

All in all, we weren't overly impressed by the stories told to Dave by Patterson and McKnight. In his interview, the OHA president said they could appeal, if they wished, to the full Ontario executive. He told of Doug Patterson saying the Nylons had laid down in their last game with the Petes, and that Aiken and Plumb agreed with Doug's statement. Later, the coach and other players admitted it, so the OHA had no other course but to suspend the bunch. Some players, Mr. Roxburgh maintained, were quite contradictory in their evidence, and so was Manager McKnight. All witnesses had been heard separately so none knew what the others told the OHA at the Kingston meeting.

Paper Says Boudreau To Manage Red Sox

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16 (AP) The Los Angeles Times says today it has learned reliably that Lou Boudreau will become the manager of Boston Red Sox, replacing Steve O'Neill.

The Times says Boudreau, manager of the Cleveland Indians from 1942 through 1950, will make sweeping changes and might consider selling slugger Ted Williams.

Boudreau, manager of the Cleveland Indians from 1942 through 1950, joined the Red Sox last spring. O'Neill has managed the Boston club for the last two seasons.

ALLIE SELECTED

At New York, Allie Reynolds, who made American League history by pitching two no-hit, no-run games in one season, has been selected the September winner of the Hickok pro athlete of the year competition. Reynolds won the September award, announced Monday by a big margin over middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson, who regained his crown by stopping Britain's Randy Turpin.

Kingston Loses To UEW In First Game

UEW defeated Kingston United 1-0 Saturday in Kingston to take a one-goal lead in the home-and-home final series for the Ontario intermediate soccer trophy. The return game will be staged at 3:30 this Saturday afternoon here at King Edward Park.

Strong and Andy Smith threatened in the early stages as the home defence seemed shaky. Kingston started several moves but they broke on a solid UE defence. The visitors missed several scoring chances. Kingston were awarded a penalty for a handling infringement but from Grundy's kick Titshall moved fast to the right and the ball hit his chest.

For 20 minutes in the second stanza, UEW were bothered by the sun and the defence lost their hold. Several times the ball was scrambled away and once it went right across the goal mouth with no one handy to put it in. At the 80-minute mark, UEW broke the scoreless deadlock when Holroyd beat two men and put a ground pass into centre for Cotton to come in running and flick it into the net as Machin challenged. They were still attacking at the final whistle.

Here And There In Sports

Toronto's Junior Board of Trade, intent on jealously guarding the Grey Cup final as Toronto's big athletic prize, will stage a pre-game parade the morning of the annual east-west football classic.

Tentative plans were outlined Monday at a press-radio buffet by the "Grey Cup Parade" committee of the Junior Board.

The specific idea of the parade will be ". . . to show appreciation for the selection of Toronto as the site of the Grey Cup game" and stress its theme in the interests of "east-west relations and national unity."

Tentative plans call for a parade which will include floats; school, service and military bands; cheer-leaders and a special float carrying the Grey Cup.

Howie Meeker, the parliamentarian-hockey player, lined up on Monday with Toronto Maple Leafs in a practice session at Toronto and may play in Wednesday night's National Hockey League game against Boston Bruins.

Meeker, who played in both weekend games against Detroit Red Wings at right wing with Cal Gardner and Harry Watson, will probably fill in for Flem Mackell, out with pulled rib muscles. Meeker is Progressive-Conservative member of parliament for Waterloo South.

Leo Reise, defenceman for Detroit Red Wings, underwent an ankle operation Monday at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said afterwards Reise was resting comfortably and the operation wasn't as serious as first believed. A fluid sac on Reise's right ankle tendon was removed. Reise will miss at least three more Red Wing games.

Hugh Campbell, 22-year-old Toronto jockey who was injured in a spill at Long Branch race track last Wednesday, died Monday in a Toronto hospital from head injuries.

He was astride Hemjohn coming into the home stretch when the horse ran up on the heels of another and tossed Campbell, who was struck by a following horse, Waycross.

At Toronto, the Central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada reported Monday night that it has received applications from individuals and groups who wish to participate in Dominion and Olympic trials in boxing, wrestling, track and field, tug-of-war and fencing.

Larry Liberty, AAU wrestling representative said that Ontario wrestlers have requested the 1952 Dominion and Olympic trials be held in Toronto in May. Boxing clubs in Ottawa and Sudbury are bidding for the boxing trials.

The New York State Racing Commission refused again Monday to issue a jockey's licence to Don Meade, who was ruled off the turf at the Hipodromo de las Americas track in Mexico City, in 1945. Meade immediately announced he would take the matter to the courts. The Racing Commission said in its decision "his participation in racing would not be consistent with the public interest or with the best interests of racing generally." The jockey, who has been suspended and in trouble in many States during his stormy career, had been charged with foul riding in Mexico.

Buffalo Bisons of the International Baseball League Monday announced the purchase of the team's first Negro player. The club said it has purchased Charley Harmon, 25-year-old second base star from Olean Oilers, pennant winners in this year's Class-D league race.

PLBC Honor H. Freeman With a Life Membership

A feature of the annual windup dinner-meeting of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club last night at the Club Aragon was the tribute paid to Harold Freeman, who was made a life-member. President Aaron Black made the announcement just at the close of the business session and before the dancing began. The veteran and valuable lawn bowler—past president and holder of many offices down the years—was taken aback at the award and the hearty applause of the 225 members and guests present but he expressed his sincere appreciation.

Three new members went on the board of directors by acclamation: Don Anderson, Len Bearne and Roy Lewis. They will serve two years, the other directors with a year to go being Aaron Black, William Jeffries, J. D. Fitzpatrick and Harry Beatty. Secretary - treasurer is F. H. Dearborn. The directors meet shortly to elect 1952 officers.

Mr. Dearborn presented a most satisfactory treasurer's report, showing that all obligations had been met by the club in the post year. He and other directors were thanked in the presidential address, which reviewed highlights of the season and dealt with many matters.

A Good Show

Excellent entertainment, after the dinner, was offered by a Toronto troupe, with Stan Northrop at the piano, for the many members present and guests from Peterborough, Lindsay, Port Hope and Cannington. These were introduced by William Jeffries.

Mrs. Leo Ackford, immediate past president of the ladies' section of the club, and president Mrs. Norm Killingbeck, were introduced. A goodly number of ladies took in the enjoyable affair. Mrs. H. Wilson presented the prizes to the women winners.

Bob Gamble of the 1951 nominating committee gave a short address on the incoming officers, the new nominating commitee being Ken Sloan and Ken Shadgett. Ken McVeety and Ford Warren were elected 1952 auditors. Harold Freeman presented the men's '51 prizes, but for The Examiner awards for novice Herb Martin making the presentation to Roy Lewis, Jack Freeman, Bill McCreery and Hugh Redmond.

—Bill Stack, above, who meets Dan O'Connor in the opening bout of tonight's mat card at the Brock. The main bout features Lord Athol Layton and Zorra, while the semi-final sees Chief Suni War Cloud and Lou Sjoberg clash. A classy card.

Cantor Seeks Crack At Savoie Title

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP). - Toronto's Solly Cantor today is looking for a crack at Montreale Armand Savoie's Canadian light weight boxing title following a convincing eight-round decision Monday night over hard-hittin Alan McFater, also of Toronto.

Both fighters, who battled to a controversial draw exactly five weeks ago, weighed 138½.

Cantor fought a clever battle and in the last four rounds kept McFater from doing much damage. He repeatedly connected with a strong two-fisted attack which kept the 20-year-old McFater off balance.

Chicago Team's Playing NHL Highlight Of Week

MONTREAL, Oct. 16. (AP)—Highlight of the opening week's play in the 1951-52 National Hockey League season has been the performance of Chicago's Black Hawks, now deadlocked for top spot in the league standings with Montreal Canadiens. The Hawks, who finished last season in sixth place, have won two of their first three games and much credit for this turn-about from last season's form goes to George Gee whose two goals and three assists give him a first-place tie.

Chicago, bolstered by an off-season acquisition of strength, mostly from Detroit Red Wings, has scored eight goals, only one less than Canadiens, tops to date in that department.

Canadiens and Hawks, each of whom have played three games, have two victories against one defeat for four points. This is two more than Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins. The Leafs and Wings have each won one and lost one while Boston has won one and dropped two.

Occupy Cellar

New York Rangers occupy the cellar, having dropped their opening encounter, 3-2 to the Hawks.

Tied with Gee for first place in the individual race are Montreal's Bert Olmstead and Elmer Lach, each of whom has counted once and scored four assists.

Next comes Canadiens' perennial threat, Maurice (Rocket) Richard with three goals and one assist for four points. He is followed by Tod Sloan of the Leafs who has three goals to his credit.

Also with three points are Adam Brown of Boston, Jim Peters of Chicago and Sid Smith of Toronto.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit has the best record among the goal-tenders. He has allowed three goals in two games for a 1.50 goals-against average and is the only netminder to date with a shutout to his credit. This came in the first game of the season as the Wings blanked Boston 1-0.

Sutton Wins Baseball Crown

LINDSAY, Oct. 16. — Sutton Green Sox are the 1951 champions of the 13-team Tri-County Baseball League. Led by Keith Dunn, Sutton trampled the defending champion Stouffville Red Sox, 10-2, in the third and deciding game.

Stouffville won the opener, 5-1, and Sutton came from behind to win 3-2 in the ninth in the second game.

Dunn smashed a two-run homer and batted in three more runs with a booming double, while right-hander George Holborn held Stouffville hitters under control throughout. Ex-pro Earl Cook who hurled in OBA competition with Red Sox Friday, was the victim of the Green Sox onslaught.

Savoie, Zulueta Fights To Draw

MONTREAL, Oct. 16 (CP).—Orlando Zulueta, 135-pound Cuban lightweight titleholder, and Armand Savoie of Montreal, Canadian champ, Monday night fought to a 10-round draw in the feature bout of a boxing card here.

Zulueta, who hails from Havana appeared to have had a shade the better of the bout and the judge's decision was not a popular one with the 2,000 fans. There were no knockdowns. Savoie entered the ring at 136 pounds.

In the scheduled 10-round semi-final, Fernando Gagnon, Canadian bantamweight title-holder, knocked out James Warbington of Puerto Rico, at 1:38 of the third round. Gagnon weighed 118 and Warbington 116½.

Arrest Missing Man

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP). — Joseph Benintende, 42, was arrested Monday night in connection with an alleged attempt to fix a City College-Bradley University basketball game. Benintende, a Manhattan resident, had been sought since he was indicted on a bribery charge on Aug. 17.

Churchill To Win Election British Official Predicts

Winston Churchill will head the government of Great Britain following the general election Oct. 25.

This prophecy was given as a personal opinion by A. C. Hall, deputy director, information office of the United Kingdom, Monday at the Rotary luncheon meeting. The speaker's topic of address was, Economic and Political Situation of the United Kingdom.

"It is my own personal opinion that Churchill will be returned with a margin of 30 seats," Mr. Hall said. "I have heard other opinions that his margin will be more —60 or even 90 seats, but I don't believe that he will gain more than 30. Unfortunately this is not an adequate margin with which to govern a great country in such times of turmoil."

The speaker presented a general picture of the coming election and then treated separately the roles that each party would play.

Minds Made Up

"The people will turn out in large numbers on Oct. 25," he said. "I believe that they have their minds already made up and will not be swayed by rhetoric on either side.

"We want to get the elcetion over with, get rid of the luxury of party platforms and get on with the job. The party planks that are being presented are unrealistic and the promises will never be kept. Neither of the two major parties—Labor or Conservative—have had the courage to face the issues that have to be faced."

The speaker explained that the attitude of the Liberals would have a great influence on the outcome of the election. With the realization that they can never again govern Britain as a party their support will play a leading part in the incoming government.

Liberal Candidates

They will put up only 115 candidates as compared with 487 last year. Eight will get elected and three-quarters of the remaining 107 will lose their £150 deposits.

"The issue will resolve itself in about 100 marginal seats," Mr. Hall predicted. "Labor will lose a great many marginal seats. Under our marginal system the Conservatives may receive a majority of seats, but a minority of votes."

Other personal predictions given by the speaker were that not one of the 10 Communist candidates would get in. And neither of the two Scottish Nationalists would be successful.

"Despite opinions expressed by some papers south of your border, Communists are getting nowhere in Britain, and if there is a growing of Scottish Nationalism it isn't reflected at the polls. Any anti-government feeling in Scotland is similar to the feeling of many in England which can be expressed best by the statement, 'for God's sake leave us alone.'

Few Independents

"The great strength and excellent feature of previous parliaments, the Independents, are gradually disappearing. The growth of the complicated and expensive political machine has resulted in only two independent candidates standing for the election.

Great Britain's economic situation also received thorough treatment in Mr. Hall's address. He pointed out that a tremendous effort for reconstruction and recovery had been made since the end of the Second World War.

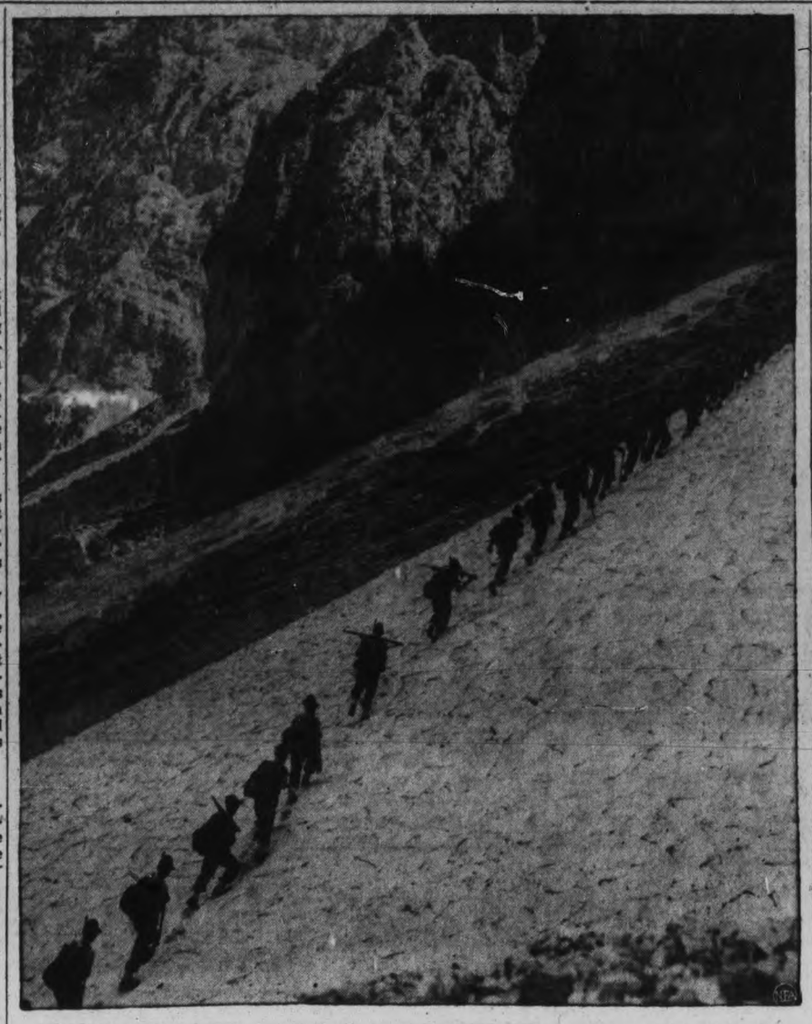
"In 1950 we were well on our way to solving our economic problem," he said. The British people felt that they were really getting somewhere. Rations were increasing and shops were filling up. And then came the shadow of the rearmament program.

"This is not just a paper program, but a $13,000,000,000 plan to be carried out over a three-year period. Of the $6,000,000,000 allocated for defence nearly $4,000,000,000 has already been spent or committed."

"We are proud of our military record. We have 900,000 men under arms. Three of our divisions, fully equipped, are in Europe and another one is going soon. We have been fighting Communism in Malaya for three years. Immediately at the beginning of the Korean war, the British naval forces were placed with the UN commander and we have troops fighting in Korea in a Commonwealth division."

The speaker explained that this program completely upset recovering economic conditions. It means that the British people will have to face at least another three years of austerity which will be even stricter than that experienced during war years.

"But it will not be catastrophic," he argued. "There will have to be drastic curtailment in consumption and what forms it will take are still not clear. We may be compelled to come to Canada and cut our purchases unless we can extend our exports.



Still Cheerful

"Despite the hardship facing the British people, they are in good heart. They realize that the rearmament program is necessary and with the exception of a lunatic fringe led by Aneurin Bevan, the people are determined not to cut it."

Turning to the question of whether Britain will have to seek aid from Washington, the speaker said that it would depend on the results of a present study being carried on by the United Nations. This study will determine the share of each country in an international armed force.

"If Great Britain is called on for a proportionate share, the country will be able to go its own way. But if the share is disproportionate, we will have to come to the United States for aid. We don't want dollar aid if we only have to bear a fair share."

Mr. Hall was introduced by Charlie Hurst, president of the Peterborough United Nations Association, and thanked by Harold Death.

Historic Carpet At Regina House Now Under Cover

REGINA — (CP)—Saskatchewan's most historic carpet is going under cover. The carpet that has lain on the floor of the provincial legislature since 1912 is being covered by a new rug, not so faded and bearing none of the marks of time or tradition, as yet.

The older one had many of those marks. It was trodden by virtually every governor-general of Canada since it was laid, as well as by the Duke of Windsor when he was Prince of Wales in 1919. The present King George and Queen Elizabeth walked on it in 1939. It has felt the weight of the late Stanley Baldwin when he was British Prime Minister in 1927, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and many other distinguished visitors.

It has also softened the fall of the occasional legislature member who fell asleep during droning debates and toppled over.

The old carpet was woven on a specially-made loom in Scotland. The new one, going down right on top of the old, was obtained at a cost of $12,000. The red carpet is part of the Chamber redecoration program.

The old rug is being left in place because otherwise a mat would have to be laid down to protect the underside of the new one. But the new carpet will also cover wiring for loud-speaking, broadcasting and recording facilities, devices that hadn't been heard of when the original carpet was laid.

School Bylaw Invalid Council Told

Work In Norwood On New High School Remains At Standstill

Peterborough county council has been given legal advice that its $390,000 bylaw to finance the high school in Norwood is invalid.

Meanwhile work on the high school, which will serve the Norwood High School Area, remains at a standstill. The men walked off the job a week ago Friday and have not returned.

A special meeting of the county council was held today to hear legal opinion of T. J. Carley, KC, on the validity of the county by-law. He was called in on the advice of F. D. Kerr, KC, county solicitor.

Mr. Carley found that before the county can borrow money to assist a high school area it must receive a resolution from a majority of the municipalities in the high school area requesting it to raise the entire sum by issuing debentures.

Two Comply

Only two of the eight municipalities (or sections of municipalities) complied with this regulation. They were Norwood and Otonabee. Those failing to do so were Havelock, Percy township, Hastings village, Asphodel, Havelock and Belmont-Methuen.

Reeves William Griffith, of Belmont-Methuen, and Ernest W. Seeney opposed the bylaw which was finally passed September 24. And Mr. Griffith first hinted at irregularities in the preparation of the bylaw. He also intimated he might take it to court and try to have it quashed.

Four of the municipalities apparently thought that filing their individual bylaws, approving of the erection of the $390,000 school, was the same as requesting the county to pass its own bylaw and issue debentures for them.

Mr. Carley said that certain

A LINOTYPE MACHINE in action is being shown to visitors at The Examiner's open house Monday night. Operator Fred Scates is setting a news story into type which goes through several processes before it appears on a printed newspage. Composing room foreman Vince Donoghue is seen on the extreme right. The Examiner will be also open tonight for more visitors to get the inside story of how their Examiner is produced.

Hours Petition Has Not Enough Garagemen Sign

A petition from proprietors of retail gasoline service stations proposing a new schedule of hours of business was reported insufficiently signed to the council Monday night by City Clerk Outram.

It asked for a bylaw to regulate the closing of the gasoline outlets in the city:

Monday to Friday, inclusive, 7 p.m. to 7 a.m. daily.

And weekend closing from Saturday at 7 p.m. until Monday at 7 a.m.

The bylaw would also provide for the issuing of sale permits during the closed hours to 15 per cent of the shops from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. each day.

Three Withdrew

Mr. Outram reported that of 51 gasoline retailers, 38 had signed the petition but that three of those who had signed it had subsequently withdrawn their names, leaving 35 signatures.

The petition required the assent of two-thirds of the dealers, and the number 35 did not meet that requirement. It was referred to the legal committee.

Crowds See Examiner Plant As Doors Open To Public

Citizens of Peterborough Monday night had a chance to see how The Examiner is produced each day and many took advantage of the opportunity. Many more will have another chance tonight. From seven p.m. to 10 p.m. groups of people were conducted through the modern publishing plant, department by department, by members of the office staff. In each department members of the staff connected with work involved explained the operation of their department and showed how the work was done.

They were taken first from the business office to the newspaper's library where they saw a newly-installed viewer which showed on a screen magnified pictures of old copies of the Examiner which had been photographed on micro-film for easy and compact storing. The viewer and microfilm are used by reporters and editors for quick reference to events recorded by the Examiners of years ago.

From there they were directed to the editorial room where news was shown coming in over a teletype machine from all points of the world. The operation of the editorial or news room which is the news-gathering centre for the newspaper was explained and the method shown in which stories and pictures were handled and sent out to the composing room to be set in type and put in the various pages indicated.

Composing Room

In the composing room they saw stories and ads being cast into lead-alloy type. Linotype operators cast the names of several of the visitors in metal type slugs such as are used in making up the pages of the newspaper.

They saw how the stories in type and the ads were put in the chases (metal frames). They saw the chases locked and matrices being pressed which were sent down a chute to the press room.

From the composing room they went down to the advertising department where ad men demonstrated how they design ads for businesses and stores in the city and the district.

The visitors then moved down into the basement where they saw Albert Stanley operating the Fairchild engraver which makes plastic mats from pictures that staff photographers take.

From there the guests of the newspaper went to the press room and mailing room where they were shown how semi-circular metal castings were made from the matrices sent down from the composing room and how the castings were put on the press ready for the paper to be printed and sent to the mailing room. Here bundles are made up for newspaper carriers and to be sent by bus to the many towns and villages throughout the district.

One Hour Tour

The whole tour of the plant took the visitors about an hour. They had ample chance to look at everything close at hand and to ask questions of the many members of the staff on duty to explain the workings of the various machines and processes.

Men in the composing room and the press room where most of the machinery is located found the ladies asked the most questions. The largest single group of guests were members of George St. United Church Young People's.

It was obvious that all the visitors enjoyed learning all the intricate workings and processes that each day go into the producing their daily Examiner.

Campaign Nets 303 Members In YMCA Drive

At their dinner to mark the scheduled close of the YMCA membership campaign Monday night, campaign workers learned from cumulative reports given by team majors that a total of 303 new and renewal memberships had been subscribed for.

Campaign chairman Stanley G. Payne commented: "This is a very satisfactory result considering that there have been only 15 canvassing days. It compares well with other years." He congratulated the team majors, captains and workers.

Mr. Payne noted that 303 memberships fell short of the campaign objective of 500. Division major C. S. Cummer reported that his group had membership cards to complete yet and suggested that more time be allowed. George Batley, reporting for the second division, had a complete roster, but agreed that more time to get new members would be helpful. J. E. Girven, third division major recommended that the campaign be extended for a week and that a final reporting dinner be held Monday, October 22.

It was thereupon decided to extend the campaign by one week, to be concluded at a supper next Monday.

Prizes were awarded for top campaign workers and presented by Alex. Sinclair. Prize for highest individual worker score went to Gordon Minty. Prizes to each member of the highest-scoring team were given to the team headed by S. J. Black.

Preview

For the 10 members of the Women's Study Group on Civic Affairs city council Monday night offered lean fare. However, there was interest in the change of office, and the bright and solid newness of the Morrow building. Mayor Swanston said the circumstances prompted a further welcome to the study group.

Fire Chief May Be Appointed Deputy Marshal

Fire Chief George Smith is recommended for appointment as Deputy Fire Marshal for the county in provincial organization for civilian defence. His nomination was included in the report of the finance committee, presented by Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman, at the first meeting of the city council in the new city hall Monday night.

The Fire Marshal of Ontario recently wrote the council conveying information about the proposed co-ordinating of local fire services. He is to be informed of the council's action, and also requested to inform the other municipalities of the county. There are local fire departments in Lakefield and Smith township, with similar volunteer brigades in Havelock and Norwood. Canadian General Electric Company also has its own shop fire fighting staff, which is well equipped.

Defence Grants

Grants to St. John Ambulance Association Corps were also provided at the request of the city's Civil Defence Committee. The sum of $500 is for immediate requirements of the Association, "and a further grant of $500 later when needed." These sums are for the purpose of assisting "civil defence training work" of the local Corps.

Westerly extension of Homewood Avenue and Gilmour Street was approved as recommended by City Engineer Chalmers.

Another clause in the finance report follows: "That Mason & Rishor, real estate and business brokers be informed that the city is willing to sell Mr. Jack MacCallum, builder and contractor the property the city owns adjoining part of lot 17, township lot 13, concession 13, of the township of North Monaghan, now in the city of Peterborough, for the sum of $704, in accordance with the recommendation of the Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis."

That clause relates to the parcel of property adjoining the G. W. Green estate land on the west side of Park St., north of McDonnel St. The combined area of these two properties is the projected site of some thirty houses, as reported at the recent meeting of the finance committee.

Cars Collide Head-on Auto Lights Blamed

A Rubidge St. man driving on a temporary permit blamed the blinding headlights of an unknown car for causing a head-on crash on Monaghan Road at 6:15 Monday evening.

William McNab of 332 Rubidge St., told police he had been blinded by the headlights of an approaching car just before colliding with a car driven by Joseph Wasik of 549 Monaghan Rd., who was travelling south.

No one was injured in either car and the collision resulted in only minor damage to both vehicles. Constable Sherman Kelele investigated.

Guests Sail From England; Will Come From US For Opening Of City Hall

Mayor, Councillor Bound For Canada, Busload To Come From New Hampshire; Plans Being Made For Visitors' Arrival

The formal opening of Peterborough's city hall will bring together on the municipal level representatives of three countries of an old kinship, Great Britain, the United States and Canada. Mayor G. R. Chamberlain and Councillor E. V. Martin of Peterborough, England, are on the sea bound for this city, and the formal opening of its city hall Friday, Oct. 26. Meanwhile, plans are reported on foot in Peterborough, New Hampshire, for a bus trip of citizens who wish to accompany their Select Men, completing the trinity of goodwill and understanding when they arrive in the midst of their Canadian friends in the city that bears the name of their own home town.

This is an after-cropping from the bequest of W. G. Morrow for the erection of a municipal building which he could hardly have perceived in his carefully thought decision to leave his estate to the people of Peterborough.

Mayor Chamberlain closed his door on the routine affairs of his office yesterday to sail for Canada and an adventure on a moderate scale in cultivating international relations within the English speaking family. He is being accompanied by Alderman E. V. Martin, a former mayor. Their wives complete their party.

Received Letter

City Clerk Outram received yesterday an air mail letter from Mayor Chamberlain repeating that he was looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to his visit to Peterborough. Friends of this city have volunteered to assist in the reception of the Chamberlain party.

The Bank of Montreal has arranged to meet them on their arrival in Montreal where they will be guests of the bank, which incidentally is this city's banker, and to entertain them there at luncheon and other felicities of their introduction to Canadian hospitality.

General Motors of Oshawa, through Mr. J. K. Hughes of this city, is providing an automobile and driver for their use while they are in this country. At the city hall it has been suggested that possibly this car will meet Mayor Chamberlain in Montreal, enabling them to see the southern front of Ontario by way of No. 2 Highway and the cities and towns along the river and lake front. Otherwise, they will come by train, arriving here in the evening, as expected, of Thursday, Oct. 25.

Lively Interest

From the New Hampshire Peterborough, Mr. Outram was informed yesterday that the invitation which was sent to its Mayor has stirred up just as lively anticipation as in the Old Country city.

It is understood that all the Select Men, equivalent to our city council, are keen about coming, with their wives. Town Clerk Algie Holt, promoter of acquaintanceship among the Peterboroughs, is also expected. The intimation is that altogether that may form a "real party," travelling by bus.

For the information of the taxpayers it is proper to report that the only expense to this city is Mayor Chamberlain's trans-Atlantic passage cost. He pays all the expenses pertaining to his wife's journey.

City council felt that the invitation to Mayor Chamberlain might broaden the significances of the function which he was invited to assume, and that it would hardly be fair to let him bear all the cost of the trip. This explanation should answer any question which might occur to some ratepayers in the course of the plans which are now approaching completion.

CATTLE SHOW WEDNESDAY

The public is reminded of the Holstein championships show at Morrow Park, Wednesday. Warm weather is promised, and if all the entries arrive there will be 213 head from 73 herds of East Central Ontario. This is one of the big cattle shows in Canada this year. There is no admission, catalogues are distributed, and there is ample seating accommodation.

Persia, Egypt Gov'ts Stir Up Trouble Deliberately

Reactionary governments in Persia and Egypt are stirring up oppostion to foreigners to detract attention from the extreme misery and poverty of the mass of the people in these countries as contrasted with the tremendous wealth and luxury of the rich minority.

This is the root of the explosive crisis in the Middle East, Alfred C. Hall ,information secretary to the United Kingdom High Commissioner and deputy director of the UK office in Ottawa told the Peterborough branch of the United Nations Association in an address at the Public Library Auditorium Monday night.

Speaking on the topic "The United Kingdom and the United Nations," Mr. Hall emphasized that it was a "little difficult for him to enter very deeply into the question of the Anglo Iranian oil controversy because it was before the UN Security and had formed a live-political football in the current British general election."

However, Mr. Hall drew on his experience gained while serving with the British foreign service in Teheran and Cairo to give a thorough analysis of the behind-the-scenes motives of the Persian and Egyption governments.

Want Justice

Mr. Hall stressed the fact that Britain "does not object to nationalization as such. There is a difference between nationalization and expropriation and naturally, we cannot accept the expropriation of the Anglo-Iranian oil refinery at Abadan in common justice or international law."

It is an evidence of Britain's continued faith in the UN that the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute is presently before the Security Council, said Mr. Hall in tracing the history of the formation of the UN and the key role played by Britain in the setting up and activities of the various UN agencies.

Questioned as to what might happen if the Soviet uses the veto in the matter, Mr. Hall said: "It will destroy the last vestige of faith and hope the people of Britain have in the UN as an effective law enforcement body."

Refused Compromise

By refusing to accept the ruling of the International Court of Justice, the Iranian government has indicated it is in no mood for compromise and is cashing in on the British government's weak majority and a delicate international situation where the slightest move could bring about war, said Mr. Hall.

"Hitler was the last person to tear up multilateral treaties unilaterally and our experience with Hitler has taught us that the best way to stop this practice is to take a stand.

"Artificial opposition to foreigners is being whipped up by the government to assuage the resentment of the oppressed masses and detract attention from its own failure to safeguard the welfare of its own people."

"In Egypt, the situation is practically identical," the speaker continued. "An ignorant peasant class and the rich pasha class in Alexandria and the British are the whipping boys again."

Poor Army

Referring to the poor showing of the Egyptian army against the ill-equipped army of Israeli in the struggle between Palestine and Israeli, Mr. Hall said: "The Egyptian army couldn't defend the Suez Canal for ten minutes. There are few in the Western world who regard the Egyptian army as being capable of defending the canal or even a portion of it against the Soviet. Perhaps the British couldn't do the job properly alone."

Turning to the Egyptian proposal to take over Sudan, Mr. Hall said it is "too ludicrous to bear consideration for even a second. The Sudan is a totally different country from the Nile Valley. The people are a Negroid race, and have nothing in common or any desire to have anything to do with Egypt.

Little Interest

"It has been virtually impossible to get Cairo to take any interest in Sudan for the last 50 years, Egyptians regard service in the Sudan as banishment. We have been nursing the Sudan toward self government. There is an elected legislative assembly and in a short time, a measure of full self government will be granted."

A question period followed Mr. Hall's talk and when asked what part the religious leaders were playing in the anti-British feeling spreading throughout the Middle East, he replied: "Two factions of the Moslem faith are constantly stirring up nationalistic fervor to further the interests of their own sect."

Mr. Hall was introduced by Charles K. Hurst, president of the Peterborough branch of the United Nations Association and thanked by the vice-president of the local association, Leo Copp, principal of the Normal School.

IMPRESSIVE BACKDROP — With the skyline of Detroit, Mich., as a backdrop Princess Elizabeth visited Government dock in Windsor, Ont., Monday morning. Would Give Princess Publicity Break

VANCOUVER, Oct. 16 (CP) — A suggestion that newspapers fully observe the three-day rest period arranged for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on Vancouver Island was made Monday by the Vancouver Daily Province.

The Province reproduced on its front page a message sent to Walter S. Thompson, chief information officer of the Royal tour, by Torchy Anderson, editor of The Province.

The message reads:

"Because of the tremendous strain on Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip, The Vancouver Daily Province suggests that scheduled three-day holiday on Vancouver Island Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Oct. 23-24-25 be made real holiday. If you so arrange this newspaper glad to cancel all coverage plans this holiday period and accept official news released and pictures from official source. Believe all newspapers and public would gladly co-operate to make island visit a real holiday. Certainly one well earned. Your views would be appreciated."

At Kapuskasing, Ont., where the Royal party stayed last night, Mr. Thompson said: "I thoroughly agree on human and every other grounds. I will use every influence I have with the correspondents to have them concur."

Freedom Train Czechs Sail For Canada

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Oct. 16 (Reuters)—Eleven of the 37 Czechs who fled their country aboard the "freedom train," which raced across the border into Bavaria Sept. 11, Monday left for Canada from here aboard the Norwegian ship Goya.

Among them were the initiators of the daring escape, locomotive engineer Jaroslav Konvalinka and the station master, Karel Truska.

The emigrants have signed one-year work contracts. They are being taken to Canada under the auspices of the International Rescue Committee.

Conservative Leader Charges Government Wasting Defence Money

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 (CP) — George Drew charged the government Monday with spending more than $3,000,000,000 for rearmament with "very little" to show for it.

The defence department, he told the Commons during the throne-speech debate, is putting a "verbal smoke-screen" on its activities. He demanded that a house committee be set up to make an investigation of defence expenditures.

Canadians had been told that Canada had developed "the finest anti-tank gun in the world . . . the world's most's advanced anti-submarine vessels . . . the world's most powerful jet engine . . . the world's best all-weather fighter."

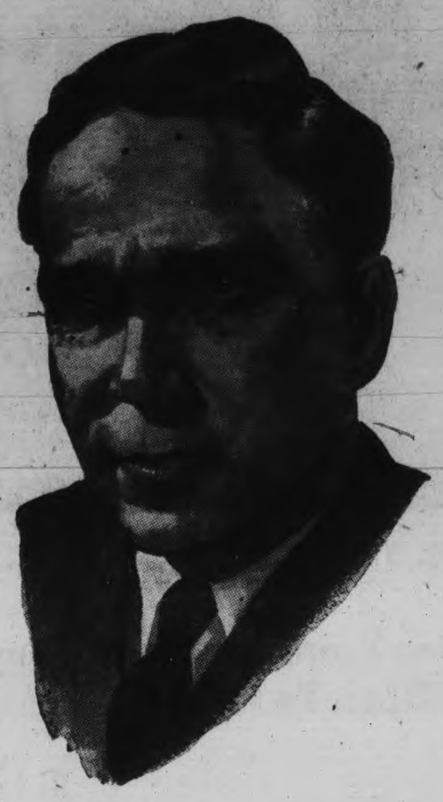
But where are these weapons, asked Mr. Drew. Canada had started its rearmament program three years ago.

In two world wars, Canadians in uniform have shown their effectiveness and efficiency. But "it is unworthy of their great achievements and their valor, to say nothing of their sacrifice, that the people of Canada should be lulled into a state of complacent optimism by boastful statements which are so completely divorced from the facts."

Way Behind

The air force was to be the core of Canada's defence effort, with one-half of the expenditures made on that service. Yet one Canadian newspaper military writer had pointed out as of Oct. 1 there are only two fighter squadrons ready for action, Mr. Drew said.

"The situation in regard to the land forces is equally uncertain," he added.



When Canada was asked to make a contribution of troops to Korea, the Commons was told that Canada could not send its airborne brigade out of the country because of the threat from Canada's north.

"Now at a time when the dangers have certainly not diminished, the airborne brigade is being sent out of Canada with no trained airborne brigade to take its place.

"If the explanation for not sending the airborne brigade was valid in the first place, what is the reason that we do not need a trained airborne brigade at this time It is such contradictions as these that make it difficult for the members of this house and for the people of Canada to know what is fact and what is fancy."

Rommel Featured By BBC As Desert Rats Rejected

LONDON, Oct. 16 — (Reuters) —Six thousand "desert rats" — veterans of the British Eighth Army's North African campaign in the Second World War—Monday let go a war whoop at the BBC.

For the first time since the end of the war their annual re-union Friday won't be broadcast by the BBC.

Reason: Winston Churchill will be guest of honor. With an election next week, the BBC won't risk the charge of being accused of political favoritism by giving him air time. Election broadcasting is strictly rationed and even comedians' jokes are censored during the campaign if they have a politcal flavor.

What makes the veterans even madder is that the substitute program billed by the BBC consists of excerpts from the movie, Rommel—Desert Fox, which has been criticized for glamorizing the Nazi general who was the Eighth Army's chief foe.

Hundreds of letters of protest have poured into the BBC headquarters. Monday Field-Marshal Montgomery, who led the Eighth Army and who will attend the re-union, asked 20th Century-Fox to give him a private showing of the movie. He will see it just before the re-union.

Thieves Rob Garages In Three Towns

COBOURG, Oct. 16—(ENS)—Apparently taking advantage of the absence of provincial police attending to their royal duties, thieves broke into the service stations in the district early Saturday morning.

It was the third robbery in as many years at Goody's service station in Grafton where thieves stole about $500 worth of tires and batteries.

They also broke into Onyon's service station and garage at Colborne and into a third one at Trenton. In each instance tires and batteries were the main items stolen. Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine is investigating the Grafton robbery.

Says Canada House Trying To Discourage Settlers

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 16 (CP).—Canada House in London, England, doesn't do much to encourage Britons to emigrate to Canada. Dr. Murdock MacKinnon, Department of English, University of Western Ontario, told the London Rotary Club at a noon luncheon on Monday.

He said Canada House "seemed lackadaisical about it."

The criticism did not apply to Ontario House, which was doing a great deal to bring Britons here, he said.

"I talked to several people who said they would like to go to Canada, but could not make it because of delays and holdups at Canada House. So they all go to Australia."

"Canada House seems to be trying to keep them out of Canada," he charged.

Dr. MacKinnon recently returned from a year in Great Britain, living in many sections of the country.

Science Changes Life On All Country's Farms

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canada's industrial development in recent years has tended to make us forget the most important industry of all—agriculture.

Minerals of otherwise barren wastes turn our eyes from the croplands; oil beneath the prairie shouts louder for attention than the grain that grows green on the surface; new factories fill the air with clamor, while the farmer works in quiet open spaces.

The current Monthly Review of the Bank of Nova Scotia considers all this under the heading, "New Ways In Agriculture"; and tells a story of mechanization, scientific advances, rural electrification, and a generally better way of life—a way, however, which as yet is unevenly shared.

In the words of the Review:

"A single implement, the one-way disc with seeder attachment, has largely replaced the conventional plow, the harrow and the seed drill, performing their successive functions in one swift, time-saving operation. The combine harvester performs the function of the old binder and the threshing machine."

On The Prairies

"It has been said that with the tractor, the one-way disc seeder, the combine and the truck, one man can do spring tillage, seeding, summer-fallow and the harvesting on a section or a one-and-a quarter section farm (640 to 800 acres), with the aid of only one extra man at harvest time to truck the grain to the elevator."

Further:

"Mechanization has reduced by many thousands of acres the cropland needed to grow feed for draught horses, and released those acres for commercial crop production or for use by other types of livestock."

Horses on prairie farms dropped from 2,229,539 in 1926 to 796,500 at June 1 last; while tractors increased from 50,136 in 1926 to 151,161 in 1946, the latest tractor figures available.

(Alas, poor Dobbin!)

Special Crops

"Indeed," says the Review, "the chief operations still awaiting mechanization are in connection with such special crops as sugar beets, tobacco, fruit and truck crops, and with the care of livestock."

The result, the Review notes, is that over the last 30 years, though farm production has increased substantially, there has been little net increase in the number of agricultural workers. On the Prairies, between 1931 and 1946, farm population actually declined by about 200,000, or 17 per cent.

As for scientific advance, the Review comments:

"Canada is famous for her success in developing the early-maturing and rust - resistant strains of wheat. But even in Canada, for every thousand who may know the name of Marquis wheat, perhaps not one realizes the extent to which Canadian agriculture has benefited from the search for earlier, higher-yielding, diesase-resistant strains for other crops, scecifically adapted to climatic and other conditions in specific areas.

"Such work has been an important factor in the growth of an efficient and profitable tobacco-growing industry, the successful establishment and spread of soybeans and husking corn in Ontario, and the recognized excellence of Canadian oats and malting barley that makes them highly-desired in the United States.

Me! Gamble with my family's money?

"Yes, Bert! If anything happens to you it is your family's money, isn't it? Insurance, stocks, bonds, house, savings . . . you've planned it all for their future security, haven't you?"

"Certainly! But how can you say I'm gambling with their money, just because I want to appoint you my Executor? Surely I can trust you, George."

Big Sticks that Span the Growth of Canada

LAMINATED WOOD LEADS THE WAY TO NEW EASE AND ECONOMY IN CONSTRUCTION

Do you know even a little of the story of laminated wood? Then you realize that a new era has already dawned in Canada. It's an era geared to the pressing need for ease, speed and economy in modern construction.

The story begins with the Douglas fir—the 'big stick' that grows in B.C. Straight-grained, tough and durable, it's one of the strongest of all woods. And once it's kiln-dried, the stage is set for making one of the world's finest permanent structural materials—laminated wood.

Here at Timber Structures, the kiln-dried timber is precision milled then "welded" together under pressure with glues that provide an everlasting bond—stronger than the wood itself! Yet, despite its strength, its ability to stand tremendous stress and strain, laminated timbers can be perfectly shaped for almost every type of building you can think of—from factories, barns, ships, barges and warehouses to schools, churches and community halls. Drop a line to any of our offices and learn about the wonders and economies of laminated wood construction.

Britain's Election Campaign Steps Up As Lists Closed

LONDON, Oct. 16 (CP)—Britain's "demure" election campaign stepped up a notch Monday as the closing of the nomination lists clearly defined the sides in the Oct. 25 voting.

But the increase in vigor came mostly from the candidates. The electorate appeared lacking in enthusiasm.

Conservative Leader Winston Churchill, in his most vigorous attack yet on the Labor government, called the Socialists a "very serious evil to our country." He scored Prime Minister Attlee's government for its attitude toward the United States.

Attlee, seeking to enlarge his precarious margin in the House of Commons, delivered six speeches in Labor's "grass-roots" campaign.

The closing of nominations showed there will be a huge floating vote—estimated as high as 2,500,000—to be fought for by the two big parties. Most of the "floaters" are adherents of the once - dominant Liberal party which posted only 108 candidates for the 625-member house.

Labor fielded 617 candidates and was matched by the Conservatives and their anti-Socialist allies. The Communist party put up only 10, and other splinter parties named 23.

Buoyant Campaign

Churchill, wartime prime minister, called the campaign "buoyant."

But the Daily Telegraph, a staunch Churchill supporter, suggested it might better be described as "demure."

The Telegraph and the Independent - Liberal Manchester Guardian agreed that radio and television may be replacing door-knocking and oratory in the hustings.

"When voters can thus be wooed in their millions by their own firesides, election meetings and poster campaigns are apt to lose some of their interest and importance," the Telegraph said.

Mused the Guardian: "Perhaps we are mostly content to listen to a few radio performers, good and bad."

But to Churchill and Attlee the old-fashioned stumping technique was still the thing.

Speaking at Huddersfield, Churchill said Labor had flopped in every field of governmental action during its six years of office. He assailed the "enfeebling tendencies and mental infirmities" of Socialism, and the Labor attitude toward the United States.

"...Their attitude has been to take everything they can get," he said. "Indeed, they have been maintained upon the bounty of capitalistic America while at the same time trying to become the moral superior over them."

Attlee denied, in talks at Derby and Rugby, that his government stifles energy or enterprise.

"There has never been a time when industry had more help than it has from the government today in stimulating new developments for research of every kind," he said.

INFORMATION SECRETARY TO THE UNITED KINGDOM'S high commissioner and deputy-director of the UK office in Ottawa, Alfred C. Hall, Centre was guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club on Monday. He is shown chatting with Rotarian Tom Sackville, Left, and club guest Charles Hurst. Mr.. Hall also addressed the Peterborough branch of the United Nations Assembly in the evening, of which Mr. Hurst is president. (See story on page 8).—Examiner Staff Photo.

St. Laurent Doesn't Do The Family Shopping But Hears Plenty About High Prices

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent admitted in the Commons Monday he doesn't do the family shopping himself, but he does hear plenty from the family shoppers about the "high prices" that they pay these days.

Just the same, the prime minister said, he believes it is cheaper to live in Ottawa than in Washington. He submitted a comparative retail price list as between the two cities to challenge those who said the American cost of living is cheaper.

Cost of living indexes notwithstanding, Mr. St. Laurent said it's the price the housewife pays that counts.

He started off with porterhouse steak. In a Washington newspaper of Sept. 28 he found it advertised for $1.34 a pound. In Ottawa last week it was advertised for $1.05 a pound.

Other comparative retail prices he gave the House: Milk 23½ cents a quart in Washington (for the smaller American quart) and 19 cents in Ottawa; 24-ounce loaf of white sliced bread, 18 to 21 cents in Washington and 15 cents in Ottawa; potatoes 10 pounds for 39 cents in Washington and 10 pounds for 35 cents in Ottawa.

He also had found Ottawa prices a half-cent cheaper per package on corn flakes; 20 cents cheaper on a one-pound tin of canned salmon and six cents cheaper on cheese as compared with the cheapest American cheddar.

Aid To Alcoholics

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP) — A five-cent-a-day pill that makes alcoholics sick if they take a drink now is available for all doctors to prescribe, it was anonunced Monday. The white pill, trade name antabuse, has no effect until a person takes a drink. But then a drink will make him sick.

New Zealand Offers UK Moral Support

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Oct. 16 (Reuters) — Prime Minister Sidney Holland today assured Britain of New Zealand's moral support in every action she might take on Egypt's breaking of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty.

At the same time, Australian Premier Robert Menzies said in Canberra he hopes King Farouk will exercise his influence with the Egyptian government to avoid "hasty and ill-considered action which could have the most serious consequences."

Holland told the New Zealand House of Representatives: "where Britain goes, we go. Where Britain stands, we stand. We will support Britain in her attitude without any qualification and we will support her to maintain her rights."

Fire Fighter Started 20 Jobs For Himself

TAUTON, Somerset, England, Oct. 16 (AP) — Roger A. Pearce 23, a part-time fire fighter paid on a piecework basis, admitted today he started 20 jobs for himself in just over a year.

Police witnesses estimated the damage at more than £20,000. Most of the fires were in barns, haystacks and schools. No one was killed or injured.

Pearce pleaded guilty to arson charges and was sentenced to 14 years in prison.

Make Sugar Deal

TEHRAN, Oct. 16—(AP)—Iran Monday accepted a Russian offer to sell 32,000 additional tons of sugar. The sugar was offered by Russia as a supplement to their existing barter agreement.

Make $10,000 Grant

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP)—On the recommendation of Welfare Minister Goodfellow, the Ontario government has made a grant of $10,000 to the Essex county home for the aged. The grant represents 25 per cent of the cost of an addition to the present premises.

Promises Big Changes In Civic Management

OTTAWA, Oct. 16 (CP)—Sharp changes in civic administration were promised Monday night by Mayor Charlotte Whitton in her inaugural address as the capital's civic head.

Miss Whitton, the only woman mayor of a Canadian city, outlined sweeping programs for municipal reform and development.

Her proposals included an immediate conference with federal officials on payments due Ottawa in lieu of taxes and for development of city services; a new zoning code to cover the entire city; revamping assessments with provincial guidance; stringent controls on civic expenditures and conferences on the financial position of the Ottawa Transportation Commission and the Ottawa Hydro Commission.

Youthful Artist

REGINA (CP).—When Alan Murray was in Grade 2 at Davin school he painted a picture of a fire with firemen, hoses, ladders and a fire truck. The picture now is printed on the cover of "Fire Prevention Education," a manual for Saskatchewan teachers. Alan now is in Grade 6.

Returning Officers

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP) — F. R. Palmer, St. Thomas, has been appointed returning officer for Elgin. T. H. Carson, Owen Sound, will act in the same capacity in Grey South.

Mrs. Lockhart Hostess To Oak Heights WA

WARKWORTH, Oct. 16—(ENS)—The Women's Association of Oak Heights United church met at the home of Mrs. L. Lockhart with a splendid attendance of members and visitors.

The early part of the afternoon was a sewing period where the ladies sewed quilt blocks and fancy work.

The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. S. Lawrence. Mrs. Jack Potter read the scripture lesson and the Rev. H. G. Lester gave a brief address on "Thanksgiving." The secretary, Mrs. Alvin Pratt, conducted the roll call and the members responded with verses referring to "Thanks."

In the business period a committee, composed of Mrs. Douglas Langford, Mrs. Alvin Pratt, Mrs. Clarence Ferguson and Mrs. Jack Potter, was appointed to decorate the church for the 60th anniversary services on Sunday, Oct. 21. A committee was also appointed to be in charge of a home-baking sale to be held at the November meeting at the home of Mrs. Jack Potter.

Mrs. Clarence Ferguson was the convener for a program, consisting of readings by Mrs. L. Tucker and Mrs. Bruce Porter, and a "music contest" was conducted by Mrs. Alvin Pratt.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Douglas Langford moved a vote of thanks to the hostess for her hospitality.

A baking sale of home baking was held by a committee composed of Mrs. George Beatty, Mrs. A. McMurdo, Mrs. Jack Potter and Miss C. Payne.

To Free Youth

THREE RIVERS, Que., Oct. 16 (CP)—Leo Pellerin, 18, is lodged in jail today because, police said, there was talk of lynching among his neighbors in St. Etienne, 15 miles northwest of here. Pellerin was taken into custody during the weekend while police were investigating the disappearance of Maxime Gelinas, 60, popular taxi driver of St. Etienne. Police said they now believe Pellerin had nothing to do with Gelinas' disappearance Saturday. They said they intended to release Pellerin after his questioning.

Gets Life Sentence

WINNIPEG, Oct. 16 (CP) — The first man convicted as an habitual criminal in Manitoba must serve a sentence amounting to life imprisonment, the Manitoba Court of Appeal ruled Monday. Trustees Make Study Of Shop Program

BANCROFT, Oct. 16—(ENS)—The shop program in a secondary school should be as practical as possible decided the trustees of North Hastings high school, during a round-table discussion at their regular board meeting on Thursday night.

Following the same line of reasoning they also agreed that a boy should have plenty of practice in repairing simple household articles and in building objects that would be useful around the house or farm. Many favored the plan of having all students work at such jobs as building a cabin or garage or any other small building.

Howard Burlanyette of Wicklow-Bangor-McClure and Gordon Broughton of Bancroft presented a recommendation stressing the advisability of teaching simple every-day carpentry. It carried unanimously.

Deal In Legal Manner With Malicious Neighbor

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: A few months ago, while my daughter was living away from home but in the same city, an announcement appeared in an out - of - town paper of the marriage of a girl with the same name. A neighbor of ours started a rumor that it was our daughter. She has spread this story, with some additions of her own, all over town. There is absolutely no truth in anything she says, but naturally people are beginning to wonder. Even my good name is being used in some of these tales. How can they be stopped? M. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you have witnesses to testify that your neighbor is spreading libelous tales, and proof that will refute them, you have a good case to take to law. If you do not know a lawyer, or feel you can't afford the services of one, the Legal Aid Society in your city will render assistance.

Her Act Inexcusable

Humanity's lowest level is reached by people who have no better use for their time than to spread malicious gossip. Only someone with an infinitely evil mind can use the gift of speech to defame another. The fact that occasionally there may be a modicum of truth behind the lies does not mitigate their baseness, but when the infamy is compounded entirely of falsehoods the instigator is indeed without conscience. Shakespeare truly said, "Good name in man or woman is the immediate jewel of their souls." One who would either begin, or carry on, a slander to impugn the good name of another is guilty of a crime worse than theft of goods. Material things can be restored, a damaged reputation cannot be repaired.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a woman of 41 with a grown son and daughter both married. Recently I was married again to a wonderful man. Our trouble is with his son. The boy was 2½ when we were married, and had been brought up by my husband's people. They had never taught him anything, and he was hopelessly spoiled. Now I am having a very difficult time teaching him manners and trying to make him mind me. He talks back and resists any punishment I give him. I never had trouble of this kind with my own children. I don't know whether to leave the house or turn the child back to his grandparents. He likes me, but just won't obey. D.M.

ANSWER: No matter how discouraged you get, and I know a stubborn boy that age can be a trial, try to keep him with you. You will be a much better influence on him than his grandparents and when the child is straightened out you will be richly rewarded in the knowledge of a good job done.

I suggest first a thorough physical examination of the boy. Make sure his hearing and sight are good; impairment of either sense often leads to behavior problems. Then consult a family counselor or child guidance director. Either may be located through your telephone book. Remember, this youngster has never had a permanent home, has never known the security of parental love and is bound to be difficult until he has the assurance of being surrounded by love and harmony.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a senior in an all-girl high school. We are having our prom this fall. I'm going steady with a boy and plan to ask him to the prom. I understand that I'm expected to buy the tickets, but am I also expected to pay for the transportation? PUZZLED

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Many high schools have adopted the excellent practice of issuing prom leaflets in preparation for this so-important event. The leaflet lists all the obligations of the girl and boy, expenses, proper attire, etc. A faculty advisor at your school should be at hand to solve such problems for you. Knowing exactly how to conduct all details of the prom will make the evening much more pleasant for you, as well as all the other girls.

As you understand, tickets are paid for by the girl, but all other expenses are the boy's. At least, that is the usual custom. Any deviation at your school will, I am sure, be explained by your advisor.

Women's Hospital Group Cheers Men Patients

REGINA (CP).—The term Mrs. Catherine Murray uses to describe the work done by the lady patronesses of the Regina Grey Nun Hospital is "jollying-up."

It is as useful in 1951 as it was in 1909 when Mrs. Murray began visiting public ward patients in the hospital. At that time the work of the lady patronesses consisted of hospital visiting and helping the nursing sisters.

Then a new hospital was built, and the ladies' group helped solicit money for operating room supplies and extras for the nurses.

Their work of visiting the ward patients continued as the main part of their program.

Not Much Change

"There were no cigarettes in those days," said Mrs. Murray, "but that's about the only difference in our visiting work."

Now the lady patronesses visit every ward and every patient twice a month, giving them cigarettes, candy, fruit and a cheery smile.

In addition to their public ward visits, which include men, women and children patients, the lady patronesses have begun an ambitious program in another wing of the hospital.

There, cancer patients can have the benenfit of an occupational the benefit of an occupational weaving, ceramics and other crafts.

What's Right?

You see a doctor that you know in a hospital corridor.

WRONG: Say, "Good morning, Doc."

RIGHT: Say, "Good morning, Dr. Jones" or "Good morning, Jim"—if you are on a first name basis.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

How Chefs In Maritimes Cook Lobster

The lobster was supposed to be the stellar attraction and, if Miss Binnie had not been present, I would have thought it was wonderful — but Miss Binnie was better than wonderful.

This little lady is Supervisor of Home Economics Classes in Nova Scotia high schools. She was highly praised by Abbie Lane, who is Halifax's official and unofficial mistress of ceremonies with and without portfolio. (That's a press gal's definition of Abbie. Abbie Lane is an alderman and a radio commentator and a grand girl—but nobody ever calls her husband "Mr. Abbie Lane." That tells you a lot.)

Since Abbie Lane said "Miss Binnie is a must for you, Mary," I took heed. I invited her to come to dinner with me to a sea-food restaurant.

I was fascinated with the masterful way she handled both the lobster and the conversation. Her sprightly talk about her interesting work never skipped a beat as she deftly extracted the morsels of lobster meat from the shell.

I tried not to be too awkward, but to Maritimers it must be slightly pathetic to watch an inlander's first glance of dismay, as that split broiled lobster is placed before him. How do you tackle the creature?—and afterwards you think what a lot of wrestling for such a small return—elixir and ambrosia though it was.

You folks with lobster know-how will have to bear with me, for I want to describe the stuffing which the chef at the Norman restaurant gave me in careful detail.

Broiled Stuffed Lobster

To prepare stuffing: saute the red roe and green liver in butter. Add about 4 finely crushed crackers. Season with onion juice, salt, pepper, minced parsley, and a bit of basil or marjoram or thyme. Stuff the cavity of the cleaned lobster lightly. (See method of cooking and splitting below.) Broil under very hot broiler, having some heat come from below too, so that both sides of shell become pink, and meat is cooked through. If lobster were not stuffed it is broiled with top side of shell up for from 6 to 8 minutes, then turned over and brushed with salted butter and given another 4 or 6 minutes on the other side. You cannot do this when it is stuffed because the stuffing would fall out.

TO COOK LOBSTER: Have ready boiling salted water. Plunge live lobster into it. Allow 10 minutes at simmering point for each lb. of lobster. Drain.

TO SERVE LOBSTER: With sharp knife, split cooked lobster open from head to tail. Remove black vein, small sac back of head, and spongy lungs. Crack claws. Serve hot with melted butter, or chilled with mayonnaise. Or pry body meat and meat from claws loose with lobster fork and use in hot dishes or salads, etc. Or stuff and broil as above.

The head chef at the Nova Scotian Hotel gave me his cocktail sauce for lobster. Roughly it is this: To 1 cup mayonnaise add about 1 tablespoon each very finely chopped cooked beet, sweet pickle, hard-cooked egg, stoned green olives, 1 teaspoon each capers, green onions, parsley, sweet red pepper. (If you do not want to chop it finely, put it through the food chopper.) Add 1 tablespoon each chili sauce and catsup. Mix well. Serve on generous lobster cocktail or other crustacean cocktail.

You will hear more of Miss Binnie and lobsters and the head chef.

Showing Of Fabulous Furs Attract Women In UK

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON, Oct. 16 (CP).—Furs that to most women are just a beautiful dream drew the main attention in an annual display of fur fashions at London's Dorchester Hotel.

Mirrored walls reflected the silky sheen of four-figure minks, most expensive of which was a Canadian brown mink costing £6,500.

Furs ranged from a £3,000 jacket in the newest of all minks, steel-grey aleutian, to the modestly-priced Peschaniki. This is a Russian fur taken from an animal like a marmot which has a softer, silkier fur. Coats and jackets of this skin made to look like mink, cost less than £200.

A challenge to North American mink comes from Japan. Although it closely resembles its western cousin, it sells for about one-third less.

Paris Touch

The show included £30,000 worth of furs from the Paris salons of Pierre Balmain. Paris mannequins with 21-inch waists and chignon hairdos swayed down a narrow aisle in sumptuous minks and ermines which, although Paris-designed, were fashioned in Britain. One number, a fashion frolic in mink, was a three-quarter cape decorated with autumn leaves that seemed to cascade from the armhole.

Furs shown had a wide range of fittings. Small sizes were so designed that the tiny woman did not look completely swamped in fur.

Derek Barder, director of the National Fur Company, said that at today's prices an all-mink wardrobe including pieces in royal pastel, white mink and silverblu, is quite an item. It would work out around £20,000.

CUT SOME PRICES

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP)—Price cuts on some nationally-advertised electrical appliances went into effect in some Toronto stores on Monday, but the merchants involved said they were trying to move heavy inventories. There was no indication of a general price war. At downtown department stores, the city's largest, no decrease in prices was reported.

STUDY CIRCLES POPULAR

STOCKHOLM (CP) — A total of 166,300 men and women enrolled in 1950 in study circles conducted by the Swedish Workers Adult Education Association, an increase of 7,000 over the previous year. About 28,000 were under 18 years of age.

Aluminum is friendly to food....

And hospitals know it well! In this gleaming hospital kitchen, aluminum cooking utensils do a double job. They meet the highest hygienic standards because aluminum is ideal in contact with food. And they cook hospital meals more quickly because aluminum heats so evenly. Millions of Canadian homemakers, too, protect the flavour and quality of everything they cook by using aluminum utensils.

ALUMINUM IS FRIENDLY TO HEALTH

ALUMINUM COMPANY OF CANADA, LTD.

OTTAWA CIVIC HOSPITAL
OTTAWA, CANADA

Department of Information,
Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd.,
Montreal, Quebec.

August 8, 1951.

Gentlemen:

The Ottawa Civic Hospital opened in December, 1924, with a capacity of six hundred beds and has been described as an outstanding example of Municipal ownership.

During 1942 a two hundred and forty bed Pavilion was added for Department of Veteran's Affairs patients and in 1946 the Strathcona Isolation Hospital with one hundred and forty-five beds was placed under the control of the Trustees of the Civic Hospital.

The site for the main hospital buildings was chosen with great care and with proper regard to the direction in which the city would expand. It consists of some thirty acres on Carling Avenue opposite the Dominion Experimental Farm.

Each year some twenty-two thousand patients are admitted, forty-five thousand out patient treatments are given, twenty-four hundred babies are born, approximately eleven thousand operations are done and one and one-half million meals are served.

It is well known that the dietetics of any hospital is one of its most important branches. Since the opening of the hospital, aluminum cooking utensils have been used consistently to the complete satisfaction of the medical and administrative branches of this hospital and the pleasure and enjoyment of its staff and patients.

Yours very truly,

W. Douglas Piercy, B.S.A., M.Sc.
Superintendent.

Hurricane Danger Over For Florida

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 16 (AP)—The Weather Bureau reported all danger of a hurricane in Florida at an end today as the Caribbean storm degenerated in squalls.

Another hurricane, the 10th of the season, sprang up 400 miles east of Jacksonville, Fla., Monday and by 5 a.m. today was southeast of Cape Hatteras.

Storm warnings on display from Cape Hatteras to the Virginia capes were expected to be hauled down during the day.

Strongest winds were estimated at 70 to 80 miles an hour a short distance north of the centre and gales extended 300 miles to the north.

Sir Donald Bailey Visits Port Hope

Sir Donald Bailey, inventor of the Bailey bridge which played a prominent part in World War Two in Italy and Northern Europe, visited Port Hope over the weekend.

While there with E. P. Muntz, consulting engineer to the Hydro Commission of Ontario, Sir Donald spoke to the Trinity College School students. They also attended an exhibition football game.

Sir Donald is the superintendent of the bridge construction, Military Experimental Establishment, British War Office.

Before visiting Port Hope, Sir Donald visited in Toronto, Hamilton and along the Ottawa River to Des Joachims, Petawawa army camp and Pembroke. On November 9 he will leave for the United States.

Cost Of Sewage Plant Reported Doubled

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 16—(CP)—City council was told Monday night by an engineering firm that a new system of interceptor sewers and a sewage disposal plant would cost more than $750,000 almost double an estimate made in 1945.

Of the total cost, $300,000 would be for a treatment plant and the remainder for the sewers. The system would be large enough to serve a population of 48,000, even though the present population is only 17,000.

Durham Liberals Nominate Warden Walton

On the first ballot George Walton, warden of the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland and reeve of Newcastle, was nominated Monday night Liberal candidate for Durham County in the November 22 provincial elections.

Contesting the nomination were two others, a third withdrawing before the vote was taken by the several hundred Liberal party supporters in Clarke Township Hall at Orono.

Nomination meetings of the other two parties, the Conservatives and CCF, will be held during the next week.

The full number of delegates represented each township, town and village, filling the township hall.

The main speaker, Walter Thompson, Ontario Liberal leader, charged the present Progressive Conservative Government with "crazy" spending and "compelling the people into extravagance."

Mr. Thomson criticized what he termed ornate homes for the aged which offered little for old persons.

On the other hand, Ontario's civil service salaries were so low there had been instances where "men have fallen by the wayside because they couldn't live on their pay."

A Popular Plan

He termed his party's hospital-care plan the "most popular thing" being offered by any party in the election campaign.

The party officers for the county were elected: E. R. Woodyard, Orono, president; Edward Frieson, Port Hope, 1st vice-president; Roy Nichols, Courtice, 2nd vice-president; Allan Beer, Bethany, 3rd vice-president; Eric Fallis, Cavan, 4th vice-president; Russell Honey, Port Hope, secretary-treasurer.

Hospital Workers Protest Bus Service

Shift workers at Peterborough Civic Hospital are complaining of the bus service to the hospital early Saturday and Sunday mornings.

The complaint was aired Monday night at the October meeting of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CIO-CCL) by Branch 19, National Organization of Civic, Utility and Electrical Workers.

Their spokesman, George Linsdell, said that shift workers could not get to the hospital by bus till 8 a.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday. He said shifts begin 6.30, 7 and 8 a.m. daily.

"Some of the workers have to hire taxis to get them there," said Mr. Linsdell.

"I don't see how the workers can afford taxi fares on the wages the hospital is now paying," commented Alfred Barber, president of the Labor Council.

Consult Bus Co.

Council then unanimously approved a resolution that the executive committee interview busline officials and see if extra service can be arranged.

Busline officials say there are not enough commuters to the hospital early Saturday and Sunday mornings to make it pay.

They point out that the Jackson Park bus would get them to the hospital by 6.40 a.m. Saturday (similar to the Sunday run). The Charlotte St. bus then takes over the run for the rest of the day. But on Sunday there is no service till the Jackson Park bus starts at 10 a.m.

"It wouldn't pay to have a special bus for half a dozen or so," said one company spokesman, "besides, I understand many of them go by car."

Missing Lumberman Found Alive, Well

GRAVENHURST, Oct. 16 (CP)—Albert King, 92, retired lumberman and this town's oldest resident, was found today alive and well two miles north of this Muskoka town.

Mr. King had been missing since Sunday when he did not return home from a walk to Muskoka Beach three miles away.

Million Dollar Jump In Twp. Assessment

BRANTFORD, Oct. 16 (CP)—A $7,204,887 jump in Brantford township assessment to $14,778,831 is reported by assessment commissioner Gerald Rowe. The assessment in 1950 was $13,573,944.

Population increased by 1,232 from 15,086 in 1950 which meant the assessment rose approximately $1,000 for every unit increase in population.

Marmora Driver Fined $125, Jailed 15 Days

Convicted of a series of charges arising out of an accident on Highway 7 west of Norwood on September 29, Roy Frederick Gordenier, 30, of Marmora, was convicted of driving while intoxicated, and sentenced to 15 days in county jail when he appeared before Magistrate W. R. Philp in Police Court today.

Gordenier pleaded guilty to driving a car while his permit was under suspension at the time of the accident, and was ordered to pay a fine of $100, and $2.50 in costs, or in default three months.

A charge of operating his car while the ownership permit was under suspension brought an additional fine of $25, and $20.80 costs, or 30 days when Gordenier pleaded guilty to the charge. Magistrate Philp said that if Gordenier defaulted on the fines, the two sentences of three months and 30 days on the two convictions were to run concurrently.

Two Dismissed

A charge of careless driving against Gordenier was dismissed when the Crown offered no evidence and Crown Attorney J. A. Bradshaw said the Crown would offer no evidence when Gordenier pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing a licence plate from an Ottawa car in Marmora the day of the accident.

OPP Constable Jack McKendry testified he was driving west on Highway 7 east of Norwood with Chief William Parcells, of Norwood, the evening of September 29 when he was forced off the road by a car weaving toward him.

Turning his cruiser around, Constable McKendry said he pursued the car through the village of Norwood but before he could overtake it, the car sideswiped another car just west of the village.

Constable McKendry said the car was still in motion when he arrived at the scene and Gordenier was behind the wheel. Questioned by Crown Attorney Bradshaw, Constable McKendry said "the accused appeared to be in a very intoxicated condition. He could hardly stand, his voice was distorted, and two hours after he had to be assisted from the cruiser to the county jail."

Stoppage In Speech

Defence counsel W. J. Arthur Fair entered a plea of not guilty for Gordenier on the charge of driving while intoxicated. Mr. Fair claimed Gordenier had a stoppage in his speech, was not able to "articulate properly" and was of a nervous, excitable nature that would lead anyone who did not know Gordenier to think he was drunk.

Forest Robinson, a passenger in Gordenier's car at the time of the accident, said Gordenier "talks like he is tight and a stranger might think he is drunk when he isn't."

Gordenier admitted having a bottle of beer with his father in the afternoon but denied drinking any more before the accident. He said he was blinded by the headlights of approaching cars just before the accident.

Swerved To Side

Cecil Harvey of 228 Westcott St., Peterborough, driver of the car which was sideswiped by Gordenier said he saw the car almost hit the rear of the car in front of him and although he swerved to the side of the road, he was unable to avoid the collision.

Crown Attorney Bradshaw in asking for a conviction on the charge pointed out that Gordenier had been convicted of a drunk driving charge in Cobourg in April.

Magistrate Philp said that while "much had been made of the man's physical condition and his difficulty in articulating, I must admit he didn't appear to have any difficulty giving evidence."

With respect to Gordenier's driving, Magistrate Philp said he would not have founded the conviction on Gordenier's "excitability" at the scene of the accident alone but was basing his judgment on Constable McHendry's evidence that the accused was "still not in a normal condition two hours after the accident" and on his original driving before the accident.

After being convicted on the drunk driving charge, Gordenier pleaded guilty to the charges of driving while his permit was suspending and operating his car while the licence was under suspension.

Magistrate Philp continued the suspension of Gordenier's driver's licence and ordered the car impounded for three months but denied the request of Crown Attorney Bradshaw that the car be forfeited to the crown.

Jaycees Hold Two Clinics At Coaching Congress

Increased interest in the municipal affairs and effective speaking programs of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada was aroused at the Region 6 Coaching Congress held here on Saturday, October 13. There were 49 Jaycees registered for the congress and 85 persons attended the main banquet. Units representing Region 6 included Ottawa, Arnprior, Renfrew, Hawkesbury, Kingston, and Peterborough.

Two clinics were the principal feature of the congress and both were attended by the full delegate registration. During an executive meeting a resolution proposed by Peterborough to establish regional chairmen in all committees conducted from the national level was adopted. The purpose of the motion is to coordinate all Jaycee levels.

At the first session Jack Gray, Arnprior president, conducted the effective speaking clinic. Adopting a unique program Mr. Gray held a typical Jaycee effective speaking meeting. Each delegate was required to speak on the subject: Why I Should Attend the Effective Speaking Course. Mr. Gray scored each presentation on an assessment chart.

Municipal Affairs

Following luncheon at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club Cliff Chatterton, Ottawa national affairs chairman, addressed the municipal affairs clinic. All units in Region 6 will conduct a short course in municipal affairsm, a program drafted by Mr. Chatterton.

Mr. Chatterton said the course was a basic understanding of how municipal administration operates. In more advanced projects, he said, Junior Chamber units could undertake the study of town planning programs, recreation programs, or the question of city manager appointments.

Fourteen delegates teed off in a Region 6 golf tournament directed by Ken Billings, past president of the Peterborough unit.

Wilson M. Gemmell, Royal Bank manager, was the guest speaker at the banquet. One theme stressed by the speaker was that members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce should view their Jaycee association as an investment and with that aim in view "to spend your time as you spend your money."

Al Tingley, second vice-president of the Peterborough unit, introduced the speaker. A vote of thanks was given by Jack Gray, Arnprior. Mr. Gemmell was presented with a Peterborough paddle by Fred Spratt, banquet chairman and Region VI President.

Dance

Tony Burns and Frank Booth, assisted by Mrs. Hilda Booth and Bernie Morin, provided excellent entertainment prior to the Congress dance.

Mrs. W. E. Fanning, chairman of the Study Group on Civic Affairs, was guest speaker at the ladies luncheon held in the YWCA Green Room. Mrs. Fanning outlined to the Jaycee wives how the local Study Group operates and the need for more women to take an active interest in civic affairs in their communities.

Mrs. Kay Lavictoire introduced the speaker and a vote of thanks was given by Mrs. Irene Lathangue. Mrs. Fanning was presented with a bouquet of flowers by Mrs. Lathangue.

Distinguished guests were Ivan Sparks, Ottawa, Secretary-General, Junior Chamber of Commerce International, and Eldon Wooliams, Saskatoon, past National Vice-President.

George Hutchison was chairman of the Coaching Congress.

School Bylaw

sections of the Ontario Municipal Act might solve the difficulty. The Municipal Board has the right, according to provincial legislation, to approve any municipal bylaw no matter how badly drawn up.

Since the controversial bylaw was passed six of the eight municipalities have forwarded their resolutions as required. In Mr. Carley's view this is technically wrong but the Municipal Board might outlaw it just the same.

The difficulty then arises that if the dispute is taken to court the decision might be that the Municipal Board has overstepped its mark in validating the bylaw. A recent court decision to this effect has made legal men jittery on this point. This could leave councillors open to suit for spending public funds illegally.

A more likely deadlock would be reached if the dispute was taken to court before the Municipal Board made any decision on it. The Board would then probably first wait for the court finding.

At noon today when a puzzled county council adjourned they were in this position: go ahead and take a chance that nobody will take them to court over the bylaw, at the same time hoping for the approval of the Municipal Board; or, start all over again.

Transient Injured In Oshawa Accident

OSHAWA, Oct. 16 (CP) — Maurice Deveiller, 30, of Yarmouth, NS, was in critical condition in hospital here today after being hit by an automobile two miles west of here Monday night.

Reported to be suffering from concussion, a broken left leg and head lacerations, the transient was apparently walking along the side of a highway when hit by a car driven by Mrs. Nora Maynard, Brooklin, Ont.

Dr. R. Wallace Named Education Consultant

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP).—Dr. R. C. Wallace, former principal of Queen's University, has been appointed consultant to the Ontario Department of Education, it was learned today.

Dr. Wallace will act as liaison officer between the Government and the universities of the province. He will advise chiefly on the manner and distribution of Government grants to universities.

Dr. Wallace, whose appointment is on a part-time basis, will be retained at $5,000 a year.

Two Bicyclists Hit By Car

Two Braidwood Ave. boys escaped with slight injuries when a car struck their bicycles from behind as they were riding along Monaghan Road at 9 o'clock Monday night.

Larry Ferguson of 485 Braidwood Ave., and Paul Sinclair of 509 Braidwood Ave., were riding north on Monaghan Road when a car driven by Herbert Thompson of 187 Antrim St., struck their bicycles in the rear at Hawley St. and Monaghan Road.

The impact threw the Ferguson boy into the car windshield, while Paul Sinclair was thrown off to the right side of the car.

Legs Scraped

Larry Ferguson received numerous scrapes and cuts, while Paul Sinclair's legs were badly scraped.

Both bicycles were wrecked in the accident. The right windshield, right front fender and right headlight of the car were damaged.

Constable A. Beardsmore, who investigated the accident, reported that Thompson's car left a skid mark of 35 feet.

Dr. J. R. Epping attended both boys in their homes.

Both bicycles were equipped with reflectors on the rear fender, but they did not have headlights, the constable reported.

Chief's Salary Raised Week Before Leaving

OAKVILLE, Oct. 16 —(CP)—Council Monday night raised police chief John B. Derry's annual salary by $250, less than a week before he is scheduled to join the RCAF.

Chief Derry joined the RCAF after he was publicly exonerated of charges of inefficiency levelled by the mayor and the question of a raise left undecided for six months.

At a previous meeting it was decided to pay the chief until the end of the year so he will collect part of his new salary boost. He has a five-year leave of absence to serve with the air force.

City Industrial Site Rented For Garden

Lease to Charles Kitney & Sons of three acres of the property bought by the city for industrial sites was authorized by the council Monday night in the adoption of the property committee report read by the chairman, Ald. Hugh Waddell.

The land is being rented for agricultural purposes at $30 a year plus taxes, "and will be vacated at any time the property is sold for industrial purposes, within 30 days of written notice, and other conditions as set out in the Kitney letter."

Calls Roosevelt Ruthless US Politician

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Jesse H. Jones says the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt was "all things to all men—always a politician."

Roosevelt was such a "ruthless" politician Jones says in his memoirs published today, that he was eager to have the United States enter the Second World War—so that it would assure his election for a third term.

Jones served Roosevelt for 12 years as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, huge government lending agency, and later as his wartime secretary of commerce.

In 1945, he was let out, and Roosevelt named Henry A. Wallace to take his place.

Now 77, and still busy as a Texas financier and publisher, Jones takes a long look back — and paints a bitter picture of the man who was his boss.

Few Views

Here are a few of Jones' views on Roosevelt:

"Regardless of his oft-repeated statement, 'I hate war,' he was eager to get into the fighting since that would insure a third term."

"He had no intention of leaving the White House until voted out—or carried out."

"In no sense did I feel his superiority over other men except that he was President and the greatest politician our country has ever known, and ruthless when it suited his purpose."

Jones thinks Roosevelt was a sick man when he went to the Yalta conference. And he also thinks that FDR wanted to bring Stalin under his influence.

"There he made still further commitments from which our country and the rest of the non-Communist world may never recover. A few weeks later he was dead—his ambition unattained."

Jones calls his book "Fifty Billion Dollars," because under his direction the RFC loaned or spent $50,000,000,000 in an effort to help the US out of the depression, and later, to stockpile materials for war.

Periscope Gives Peek At Atoms Through Wall

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

SCHENECTADY, NY, Oct. 16 (AP).—The first periscope microscope was announced Monday jointly by the Optical Co. and the General Electric Co.

It is made to look through three feet of concrete in the knolls atomic power laboratory.

This microscope does its looking right in the areas where the atoms are splitting, and where the radioactivity at any moment may be greater than the rays of all the radium the world ever has mined.

The new instrument is really a double-barrel telescope. One barrel, a system of lenses carrying a beam of light through the concrete wall to the microscope slide, the other for looking at this slide. Both barrels are broken in the middle, like periscopes so light reflects to or from a lower barrel.

This break prevents the radioactive rays from going beyond the periscope breaks, because these rays cannot bend like light.

The microscope in the hot radio-active area is set and focussed by remote control. It is intended for examining metals. It could also see living tissues but nothing could live long enough in the radioactivity. The tissues would be dead by the time the microscope was focused.

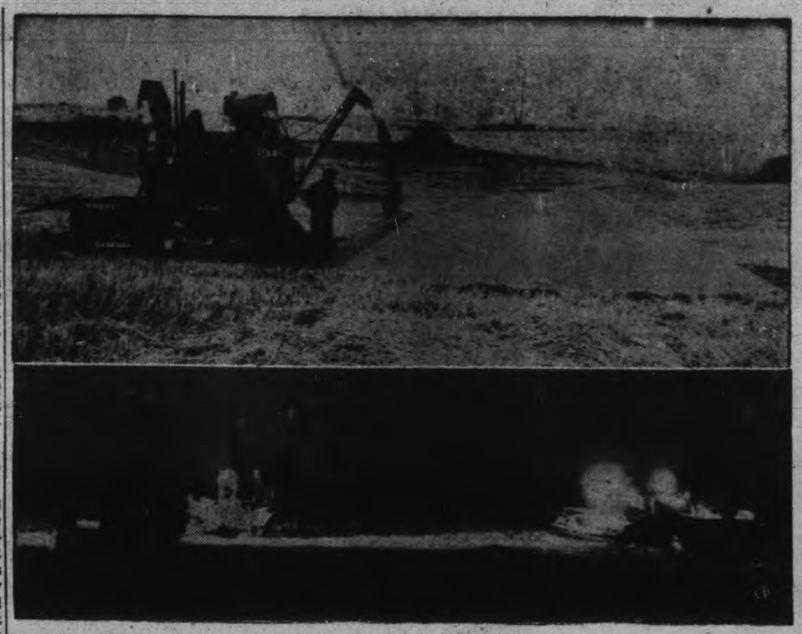
Guild Appeal Opens In Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP) — Hearing of an appeal by the Toronto Newspaper Guild against a decision quashing its certification as bargaining agent for employees of the circulation department of The Globe and Mail started Monday before five justices of the Ontario Court of Appeal.



The decision, handed down last June by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court, set aside a ruling by the Ontario Labor Board.

John H. Osler, for The Guild, told the appeal court:

"I appeal on several grounds which can be summed up in three main items. Mr. Justice Gale considered certain evidence not properly admissible. The court has no right or jurisdiction to review actions of the labor board. And thirdly, in any event, if the right of review exists, the certificate should not be quashed, because there is no denial of justice. The board did nothing unjust."

Mr. Justice Gale had held there was a denial of natural justice in the board's refusal to permit counsel for the newspaper to examine a Guild witness on the question of resignations from the Guild.

A section of the Ontario Labor Act prohibits an appeal from any Labor Board decision. Mr. Justice Gale in his judgment said he recognized this bar to a review of the board's orders but ruled that the courts could act to quash the certification on the ground that what he called the board's "denial of essential justice" had upset its jurisdiction.

Wine Hangovers Follow Beer Hike

MELBOURNE, Oct. 16—(Reuters)—Budget increases of two to three cents a glass of beer gave Melbourne its worst hangover in 20 years Monday.

The city court dealt with a record number of 106 drunk charges. Police put the blame on the more expensive beer which they said had driven many regular beer-drinkers to switch to "bottled plonk"—cheap wine.

Develop New Weapon

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP)—Canada has developed a bazooka-type anti-tank weapon more accurate than any such weapon in the world arsenal, Dr. O. M. Solandt said Monday. The chairman of the defence research council told a Canadian Club luncheon the anti-tank bazooka is one of several projects undertaken by Canadian research teams. There was a possibility it might be adopted by the western allies because of its accuracy.

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 16 — (CP)—A souvenir hunter has stolen a beautiful deckle-edged card signed by Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh from Christ Church, where the Royal couple attended service Sunday morning. Begin Hearing

TORONTO, Oct. 16 (CP). — The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday began a hearing of an appeal by the public trustee, Armand Racine, against the decision by Judge T. H. Barton last June approving the final audit, covering a three-year period, of the estate of the late Joseph E. Atkinson, publisher of The Toronto Star.

"Headache?..take a Disprin"

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

84,000,000 Now In Japan Creating Great Problem

TOKYO, Oct. 16 (AP)—Japan's tiny island kingdom is groaning under a population of 84,000,000 people.

It is the highest level of Japanese population since vital statistics were first started in Japan 51 years ago.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters estimates Japan will reach a population of 100,000,000 by 1970 at the latest and by 1961 at the earliest.

Under new sanitation measures given Japan by the allied occupation, life expectancy in the islands has been extended 11 years compared with pre-war expectancy.

Japan is faced with two major problems caused by the growth of the population:

1. How is Japan going to curb a population which is bound to increase in the future?

2. How is Japan to keep unemployment down?

Family planning is on the increase in Japan. It is practised more in urban areas than in the country. The drop in births this year was attributed to the widespread use of contraceptives and to the increase in abortions by practising physicians.

Birth Control

The government recently estimated that 19 per cent of the Japanese now practise birth control. The government permits abortions in justifibale eugenic cases, penury and conceptions following rape.

The job of feeding the Japanese is becoming terrific. Up to 45 per cent of Japan's population is engaged in agriculture. But because of the mountainous terrain and the Japanese custom of splitting up farms among the sons, few farms in Japan today consist of more than five acres.

Under this system, each square kilometer of land in Japan would have to support 1,650 persons.

The Japanese as a nation are no longer indifferent to the problems of over-population.

Vatican Circles Surprised By Pope's Vision

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 16—(AP)—Sources close to Pope Pius XII said Monday the announcement at Fatima, Portugal, that the Pontiff had had visions of the Virgin Mary during the 1950 holy year had struck Vatican circles "like lightning".

Except for a very few persons, the news had been a closely guarded secret.

The revelation was made at Fatima Saturday by Federico Cardinal Tedeschini, archpriest of St. Peter's Basilica and the Pope's delegate.

But little official or semi-official elaboration was available at the Vatican.

Vatican sources agreed that Cardinal Tedeschini's revelation could only have been made with the consent and permission of the Pontiff.

These sources said the Pontiff at the time of the vision was directed by "a secret voice" to look up at the sun.

For several days before he proclaimed the dogma of the Assumption on Nov. 1, 1950—making it a tenet of Roman Catholic faith that the Virgin Mary went to heaven in body and soul—the Pontiff had a presentiment of some revelation by the Virgin, these sources said.

The vision occurred in the Vatican garden, while the Pope was taking his usual, daily rest.

ASKS FOR TREATY ANNULMENT — Nahas Pasha, Egyptian prime minister, asks his parliament in Cairo to approve the annulment of the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian Treaty, under which British troops are stationed in the Suez Canal Zone. Britain says it will not pull its troops out of the Suez.

Newlyweds Feted By Community

WARKWORTH, Oct. 16 (ENS)—An unusually large crowd gathered at the town hall Friday to honor a recently married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dingman (nee Mona Sullivan of Caledon, Ont.)

There was dancing and a program of readings and music with A. B. O'Connor as master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Frank Boyce read an address to the young couple, who had been called to seats of honor on the platform by Mrs. O'Connor presenting on behalf of the community a dining table with four chairs to match. and the charivari party presented a smoker stand.

Outstanding among the numbers on the program were two numbers presented by the little Houlihan girls who were dressed to represent a bride and groom singing and tap dancing.

The program consisted of horn solos by Edward Thompson, Peter Morgan, Douglas Pearson and Allan Laver, all members of the Warkworth community band: Mary Lou Hermiston and Claire Windover sang a duet and Claire Windover sang a solo; Miss Ruth McCubbin sang. Mrs. W. Grant Allan conducted a comic contest Miss Fern Killingbeck played piano music ts the crowd assembled and she also accompanied the soloists and the duet singers.

Cobourg Mayor Presented To Royalty

COBOURG, Oct. 16—(ENS)—Mayor Jack Burnet of Cobourg was among the Ontario mayors presented to the Princess and the Duke at Trenton on Friday.

The Princess asked Cobourg's mayor which town he came from and was quite interested when he replied that it was Cobourg. She asked how far Cobourg was from Trenton. Never one to lose an opportunity to publicize the town, Mayor Burnet hastened to inform her about Cobourg and the fact that her grandfather had opened the town hall in Cobourg, when Prince of Wales, in the year 1860.

Actor Champions Rights Of Poker Player

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16 (AP)—Poker players of North America, you have a new champion.

He is that Georgia gentleman with a monocle, Charles Coburn, carrying on a campaign to protect the rights of card-playing citizens.

Coburn has more than a passing interest in the subject. He and a few Hollywood cronies were recently interrupted in a friendly poker match by a couple of police officers. The players were accused of breaking the gambling laws and were fined $15.

All a Mistake

"It was all a mistake," said the actor, who is oddly enough working in a picture called "Oh Money Money." "It seems that some neighbors had called the police about a licensed bridge club nearby. But when the officers arrived, only our light was on and they stepped in on us.

"We didn't have to appear in court. We saw the Judge in his chambers and he admitted that the law was ambiguous.

"That's why I am campaigning for a better law. After all, laws are made to protect peaceful, respectable citizens, not to punish them . . . This is a bad law. It permits law officers to enter private homes without a warrant.

"The police have enough crime to take care of without breaking up poker games. . . .

In the Vestry

Coburn said he received a flood of consoling mail after his citation. One letter was from a southern bishop who said he himself enjoyed "the Saturday night poker sessions in the vestry."

What about playing poker with women?

"I don't recommend it," Coburn said. "I never like to play it tough with women, because I hate to see them lose. But on the other hand, they show no mercy. They can be just as tough in a poker game as any man."

Many From Cobourg See Royal Couple

COBOURG, Oct. 16—(ENS)—Cobourg was well represented at the Royal visit. To Trenton went boy scouts from here, the Mayor and a large contingent of citizens.

Many took in the Toronto part of the tour, including 15 children who went up from Cobourg and district as guests of the Rotary Club. A group of CGIT members also went up from Cobourg. Those who went to Trenton got a good view of the Royal couple.

Barnyard Spectacle

Chickens have the nasty habit of pecking each other's eyes when they get into a tiff. And once the flock sees blood they all pile in and make it a free-for-all. One farmer made them cut out the rough stuff by making "spectacles" of aluminum foil. No more trouble!

We never know who will think up what new use for aluminum. But we do know that the demand for this light, strong, non-rusting metal keeps on going up and up and up. That's why Alcan is busy on new dams and power plants and smelters to further step up supply. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Arrest Ends Seven BankHoldups

Father of 3 Charged With Robberies Dating From 1949

TORONTO, Oct. 17. (CP)—A spare-time bank robber, addicted to false faces and moustaches, was blamed by police today for seven Greater Toronto bank hold-ups in the last two years.

Police said the man, who lived quietly in his Pickering home with his wife and three children—and who appeared more interested in landscaping the grounds than in any other activity—was at his best on "solo jobs."

Edwin Albert Boyd, 37, was arrested an hour after two men held up and robbed a branch of the Dominion Bank of $12,800. Howard Gault, 43, was arrested in a lane minutes after the hold-up. Police say they found the loot on Gault. Both were charged with armed robbery.

George Wilson, suburban North York sergeant of detectives, said today he had taken a signed statement from Boyd and that these charges were laid against him:

1. The $8,029 armed robbery of the Dominion Bank on Sheppard Ave., in North York, Sept. 1.

2. The $2,921 armed robbery of an Avenue Road branch of the Bank of Montreal, March 1[illegible].

3. The attempted armed robbery of an Imperial Bank of Canada branch Oct. 11, 1950, in which the bank manager opened fire on the gunman and beat him off.

4. The $2,018 armed robbery of a Dufferin Street branch of the Dominion Bank, July 4, 1950.

5. The 12,500 armed robbery of a North Toronto branch of the Bank of Commerce, July 18, 1950.

6. The $2,265 armed robbery Sept. 9, 1949, of the Avenue Road branch of the Bank of Montreal that was robbed last March 19.

7. A joint charge with Gault for the armed robbery of the Dominion Bank, Lawrence and Yonge streets.

2 Men Vanish No One Worried

LONDON, Oct. 17 (CP)—Two British psysicists who failed to return from their vacations set off another missing-scientist scare in London newspapers today. But Scotland Yard said it is satisfied there is nothing really wrong.

The scientists, both 26 and brothers-in-law, failed to return Monday to the government-sponsored National Institute of Medical Research. Both are engaged in medical research using radio-active isotopes.

London headlines said they are missing. "Two scientists vanish with families," said The Daily Mail. "Hunt starts for missing scientists," The Star said.

Scotland Yard said it had been informed the two physicists, Dennis O'Connor and William Campbell, merely had left their homes and "have not been reported missing."

The National Institute of Medical Research said the two physicists had worked with radio-active materials but had no direct access to any atom secrets.

Canadian Artillery Sends Reds Present

TOKYO, Oct. 17 (Reuters). — The 2nd Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery has let loose on the Communists a special shell marked "Present from Rock. 100,000th round 2nd RCHA."

It was the 100,000th shell fired by Canadian artillery since its arrival in Korea last May. The "Rock" referred to was Canadian Brig. John Rockingham, commander of the 25th Canadian Brigade.

Rockingham was on hand for the brief ceremony and fired the gun which released the special shell.

He told Canadian soldiers: "I have never seen a better field artillery regiment and I know the feelings I express are shared by the three infantry battalions of this brigade, who have complete confidence in your capabilities."

Elizabeth Finds Regina "Bit Nippy"

Light Snow Dusts Station As Royal Couple Shiver In Cold Zone

REGINA, Oct. 17 — (CP) — Princess Elizabeth, her nose reddened by a below-freezing bite in the air and clutching a mink coat tightly about her, today started her tour of wheat-growing Saskatchewan with Prince Philip.

The Royal couple stepped into the frosty day shortly after their arrival at 10.08 a.m. (12.08 p.m. EST)—eight minutes late. A crowd of about 15,000 Reginans and farm families from the spreading wheatlands shouted a Prairie "Hello," then followed them for two blocks as they drove to the city hall.

"A bit nippy," said the Princess as she came off the train.

But she and Prince Philip seemed to enjoy the typical Prairie autumn day, though their breath was clouded in the 29-degree temperature.

Light Snow

A light overnight snow had sprinkled the district and the station lawns still were lightly dusted with snow at their arrival.

As the Princess left the station with General W. J. (Billy) Patterson, Lieutenant-Governor and former premier of the province, she tucked up the high collar of her full-length Canadian-mink coat. She held it tightly as she made the customary inspection of an army-navy guard of honor drawn up in front of the station entrance.

Philip wore a greatcoat over his naval uniform. Before driving off, both paused on the station steps to wave to the crowd.

The Princess' coat was the one the Canadian people gave her as a wedding gift in November, 1947. Monday in Winnipeg an icy north wind was blowing but she stuck to the hip-length fur jacket she had worn previously.

Besides the mink, she wore a brown velour suit, with a feathered brown hat and brown suede pumps. Her accessories were brown.

After inspecting the guard, the Royal couple stepped into their car, equiped with a plastic dome to protect them from the cold but leaving the public's view unimpaired.

As the cavalcade circled the station and turned into Rose Street, the crowd broke through police-manned ropes and raced to the city hall. Many came close to being run down as they weaved through the procession of cars.

Dye On Water Spurs Search

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass., Oct. 17. (AP)—A smear of yellow dye was found at sea today 490 miles east of Cape Cod by a search plane seeking a missing plane and her crew of 11. Westover officers said the dye marker was sighted by Capt. Lewis Randolph, flying a C-54 search plane, at 9:30 a.m., EST, and that it was consistent with dye carried in pneumatic rafts used by planes. Randolph reported he did not see a raft. His report added impetus to a search already speeded up by light flashes reported in the area last night. Eighteen search planes had converged on that section of the Atlantic, about 150 miles south of Sable Island, NS.

Sighting of dim intermittent lights on the North Atlantic early today buoyed hopes the men of the plane—a big doubledecked, four-engined cargo carrier—will be found. The transport disappeared Monday.

Spot Lights

The air force said two of its planes spotted the lights about 150 miles south of Sable Island, NS, at about the same spot where a RCAF Lancaster Tuesday picked up a week SOS signal.

While the rest of a 100-plane fleet hunted the lost C-97 military transport along her intended 2,436-mile course from the Azores to this base at Chicopee, Mass., the special 18-plane force converged on the area east of Cape cod and 150 miles south of Sable Island.

Air force officers at Westover said 64 planes out of bases ranging from Florida to Newfoundland are operating under control of the fifth rescue squadron operating here in the area west of the 45th meridian (45 degrees west longitude). The rest of the great air armada is controlled by Lages air force base, Azores, and is scouring the area east of that meridian.

A spokesman here said the lights were described as resembling the ones attached to Mae West life preservers.

The two planes reported they weren't able to pinpoint the lights for benefit of surface craft because they were on only intermittently or were obscured at times by the rough seas.

An RCAF Lancaster, one of 14 Canadian planes in the search, reported picking up faint SOS signals before noon Tuesday while flying about 115 miles southeast of Nova Scotia. The RCAF planes are based at Greenwood, NS, field.

The US coast guard cutter McCulloch reported it had spotted lights that resembled parachute flares.

The plane was equipped with Mae West life preservers and parachute flares which gave rise to hopes that the lights spotted were used by its crew.

Extra Crews

The SOS signals picked up earlier were so weak the nature of the calls or their definite origin could not be determined.

UN Troops Close Trap On Reds Near Kumsong

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Oct. 17. (AP)—Allied infantrymen drove to within rifle range of Kumsong on the central front today. Chinese defenders retreated slowly before the advancing US 24th Division and the South Korean 6th Division.

The Allies gained 1,500 to 2,000 yards in the fifth day of their drive toward the Reds' central Korean bastion.

The Reds were described officially as "slowly withdrawing."

Whether this was general along the entire 22-mile central sector remained to be seen. It was still possible for the Reds to make a stand south of Kumsong.

Allied infantrymen trapped a pocket of Chinese on the highest peak guarding the southern approach to Kumsong. The 24th Division moved 1,000 yards forward to close the last gap in the trap around the Reds.

United States troops and Colombian infantrymen began the assault. Artillery covered them from newly-captured flanking hills.

More than 40 hills have been captured in the five-day advance on Kumsong. Three United Nations' divisions have advanced seven miles along a 22-mile front. Allied artillery moved up to strategic peaks where it could blast Kumsong, the main Communist bastion on the central front.

To the east, the Republic of Korea (Rok) 8th division drove against 2,000- to 3,000-foot ridges in an effort to keep pace with the central push.

Every Yard Bloody

In the west the American 1st cavalry division again hit the tough Chinese defence line northwest of Yonchon. Every yard taken was won with hand grenades and bayonets.

US Sabre jets paraded in MIG alley for 25 minutes Wednesday morning in full view of Red jet bases at Antung, Manchuria. But Red jets did not challenge the Sabre pilots, who on Tuesday shot down nine MIG-15s and damaged five.

Big Allied guns were in position to concentrate their fire on Kumsong, 20 miles north of the 38th parallel. It was a central base from which Reds shifted troops to the eastern or western fronts to slow those phases of the UN fall offensive.

Lipstick Stains Trial Evidence

PEMBROKE, Oct. 17—(CP)—A Provincial Police sergeant testified today that he discovered a blue shirt smeared by lipstick when he searched the bedroom of Lloyd Barber, found bludgeoned to death last April 13.

Lloyd Wyse, 35-year-old plumber from Golden Lake, is on trial before the Ontario Supreme Court on a charge of murdering the 55-year-old Killaloe village councillor. The trial started Tuesday.

Cross-examined by defence counsel, Sgt. Samuel Ervine, of the Ontario Provincial Police, said the shirt appeared to be the last one worn by Barber before he was murdered. It was smeared by what appeared to be "a considerable amount of fresh lipstick stains on the inside and outside surfaces of the collar."

The shirt and a pair of blue pants were found in Barber's bedroom. His body, with 13 wounds in the scalp and neck, was found in the bathroom of his home.

Another Provincial Police officer, Constable A. M. Kirwan, told of entering the Killaloe house and viewing the body in the second-floor bathroom. The body was examined by Dr. R. L. Reeves, Renfrew county coroner.

Another witness, Mancill Farr, 19-year-old brother-in-law of Wyse, told of a trip to Pembroke with Wyse on April 12. Wyse left him in Pembroke about 5 p.m.

Has Arm Amputated

ORILLIA, Oct. 17—(CP)—Allan Knapp, 25-year-old Toronto chartmaker injured in a hunting accident near here yesterday, had his arm amputated today. Police said Knapp's gun discharged, pellets tearing into his right arm, as he started to row out to retrieve a duck he had downed. The gun was lying in the boat and it is believed that an oar struck the hammer.

Thousands Line Streets For Pakistan PM's Funeral

KARACHI, Pakistan, Oct. 17 (CP)—The body of Liaquat Ali Khan, murdered Tuesday by an assassin's bullets, was laid to rest today beside that of the man he followed as leader of the world's largest Moslem state.

Amid scenes of country-wide grief, the prime minister was buried beside the tomb of Mohammed Ali Jinnah, at whose side he fought for creation of an independent Pakistan. Jinnah died in 1948.

Thirty-one guns boomed a salute as the body was lowered into its grave.

Tens of thousands lined the streets of this capital as the cortege passed by from Liaquat's home, where his body had rested under a mountain of flowers after being flown from Rawalpindi, scene of the shooting.

A quarter of a million people packed Karachi's polo grounds under a blazing sun to pray for their murdered leader.

As the body was borne through the streets, Pakistani officials announced for the first time that they had identified Liaquat's slayer as an Afghanistan National.

The fanatic killer, Sher Akhtar, who wanted a holy war against India, was sitting about 15 yards away from the prime minister.

Immediately a bodyguard hidden under the speakers' platform fired at the assassin. He slumped forward. The crowd surged over his body, tearing it to pieces.

A quick funeral was arranged for Liaquat. Officials apparently feared a prolonged period of mourning might stir hatred and result in widespread violence.

The western powers, especially the United States and Britain, lost a sentimental and political friend with Liaquat's death. He had kept Pakistan linked to the British crown as a member of the Commonwealth even when India declared itself a republic.

Immigration Tripled In August–Ottawa

OTTAWA, Oct. 17 — (CP). — Immigration tripled during August to bring Canada closer to its goal of 150,000 new citizens for 1951.

The Immigration Department estimated today that 17,236 immigrants were absorbed by Canada during August, compared with only 5,210 for August, 1950.

This brought the eight-month total for 1951 to 116,657 — more than double the 49,220 in the coresponding period last year.

A big proportion of the new citizens came from Germany, Italy, Poland, the United Kingdom and the Netherlands.

The number of Italians during August increased to 2,548 from 709 in August last year; Poles, 1,246, compared with 241; Germans, 2,370, against 577; English, 1,384, compared with 682; Dutch, 2,301, compared with 283.

US Backing Britain In New Crisis

Urges Egyptian Gov't To Reconsider Defence Pact Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—(AP) — State Secretary Dean Acheson said today the United States supports Britain's stand in upholding her position in the Suez Canal area against Egyptian pressure.

Acheson also told a press conference that the US government regards as "without validity" the action of the Egyptian government in cancelling the 1936 Anglo-Egyptian defence treaty.

At the same time, the secretary appealed to Egypt to reconsider its quick rejection of the proposal by the big three western powers, and Turkey for creation of a Middle-East command which would take over responsibility for defence of the Canal Zone and the strategic Middle East.

No Careful Study

The appeal was in a formal statement which said the US "noted with surprise" that the proposals were rejected without the "careful and considered deliberation which they merited."

The statement added:

"It is the sincere hope of the United States that great restraint will be shown in the present situation and that the obligation of all nations towards the preservation of world law and order will be respected."

Acheson voiced his support of the stand taken by Britain in response to questions from reporters.

He declined to say that the US will support any action Britain may take in defence of their position, but he said British troops are in the Canal Zone under a valid treaty which cannot be set aside by Egypt acting alone.

The British government is entirely within its rights in maintaining its position, he said.

Only Blizzard Halts Stampede

CALGARY, Oct. 17 (CP)—The way they have figured at Calgary's stampede grounds, it will take a rip-roaring blizzard to cancel the "Baby Stampede" planned for Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip Thursday.

"The cowboys will ride in anything short of a blizzard," said arena director Dick Cosgrave.

"The word from the east is that the Royal couple will brave any weather rather than settle for an indoor substitute," said Chief Clerk W. L. (Squib) Ross of the exhibition office.

To help the Royal couple defeat expected cold, electric blankets will be provided in their grandstand box.

Leading Canadian cowboys are supposed to take part in the abbreviated stampede—a single heat of chuckwagon racing, 27 assorted rides from the bucking chutes, exhibitions by seven calf ropers and steer decorators and a wild-horse race.

Cold Wave Continues Across Alberta

EDMONTON, Oct. 17 (CP)—There was little prospect today for an early end to the four-day western cold wave. The weather office here said four more days of sub-freezing temperatures were expected.

Snag, Yukon — Canada's "ice-box"—Tuesday night reported 15 degrees below zero.

The forecast high for Edmonton today was 25 above, with light snow and winds.

Three inches of snow fell at Lethbridge yesterday and 3½ at Cowley. There was eight inches today at Coronation and two inches at Medicine Hat and Calgary.

Temperatures tumbled overnight to six above at Grande Prairie and Fairview in Alberta's Peace River area.

Make Things Lively

WHITBY, Oct. 17. (CP)—A number of hornets, which encamped in the court house overnight, came to life during a trial Tuesday. They seemed to bother everybody in the court except Magistrate Frank S. Ebbs, who nevertheless admitted to keeping a keen eye on them.

A Flying Cow

WHISTLER, Ala., Oct. 17. (AP)—A flying cow sent Henry Smith to hospital on Tuesday. Smith was driving a neighbor's cow across the highway.. A car slammed into the cow, which flew several feet through the air and knocked Smith to the pavement. Smith suffered serious leg injuries.

1,300 Convicts End Mutiny, Got Too Hungry

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va., Oct. 17 (AP)—Hunger overcame a mutiny of 1,300 angry convicts at West Virginia state prison today.

They rushed for their calls when the warden offered food.

Their last meal was Tuesday noon. All night they had milled in the two-acre exercise yard, under the guns of the prisoner's 90 guards on the 40-foot walls, shouting for better food and clothing.

The revolt started as the men were to file into the big mess hall. They wouldn't go. They said they were enforcing their demands that the prison officials clean up a cook they said was dirty and that they be given more clothing.

The mutineers for the first few hours were noisy but started no real violence. As night chill and hunger pains overtook them—their last meal was at noontime—they tried their attacks.

No One Hurt

Both assaults on the power plant and commissary were broken up by heavy firing by the guards. Some tear gas also was used. Some of the men were armed with crude knives and broken scissors, but they did not have an opportunity to use them. No one was hurt.

After the firing stopped, it settled down to an endurance test, with neither side asking for a compromise.

A three-man committee had called on Warden Orel J. Skeen earlier in the day to complain about the cook and to ask for more clothes.

The warden said he told them the cook "would be taken care of." As to the shortage of clothing, he said, "I admitted that was possibly true, because we do not have enough funds available for clothes."

Tension Mounting

Skeen acknowledged, and other officials agreed, that "tension has been mounting for some time."

Skeen acknowledged that the prison handcuffed bad actors to the bars of their cells.

Just a few hours before the revolt, Judge William A. Baker named a panel to make a preliminary investigation of the prison.

The prison was erected in 1866 for a capacity of 900. For many years its population has averaged 1,800.

Wife Did Work To Save Horse.

SAINT POLTEN, Austria, Oct. 17 (Reuters) — A 51-year-old farmer who harnessed his wife to a cart "to save the health of the horse" today was sentenced to 10 years in jail for causing her death.

Neighbors told the court that Leopold Bauer, of Unterholzbach, Lower Austria, had illtreated his wife for the last 12 years.

Last Christmas Day Bauer dragged his wife from her bed, where she lay seriously ill, poured cold water over her and threw her out into the street, witnesses said. She died in hospital a few days later.

Both Sides Rushing Reinforcements City Armed Camp

CAIRO, Oct. 17. (AP)—Ismailia in the Suez Canal area was an armed camp bristling with machine-guns and tanks today. And as both British and Egyptians rushed reinforcements there, Britain faced new trouble in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. One leader of the powerful pro-Egyptian Sudanese Ashigga party called upon the people of Sudan for a campaign of disobedience to British authorities there in the campaign to drive the Britons out of the land over which Egypt now has proclaimed King Farouk the sole monarch.

In the Suez Canal area, British officials reported that the Lancashire Fusiliers, military and RAF forces and the Egyptian police were in control of the situation after the city of 50,000 was rocked by violent rioting Tuesday.

A release distributed in Cairo by the RAF said "almost all the shops and buildings (in Ismalia) are closed and the town resembles an armed camp."

Take Off From Cyprus

British parachute troops, 3,500 strong, were taking off from Nicosia, Cyprus, only 300 miles away, to reinforce British troops in the canal zone, where at least seven and possibly 12 persons were killed in Tuesday's violence.

Ismailia was divided into two sections, the western part held by British troops grimly alert behind barbed wire, with Bren guns nosing through. The section was completely blacked out Tuesday night and the dark streets were empty except for patrolling British jeeps.

The Egyptian sector was patrolled by Egyptian police on a 24-hour emergency alert.

The Egyptians have also sent 2,000 police to the zone to control civilians—by force if necessary—after seven persons were killed and scores injured Tuesday.

The rioting broke out after both houses of parliament unanimously passed four abrogation bills designed to turn Britons out of Egypt and establish Farouk as King of the Sudan, at present under Anglo-Egyptian administration.

Traffic Normal

Shipping traffic through the canal was normal today and had not been affected by rioting at Ismailia and Port Said, a canal company spokesman announced.

The government also announced today it will dispense with all British consultant engineers working on a hydro-electric scheme.

Three Cheers Romps Home In Cesarewitch

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 7 — (Reuters). — A long-striding English three-year-old, Three Cheers, romped home in one of Britain's major handicaps, the Cesarewitch, today at 17 to 2.

A head behind him came Vidi Vici and three lengths farther back Pyrgos. Both were quoted at 40 to 1.

Jockey Manny Mercer rode Three Cheers over the 2¼ miles to win in a field of 30. The colt, owned by C. P. Crofts, brought the crowd to its feet in a thrilling last-minute win. The youngster was not deposed as favorite until just before post-time when Kelling, which did not place, climbed to 13 to 2.

The Cesarewitch Stakes is the first leg of the fall double which will be completed with the Cambridgeshire over the same track October 31.

Charge Reds Stalling Again On Talks

MUNSAN, Korea, Oct. 17 (AP) —The Allies said today the Communists "are up to their old tricks of delaying" renewal of Korean truce talks.

"The Reds intend to make the going as sticky as possible," Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said in a Tokyo release.

The statement was issued a few hours after Ridgway's headquarters reported United Nations' and Communist liaison officers had made "considerable progress" toward preparing for new armistice negotiations.

Liaison officers met twice on Wednesday in Panmunjom.

They made "additional progress, however slight," UN truce headquarters said in a release.

Shortly after they adjourned, Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, head of the UN truce delegation, flew back to Munsan from Tokyo.

There was no indication whether Joy brought back new instructions from Ridgway.

Adjourn Session

Liaison officers adjourned their day's sessions at Panmunjom after arguing over the size of the neutral zones to be set up for armistice negotiations.

A statement from Ridgway's headquarters described as "absurd" a Red proposal to create a neutral zone of 175 square miles embracing Munsan, Panmunjom and Kaesong. The allies want a 20-square-mile zone.

The information bulletin said the plan "would give the Reds ample opportunuity to find instances of violation to break off talks whenever it suited them."

"It is to thwart such a plan that the UN command insists on a smaller realistic neutral zone around the three critical towns."

Canada Soon To Lead In Jets

TORONTO, Oct. 17 — (CP).—Canada soon will lead the world in production of all-weather, long-range jet fighter aircraft, Production Minister Howe said today as he accepted the first of Avro CF-100 fighters on behalf of the Canadian Government.

The CF-100 was turned over to the RCAF in a brief ceremony at the A. V. Roe plant in suburban Malton with Air-Marshal W. A. Curtis, Mr. Howe, and Avro officials participating.

In praising the development of the Orenda engine, the gas turbine power plant which drives the CF-100, Mr. Howe said it was a "tremendous achievement," but admitted that it would be a few months before the plane would be in quantity production.

Because of the aircraft's unusually short take-off run, it can be put into service at most of Canada's existing airdromes with resulting savings in airstrip construction costs.

Says Ottawa Keeps Housing Promise

New Housing Loan Repayment For Defence Workers—Winters

OTTAWA, Oct. 17 — (CP). — The government announces it is emphasizing the importance of new housing to a degree second only to the direct defence program itself.

Resources Minister Winters told the Commons Tuesday if it had not been for complications arising out of the Korean War, housing starts now probably would be at 100,000-units-a-year clip.

From 1947 to 1951 there were 344,000 housing units completed and another 85,000 likely will be completed this year.

Mr. Winters said the government has lived up to its obligations in the housing field.

He was immediately challenged by Alastair Stewart (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) who said the minister's statement was an "utter travesty of the truth."

Getting Higher

In 1945, the government had promised housing for everyone at a few dollars a month, but people now had to pay $65 to $80 a month for a few rooms.

Mr. Stewart said the government could have facilitated down payments for the construction of houses by persons with low incomes. It could have prohibited the building of more expensive homes to make more materials available for low-cost housing.

Speaking in continued debate on the Throne Speech, Mr. Winters then outlined recent changes in housing legislation.

On Oct. 5, the government announced a change in plans which would mean defence workers would have lower down payments to make than those prevailing earlier in the year.

Defence Areas

The defence areas already designated for purposes of the National Housing Act were at the plants of A. V. Roe in Malton; Dowty at Ajax; Light Alloys and Cockshutt Plow at Renfrew; Canadair at Cartierville, Que.; and Sorel Industries at Sorel, Que. Others would be added.

Outside the Commons, the crown-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation announced a payroll deduction system will be implimented for the repayment of loans to defence workers buying houses.

The National Housing Act loan to the certified defence worker will be on the basi of 90 per cent of the agreed contract price—the price the purchaser will pay for his home with the approval of Central Mortgage. Repayment, by payroll deduction, can take up to 25 years.

MP's Suggest More Aid For Veterans

OTTAWA, Oct. 17—(CP)—The need for government action to aid the disabled veteran, hard pressed by the high cost of living, was stressed in the Commons Tuesday as the throne-speech debate rolled through its second day.

As the living-cost theme continued to dominate the debate, a half-dozen opposition members joined in demanding that the government take steps to increase pensions for Canada's veterans to put value back into their allowances.

Some expressed their disappointment in the fact the speech from the throne made no mention of veterans' problems.

Resources Minister Winters stepped into the 5½-hour debate to report that 334,000 housing units were completed in Canada in the four years from 1947 to 1951 and that another 85,000 likely will be completed this year.

He suggested that the government has lived up to its obligations in the housing field and said it is taking additional steps to "emphasize housing in defence production areas and to encourage housing generally."

Would Boost Pension

Gordon Churchill, newly-elected Conservative member for Winnipeg South Centre, devoted his main speech to veterans' affairs and suggested that pensions be raised as the dollar depreciates. This was the only way the "real value" of the pension could be maintained.'

He suggested that Canada could not expect her young men to volunteer for dangerous duty if their only reward was to be neglect.

"For the national interest if for no other reason, we should see that our veterans are looked after," he said.

A. J. Brooks (PC, Royal) won support from other members with a suggestion that the government set up a permanent veterans committee which would keep such problems under a continuing scrutiny.

Asks Greater Care

G. S. White (PC-Hastings-Peterborough) asked for greater care on the part of the government physicians in assessing the disabilities of pensioned veterans. They appeared to operate on a "pinch-penny" principle which deprived veterans of their full pension rights.

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) wanted to see the government enact an across-the-board increase in the pension rates.

Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) expressed concern for servicemen returning from Korea. Some he knew of did not receive a clothing allowance and had no idea of their pensions rights—a condition which would not encourage recruiting.

Alistair Stewart (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) suggested that Canada's veterans legislation, the best of its kind a few years ago, had suffered and deteriorated through government policies. Good treatment for veterans was a "moral obligation."

Plane Carries Bees

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP). — Britain took the wraps off a giant new military plane Tuesday that is capable of carrying a loaded bus. It is the GAL 60, a military freight plane second in size among British planes to the huge Bristol Brabazon, the world's largest land plane.

Crowds Break Through Lines To Get Look At Elizabeth

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17. (CP)—The Royal train sped Princess Eizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh westward after a hectic western welcome in Winnipeg Tuesday that ranged from boisterous to elegant. The noisy reception—most uproarious to date in the tour—came from thousands of Manitobans who lined the streets of Winnipeg and the adjoining French-speaking St. Boniface to cheer and surge through police lines. The elegance came in a command performance of the Winnipeg Ballet at the Civic Auditorium. In an 11-hour, jam-packed day, the Royal couple also attended a provincial luncheon, a government reception, a state buffet dinner and made appearances at two city halls and a municipal office.

A crowd estimated by police at 200,000 including visitors from many parts of Manitoba and some from the United States jammed the streets for every appearance of the Royal couple in tours that totalled 17 miles.

Crowds Ignore Cold

A biting northwest wind that brought afternoon snowflurries and sent the temperature down to 22 degrees in the evening failed to deter the crowds.

They broke through police lines repeatedly to slow and sometimes stop the procession, putting it as much as one hour behind schedule.

Darkness had fallen before the party reached a part of suburban Fort Garry, devastated in last spring's Red river flood. Little could be seen of the rehabilitation work and the extensive dikes but residents of the area got the best view of the couple.

They rode for the first time in a convertible equipped with a transparent plastic top. Six hidden lights illuminated them.

All-Manitoba food, topped by wild duck, featured a private buffet dinner at Government House.

Powerful Lights

Powerful klieg lights illuminated the civic auditorium as the National Film Board recorded the ballet performance with the Royal couple in a specially-built box on the main floor.

Formal dress was not required of the 4,000 persons attending the show, but there was a profusion of swallow-tailed coats, tails and formal evening gowns, some imported from Paris for the occasion.

In the streets, attire went to the other extreme. Children wore gaily-colored snowsuits against the bitter weather. Women huddled in Indian blankets along the curb to catch a glimpse of the procession.

Many of those who crowded around the train as it steamed out of the CPR station wore parkas and colorful ski caps.

In response to cries of "we want Elizabeth," the Princess and her husband appeared at the door of the observation platform as the train began to move. They stood smiling and waving to the crowd until the train vanished in the darkness.

Go To Regina

Today at 10 a.m. MST, the train is due at Regina. An eight-hour stop will include another round of appearances and presentations.

Cloudy weather with snowflurries was the forecast for Regina and the temperature was expected to rise only to 30 degrees after dropping to 15 in the night. However, there was no forecast of strong wind like that in Winnipeg Tuesday.

Bad weather caused the RCMP tentatively to cancel a scheduled performance of the famous musical ride.

From Regina, the Royal couple go to Moose Jaw and Swift Current for brief stops.

They were accompanied into Saskatchewan by Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Mrs. Gardiner.

of the ominously-quiet town of Ismailia.

Ismailia's police system broke down after the rioting started Tuesday and it was then that British troops intervened with orders to open fire.

Descriptions of Tuesday's riotings were banned from newspapers throughout Egypt. They printed only an official announcement from the interior ministry.

Won't Leave

The British Commander, Lt.-Gen. George Erskine, told his men in a broadcast last night "we are not going to be turned out, forced out or knocked out" of the canal area.

"We are not looking for trouble," he said, "but we shall deal with it quite firmly if we meet it."

Egyptian Premier Mustapha El Nahas Pasha urged his people to remain calm. The rioting, he said, "could stand in the way of our national aspirations."

Under Control

A British Army communique today described the situation in the canal area as "under control and all quiet." It said that "certain families in the Suez area have been evacuated to a safe place," but gave no details.

The Egyptian communique also said that "order reigns everywhere." Government officials at Ismailia described the situation there as "very bad." British forces, they said, now controlled all entrances to the canal city, despite a request by Egyptian police that they withdraw and leave the policing to the Egyptians.

A British Army spokesman in Ismailia said Britain has agreed to pull her troops out of the canal city when promised Egyptian police reinforcements arrive. So far, he added, the extra police have not shown up.

Britain's garrison along the canal at present is estimated at 40,000 men, with 400 planes. It was not disclosed what British units were being sent there, but several aircraft landed last night at Nicosia, Cyprus, where the 16th airborn brigade of 4,000 men is stationed. Presumably the planes will carry the first groups of paratroops today to the Suez zone.

Miss Princess Veterans Angry

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17—(CP)—The car bearing Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh into Winnipeg Tuesday did not stop at the Deer Lodge Veterans' Hospital and the Winnipeg Tribune says "there are many loyal but disappointed hearts" as a result.

"Hundreds of veterans had lined the grounds and crowded against the hospital windows, some of them prone on stretchers, to get a glimpse" of the Royal couple, the paper says in a news-page story.

"That is all they got, a glimpse.

"For the Royal couple were whisked around the semi-circular hospital driveway and on as one veteran put it bitterly—'to see more of those politicians'."

"'I guess they haven't got time for guys like us—those politicians are monopolizing them. We're the guys who should be getting the breaks—not them'."

Officials of the Winnipeg reception committee could not be reached for comment.

of the ominously-quiet town of Ismailia.

Ismailia's police system broke down after the rioting started Tuesday and it was then that British troops intervened with orders to open fire.

Descriptions of Tuesday's riotings were banned from newspapers throughout Egypt. They printed only an official announcement from the interior ministry.

Won't Leave

The British Commander, Lt.-Gen. George Erskine, told his men in a broadcast last night "we are not going to be turned out, forced out or knocked out" of the canal area.

"We are not looking for trouble," he said, "but we shall deal with it quite firmly if we meet it."

Egyptian Premier Mustapha El Nahas Pasha urged his people to remain calm. The rioting, he said, "could stand in the way of our national aspirations."

Catch Bandits With $12,800

TORONTO, Oct. 17 — (CP).—Two bandits moved calmly about a North Toronto bank Tuesday, stuffing $12,800 from the tellers' cages into a burlap shopping bag. They did not know that police were speeding to the scene.

When the two men, flourishing pistols, entered the Yonge and Lawrence branch of the Dominion bank, a teller tripped a button that rang the silent alarm. As one of the men herded the staff of 10 employees and one customer into the vault, the other collected the money.

Hearing police sirens approaching, they ran out. One drove off in a car parked nearby while the other fled on foot up a nearby lane.

Police Constable Don Stuart followed the man up the lane. The man turned, levelled his gun, and told Stuart "Come any closer and I'll kill you," Stuart ignored the threat and jumped toward the fugitive. The man surrendered.

He gave his name as Howard Gault, 43, of Toronto. Police said he had $12,800 on him.

The other man, whom police identified as Albert E. Boyd, 37, of Pickering, ditched the car and switched to his own truck several blocks north of the bank. He was captured at gunpoint after police forced the truck off the road.

Traffic Scares Milk Horse, Car Wrecked

"There's so danged many trucks and cars whizzin' along the streets scarin' a self-respectin' horse out of her wits, that I plumb got my mane up and bolted when the big city truck gave me a scare yesterday."

Although Dolly, a milk wagon horse who tangled with an automobile on Wolfe Street Tuesday morning, isn't like Francis the talking mule, these are thoughts running through her mind as she recuperates today from the encounter in which the car came out second best.

Dolly's driver, Gerald Healley, of 667 Romaine Street, stopped his milk wagon at the corner of Hart Avenue and Patterson Street. A city truck passed, frightening the horse.

Turning the corner and going east on Hart Avenue, Dolly tried to turn left on Wolfe Street, but smashed headlong into a parked car owned by J. Coveney of Cavan.

The car was extensively damaged. The left rear fender was torn off, both left doors were smashed, the running board was torn from the body, and the back of the trunk was pushed in.

The right door of the milk wagon was damaged, the right front and rear tires were slashed to pieces, and both shafts were splintered.

How did Dolly fare?

She had a slight cut on her mouth.

Constable Cecil Bowyer investigated.

Hospital Officials Stalling Union Charges

Employees at the Civic Hospital claim the Board of Governors are stalling during present union negotiations.

The employees are members of Branch 19, National Organization of Civic, Utility and Electrical Workers (CCL). Their president, William Painter, says they want a wage increase, a cost-of-living bonus, and the work week reduced from 48 to 44 hours. About 100 are in the bargaining unit.

Mr. Painter said that the Board turned down the money requests because the City Council had not budgeted for this extra sum in their 1951 estimates.

"As the workers are citizens of Peterborough, and the majority are taxpayers—we feel we'd like the citizens of this town to know of this deplorable situation," said Mr. Painter.

He cited some of the prevailing hourly rates at the hospital:

Orderlies (third class), head cleaners and washmen, 83½ cents an hour; first-class cooks and bakers, 93½ cents; ward aides, laundry maids, kitchen help, and general help (female), 58½ cents; cafeteria supervisors (after one year's service), 68¾ cents; seamstress, 62¼ cents; third-class engineers, $1.04; and maintenance men, $1.16 2-3.

Thankoffering Held At Cavan Church

CAVAN, Oct. 17 — (ENS). — The annual thankoffering services of Cavan United Church were held Sunday at morning and evening. The Rev. H. L. Yarr, Bailieboro, was guest speaker at both services.

The regular choir of Cavan Church with George Ingham at the organ led the singing at the morning service, and the choir from St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, with Miss Estelle Hetherington at the organ, furnished the special music in the evening.

Miss Yvonne Richards and Miss Edith Elson sang a duet "Abide With Me."

Mr. Yarr based his sermons on the second chapter of Acts. He spoke of the fellowship among the early Christians. The wealthy and the poor, those of high degree and the lowly were all partners of equal standing and helped one another whenever possible. He said the church was created by God and would never die out. There would always be an ebb and flow in church going. At present it seems to be at the ebb in some places, but because of its divine creation it would always go on, and in course of time a fine fellowship would develop again, making it strong.

The church was decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and autumn leaves for the occasion.

Officials had wanted to add a page containing the signatures of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Justice Calls Certification Just A Fraud

TORONTO, Oct. 17 —(CP)—A justice of the Ontario Court of Appeal Tuesday termed "a fraud" the action of the Provincial Labor Board in certifying a union without investigation of its membership status.

In the second day of a hearing of an appeal by the Toronto Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) against a decision of Mr. Justice G. A. Gale quashing the board's certification of the guild as bargaining agent for circulation employees of the Toronto Globe and Mail, the Appeal Court turned to the question of resignations from the guild.

Mr. Justice W. T. Henderson noted that a union required more than 50 per cent membership to apply for certification. The Labor Board had certified the guild after refusing to investigate the union's membership status. This was fraud, he said.

In the decision against which appeal has been made, Mr. Justice Gale ruled that the newspaper had been denied basic justice when the board refused to permit cross-examination of a union witness at certification hearings on the question of resignation from the guild. He also held that the board thus had lost its jurisdiction and no longer was protected by the Labor Act which prohibits review of or appeal from Labor Board decisions.

Inconsistent Talk

Mr. Justice Henderson's comment came in an exchange with John Osler, counsel for the guild, who said the Labor Board's practice was not to consider the question of resignations.

Mr. Justice Wilfred D. Roach commented:

"It is inconsistent to say that a man who resigned is still a member. Supposing they resigned in a body?"

Mr. Osler replied that if a group of employees intervened, the board would order a vote. It was significant that no employees had intervened in the case.

Mr. Justice Henderson remarked: "That's putting it up to an employee to place himself forward and ask to be heard. That's not a fair thing to impose."

Mr. Justice Henderson also defended the right of an employer to protect the company's interest at a Labor Board hearing on a union's application for certification. He protested against having to listen to what he termed the "silly argument" that an employer has no interest in what union, if any, was designited to represent his employees.

At one point, argument developed over whether the regulations under which the Labor Board operates are valid. No decision was reached.

The case is continuing.

Town Employees Union Accepted By Council

COBOURG, Oct. 17 —(ENS)— Employees of both the public works department of the town of Cobourg and the Cobourg Public Utilities system are now represented by the Civic Utility and Electrical Workers Union as sole bargaining agents. Two weeks ago the Utilities Commission recognized the utilities employees union and at Monday night's council meeting the works department union was formally recognized. The town employees have never had a union before in the 150 years history of Cobourg.

Through its recognition of the union, Cobourg becomes the first town of its size in Ontario to do so. A contract remains to be negotiated and a special meeting of the town council will be held in the near future in order to prepare a draft of proposals for the union contract.

Council, in addition to giving preliminary reading to the proposed new east end public school bylaw, which will be voted upon in December, passed a bylaw appointing members of the board of management of the recreation centre. The new appointees are Councillor Otto Curtis, Councillor Charles Johnston, Harry Gadd, Gordon King, Robert Lucas, Lyle Wilson and Fred Greer.

For many months the town council has been seeking some action from the Colonial Bus Company in regard to the company providing a shelter for bus passengers. Mayor Jack Burnet said that if the company did not do something about it, there should be an enquiry made as to what the next step should be. On motion it was decided to try again by asking the bus company to send a representative to discuss it with the council.

Hattie Hawkey Resigns Court Reporter

COBOURG, Oct. 17 (ENS)—A link with the administration of justice of many years past, Miss Hattie Hawkey, veteran police court stenographer, has resigned her duties in order to be free to devote more time to her insurance business.

Known as "Hattie" by magistrates and crown attorneys who have held office in the past 27 years, she has been noted for her accuracy and speed and her familiarity with court procedure, and it is frankly admitted that it will be hard to find a worthy successor.

From when she was in her early twenties, a period far enough back that Hattie, being a woman, does not like to dwell upon it, she has been connected with legal administration. In her earlier days she was employed by T. F. Hall, K.C. and also by E. C. Huycke, K.C., later appointed a county judge at Peterborough.

It was Judge Huycke, when a practising lawyer, who persuaded her to take up court reporting. She did some county court work and then restricted herself to police court stenographic reporting.

Wide Area

When she started as police court reporter, the magistrate covered a wide area, not as now when the work is more centralized by bringing accused persons to Cobourg if the offense was committed reasonably close to this town. However in the early days she attended police court at Campbellford, Hastings, Brighton, Bowmanville and Cobourg. Later the work was divided up and most of her duties were in Cobourg.

She recorded the evidence of inquests throughout all Northumberland and Durham Counties. During her 27 years service she worked with Magistrates E. F. Floyd, W. A. F. Campbell and John Davidson, all of whom are dead now. For the past ten years she has been connected with Magistrate R. B. Baxter's court.

It has been said more than once that when Hattie Hawkey decided not to be a lawyer, the feminine bar lost a worthy representative as Hattie in her long years of work has acquired a wide knowledge of legal procedure.

If she could be persuaded to relate them, she could tell many interesting stories in connection with the multitude of cases which she has reported. However she claims that she finds it easier to dismiss a case from her mind once she has reported it, leaving it entirely to her shorthand notes.

200 Holstein Cattle Move Into Morrow Park For Show

"Rus in urbe" has been more than a phrase at Morrow Park since Sunday night when Holstein breeders of eleven counties of Central Ontario began arriving with their cattle for today's championship show.

Into the urban community of Peterborough, they brought their rural chore of caring for their valuable stock, and the unshirkable job of milking.

Long before the sun broke through the morning mists over the city today, breeders and herdsmen were going about their dairy business with the aid of the accustomed milking machine which had been set up for their convenience away from home, and from such innovations in some instances as the milking parlor.

Calf Expected

Past midnight last night long rows of the Black and White cattle, every one of them under wraps of canvas and wool, were bedded down until the morning of district championships day. Attendants had made shakedown beds for themselves, comfortable enough for the temporary conditions of show time away from home. One of the matrons was expected to contribute a calf to her owner's herd before morning.

For three-times-a-day milkers the time to be up and about this morning was around 5 a.m., and a Durham group of Holstein men said all the milking would be finished by six o'clock.

This was detail of a job which farmers declare the city people and consumers do not appreciate in its exactions. There is no such device as shortening hours of work in the dairy cattle business. In the nature of it, the breeders have to follow the seven-day week.

200 In Barns

Two hundred Holsteins were assembled in the barns at Morrow Park last night for today's awards of top honors in the district from Simcoe county to Lennox-Addington. And from those decisions will follow later the All-Canadian nominations.

It is altogether likely that some of the Black and Whites displayed here today will receive that special distinction. This is one of the outstanding cattle shows in Canada, and it returns to Peterborough annually because this county is central and Morrow Park affords satisfactory accommodation.

And while the show goes on, and the preparations for it, extending through the year, the dairy men are resentful of the lack of appreciation of the value of their industry to the public, and also of the protests by consumers against demands for sufficient prices to cover milk costs plus reasonable profit.

Rescued after he fell from a tree and broke his leg, Goober refuses the call of the trees and stays around the Air Force base to examine every engine Goodwin works on. Puzzled, no doubt, by the nuts of the inedible variety, he never stays long inside.

Think Nishtar New Premier Of Pakistan

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP) — Cambridge-educated Sir Khwaja Nazimuddin, governor-general of Pakistan who became that country's acting prime minister today, is a moderate right-winger friendly to the west, diplomats who know him personally reported.

Pakistani officials here said they expect the Karachi government will anounce tonight the name of the murdered Liaquat Ali Khan's permanent successor as prime minister.

Expectations among informed diplomats is that Sardar Abdur Rab Nishtar, governor of the Punjab, will be named prime minister.

Nishtar, all-India radio reported today, has flown from Lahore to Karachi for talks with the Karachi cabinet.

The hefty Pathan who hails from the northwest frontier province has the reputation of being more right wing than Nazimuddin.

Bad News

Nishtar's appointment would be considered bad news by Indians. He has made several speeches on the Kashmir dispute which Indians considered inflammatory.

As governor of the Punjab, Nishtar controls the heart of Pakistan. Most of the Moslem nation's army comes from there.

Nishtar, 52, served as minister of communications in Nehru's cabinet for all-India during the pre-1947 transfer-of-power period. Later he held the same post in Liaquat's government.

Nazimuddin, 57, has often visited Britain and during the immediate post-war years led a food mission to the United States.

He became governor-general three years ago. If Nishtar becomes prime minister, Nazimuddin probably will carry on as governor-general.

What Canadian Korean Casualties?

We have been reading the last fortnight of very bitter fighting on the Korean front, and of the Commonwealth Division (including the Canadian brigade) being heavily involved. Chinese reports (undoubtedly greatly exaggerated) tell of thousands of Allied casualties. What of the Canadian casualties? We hear little or nothing of them.

* * *

Even before the present offensive began, with its toll of killed and wounded, American casualties in the first fifteen months of Korean fighting were higher than in the first fifteen months of American participation in World War II. In the first fifteen Korean months U.S. casualties reported have been 14,280 killed, 10,600 missing and another 60,000 wounded.

* * *

By comparison Canadian casualties are trifling, as reported so far. Of course, there are few Canadians in the fighting line in Korea, compared with the number of Americans. Nevertheless, there is a mysterious discrepancy between the reports of Canadians in heavy action, and the Canadian casualty reports. From what one has read in the last nine months, Canadian troops have taken an active and aggressive role, fought bravely and well. How can they have been in the reportedly bitter battles and escaped with only a few dozen wounded, a handful of killed? Either Canadian casualty reports are being suppressed, or the accounts of Canadian action in Korea have been exaggerated. A battalion cannot go into a heavy action and escape with trifling casualties. What is the explanation of the discrepancy? If there are Canadian casualty lists, why are they not made public?

Force Needed In Egypt

There is a crisis on the Third Front—the Near East. The crisis has been long in the making; quick to rise to peaks. A fortnight ago Iran forced the last British technicians from the oil refinery at Abadan. Last Thursday Iraq pressed demands for a revision of its treaty of alliance with Britain. A week ago Egypt told Britain that she and her troops had to get out. This manifestation has very serious consequences for the western world.

The 'Near East' embraces a strategically and economically important segment of the world—Turkey, Iran, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Israel, Egypt, the Sudan, and various sheikdoms. It encloses the life-line between West and East—the Suez Canal. It encompasses some of the most significant oil deposits in the world. And it is this area that Russia would dearly love to dominate, or failing that, to rot. Through her own machinations or the blindness of nationalistic fools in these countries, she is doing both.

Racial, religious and mercantile hostilities and prejudices are the causes of the present crisis in the Near East; the post-war weakening of Britain was a softening for the crisis to emerge; nationalism is the blood-surge. So blind is this nationalism that all other aspects are not even seen. The New York Times correspondent in the Near East cabled last week that:

"The struggle between the Western bloc and Soviet Russia means nothing here. The West's insistence on the need for defense against Kremlin aggression is regarded as a trick of 'imperialists.' No remark is more common than this: 'The West always has some excuse for maintaining its dominance, and now Russia is the excuse.' The idea of a neutral Moslem bloc is popular. In the Arab world there is a natural aversion to granting that all the Islamic states together would be too weak to defend themselves."

But now is not the time for the West to give pious and moral reign to nationalism on the rampage. Admittedly national aspirations for self-government and self-control must be heeded, and when the time is ripe for it—for instance, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan—self-government must be granted. But now is not the time for mild and academic considerations of the rights of these peoples—rights which they have neither the responsibility nor the maturity as nations to take unto themselves alone. In this world of power politics there is no such thing as an inalienable right of a minor nation, and certainly not of a nation in the Near East. The West must impose its will, by force if necessary—for its own preservation, and incidentally for the preservation of these peoples.

The Near East is too important to let nationalistic orators have free expression, and unstable politicians in unrepresentative irresponsible psuedo-governments have control. The Near East is the fulcrum of three continents, has the ports essential to entry to them and naval bases to protect them; it has air bases; it has the Suez Canal, and it has oil. The Near East must not be toyed with as if it were a matter for a minor sub-committee of U.N. The Near East is on fire, and firemen must be sent to quell it. The fire burnt in Iran until it became ashes; this must not be allowed to happen in Egypt.

Exactly seventy years ago there was another Egyptian nationalist movement, a nationalism much less dangerous than now because much less wide-spread; it did not seep from or into other countries of the Near East. This nationalism of seventy years ago was also Mohammedan in sentiment and hostile to foreigners and to Christians (native i.e. Coptic, or European) and nostile to foreign bond-holders, officials and financiers. On the surface, as now, were grievances and ambitions of Egyptian leaders. Both Gladstone and Disraeli agreed that Egypt must not be allowed to fall prey to anarchy, or to go under the dominance of either Turkey or Russia. Nor must the Suez Canal be allowed to suffer threat of blockade. The British fleet was sent to bombard. A British army was landed. The situation was saved and a settlement reached after a long and slow negotiation. Such strong measures are needed today.

Strong measures are being taken. The commanding British general in Egypt announced yesterday that "We are not going to be turned out, forced out or knocked out" of the Canal zone. It is to be hoped that Britain will persevere in this attitude and that the United States will back her up—as she did not do before all was lost in Iran.

Citizen Of Sterling Worth

It is a distinction to make one's mark in Peterborough; it is a greater achievement to make one's mark on it. Ian F. McRae, who is being honored by a citizens' dinner tonight, has done both. He has risen from apprenticeship to become the head of the largest industrial plant in the city, and has thence gone on to senior executive position at the Toronto head office of his company. This personal achievement has been accomplished entirely in Peterborough during twenty-six years' service with the C.G.E.

But it is not for that reason that citizens are gathering tonight to do him honour, as he leaves the city to take up his new position and residence in Toronto; nor is it for that reason that we join with others of the community in paying him our respects. Mr. McRae has made his mark on Peterborough; on its municipal organizations and on the lives of the thousands of citizens who know him personally. He has served this city for many years steadfastly, with breadth of view, giving his sound advice and quiet leadership to matters of education, hospital care, Victory Loans, community chests. He has done this unobtrusively, helpfully, seeking neither praise nor publicity. His has been genuine, generous service.

His worth and character leave their mark on Peterborough, as they do on workers and their families in the Peterborough C.G.E. plant, among whom he has moved with ease, respect and even affectionate regard. As he has been interested in the health, welfare and progress of the men and women in the plant, so has he been broadly concerned in the health, welfare and progress of this community in which he and they make their homes.

The citizens' tribute of this evening has been splendidly merited by this sincere, quiet and effective man of Peterborough.

Two Sides To A Noble Action

Everyone who has read of it, we are sure, has been moved by the noble action of a 23-year-old Toronto truck driver, John Gordon, who lost his life because he turned his truck off the highway in order to avoid a group of schoolchildren. Coming over the brow of a hill near Milton, he came upon the children suddenly, swerved, and was killed beneath his truck when it turned over. John Gordon acted with great presence of mind and with a noble disregard for his own safety, in order to save the lives of others.

There are two sides to every fine action, however, and we are moved to ask why these children were playing on the highway? They were of school age and therefore they had undoubtedly been warned about traffic dangers. Not only were they endangering their own lives, but the lives of motorists, and if they had been behaving properly John Gordon would not have been killed to expiate their folly.

Too much is said, we believe, about the impossibility of expecting common sense from children. If the children involved in this accident—who caused this accident—have not been given the sternest and most solemn rebuke for their stupidity and selfishness, their welfare and training is being neglected. When a child is killed in a highway accident the deepest sympathy is felt, very properly, for everyone concerned. But it is important that children should not be permitted any carelessness which may put themselves, and the drivers of cars, into needless danger.

Anglo-Egyptian Treaty

By RICHARD SCOTT
(United Kingdom Information Office)

SOME weeks ago and more than once, it was announced in Cairo that it was the intention of the Egyptian Government to introduce legislation into the Egyptian Parliament to abrogate the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty of 1936 and to bring about unification of Egypt and the Sudan under the Egyptian Crown. So the announcement on Monday by the Egyptian Prime Minister Nahas Pasha that such legislation has been prepared and was now being submitted to Parliament should have come as no surprise in London. But the news was received in London with something of a shock.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE reason for this shock was that a few days earlier, the Egyptian Government had been officially informed by the British Ambassador that new proposals for revision of the treaty were going to be submitted to the Egyptian Government on October 10th—five days before the end of the current Egyptian parliamentary session. Moreover, as a result of the personal exchange of messages between the British Foreign Secretary and Nahas Pasha, it had been hoped in London that the Egyptian government would take no precipitate action until we were able to present these new proposals.

✧ ✧ ✧

THOUGH the Egyptian Government may well have had a rough idea of the outline of these proposals it did not have them in detail before deciding to abrogate the treaty. It looks very much, therefore, as though either the Egyptian government did not desire a settlement with Britain and feared that this would be more difficult to prevent after submission of the new proposals; or that Nahas Pasha wished to earn glory and popular acclamation for unilateral abrogation of the treaty when he knew that the treaty was in any case going to be replaced by a new arrangement. It is very much to be hoped that the latter is his real motive. For his acceptance of the new proposals Britain can well afford to pay the price of his present defiance.

✧ ✧ ✧

UNFORTUNATELY, however, there is at least some cause to fear that the Egyptian Government is not interested in settlement except on its own terms. There are two outstanding issues involved in the abrogation of the treaty. First, the right which Britain enjoys under it to maintain up to 10,000 troops and 400 airmen with ancillary personnel in the Suez Canal Zone. Secondly, the future of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Let us dispose of the Sudan question first because it is the simpler. Since 1899, the Sudan has been administered under an Anglo-Egyptian condominium. It is now the Egyptian demand that the Sudan shall be united with Egypt under the Egyptian Crown. The U.K. Government continues to insist, as it has insisted for a long time, that the future of the Sudan must be decided by the Sudanese themselves after their attainment of the full self-government to which they are rapidly being brought. The U.K. Government has promised this to the people of the Sudan and is not ready to compromise its word.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE right which Britain enjoys of stationing a small force for the defence of the canal zone was granted at a time when Egypt had reason to fear aggression from the Rome-Berlin axis. Egypt then recognized that her own forces were not alone sufficient for the defence of her territory or of the Canal which was of such vital importance to the U.K. and the British Commonwealth. She recognizes this today. Her Foreign Minister admitted it on Wednesday. But today, although most people would feel that the danger of aggression was as great as in 1936, Egyptian nationalism apparently demands the withdrawal of British troops on the grounds that they detract from her sovereignty.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE idea behind the new proposals, which were to have been presented to Egypt on October 10th by the British Ambassador on behalf of the governments of the U.K., the U.S., France and Turkey, was that a regional defence organization should be created in the Middle East into which Egypt would enter as a full and equal partner. By this time, it was hoped that the security of the Canal Zone and of the whole area could have been secured by joint effort and under a unified command, without Egypt feeling that the continued presence of foreign troops on her soil was any infringement of her sovereignty; was no more of an infringement than the people in Britain feel about the presence here of American troops. The Egyptian Foreign Minister's statement on Wednesday that Egypt would "consider participation in a Middle East treaty organization only if the British got all their forces out of Egypt and the Sudan" is discouraging. Nevertheless, the four powers' proposals are to be submitted to Egypt in a day or two.

✧ ✧ ✧

THESE proposals have been worked out after much discussion between the four governments. Mr. Acheson made it quite clear in a prepared statement to the press last Wednesday that although the abrogation of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty was a matter of direct concern only to the two peoples, yet it did raise issues which were also "of general concern to the free world" and he strongly condemned the Egyptian government for its proposed unilateral abrogation of the treaty.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE position for the moment is that the U.K. government considers the proposed Egyptian legislation for abrogation of the 1936 treaty and the 1899 agreements on the Sudan as being illegal and therefore null and void. In this, the Government is supported fully by the U.S.A. In neither of these treaties or agreements is there any provision for unilateral abrogation. Provision was made that the 1936 treaty, in which the Sudan agreements were reaffirmed, could be revised after ten years if both parties agreed to negotiations. After 20 years—that is in 1956—negotiations for revision would be held at the request of either party. Yet for the past five years, Britain has been ready to discuss revision and still is.

An American Opinion: THEY SEEM TO GO TOGETHER

Prosperous Canada Greets Princess

(F. J. PHILIP IN NEW YORK TIMES)

HOW greatly Canada has grown in fortune and political stature in recent years has been sharply drawn to attention by the visit of Princess Elizabeth.

When her parents, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, toured this country in the early summer of 1939, Canada had just begun to emerge from a decade of depression, low prices and unemployment. Wheat, lumber, nickel and all the other products of the farms, the forests and the mines, by the export of which Canada paid her way, were selling in the world markets at prices that did not cover production costs. Bankruptcy and shutdowns were the rule in industry and relief the accepted fate of entire communities all across the Dominion. Only the most obstinate still believed in the future.

Now, twelve years later, the King's daughter and heir presumptive to the throne, the Princess Elizabeth, has come with her husband to a land which, after taking a fully honourable part in the war against Nazi Germany, has not only recovered but made great strides forward economically, financially, politically and in prestige among the other nations of the world.

In that short time Canadian national income has quadrupled and the population risen from 11,500,000 to more than 14,000,000. Since the war half a million selected immigrants have been admitted and absorbed into industry or settled on the land. The civilian labour force of the country is estimated at 5,332,000, with only 85,000 unemployed last June, and few of these for a period exceeding six months.

✧ ✧ ✧

INDUSTRIAL production has been increased nearly threefold and many new industries have been created, so that Canada is no longer dependent as she was on imports.

The discovery of new resources of oil, iron and minerals is leading to developments in the Prairie Provinces, in Northern Quebec and along the Arctic fringe that give immense promise.

Electric power has been doubled in these last twelve years, but the need for still more is so urgent, especially in the central provinces, which must import every ton of coal from fields hundreds and even thousands of miles away, that the demand has become emphatic for the fulfillment of the long-planned St. Lawrence power and seaway project. Most Canadians would prefer a joint undertaking with the United States in the good-neighbour spirit, but they have warmly approved their Government's decision to push hard for action alone if necessary.

There is no lobby here against the St. Lawrence project and no division of opinion on party lines. Even those Maritime Provinces and cities that might fear to lose by the building of a waterway into the centre of the Continent seem to have concluded that what is in the general interest cannot do them permanent harm, and they have dropped their opposition.

The same attitude of realistic acceptance of other formerly controversial proposals had been a distinguishing feature of this period of strong growth. With only rare dissenting voices, Parliament and the country have followed the Liberal Government's lead in foreign relations, even to participation in the Korean war and the now proposed dispatch to Europe of a Canadian contingent to fill out the ranks of the armies under the command of General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

✧ ✧ ✧

APPROPRIATIONS for defense are voted with a unanimity in striking contrast to the ferocious argument that used to mark the request for enough to keep a few Canadian destroyers at sea and a few planes flying.

Only the cost of living and what action the Government should take arouses any animation; and with full employment, weekly wages and salaries averaging $50 and defense production contracts being handed out in increasing volume, even that issue is somewhat academic at present. The contrast is certainly remarkable between the present situation and that of 1939, when King George visited his Dominion of Canada and everything was cheap but millions of people had no money to buy even necessities.

The one thing that war and the changed fortunes of Canada and Britain do not seem to have affected is the loyalty of the Canadian people to the Crown.

They are cheering Princess Elizabeth and her sailor husband, Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, as emotionally as they greeted the King and Queen twelve years ago. In Quebec City, Premier Maurice Duplessis described his Province as "the synonym for loyalty," and he did not exaggerate.

As so often happens, there is a mixture of sentiment and hard-headed common sense in the Canadian people's attitude toward the Crown.

With a people of so many different racial components and two main groups of Protestant British and French Roman Catholic origin, it would be extremely difficult to elect a chief who would be acceptable to all, and the usual compromise of an alternation in office would have to be reached. But the monarchy, which in the beginning preserved the rights and freedoms of the French minority, is still found to be the best solution. When French and English-speaking Canadians cry "Vive le Roi" or "Long Live the King," both do it from the head as well as from the heart.

Also—and perhaps this is one more shrewd calculation on their part—they feel that their allegiance to the Crown and the Commonwealth, while they have the fullest kind of autonomy in the management of their own affairs, is still a good guarantee against too-insistent pressure to share their fortunes exclusively with the United States.

The Canadian people like their neighbours. The radio programs to which they listen, the periodicals and newspapers they read, the things they eat and drink, the songs they sing—all are largely American. But they are Canadians; and, while they are relying more and more on themselves to remain that way, it is still a very good anchor to windward to be able to shout "God Save the King — of Canada!"

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?....

Now if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him: knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him. For in that he died, he died unto sin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.

Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. (Rom. 6: 3, 8-11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ; who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. (Titus 2: 11-14.)

Letter To The Editor

WHY WOMEN GO TO CHURCH

SIR: Have been delving into the minds of men, mainly, and some women, to obtain an answer to "Even I" Woman, re absence of men in church. I do agree with her that a person can usually extract from the multitude of words some message to assist in one's struggle.

The first reply was. "Men aren't interested. Women go to church to see the hats, to see and be seen." I classed that as too mundane, don't you?

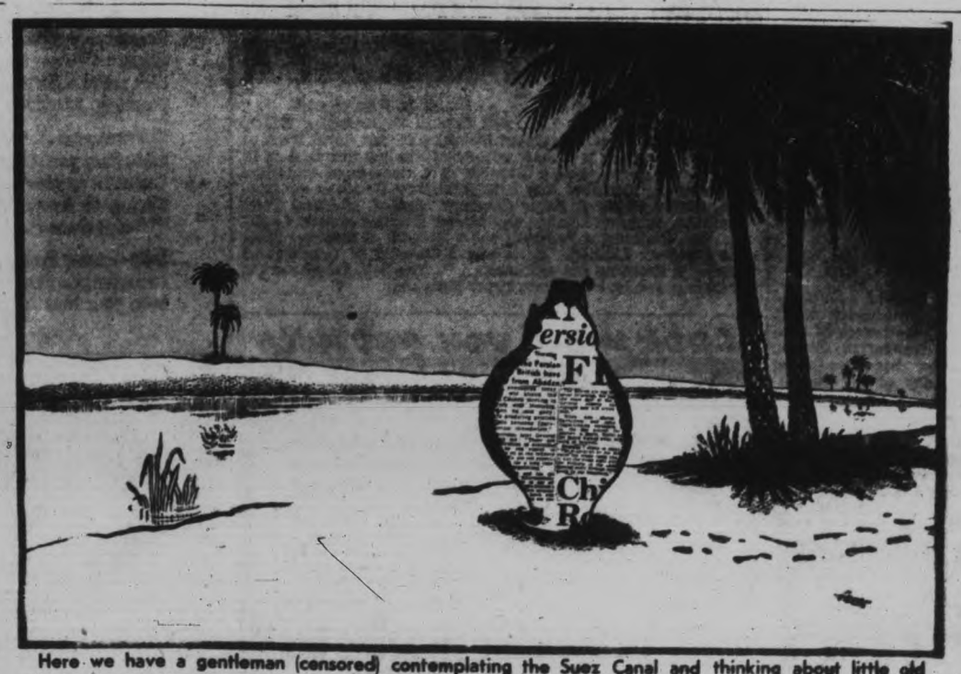
One woman answered, "Church service is an entertainment."

"I go to church so I won't have to prepare dinner," said another woman. "After all, it should be a day of rest. I wondered why I hadn't been bright enough to think of that myself years ago, as an escape.

"We attend church as an example to our children," several others answered.

A number of men—and women—said they would rather turn on the radio to a church service and relax on the lounge—with no hats to distract them.

ANOTHER WOMAN.



Costly Corner Crash

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

A judgement handed down in the Supreme Court at Kingston by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of a corner crash, one that could happen almost anywhere in any city, totals $48,683, exclusive of court and legal costs.

A Kingston doctor was driving a baby sitter home when his car was in collision with a truck. The truck driver and the baby sitter were killed and the doctor had a leg amputated. The court said the truck was 80 per cent responsible and gave the doctor a $39,262 award, the widow of the driver $4,250, the baby sitter's husband, a recent D.P., $3,000, while the Kingston P.U.C. got $2,171 for damages to its property.

The corner is a well-known one in Kingston and it seems almost inconceivable that a crash could occur there that would take two lives, maim a third person and cause damages totalling nearly $50,000. Facts like that make one pause. They should make drivers refuse to take a chance.

Pop-Drinking Duck Shot By Hunter

PORT CREDIT, Oct. 17 (CP)—Pogo is dead. The chocolate-eating and pop-drinking tame Mallard duck was shot Tuesday by a hunter as he cruised up and down the Credit river near his favorite haunts.

Police Chief Joseph Nelson arrested James J. MacDonald, 30, on a charge of discharging a firearm in the village limits.

Pogo, known by all the children in the district, loved crowds. He would take food out of a child's mouth or drink pop straight from the bottle.

Chief Nelson described the shooting as shameful. He said the hunter, in a boat, rowed alongside the swimming Pogo and shot him.

Cobourg Golfers Get Awards At Prize Night

COBOURG, Oct. 17 — Local golfers received their awards in the season's closing event at Cobourg Golf Club. Three players, all young members, won most of the prizes.

Club championship in the men's division went to Billy Bowen, who defeated veteran Harry Deyman 4 and 2 in the final, to climax a brilliant season. Bowen, not yet 18, placed high in provincial junior competition in the summer events and was a leading competitor in interclub competition in this district.

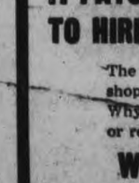
Bud McIvor, just out of junior ranks, came up with two trophies, the Burn and G. S. Oliver Cups. In addition, he placed second in the D. Houston Trophy event, to Dr. W. W. Brett.

The Ladies' Division was dominated by youthful Jeanne Allen, who won the club title, the Burn Trophy, and the CLGU event, as well as sharing honors in the Westinghouse Trophy, a pairs event, with Mrs. H. Campbell.

Mrs. Reg. Stuart and Mrs. Lionel Ross, came second to the champion and her partner in this event.

Three golfers moved into the top flight in club ranks, by reducing their handicaps. They were Dr. W. W. Wilson, Ted Hogan, and Bart Ward. In the ladies' section Mrs. Ann Lazier advanced.

At a dinner dance 150 members gathered to honor club pro Lionel Ross, who is leaving for home this week.



More Scandal In Basketball

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP). — The college basketball scandal is expected to spread to more schools and players according to assistant district attorney Vincent O'Connor.

O'Connor made this assertion Tuesday following the arrest of Joseph Benintende, 42, alleged king pin of a basketball "fix" ring. O'Connor, however, gave no indication as to how many colleges or players might be involved, or when details would be made public.

The scandal so far has involved 31 players from six teams, Bradley, Toledo, Manhattan, New York City College, Long Island University and New York University.

O'Connor indicated that Benintende was "singing" on colleges involved but not mentioned so far in the scandal.

Orfuns Beat the Raiders By 8-7 In Football Upset

Peterborough Orfuns kicked the old grid dope bucket seven ways for Sunday last evening when they beat Oshawa Red Raiders 8-7 right in the Motor City. The leaders of the Central Ontario ORFU senior "B" group race (who had trimmed Cobourg Ghosts, last year's champions last Saturday) suffered an unexpected setback in their loss to Frank Gnup's hustling aggregation. It kept the Orfuns well up in the race for a playoff spot.

After a scoreless first frame, the Orfuns racked up a 7-1 lead at the half. However, the husky Raiders fought back furiously to outscore the visitors 6-0 in the third quarter to tie up the count. But Orfuns got the odd single point in the fourth to win. On territorial play, they should have won by at least six points as they outplayed their husky rivals throughout.

Line Starred

Peterborough turned in an all-around solid performance. The line was exceptionally good, offensively and defensively, with the downfield tackling halting Raiders in their tracks. The backfield flashed a variety of plays, especially on their passing, that had the other side loose and uncertain most of the route. Chuck Paul's kicking was terrific and he broke up the game in the fourth frame as Oshawa pressed with a 70-yard hoof. He had ample protection throughout.

While some players gained more ground than others, and Huntley turned in another stellar performance, there were no particular stars for the Petes. They all turned in a swell showing against the toughest outfit in the group, and right in their own backyard. Cobourg officials were on hand to cheer the Orfuns, but they are also worrying about the next meeting with the hottest club now in the circuit. Three Hamilton officials kept the game well in hand and were quite impartial but strict.

Missed Chance

Huntley threw an early pass to Lalonde, and later Taylor intercepted another toss. Ellis kicked to Hodson and Huntley bucked six but they had to hoof it. Brodie ran one back 10 till Matthews nailed him with a nifty tackle. Huntley threw another pass to Lally but again they had to kick. Fitzgerald broke through to throw Taylor for a loss and Burns followed up with a terrific tackle on Brodie. After the kick, Huntley passed to Naismith for 10 and they drove up the field, an Oshawa roughing penalty helping. A fumble in paydirt was costly and Berry stopped Brodie before he broke free. Burns and DeCarlo did some hard blocking, too, as Oshawa threatened. Eisen, on an old "Statue of Liberty," got free for 12 and Taylor went for 10 on an extension, but Beatty and Farr halted the next try at the quarter.

Ellis kicked a point from fairly well in early in the second. Huntley bucked nine and Hodson made it yards. Jerry McGillis got a gain, but the big Oshawa line forced a kick. Trimm threw Taylor for a loss and Lalonde took the kick, passing to J. McGillis for a 10-yard runback. They worked it up gradually and Huntley crossed up the opposition with a long forward heave which Naismith just grabbed with his finger tips as he stumbled over the line for a major count in a play that drew heavy applause. Huntley kicked the convert to give Orfuns a 6-1 lead. Nickle stopped Rorabeck on the kickoff and Berry knocked down Taylor's pass. Jerry McGillis was hurt and went off. Hodson bucked for a first down and Huntley moved the sticks on a plunge. Dewart's lateral to Lalonde helped and Nickle got a few more as they moved up where Huntley could kick a point on an attempted field goal.

In Oshawa End

Most of the play was in the Oshawa area again in the third heat. Paul was kicking well, though Ellis looked good for Oshawa. Don McGillis did some good tackling and Bill Thompson dragged down Brodie on a 12-yard extension gain. Dewart stopped Rorabeck and then Beatty limped off after a fine showing. Brodie carried the mail once more but Farr stopped delivery shortly. Loreno on a handoff went for 25 as the Raiders caught fire. Mozewsky twice bucked to move the sticks as they drove in close and then Taylor shook loose to go over for an unconverted try. Hodson had a 10-yard runback on the kick and Raiders changed players often in the gruelling going. Grice was helped off after being stopped by Fitzgerald and Naismith. Ellis intercepted a Huntley pass and they drove up again till Ellis got within distance to kick a pass and tie up the score. Orfuns rallied smartly with two completed passes from Huntley to Naismith and another to Eadie just before the quarter ended.

Chuck Paul came in to open the fourth and the Gnup gang played it safe when he kicked a single, the point that eventually decided the game. Dewart later lateralled to Huntley for six but, as Oshawa threatened in Peterborough territory, Paul moved in again and tossed the leather lemon at least 70 yards to remove the threat. Play moved up and down but pretty much between the 35-yard strips. Beaton went off hurt in the hard tackling and blocking. Loreno intercepted a pass at centre but right after that Huntley intercepted one of Taylor's passes. Mozewsky went around end for 20 and was hurt on the tackle. As Raiders again threatened to tie it up, Dewart recovered a fumble. They played it costly the rest of the way. Teams:

Orfuns—Flying wing, Lalonde; halves, Huntley, Hodson, Matthews; quarter, Dewart; snap, Graham; insides, DeCarlo, Lynch; middles, Beatty, Fitzgerald; outsides, Naismith, D. McGillis; alternates, Scriver, Thompson, J. McGillis, Nickle, Berry, Trimm, Burns, Bartley, Farr, John Conlin, Menzies, Johnston, Howe, Archibald, Jim Conlin, Paul, Russelle, Corner.

Oshawa—Flying wing, Ford; halves, Lyson, Ellis, Loreno; quarter, Taylor; snap, Kenisky; insides, Lowe, Bilsky; middles, Freeman, Phillips; outsides, Luke, Beaton; alternates, Brodie, Wotton, Armstrong, Mozewsky, Seminick, Burkhart, Edwards, Hodgson, McArthur, Wilson, Harper, Tinthwaite, Eisen.

Officials—J. Fumio, N. Maxwell and W. Shepherd, of Hamilton.

Fans In Action As Layton Clips Frenchman

Athol Layton, titled aspirant to the world's heavyweight crown and British Empire championship, took the deciding fall of a best-of-three over the great Zorra in the feature bout of last night's wrestling show at the Brock.

Wild scenes climaxed a hectic duel between the fast and skilful matmen as both battled outside the ring several seconds before Layton returned to the mat just in time to win the nod. The colorful Frenchman was unable to make it and was counted out. Further action followed fast, however, as Zorra did return to renew the lost feud, and spectators and policemen milled about like mothers of eight at a clothing sale.

In the melee, his lordship's manager, Gerald, lost first the pocket of his coat and later the entire garment itself, when an irate and wild-eyed youth attacked him during the action and stripped him of his raiment.

Took The First

Zorra, a nimble matador at 245, took the first fall over Athol in 45 seconds of lightning action as the bout opened, with there terrific drop-kicks followed by a Londos airplane spin and finally crotch hold and body slam that stunned Layton plenty. The proud aristocrat from Surrey returned for the second fall, however, quite undaunted and used his 260 pounds of bone and muscle to squash and heave his agile foe till, finally, after much rough play both in and out of the ring Layton flattened the Paris boy with a flying octopus in mid ring. The large crowd roared with sympathy fairly evenly divided, though Zorra ruled a slight favorite.

After the intermission, a rough and speedy exhibition followed and both giants used their enormous strength to the full, in a battle of leverages. Flung to the mat, the great Zorra flew up to thrice bounce Layton to the ring apron and from thence to the floor; he in turn suffered like treatment. Finally, after 11 minutes of feverish battling, both came hurtling through the ropes to clash on the floor below. Then came the count and the dramatic finish.

Goes To Draw

Popular Bill Stack, 241, turned in a neat draw with Boston's Dan O'Connor, 238, in the prelim, a fast, fairly rough bout. Both boys proved aggressive with O'Connor the rougher of the two; but tore up the rule book at times with considerable hair-pulling. A good exhibition, featuring some neat mat work with toe holds a specialty, found both men going strong for 30 minutes as Referee Dunlop ruled the match even—though the spectators favored Stack.

Chief Suni War Cloud, 227, earned a decision over blond Lou Sjoberg of Duluth, who tips the bea mat 243, in a fast semi-final bout, packed with action. California's Suni, all decked out in his native costume, strode to the ring determined to hold his own against his heavier opponent and virtue had its reward. Lou flashed great power and frequently had Suni in peril with a painful series of headlocks and arm and wristlocks; but the wily brave opened a ground attack on the muscular blond through the medium of a series of head-scissors that ground the face and head of Sjoberg on the mat for several minutes. Switching to a combination of painful toe-holds, the chief had Lou sweating last week's water as the Duluth boy howled for mercy and in turn arose to smite the Indian with everything in the book. It was a fierce duel but Dunlop awarded Suni the decision at the bell.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Gerry McNeil, goaltender for Montreal Canadiens, suffered a seven-stitch cut in his forehead during practice Tuesday but it was hoped he will be ready for Thursday night's National Hockey League game here with New York Rangers.

McNeil, who was hurt when struck by Floyd Curry's skate during a pile-up in front of the goal, was taken to hospital. An X-ray examination showed no bone injury as at first feared. He is expected to leave hospital today.

Allie Reynolds of double no-hit, no-run fame will give his chip-studded right elbow a full test in Oklahoma City Sunday. If all goes well the New York Yankee pitcher will not undergo an operation.

The star righthander said at New York Tuesday "I was pitching too well down the stretch this season to take a chance on an operation now. He finished with a 17-8 record, pitched his second no-hitter to clinch a pennant tie for the Yanks and won the fourth game of the world series.

At Chatham, Gerry Wicks, pitcher with Dresden Legionnaires of the Ontario Baseball Association's Junior League, signed a contract Tuesday to play with Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League next season. He is the third Dresden player to join the Pittsburgh chain this year.

The Cain Hoy stable's Homebred Armageddon won the 81st running of the $25,000-added Champagne Stakes Tuesday at New York's Belmont Park. Ridden by Willie Shoemaker, who won the last four races, Armageddon beat Lazy F Ranch's Put Out by a length and a half in the slow time of 1:38 1-5 for one mile and paid $15.00, $7.20 and $5.00.

At New York, Syl Veitch, trainer of C. V. Whitney's Counterpoint, said Tuesday a leg cut suffered by the colt was healing satisfactorily and the horse would be able to start in the $50,000-added Empire City Gold Cup on Saturday at Jamaica. Counterpoint suffered a cut last Saturday when he beat C. T. Chenery's Hill Prince in the $50,000 Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park.

At Detroit, Ray Kennedy, farm director for Detroit Tigers, said Tuesday night he was fired yesterday. It had been rumored for weeks that Kennedy, farm director since 1948, likely would be replaced by Muddy Ruel, who quit as Cleveland's farm director Sunday.

Other Winnipeggers in the play are: Bill Campbell (32), Sleepy Knowles (33) and Biff Bliss (64). Lone blocker for Charlton is tackle Jim McFaul (90). Winnipeg won 30-23.

NHL bulletin says: "The two rookies starting the season with Boston Bruins are George Sullivan and Ray Barry. Sullivan has been a standout with Hershey Bears of the AHL the past two seasons. The redheaded Irishman, who stands five-nine and weighs 165 pounds, is a colorful player and should be very popular with the vast Irish population of Boston. Sullivan is a 21-year-old centre, whose home is in Peterborough. Barry played last winter for Edmonton. A 23-year-old forward, Barry was born in Boston and, should he click with the Bruins, will be a big favorite with the Hub City fans. He is five feet 10 and weighs 155 pounds."

Quinte columnist comments re the Kingston puck scandal! "While we are not condoning the action of the Nylons, or any other club guilty of similar conduct, this blot on hockey escutcheon of this part of Ontario probably would not have been cast had the CAHA or OHA, whichever was responsible, not created the wacky playdown series for the Allan Cup. Owen Sound, more powerful than the year previous when playing senior 'A,' were matched with Peterborough, winners of the district group, and eliminated them rather handily. That left nothing else for the Petes to do but hang up their gear. During the season, the Petes played an exhibition with the Mercuries and this revealed that the Petes, best aggregation in this group, were no match for the northern squad."

* * * * * *

Quinte Club Worrying

"The reason," he continues, "for the Nylons throwing of the Petes' series then is fairly obvious, but that does not by any means absolve them of guilt in the matter. We were present at a group meeting earlier in the season when Frank Buckland of the OHA outlined the new Allan Cup series and called for a show of hands by which teams if returned winners would play in this series. Every team voted in the affirmative, including the Nylons. Belleville's position at the moment is up in the air. If Kingston does ice a team, everything is as was. If the Peterborough clubs elect to enter a westerly group, it would leave Belleville isolated. Unless the powers-that-be here are willing to go along with Petes and Eagles in the western group, and the OHA gives its consent."

Rumors fly thick and fast re players of the two local senior "B" clubs. Each one is supposed to be losing players to the other. We'll wait a bit until rumors are proven to be facts ere running items on them. However, we do know that Honey Tompkins has applied to the Petes for his release in order to play defence for Eagles. His application will be dealt with at the next executive meeting of the Petes. If the Petes refuse to grant his release, we understand the Eagles will make application to the OHA sub-committee to hear both sides of the case and make a decision.

Orfuns Really Earned It

Sound gridiron tactics saw Orfuns prevail in the Motor City last eve as they edged out the powerful Red Raiders 8-7. It was a severe blow to the Raiders (as Cobourg officials cheered heartily) and it kept Frank Gnup's hustlers in the hunt as time starts to run out on the contending clubs. Orfuns have but two more games, one with Cobourg here and one in Toronto. A long pass by Bill Huntley and great catch by Clive Naismith made for the Orfuns' major—that and some terrific kicking by Chuck Paul proved the payoff plays. Our whole crew clicked like castanets and definitely earned the decision, having more of the play. They take a well-earned rest now.

Never a dull moment at the wrestle shows. Trimly tailored Gerald, manager and friend of Lord Athol Layton, was pretty perturbed after the main bout last p.m. along the Rue Brock. Seems some cad took unkindly to Layton's win over Zorra, and took a high dislike to Gerald, also. And he took Gerald's coat right off his back. A bounder with taking ways, what? Confusion reigned as the big ringmen battled outside the ring, his ludship getting back in time for the verdict. Chief Suni War Cloud won the semi-final o'er Lou Sjoberg, whilst Bill Stack and Dan O'Connor went to a prelim draw. Whipper Bill Watson dropped in to view the goings-on during the hectic evening.

Kitchener Wins Over Teepees 9-7

By The Canadian Press.

Kitchener Greenshirts, the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series' new entry, took over undisputed possession of first place Tuesday night by scoring four unanswered goals in the final period against St. Catharines Teepees to win 9-7.

It was Kitchener's third straight triumph without a setback and kept them one point ahead of Guelph Biltmores, who romped to an easy 9-3 triumph over Barrie Flyers in Guelph.

In the only other game played Tuesday night, Galt Black Hawks scored their initial win of the young season by edging the winless Windsor Spitfires 3-2 in Galt. Hawks now hold fourth place.

Greenshirts led 4-2 at the end of the first period but fell behind as Teepees set a torrid pace in the opening minutes of the second frame by counting four goals in the space of 76 seconds.

The line of Greg Hicks, Orval Tessier and Mike Kolowaty paced the winners, accounting for five goals. Hicks, former Timmins juvenile, was the individual star with two goals and three assists. Tessier also scored two, and Holowaty, Gary Edmundson, Joe Ingoldsby, Frank Toyota and Jack Novak accounted for the others.

Goal-getters

For St. Catharines, Buddy Boone scored three goals while Pierce Pilote and Gerry Foley with singles, and Bill Young, with two, hit for the other markers.

Ken Laufman sparked Biltmores, clicking for three goals Linemates Ron Murphy and Chuck Henderson each added a pair while singletons went to Ray Ross and Louis Fontinato. Chuck Wood, with two goals, and, defenceman Doug Mohns scored for Flyers, last season's Memorial Cup winners.

Barrie goalie Lorne Howse turned in an outstanding performance despite the nine goals tallied against him. He made 37 saves as compared to 15 by Terry Hagen in the Guelph cage.

Galt encountered trouble with Don Wilson in the Spitfires' goal. The Hawks fired 48 shots at him. But the three that did get by were enough to give Galt their first win.

Bill MacIntosh, Pete Conacher and Ken Wharram beat Wilson, while Elmer Skov and Jackson Miller scored for Windsor.

Farm System Declared Bad For Baseball

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 (AP)— Leslie O'Connor, for 23 years one of Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis' closest advisers, said farm systems are destroying organized baseball.

O'Connor told a house judiciary sub-committee that the late Judge Landis never liked the farm systems. But, O'Connor said, "Judge Landis did not oppose it as much as I do."

Under the farm system, a major league club owns or controls minor league teams. The sub-committee, studying whether baseball violates anti-trust laws, has been casting a critical eye on the farms.

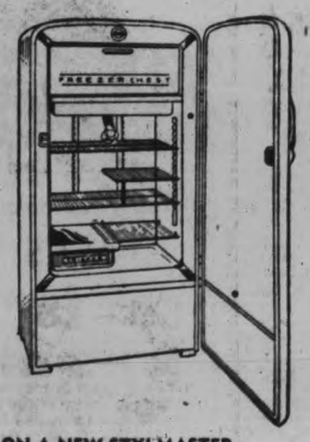
O'Connor said that the rules say no team can control more than 40 ball players. "But by the farm system," he said, "it actually can control hundreds of players."

He contended that this isn't good for the players, the minor leagues or, in some cases, the major league clubs which go in for farming.

O'Connor, now a Chicago lawyer, and also counsel for the Pacific Coast League, said he had made no study of how baseball could get itself out of the farm system, now that it is so thoroughly in it.

He admitted, too, that any attempt to cancel the farm system entirely would cause considerable confusion.

M. Knight Leads



M. Knights had high single of 293 and J. Castle top three of 745 this week in the Girls' City Bowling League. Marines led teams with 3,211 and had best single game with an 1,186 roll. The blind score of 563 was taken by K. Baetty and Elsie Flint, each hitting 565.

Black's blanked Curtin's, and Marines applied the brush to Collis during the evening, as 2-1 victories were taken by Arcos over Aces, Bassel's against Cardinals, and Dickson's over the Sevenaires.

Will File Claim Against Bobby Avila

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 17 (AP)—Promoter Ray Murphy says he will file a claim against Bobby Avila, Cleveland Indian second baseman, because the Mexican has failed to join Murphy's barnstorming all-star squad.

Following Tuesday night's game here in which the Americans beat the Nationals, 6-5, Murphy told reporters he intends to submit a full report to baseball commissioner Ford Frick about the incident.

He said Avila had promised him in a telephone conversation Tuesday that he definitely would meet the all-stars in El Paso.

Tuesday night's game made five exhibition games staged by the players. They have 19 more scheduled.

Polo Grounds Sold?

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Daily News says today that the Polo Grounds, home of the New York Giants, is up for sale. But Giant president Horace Stoneham said he had no knowledge of any sale. The News says the price is $800,000 and that the deal is near completion. The paper says that if the park is sold the Giants will move into Yankee Stadium.

Boston-Toronto NHL Tilt May Aid Experts In Choice

By The Canadian Press

The National Hockey League ends its first week of activity tonight with a game that may help the early-season selectors get their choices straight. Boston Bruins, a popular choice for last place before the first puck was dropped, tangle with Toronto Maple Leafs with a chunk of first place awaiting the victors.

The Bruins have only one victory in three starts so far, but their showing has been impressive against top-ranking opposition. They split a pair of one-goal decisions with Montreal Canadiens over the weekend after dropping a 1-0 verdict to Detroit Red Wings last Thursday. Most of the experts pick Detroit or Montreal to finish on top.

Toronto's Stanley Cup champions haven't shown much consistency in their two starts to date. They looked like bush-leaguers in their home debut against the surprising Chicago Black Hawks, which they lost 3-1 last Saturday. The next night, they were terrific as they whipped the Red Wings 3-2 in Detroit.

Out In Front

Currently, the Hawks and Canadiens are out in front of the pack with four points. Toronto, Detroit and Boston are tied for third place, two points off the pace and another two ahead of New York Rangers, who lost their only start to Chicago.

The Leafs will ice virtually the same team that knocked Boston out of the Stanley Cup playoffs last spring. But the Bruins will show some significant new faces.

Veteran Sugar Jim Henry, with plenty of goaltending experience with New York and Chicago behind him, has replaced Jack Gelineau in the nets.

Rock-ribbed Gus Kyle, acquired from the Rangers, will add bounce to the Bruins' defence. George Sullivan, a kid from Peterborough, who scored 84 points for the Bruins' Hershey farm in the American Hockey League last season, is the most prominent of Boston's crop of rookies.

But the early-season sensation among the newcomers is Adam Brown, the 31-year-old forward whom Boston obtained on waivers from the Black Hawks.

From his utility job at Chicago, Brown has braduated to the first-string left-wing berth alongside Johnny Peirson and the incomparable Milt Schmidt. It was Brown whose goal sank the Canadiens last weekend for Boston's lone victory.

Ottawa Waits Leadership From US On Egypt Crisis

OTTAWA, Oct. 17 (CP). — A concerned government got a large volume of information on the Egyptian crisis from London on Tuesday but tended to look to Washington for a strong lead that might best solve it.

The official anxiety here is rooted in a belief that this crisis does far more than endanger the vital Suez Canal area unless there is a firm stand, it endangers the whole position of the western powers in the Middle East.

There is a feeling here that the lead in that stand could most authoritatively be taken by the United States in a way which would quickly collapse Egypt's intransigence and maintain the west's prestige by showing that the two major western powers stand firmly together.

As for Canada herself, official concern over both Egypt and the assassination of Pakistan's Prime Minister is great, but she is no more likely to get involved directly in the Middle East now than she has in the past.

Two commonwealth statements during the day bore on this situation. In New Zealand, traditionally concerned with Middle Eastern defence, Prime Minister Holland issued a ringing statement of support for Britain. In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Pearson told the Commons the Egyptian situation is "difficult and highly inflammatory" and nothing he might say would help it.

Earlier, at the request of Prime Minister St. Laurent, the House joined in an unusual gesture of tribute and sympathy, in mourning the death of Pakistan's Liaquat Ali Khan. Mr. St. Laurent and the three leaders joined in paying tribute to the Moslem leader and in regretting his loss.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, suggested that the death might be linked with a Communist design for destruction of the free nations.

The official feeling appears to be, however, that communism is not the primary impulse behind all the troubles in Pakistan, Iran Egypt and other countries in that general area.

It feeds on them, but the primary impulse comes from nationalism. The fear is that if rapacious nationalism and blackmail pay off as they did in Iran, then a chain reaction could be set up which would imperil the western position not only in Suez, but elsewhere. Unless a firm west prevents this, there would soon exist a power vacuum into which communism would step.

Senate To Appoint Committee To Study Major Government Bills

OTTAWA, Oct. 17 (CP). — A move was afoot in Canada's Senate today to meet a long-standing criticism—that Senators as an integral part of Canada's parliamentary system have too little opportunity to study major government legislation.

In the upper chamber's first meeting since the opening of parliament a week ago Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, Tuesday night proposed establishment of a number of "investigating committees." Their job would be to study major government bills and report on them to the Senate as the bills reach the floor of that house.

Immediate approval of the plan was blocked temporarily. Senator J. H. King (L-British Columbia) objected to waiving a rule requiring two days' notice on such motions and adjourned the debate until today.

Stems From Debate

Senator Robertson said his plan stemmed from the long reform debate in the Senate last session. He indicated the committees, making a simultaneous study while the legislation is before the Commons, will get such big jobs as proposed bills based on the Royal Commission's report on freight rates and legislation regarding the dispatching of Canadian forces to Europe.

The recurring complaint of Senators has been that the requirement of full Commons passage before legislation can get to the Senate floor often delays important measures until the last days of the session, thus affording no opportunity for study. The committees would overcome this.

The government leader's proposal followed speeches by Senator Thomas Vien (L-Quebec) moving the address in reply to the speech from the throne and Senator Thomas Wood (L-Saskatchewan) seconding the address.

Controls Do Harm

Senator Vien declared that imposition of price controls in Canada now will "do more harm than good." He said the three ways to beat inflation is to reduce the amount of money in circulation, encourage savings and moderation in purchasing and promote efforts for "greater production per hour of labor and to increase hours of work without additional pay."

Speaking mainly in French, the Quebec Senator also dealt with defence, saying the North Atlantic Alliance has been brought about by Russian Communist aggressiveness. This alliance "must now become the nucleus of a true commonwealth of free nations."

Senator Wood warned that 35 per cent of this year's prairie wheat crop will be of non-millable grade because of adverse weather during harvesting. Farmers might be well advised to get rid of this year's low grade for what they could get and use the storage space for better grades.

Senator Robertson said he planned to streamline three Senate committes immediately — transportation and communications, finance and external relations. Later he would do the same with the committees on Canadian trade relations, immigration and labor and natural resources.

These committees already operate but have no regular schedule and do not delve deeply into government bills. Under the new system their present membership of from 35 to 50 would be reduced to a maximum of 17.

Fabulous Car Sports Roof Garden

LONDON, Oct. 17 (Reuters). — Anyone want a trailer with roof garden? Or perhaps a limousine with gold plating instead of the usual chromium?

They're both going on exhibit here today at the annual show arranged by the British Society of Motor Manufacturers. Also on display will be the 1952 models of 64 motor companies from all over the world.

The trailer has gleaming metal walls two rows of windows and an inside stairway leading to the garden and sun lounge on top. Without the garden it won a prize in New York last year as the world's best trailer. Now the makers, Warwick Knight, have added the shrubbery.

Then there is a custom-made limousine with gold-plated radiator, gold controls and upholstery bedecked with golden stars as well as gold-trimmed cocktail set, beauty box and picnic set concealed in the rear compartment.

The car is built by Daimler. The price is a secret—but the standard version, without gold, costs $14,000.

Want Foreign Buyers

The British manufacturers who exhibit their wares mainly hope to attract foreign buyers. Last year's exhibition netted them foreign orders worth $70,000,000.

But things are tougher now. Steel is going for rearmament rather than cars and production must be cut back, perhaps up to 40 per cent. Also, Canada, one of the best markets for British cars, is shipping back autos not sold because of credit restrictions.

At their annual dinner on the eve of the show Tuesday night members of the BSMM gloomily pondered the future. Their president calculated that today a Briton needed an income three times larger than before the Second World War to run an automobile.

THE PETERBOROUGH BRANCH of the Associated Canadian Travellers' Association which was chartered in 1946 is playing host at a provincial conference being held here this weekend. Above are shown Cy Stack Dominion president of the ACT on the presentation of the charter to Mel Johnston, president of the Peterborough Branch.

TB And Polio Victims Aided By Activities Of The ACT

Provincial conference of the Associated Canadian Travellers' Association will be held here Friday and Saturday this week.

The two-day schedule includes business sessions Friday and Saturday, a cocktail and dance party Friday evening.

The conference officially concludes Saturday noon with a luncheon.

The host branch was chartered in 1946, seven years after the parent organization was formed as a fraternal benefit society. Since its inception, ACT has grown to include 35 clubs, 15 of them in Ontario.

Charitable work by the clubs has raised thousand of dollars for TB and poliomyelitis, though the clubs do not function primarily as service clubs.

Business sessions of the conference will start at 9 a.m. Friday, concluding at 5 p.m., when a cocktail party is scheduled at the Club Aragon. Conference headquarters will be the Empress Hotel. There will be a three-hour business session Saturday morning.

The club's newsletter, the ACT Bulletin, received the annual award in 1950 for the finest club bulletin. This year's executive is: president, Don Meredith; vice-presidents, Jack Hewitt and Ken Gadd: directors, Tom Casey, Charlie Hobbs, Tom Sheridan, Mel Johnston, Johnny Edmundson, Bill Mitchell, Bev. Dawe, Jack Armstrong, and Bernie McCracken. Secretary-treasurer is Art Goodier, and immediate past-president, Doug Delaney.

Rev. W. Tonge Speaks At Springville

SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 17 (ENS) —In Springville United Church on Sunday, Rev. A. E. Larke, baptized three children, Sandra Annette Kelk and Susan Dianne Kelk, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kelk and Zetta Helen Johnston, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Johnston.

In his Sunday morning message to the congregation Mr. Larke deplored that the Bible was neglected in the world today and urged that the inspired word of God be restored to its rightful place in the homes an the churches.

He suggested that young people read more biography and less fiction because biography teaches us that the men who really accomplished great things in the world were men of God, and men who studied the word of God.

The evening service at Springville Church was a special missionary rally under the auspices of the Y. P. U. The guest speaker was the Rev. Walton Tonge of Lakefield who drew from his rich experience as a missionary in China for his address.

He stressed his respect for the Chinese people, their patience, in the face of the crowded conditions in their country, the starvation in parts of China, and their stand against Communism. He said there were two types of people in the world who are accomplishing things— one is the consecrated communist and the other the consecrated Christian. He urged that Christians be much more zealous in their task of bringing the world to Christ.

On behalf of the Young people, Mr. Larke expressed thanks to Mr. Tonge. Previous to the message of the evening, the young people had a short service with Catharine Earle. Lila Seymour and Hazel McIntosh taking part. Mr. Larke led in a service of song and Mr. Larke and Mrs. Larke sang "The Lord is My Shepherd" to the music used at the wedding of Prince Elizabeth and The Duke of Edinburgh.

The Young Married Couple Group, (the I A M Class) are meeting on Wednesday evening this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnston when Mr. Kirk of Lindsay will speak on the Ganaraska Watershed.

The Y. P. U. are to meet on Friday evening, Oct. 19, at Fairmount for an evening of worship and recreation.

British Customs Ready To Curb Nylon Smuggling

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 16 — (Reuters)—British customs investigators are ready to pounce on a well-organized gang of transatlantic nylon smugglers, with headquarters in New York and London, it was revealed Tuesday.

Evidence on the operations of the gang, which brings thousands of smuggled nylon stockings into this south-coast port every year, has been obtained after recent arrests in this country.

A two-year hunt for the gang has been mainly centred on the crack British liners Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, which ply regularly between Southampton and New York.

Nylons, bought in New York at less than $1 a pair, have sold to nylon-starved British girls at $2.80 to $4 a pair.

In Britain, nylons are taxed to one-third of their value, with a further one-third customs levy.

Seek To Write History Of Millbrook Area

MILLBROOK, Oct. 17 (ENS).—Mrs. Allie Fallis was hostess on Friday to the Women's Institute. Mrs. John Lunn was in the chair.

Mrs. J. H. Hilton, leader of the Girls' Club, reported that Jean Hubbard had been successful in winning a three-days' course in Guelph for her achievements in club work.

Mrs. Wm. H. Armstrong, convener of the Tweedsmuir history book, asked all members and others who had access to material concerning accounts of old churches, cemeteries, Crown deeds to farms of the district and so on to pass them on to her. It is hoped to get suficient material to make a book of the history of this section of the province.

Mrs. Delbert Olan was in charge of the program on citizenship and public relations. Mrs. H. Blakely gave an interesting paper in which she said that an environment of good friends is beyond price, and that the way to destroy enemies was to make friends of them. Fear is a powerful enemy of good public relations. People are often afraid to do their best for fear of criticism. Everyone responds better to praise than to censure. It is necessary to find pleasant things to say. Wounded vanity is one of the greatest causes of all trouble and hard feelings.

Contests were held and delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and the committee.

LAC Pat Kent is spending embarkation leave with his father, H. V. Kent, and his aunt, Miss Ellen Kent, before he leaves at the end of the month for England.

At the junior farmers' banquet and dance, held in Canton on Friday evening, members from Millbrook supplied the entertainment part of the program. Margaret Aiken gave readings and Bruce Ingham, Jr., vocal solos.

The inter - church young peoples' group held their first fireside of the season in Grace Presbyterian Church on Sunday, after evening service. Edward Hewitt, of Cobourg, gave a vocal solo, and Yvonne Richards and Edith Elson a vocal duet. Wilfred Elson showed two films. Paul Sanders conducted the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hewitt, Cobourg, and George Ingham, Toronto, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ingham.

Mrs. A. A. Chote and Mrs. G. MacKay held a shower at the latter's home for their sewing and novelty table of which they are in charge on October 19 at the Home and School Association's family fair in the school. Many pretty and useful articles were received. There was an interesting program of contests and refreshments were served.

Commission Query

OWEN SOUND, Oct. 17 (CP)—Ontario Orangemen will query candidates in the coming provincial election as to whether they support recommendations of the Hope commission on education. William J. They were married shortly after her arrival and sailed as husband-wife team on the Sommen. They met 20 months ago at the Seamen's Mission in Calcutta, India.

Believes Coalition Best For Britain

LONDON. — (CP) — Raymond Blackburn, the only Independent member of the House of Commons, says that he will not be a candidate in Britain's Oct. 25 general election.

"I do not wish to fight old friends," said Blackburn, who was elected as a Labor member in February, 1950, and resigned from the party in August the same year.

In resigning, Blackburn called for a National government which he said should be headed by Winston Churchill, Conservative leader.

In a statement announcing his intention to remain on the sidelines in the forthcoming election, Blackburn said he still believes a National government is the best solution to Britain's difficulties. He said he will do all he can to hasten the return of a strong government headed by Churchill.

Blackburn represented the Northfield Division of Birmingham.

Oliver To Run In Ontario Election

DURHAM, Oct. 17 (CP)—Farquhar Oliver, Liberal leader in the last Ontario legislature, Tuesday night was nominated as Liberal candidate for Grey South riding in the provincial general election No. 22. It was the eighth consecutive time he has been named to contest the riding.

Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, told the nomination convention that if the Liberal party is elected to power he will make Mr. Oliver agriculture minister in his cabinet.

Mr. Oliver criticized the highways department for not paying a larger share of snow-clearing costs. He promised that if the Liberals are elected, he will see that the road from Durham to Flesherton is paved and that the present county road from Flesherton to Southampton is made a provincial highway.

RESTING UP—Mohammed Mossadegh, Iran's ailing 72-year-old premier, sits huddled in a wheelchair in a New York hospital, resting up for his appearance before the UN Security Council. He will give Iran's side of the oil crisis between his country and Great Britain.

Churchill Liability And Asset To Conservative Party Fight

By RELMAN MORIN.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (AP). — Majestic old Winston Churchill, still the greatest single force in British politics, is both a liability and an asset to his Conservative party's fight to overthrow the Labor government in the national election next week.

Churchill himself, as an individual and a leader, is one of the "issues" in this campaign.

There are people who are afraid of him, and will vote against the Conservatives solely because he is the party leader. On the other hand, his name alone will be a lodestone for voters who might otherwise vote Labor or Liberal.

In each case, British prestige in the world, along with the danger of war, is a motivating sentiment.

On the one hand, today, Britons will tell you, "There isn't a country in the world that respects us any more. If Winnie had been in, that couldn't have happened."

Things Have Changed

The opposite attitude is this:

"Churchill doesn't realize that we are no longer in the 19th century. He'd have had us in a war by this time."

Iran and Egypt have dramatized these divergent views.

The loss of Iranian oil is bad enough. But the loss of prestige, to thousands of average people, is even worse.

Originally, the Iranian case apparently hurt the Labor campaign and helped the Conservatives. But government spokesmen have been quick to claim that Iran, basically, represented a dreadful decision — peace or war.

"Perhaps," they say, "Mr. Churchill would have been prepared to go to war over this. But would any mother with a son or army age agree?"

The Conservative says events in Iran could have been so handled that they never would have reached a point of crisis. They say the present government was guilty either of ignorance or negligence—both "criminal."

New Talking Point

And along with Iran, they now have Egypt as a talking-point to add to the bell-tollings for the loss of former imperial holdings in the Far East.

The Labor party program warns that "the Tory reaction to crisis is force." They are acutely aware that the British people, like the people of most western nations, would go to almost any length to avoid another war.

Thus the effort is made to make "Churchill" synonymous with "war." Apparently the point has been struck home.

People are badly divided on the question.

They respect and cherish the old warrior, but they also worry because he is a warrior.

Judgment Reserved

TORONTO, Oct. 17 (CP). — Judgment was reserved Tuesday in an appeal by the public trustee against a decision last June awarding $375,000 to the National Trust Company from the estate of Joseph E. Atkinson, president of The Star Publishing Company.

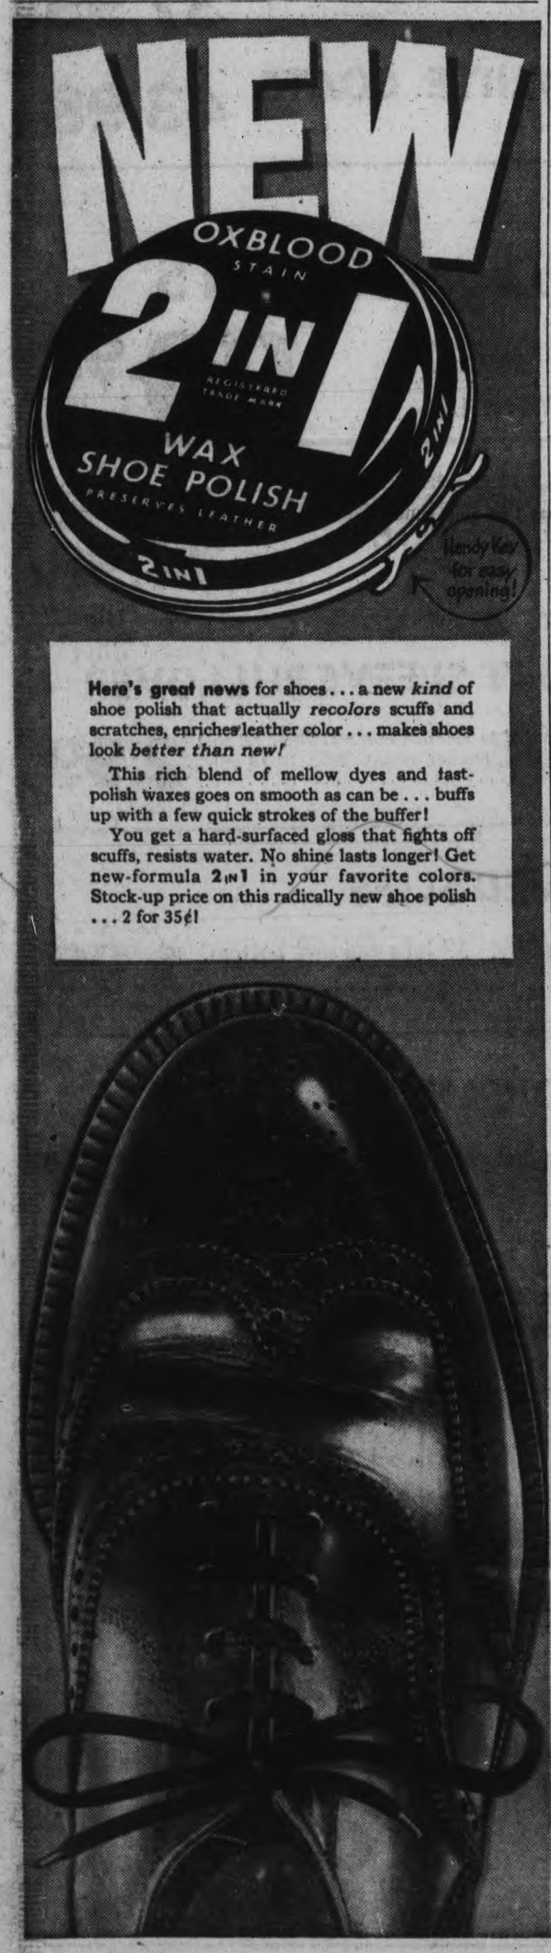
Improper Construction

FREDERICTON, Oct. 17 (CP) Cause of the fire Sunday at Bronson, NB, where the Alphie Dupuis family of eight persons lost their lives, was reported Tuesday night as an "improper and highly dangerous type of interior construction." E. J. Sturgeon, deputy provincial fire marshal, said overheated stoves or pipes had ignited partitions through which the pipes passed without proper clearance or insulation.

Fatal Rescue

PLASTER ROCK, BC (CP). — In a vain attempt to rescue a dog from the path of a freight train, William Brown, 59, was killed. Brown, a deaf mute and partially crippled, was trying to chase the dog off the tracks when he himself was struck.

Drives Prize Cow Along Broadway

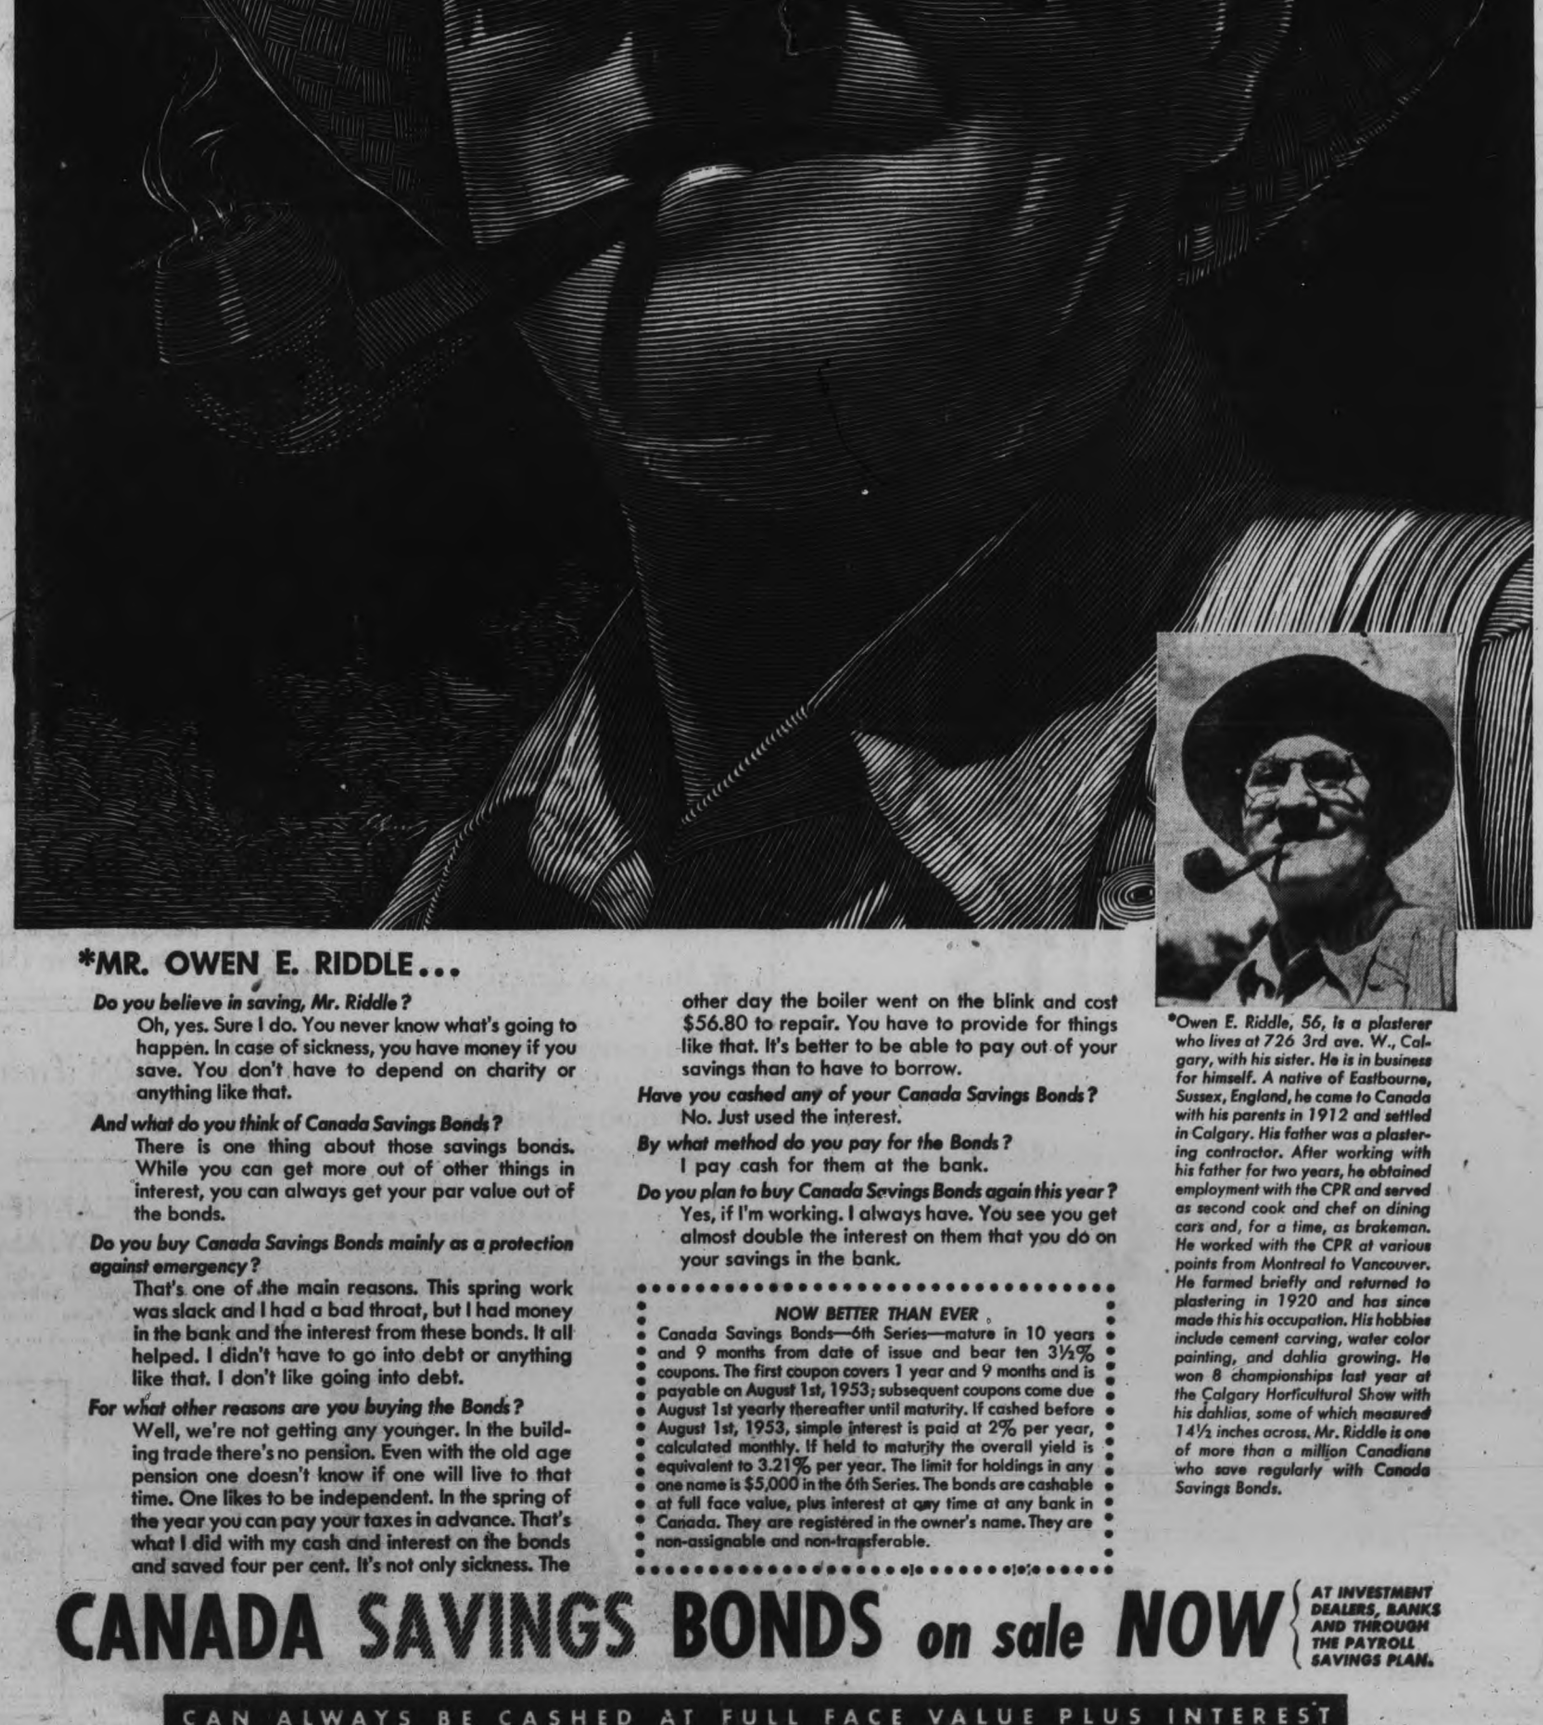


NEW YORK, Oct. 17 (AP). — Thomas Jordan won a 1500-pound Jersey cow in a raffle Tuesday night—then wound up with a police summons for driving it down Broadway.

Jordan, 30, won the animal in a restaurant raffle. He was nabbed by police as he walked it across Broadway to a waiting truck.

"All I did was win a cow, and now look at the trouble I'm in," he said as the radio patrol car drove up.

But the restaurant owner, Abe Goldstein, said he would pay any fine imposed on Jordan and also would get him a lawyer.



Jordan said he planned to keep the white-and-tan cow in his Brooklyn backyard.

*MR. OWEN E. RIDDLE...

Do you believe in saving, Mr. Riddle?

Oh, yes. Sure I do. You never know what's going to happen. In case of sickness, you have money if you save. You don't have to depend on charity or anything like that.

And what do you think of Canada Savings Bonds?

There is one thing about those savings bonds. While you can get more out of other things in interest, you can always get your par value out of the bonds.

Do you buy Canada Savings Bonds mainly as a protection against emergency?

That's one of the main reasons. This spring work was slack and I had a bad throat, but I had money in the bank and the interest from these bonds. It all helped. I didn't have to go into debt or anything like that. I don't like going into debt.

For what other reasons are you buying the Bonds?

Well, we're not getting any younger. In the building trade there's no pension. Even with the old age pension one doesn't know if one will live to that time. One likes to be independent. In the spring of the year you can pay your taxes in advance. That's what I did with my cash and interest on the bonds and saved four per cent. It's not only sickness. The other day the boiler went on the blink and cost $56.80 to repair. You have to provide for things like that. It's better to be able to pay out of your savings than to have to borrow.

Have you cashed any of your Canada Savings Bonds?

No. Just used the interest.

By what method do you pay for the Bonds?

I pay cash for them at the bank.

Do you plan to buy Canada Savings Bonds again this year?

Yes, if I'm working. I always have. You see you get almost double the interest on them that you do on your savings in the bank.

NOW BETTER THAN EVER

To Ask Board To Approve School Bylaw

County Council Told Bylaw Invalid; May Have Way Out

Peterborough county council are going to ask the Municipal Board to validate their $390,000 high school bylaw that at present is invalid. The bylaw is to issue debentures, covering the cost of building the school in the Norwood High School Area.

T. J. Carley, KC, and F. D. Kerr, KC, the county solicitor, Tuesday morning gave the legal opinion that the bylaw, as it is now drawn up, is invalid. Only two of the seven municipalities concerned had forwarded a resolution to the county council asking it to raise the $390,000 by issuing debentures.

Norwood and Otonabee were the two correct municipalities. Hastings village and the townships of Asphodel and Percy neglected to do so. Havelock village and the township of Belmont-Methuen were opposed.

The legal loophole is a provision in the Municipal Act. It allows the Municipal Board to validate a bylaw presented to it for approval, even though the bylaw is drawn up illegally.

Since Complied

Since the passing of the controversial bylaw on Sept. 24 all the municipalities, except the two dissenting ones, have complied with the technicalities. Because of this the county council is hoping the Municipal Board will give their approval.

The alternative was to start all over again which would mean delay in building the school, now under construction.

Reeve Rork Ferguson of Norwood and the Norwood High School Area trustees were fighting to prevent this. Already they have run into difficulties. Workmen walked off the job Oct. 5 and it was reported that Eastwood Construction had asked for the cancellation of their bond.

May Be Delay

Trouble is anticipated if somebody contests the validity of the bylaw before the Municipal Board approves it. The Board would probably wait for the courts to give judgment. This would mean, at best, a long delay. And, according to Mr. Carley, no court would uphold the validity of the present bylaw.

There is a further possibility that if the Municipal Board did approve the bylaw it might even then be thrown out by the courts. But this is unlikely as it would mean upsetting present provincial legislation.

Mayor Swanston May Retire At End Of Year

Mayor Swanston's stay in the new city hall which will be credited to his term of office is likely to be brief.

He told the members of the council Monday night that in all probability he would not be a candidate for re-election. His Worship wished to take his aldermanic associates into the confidence of his thinking and present inclinations.

Presumably he was intimating to them that if any of the members were disposed to consider their chances for the mayoralty of 1952 he was ready to retire.

Mayor Swanston's statement was made at the conclusion of a committee meeting, following the council's session. No one was present except all the members. The adjournment to committee was to consider a matter that may later come before the council.

His Worship confirmed the information today in a conversation with the Examiner in the attractive office of the mayor at the southwest corner of the ground floor of the city hall, overlooking Confederation Park and the corner of George and Murray Streets.

Mayor 3 Years

"I have had three years as mayor," His Worship said, "and I think it only fair to the members of the council and to the ratepayers that I should make an early statement of my attitude. I think everybody will agree with they have been very busy years. I have greatly appreciated the honor of being mayor, and I don't think that I should stand in the way of any member of the council or other citizen who may be thinking of seeking the position for 1952.

I said that if I feel as I do at the present time I would not again be a candidate. If there was any likelihood of the citizens wishing me to remain for another year, that would be something to be considered.

"However, there are members of the council who are qualified by experience to aspire for the mayoralty, and I simply wanted to clear the air for their benefit and tell them there would be no opposition from me."

Mayor Swanston said the responsibility of the office had increased steadily since he entered the council as a new member.

"It takes a great deal of one's time and thought, and in fact the city's work is never done. It is growing with Peterborough."

Request For Investigation Of Memorial Centre Fund Withdrawn By Ketcheson

Satisfied No Mishandling of Funds Ketcheson Writes To Judge; Offers To Help Committee With Work

Maurice Ketcheson has withdrawn his request for an investigation of the Peterborough Memorial Centre fund. And he has offered to help the committee get on with the job of erecting the long-talked-about memorial. In a letter Tuesday to Judge J. A. McGibbon, Lindsay, he said: "I am perfectly satisfied that there has been no mishandling of the funds collected by the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre, and that their affairs and their conducts are governed by the bylaw and by the agreement made between the city of Peterborough and the Community Centre.

"After your explanation of the Act and the schedules and the agreement, I desire to withdraw my request for an investigation and I am perfectly satisfied with the conduct of the commitee and of the city council."

Mr. Ketcheson laid his complaint on the basis of a recent amendment to the Charities Accounting Act which states: "Any person may complain as to the manner in which any person or organization has solicited or procured funds by way of contribution or gift from the public for any purpose, or as to the manner in which any such funds have been dealt with or disposed of."

Appealed In September

When he applied to Judge McGibbon on Sept. 19 Mr. Ketcheson felt that the fund had not been put to the use for which it was collected from the public.

"The fund was collected in 1944," said Mr. Ketcheson. "Work was to be underway immediately after the war. But nothing has been done. That trust has not been carried out. Why?"

Tuesday Mr. Ketcheson conferred with Judge McGibbon in Lindsay and together they went over the complaint in detail. The upshot of the conference was that Mr. Ketcheson withdrew his request for an investigation.

The committee's financial statement in January, 1951, shows that $200,153.26 has been paid into the fund. Interest on bonds and bank interest is $34,279.77 for a total of $234,433.

An additional $5,726.50 has been pledged and the city has approved a bylaw to issue $75,000 in debentures to finance the project. But this $75,000 debenture has not yet been issued.

In closing the incident Mr. Ketcheson remarked: "I want to say I am quite willing to lend my full support to the erection of this Community Centre and to assist the committee in any way possible."

Board Issues $430,000 Bonds For New School

In November debentures amounting to $430,000, issued by the Peterborough Separate School Board for the purchase of the St. Peter's school site on Reid St. and the erection of the new primary school there, are expected to go on sale.

A former bylaw passed for only $400,000 at three and a half per cent interest was revised to $430,000 at four and a half per cent and passed.

The Rev. J. F. Houlihan, secretary-treasurer of the board, said today that the bylaw announcement will have to be published twice more in the next two weeks and the approval of the Municipal Board received before the debentures go on sale.

Taking Shape

The first sod was turned early in August and already the ground structure is beginning to take shape. It will be completed by September, 1952.

The overcrowded conditions, caused by an increase of both primary and secondary students at St. Peter's school forced the board to transfer pupils in the lower grades in the past two years to other schools such as St. Alphonsus and the little stone school on Hunter St.

This year the crowded conditions at St. Peter's forced classes to be transferred to St. Alphonsus and the stone school, leaving only two primary school classes in the St. Peter's school. The other classes there are the high school grades.

The new school will ease the conditions by housing the boys in the primary grades, one to eight, beginning next term. There will also be an auditorium and gym built in the new school.

It will allow St. Peter's to become a high school only, thus helping the crowded conditions there from Grade IX to Grade XIII.

City Population At 38,166 Census Shows

Peterborough's official population is 38,166, the Bureau of Statistics announced today in its third list of preliminary 1951 census figures. It indicated increases in the population in smaller as well as the larger urban centres.

A week ago Assessment Commissioner E. J. Davis reported to The Examiner that the city's population was 37,192, or a gain of 475 over the population a year ago, 36,716.

Mr. Davis then remarked that the assessment roll for 1952 is not a census, but his department prepares a population statement from the information obtained in the course of house-to-house valuation of properties as the basis of the tax rate next year.

Nearly 8,000

Since 1941, Peterborough's population has increased from 30,350 to 38,166, placing the city second in the list of seven with a population of 20,000 and over. Verdun, Que., was the largest increasing in the 10-year period from 67,349 to 76,454.

Others in the list were: St. Catharines to 37,833 from 30,275; Fort William to 34,783 from 30,585; Lachine, Que., to 27,410 from 20,051; Moose Jaw, Sask., to 24,336 from 20,753; Niagara Falls to 22,735 from 20,589 and Granby, Que., to 21,838 from 14,197.

The latest list showed a number of striking gains in population, particularly in Quebec, for towns of between 5,000 and 10,000.

The list covers 534 cities, towns and incorporated villages in all provinces. Of the total number population decreases were recorded for only 54 places and all but eight of these were places with less than 500 population.

Harold R. Scott Nominated As PC Candidate In Election

Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, was nominated by acclamation at a meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association Tuesday night to run as PC candidate in the Provincial election Nov. 22. The Legion Hall had few empty seats when chairman William Ovens, president of the Peterborough Progressive Conservative Association called for nominations at 8:45 p.m. It was all over in one minute flat. James Juby, past-president of the Peterborough PC Association nominated Mr. Scott. Jim Gifford, reeve of Ennismore, seconded the nomination. Floyd Curtis moved that nominations be closed.

"This is the fourth time I have been honored by being nominated as your candidate and my wife and I appreciate that honor very much," he said.

"I don't believe in election promises," Mr. Scott told the meeting "and I'm not going to make any promises except to repeat one promise that I've made many times before—that I will do the best I can for the interests of this riding. I also promise to work to the best of my ability for all classes and creeds, especially for the aged and destitute."

Own 85 Per Cent

"With the crown still owning 85 per cent of the land in Ontario, you are shareholders in the natural resources of the province and if I continue in office, I will see to it that the heritage you received from your forefathers is passed on to your children and your children's children in as good a condition as you received it from your forefathers," he continued.

"Politics is a word fallen into disrepute. I like Webster's definition—the administration of public affairs. I don't like the slighting way some people refer to politics and politicians. My interpretation is that a member should work with the municipalities, the boards of education and the hospital boards, doing whatever he can for the improvement of his riding," Mr. Scott said.

G. K. Fraser

"Les Frost has without doubt governed Ontario with dignity and efficiency and I cannot conceive of any sane, well thinking person having the welfare of themselves or the province at heart switching to Thompson or Joliffe," said Gordon K. Fraser, MP, who spoke in support of Mr. Scott.

Referred to by Mr. Scott as the "elder statesman of the House," Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, who received his 11th nomination from Peel County Monday night, delivered the main speech of the evening.

A poorly operating loudspeaker system hampered speakers all evening and in order to make sure the audience at the back could hear his remarks, Mr. Kennedy stepped down from the platform and spoke from in front of the first row of seats.

"When Harold Scott took over the department we were exporting a tremendous amount of pulpwood to the United States and one of the first things he did was to try and change this situation by converting as much as possible into paper," declared Mr. Kennedy. "The price for pulpwood is $17.50 a cord. Converted into paper it brings $94.40 a cord. It's good business to bring US money into the country and Harold Scott did just that."

Switching to the work of his own department and his favorite topic, 'agriculture,' Mr. Kennedy said, "Farming methods have changed more in the last eight years than they have in the previous 80."

Money On Research

In outlining the achievements of his department in recent years, the provincial minister of agriculture said that Ontario spent more money on agricultural research last year than all the other provinces combined.

"We spent $600,000 and would have spent a million if we hadn't been short of research men. Mas-

Specialists Must Absorb Broad Learning To Succeed

They have at Queen's University an atomic-splitter called a synchroton, an instrument of nuclear physics which pricks up to 70 million volts. J. M. Macfarlane, KC, vice-president of the Canadian General Electric Company and a trustee of the university told this in guarded tones to an assembly of 65 Peterborough and district Queen's people at their annual dinner Tuesday at the Kawartha Country Club.

It was a passing reference in regard to the present and future role of the university in Canada. As a trustee of Queen's he emphasized the balance which has to be effected in university curricula between the proponents of the humanities and of professional attainment.

"One of the problems in setting out courses is to get the medial line between them so that when the student goes out he has both a liberal education and a specialized knowledge for a profession."

More Important

From his large experience in industrial, technical and legal matters, Mr. Macfarlane avowed that general knowledge was more important than specialized, after the graduate had passed the first few years in his special field. What is important is "the cappacity to assemble facts, to interpret them, and then to press on to conclusions stated in a way that can be understood. These are still the fundamentals."

The able specialist finds, not many years after graduation, that his position draws him more and more into fields where general knowledge is a requisite, where he must be well informed far beyond his special field. He must know the national and international ramifications. And he must be able to codify and clarify them to the understanding of society. He emphasized the essentiality of "the ability to use the proper English."

The subject of Mr. Macfarlane's address was "Queen's, Her Past, Present and Future." He mentioned many revered Queen's names. He spoke without notes, fluently, with an ease which betrayed his affection for the university and a familiarity with her problems.

New Courses

While noting several new courses offered there, he humorously indicated that Queen's had not got involved in offering BA degrees for specialized knowledge about fly-fishing, as Southern California has done.

"On a background of teaching, a university lays its reputation," the speaker said. As in the days of the great principal, G. M. Grant, Queen's still emphasizes, urges and seeks in its staff "outstanding personalities and good teachers." He asserted that at present Queen's has such a staff.

Children's Aid Wins A Grading

The Peterborough Children's Aid Society has again been awarded A grading by the Division of Child Welfare for Ontario.

This announcement was made Tuesday afternoon at the meeting of the board of directors meeting. This is the second year that Peterborough has been awarded this honor, first receiving it in 1950.

Chairman Bruce Sargent explained to the board that Peterborough is one of three societies in the province to have received A grading. The other two socities are York County and Ottawa.

Compliments

The analysis which accompanied the announcement of the grading from the division complimented the Peterborough society on many aspects of its work.

Special mention was made of the administration of case work which was described as direct and effective. The fiscal policy was referred to as basically sound and operational costs relatively low, and the splendid cooperation and team work of the board, superintendent and staff was also mentioned as consolidating the society in A category.

Miss Rachael Young, superintendent, was thanked by the board for her splendid work, which has made the society's high rating possible.

Plant Foremen To Study Human Relations

A one-day course in the study of the subject of "Human Relations In Safety and Supervision" is being concentrated into three sessions at the Kawartha Golf Club Thursday for industrial foremen of the Peterborough-Lindsay section of Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

The lecturer is Dr. J. L. Rosenstein, professor of the Department of Management, Loyola University, Chicago.

The class of 66 pupils of a day includes foremen, supervisors, safety directors, supervising trainers, public relations directors and so on.

Peterborough will be represented in the class that will be introduced to Dr. Rosenstein at 9:15 a.m. Adjournment is at 11.30, and in the afternoon there are two sessions between 1 o'clock and 5.30.

Some of the subjects for study are: Secrets of successful supervision; understanding human nature; how to teach safety; how to get teamwork; job safety analysis, and so on.

The demand for an advanced course in accident prevention came from industry in a campaign to reduce accidents and consequent loss of employee skill and time and ability, and financial costs, all of which are classed as preventable.

NAMED REPRESENTATIVE

K. C. Dalrymple was appointed representative for the Children's Aid Society on the Peterborough Community Fund committee at the board of directors' meeting Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Dalrymple replaces R. R. Faryon who has resigned from the board.

Bigness Charge Said Unfair To Newspapers, Canada-US

BOSTON, Oct. 17 (AP) —Canadian and US newspapers play an important role in telling readers just when, where and at what price they can buy merchandise and therefore it is "unfair" to charge they are "too big," R. M. Fowler, president of the Newsprint Association of Canada, said Tuesday.

In a speech to the Boston conference on distribution, he absolved US publishers of charges from abroad that Americans "hog" too much of the world newsprint supply.

He pointed out that before the war, Canadian mills made about 3,300,000 tons of newsprint annually and shipped 72 per cent to the United States and 22 per cent overseas. This year, Canada will make more than 5,500,000 tons of newsprint, and will ship 87 per cent to the United States and less than seven per cent overseas.

"The reason for the change in newsprint distribution," Fowler said, "is that US publishers were able to make their demands on Canadian mills for increased supplies effective, while publishers in other countries, often through no fault of their own, were unable to buy Canadian supplies they wanted to have. The monetary and exchange problems of overseas countries since the war made it impossible for them to maintain existing contracts."

Judy Garland Scores Hit In Vaudeville On Broadway

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 — (AP) — Movie star Judy Garland came to Broadway Tuesday night to triumph in a scintillating performance which returned the historic Palace Theatre to its original policy of presenting vaudeville for only two performances a day.

For years the Palace abandoned vaudeville entirely while it played double feature pictures. Then it returned to pictures and five-a-day vaudeville bills.

But, Tuesday night the Palace returned to the glory that once made it the royal springboard for hundreds of stars in show business.

And in the audience cheering Miss Garland, who occupied the entire second half of the bill, were many of the stars who got their start at the Palace.

Miss Garland sang "Rockabye Baby" and many other songs she made famous in her many pictures. She and Charles Walters sang and danced a tramp number called "We're a Couple of Swells."

Instead of making a speech, she sang-talked a lyric in which she said how happy she was to be, at last, playing the Palace. Then she sang a medley of songs which were made famous by Nora Bayes, Helen Morgan, Belle Baker, Sophie Tucker and others taken from Palace programs of earlier days. She closed her program by singing "Over the Rainbow," and her final ovation brought her back for innumerable curtain calls.

Campaigning Rugged Routine In British General Election

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Oct. 17—(CP)—A candidate in the British general election works 13 hours a day, covers hundreds of miles by automobile and on foot, reads a dozen newspapers, receives up to 200 letters a week and make speeches until his throat is sore.

He has to know what Gladstone said in 1860.

He should be able to compare the dimensions of houses built by local authorities both now and before the Second World War.

Such at least is the experience of E. H. C. Leather, of Toronto and Hamilton, an easy-going, pipe-smoking man in his early 30s. Leather is the Conservative candidate in Somerset North, a west-country constituency populated by dairy farmers and miners.

In the Feb. 23, 1950, general election, Leather won the seat by 905 votes in a three-cornered contest.

This time his Labor opponent in a straight fight is Robert Hurst, an insurance broker.

The Conservatives are confident of a repeat victory, even though the resort city of Bath has spread out to deprive Leather of some true-blue Tory voters.

Busy Day

Leathers' local headquarters during the campaign are in a stone cottage, typical of Somerset. Every day he sets out in a green sedan, delivering speeches in village markets, ringing door-bells, visiting farmers in their cottages and barns, and occasionally shouting to make himself heard above the noise of a mechanical milking machine.

His staff numbers up to 12, including four full-time workers. His wife, the former Sheila Greenlees of Hamilton, goes on all trips. "My department," she says, "is looking after excess baggage."

A typical campaigning day begins at 8 a.m. and ends just before midnight. Leather has been "softening up" this constituency for some time now, starting three years before he was elected, and his many acquaintances make it hard to keep to schedule.

No Burning Issues

This reporter accompanied Leather on one typical trek through the mist-shrouded villages of Farrington Gurney, Marksbury and Keynsham. There seemed to be few burning issues among this section of Somerset's 57,000 electorate. The only show of spirit came from some poorly-dressed elderly women, who said they would never go back to Toryism.

There were some unproductive arguments. A woman with a child in her arms mumbled something about William Gladstone, 19th-century Liberal prime minister whose name keeps cropping up in election arguments. She also remembered that as a young girl she wore cardboard on her feet because she couldn't buy shoes.

Leather plunged into British politics in 1945, after seeing Second World War service with the Toronto Scottish and the 1st (Canadian) Parachute Battalion. He was born in Toronto and grew up in Hamilton.

Buying Letdown Experienced In Wool Trade

WINNIPEG, Oct. 17 — (CP) — Canadian manufacturers will match their goods against any, confident that they cannot be bested, George H. Carr, of Sherbrooke, Que., president of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association, said today in his address to the association's annual meeting.

"But," he asked, "are we active enough in our efforts to convince other Canadians of our superiority?"

The Canadian woollen and knit goods industry, Mr. Carr said, is at present "caught in a rather severe recession, which would be even worse in some branches were it not for government military orders, themselves of a temporary nature.

"The industry has some problems, such as high costs, credit restrictions, heavy pressure from imports, and generally poor business.

"However, we at least have the experience that has weathered similar storms, some prospects of lower wool prices for the time being, and the hopes that buying will return to a reasonable level once current inventories are liquidated."

At Disadvantage

Canada, said Mr. Carr, has always imported large quantities of wool cloth "and the very nature of these imports puts domestic mills at a disadvantage.

"Approximately 86 per cent of all imports come from Britain. As Canadian wages are more than double British rates for comparable jobs, and the duty collected on UK woollens now averages about 13½ per cent, it is extremely difficult for the home industry to compete on anywhere near even terms.

"Canadian wool cloth mills supplied 64 per cent of Canadian consumption in 1949 and today supply only 54 per cent, while the knitting industry, equipped to supply clothing for the unique Canadian climate, has watched a market they once supplied almost entirely shrink by 20 per cent.

"The ratio of Japanese to Canadian products in the knitted glove field rose from 5.3 per cent in 1948 to 46.9 per cent in 1949, while last year 30 per cent of the normal sales on the Canadian market were Japanese goods. Japanese workers are paid about one-twelfth the wage rates prevailing in Canadian mills.

Dollar Troubles

"Before the Second World War Canada was the world's largest exporter of ladies' full-fashioned hosiery and sent 6,000,000 pairs to 60 foreign countries in 1939.

"However, once good customers are today operating under dollar restrictions enforced by their governments and the trade has dwindled to almost nothing . . ."

Mr. Carr said business in the industry was good during the first six months of this year, but has declined steadily since.

Despite defence orders, he states, there have been lay-offs in the majority of mills of between five and 40 per cent of the workers. "Many plants are on short time or have dropped second shifts, while some have even reduced first shift staffs."

In addition to the competition of imports, Mr. Carr said, government credit restrictions on customers have forced mills to hold up deliveries, and accept order cancellations.

Say Roy H. Thomson May Be Candidate

TORONTO, Oct. 17 (CP)—Roy H. Thomson, 57-year-old president of Canada's largest group of daily newspapers, has been asked to stand for nomination as Progressive Conservative candidate in Toronto's Bracondale riding in the Nov. 22 Ontario general election.

The anouncement was made Tuesday by Ed Brown, chairman of the Bracondale P.C. Association.

Mr. Thomson said he was "considering" the suggestion. The nomination convention will be held Thursday.

Mr. Thomson's financial interests include nine daily newspapers, radio stations and a national magazine.

Says Salvaged Lumber Denied For Homes

STRATFORD, Oct. 17 (CP)—E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario CCF leader, said Tuesday night that when the Mississauga forest northeast of Sault Ste. Marie, burned in 1948, the Ontario government obtained enough salvaged lumber to build 40,000 houses.

But, he told a Perth riding nomination meeting here, the government refused to build the houses because it was afraid of forcing down prices for its friends, the "profiteers."

Mr. Joliffe said that Lands Minister Scott had admitted that half of this lumber—enough to build 20,000 houses—had been sold in the United States at a time when the wholesale price index for lumber had reached 468.2, almost five times the pre-war price.

Padbury Refuses To Repeat Sunnybrook Hospital Charge

TORONTO, Oct. 17 — (CP) — Arthur Padbury, service chairman of the Ontario Command of the Canadian Legion, who charged two weeks ago that veteran patients at Toronto's Sunnybrook Hospital were being "used as guinea pigs for the teaching of medical science," refused to repeat his words Tuesday night.

He told a coroner's jury investigating the suicide of Edward Park at Sunnybrook in mid-August that he had "possibly the highest opinion of the treatment at veterans' hospitals of anyone in this room." He said he had been in Christie Street and Sunnybrook Hospitals.

When chief coroner Smirle Lawson pressed Padbury to repeat the statements he had made in St. Catharines, the Legion chairman refused. He said he was responsible only to his Legion command for his statements.

When Crown Attorney Bowman Galbraith asked him if he had been misquoted in the newspapers Padbury said:

"I am not responsible for what the newspapers put in the paper. I have nothing to say. I am responsible to my command."

Doesn't Wait

He did not stay to hear the jury —made up entirely of veterans— bring in a verdict attaching "no blame to anyone" in the death of Park.

Dr. F. H. Van Nostrand, acting head of the neuro-psychiatric department at Sunnybrook, stated that of 6,400 patients who had passed through the department since Sept., 1946, only two had committed suicide. In 1949, said the doctor, of 15,478 patients in all hospitals in Canada, 23 had committed suicide.

In reply to Mr. Padbury's charge that the hospital was used as a "school for University of Toronto medical students," Dr. Karl E. Hollis, Sunnybrook superintendent, said the most inexperienced "students" at Sunnybrook were the hospital's senior internes.

These, he said, were doctors qualified to practice medicine who had at least a year of experience at other hospitals.

Thomson Promises Hospitalization Plan

SOUTHAMPTON, Oct. 17 (CP) —Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, said Tuesday that "only the very rich and the very poor" now get hospital care in Ontario. He said the people "in between" cannot afford it.

He addressed a nominating convention of the Bruce Liberal Association that chose Kenzie Foster, who represented the riding in the last house, as its candidate in the Nov. 22 Ontario general election.

"I said that I would implement a hospitalization plan," said Mr. Thomson. "Yes, I'll do that. I'll build hospitals and give people the security of knowing there is hospitalization for them."

Protest Revealing Dress; "Anti-Religious" Broadcasts

OTTAWA, Oct. 17 (CP)—Too-revealing feminine dress and "love" comics have been criticized by the Catholic Women's League of Canada, which Tuesday wound up its 31st annual convention here. The CWL turned thumbs down on "immoral dance frocks, bathing and play suits which are often occasions of grave sin not only for the wearer but for many others."

The League decided to ask a parliamentary investigation of what it terms anti-religious broadcasts over CBC networks.

A resolution, approved by the league convention here urged Parliament take whatever measures are necessary to ensure that religion shall not be attacked over Canadian radio stations.

The resolution mention Dr. Brock Chisholm, and Mr. Ewen Cameron as broadcasters who had made "open attacks upon the basic principles and doctrines of Christianity."

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Prime Minister St. Laurent, the Speakers of the Senate and House of Commons, George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader, and the leaders of Canada's other political parties.

Dr. Chisholm is chairman of the World Health Organization; Dr. Cameron is director of the Allan Memorial Institute, Montreal.

Miss Ishbel Hutton of Ottawa was re-elected national president.

Other officers are: Vice-presidents, Mrs. F. Drake, Regina, Sask.; Mrs. James Freeman, Riverside, Ont.; Mrs. F. A. Bussieres, Sillery, Que.; Mrs. Herman Stevens, Calgary; Miss J. Madeline Clay, Victoria; secretary, Miss Anna Tierney, Ottawa.

Provocative Talk Given St. Paul's By Rev. M. P. Poole

Autumn Thankoffering meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of St. Paul's W.M.S. was held Monday evening in the Guild Room with the president Mrs. James McLeod in the chair.

Mrs. McLeod opened with the call to worship and the Lord's Prayer, after which a warm welcome was extended to all guests and members of other St. Paul's WMS groups present.

Mrs. Vern A. Read favored with a delightful piano solo during the taking of the offering. Mrs. Adam Sands, Jr., the guest soloist, rendered two lovely gospel songs.

Highlight of the evening was an inspiring and provocative message delivered by the Rev. Maurice Poole of All Saints' Anglican church. He took as his theme "Our Choicest Gift" and pointed out that the people of today are so prone to take all their blessings for granted, and deprive themselves of the finest things life has to offer because of their fear of ridicule or from sheer timidity, and are not, and never can, fulfil the great possibilities of life without first having a vital Christian experience.

The four factors leading up to this wonderful experience, Mr. Poole said, are:

A deep sense of need, which would result in a changed attitude toward life;

An awakening of the souls of our fellow men;

A great and powerful inner compulsion, which comes only when God abides in us and we in Him.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Poole, Mrs. Sands and Mrs. Read by Miss Marjorie Nesbitt.

A brief business period followed, when Mrs. John Bradshaw, together with Mrs. Coleman Blewett, were named as a nominating committee to bring in a slate of officers for 1952.

Miss Verna Johnston mentioned the WMS Presbytery Rally to be held in Warkworth October 17 at 2:30 p.m. and expressed a desire that as many as could would avail themselves of the opportunity to be present.

A cup of tea was served at the close.

Rev. H. L. Yar WMS Speaker On Newfoundland

Trinity Church WMS Thanksgiving meeting was held Tuesday in the church and was in charge of the executive. Mrs. B. MacFadden opened the devotional with the call to worship followed by a hymn. Scripture lesson was taken by Mrs. A. Legon, prayer by Mrs. A. Wade.

Mrs. J. McNeil, accompanied by Mr. Donald Kennedy at the piano sang two beautiful selections, "I Come To Thee" and "Oh Saviour Hear Me."

Speaker was the Rev. H. L. Yar who has recently come to Bailieboro church. He has previously spent several terms as a missionary to Newfoundland. He gave a brief summary on the country: winter temperatures range from under zero to 30 below and in summer between 60 and 70 degres. He said he has known it to be 80 or 85 degrees but that is rare. Winters are from November to the end of May. Sixty per cent of the population is from England and the Channel Islands and twenty-five per cent Irish. The ratio of religious groups is about 33 per cent Roman Catholic, 31 per cent Anglican, 25 per cent United Church.

There are few cities and a number of small towns strung out along the coastline. Most of the people live in small communities. There are six Presbyterials and 88 pastoral charges. Twenty per cent of these charges are self-supporting, their contributions amounting to approximately $40,000. and from WMS they receive $65,000.

There are 48 charges with ordained ministers and 40 are supplied by laymen. When he returned there were 88 WMS groups in the Conference with 3,549 members. These groups raised $8,000.

Mr. Yar outlined the outstanding work Miss Berry is accomplishing in connection with a community centre and a Young Woman's Hostel for girls from the outposts, who come to St. John's to work. This hostel has now been turned over to the WMS to operate. Missionaries Misses Ruth Tillman and Nancy Edwards' headquarters are at Gander Airport, but most of their work is done in the outposts and is very difficult and exacting. With nine appointments on one charge it takes at least six weeks to cover the territory, he said. They organize various women's groups, also girls' and boys' groups, form summer camps and other valuable service. There are few roads in the outposts. In summer they travel by water and in winter by dog-team.

Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy thanked the speaker.

Mrs. A. Legon was in the chair for the business session. She urged the members to attend the Sectional Rally in George St. Church Thursday.

This being the 60th anniversary of the society, a summary of the years was given. It originally had 14 members and has now grown to a membership of 350, consisting of eight mission groups.

A birthday cake with 60 candles formed the table centre. Mrs. W. Edmondson and Mrs. A. B. Cunningham were invited to light the candles.

The Rev. Dr. D. B. Gordon pronounced benediction.

Tea and cake were served by the executive.

For Bad Cough, Mix This Splendid Recipe, at Home

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this easily prepared mixture and try it for a distressing cough. It is no trouble to mix, and costs but a trifle, yet it can be depended upon to give quick relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water until dissolved. No cooking needed. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey instead of sugar syrup.) Get a 2½ ounce bottle of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a 16 ounce bottle and fill it up with your syrup. The 16 ounces thus made gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and is a very effective relief for coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

This splendid mixture soothes the irritated membranes, loosens the phlegm and helps to clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known as a soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

FOR EXTRA CONVENIENCE GET NEW, READY-TO-USE, PREPARED PINEX.

90 Years Old, But Feels 28

EDMONTON (CP)—Mrs. M. A. Newell of Edmonton who recently celebrated her 90th birthday said she feels more like 28.

Born in Ottawa in 1861, Mrs. Newell came to Alberta in 1913 to settle in the Edson district.

From childhood days on the farm she recalled the time when her father was called out to help against the Fenians on one of their raids from across the United States border.

Mrs. Newell, still active and keen of mind, spends much time reading, knitting and sewing. Bothered by arthritis, she cannot get around as much as she would like.

Mrs. Newell is the oldest in a family of nine and has a brother of 85 in Philadelphia.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

High School Girls Prepare Menu

Special - Purpose indeed. The purpose of this menu was to sustain and nourish and please, in a very special way, the thirty-eight still-going-strong press women that boarded the bus at Halifax for Kentville, Nova Scotia's Dominion Experimental Station.

When we arrived very hungry and slightly harassed, we descended on the warheouse where lunch was being served, like a swarm of locusts. And—like a swarm of locusts—cleaned up on all the food in sight and moved on.

But what food. It was prepared and served by the local Home and School Club and the Junior and Senior High School girls. What lovely teen-age girls they were

Experimental Station Luncheon Menu

Annapolis Apple Juice
Valley Ham
Scalloped Potatoes (H. and S. Club Mothers)
Station Squash Peas
Bread and Butter Pickles (Canada Foods)
Cabbage and Carrot Slaw
Sliced Annapolis Tomatoes
Hot Rolls
Homemade Annapolis Apple Pie (H. and S. Club Mothers) Station Cheese
Coffee

Most of you know that Nova Scotia tomatoes are notable for their small seed section—when compared to Ontario tomatoes. They are firm and of a more uniform coral-rednesss throughout, too.

The only recipes I was able to latch on to for use in this column were the Station Squash and the Bread and Butter Pickles—non-commercial recipe.

Station Squash

Of course as you can see "station" means anything that was grown at the Dominion Experimental Station.

Using Hubbard squash cut it into quarters or eighths (having Jack-the-Giant-Killer cleave it with his trusty axe) and wash well. Bake in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 to 60 minutes or boil in water to cover for 25 to 30 minutes. Scrape flesh from hard skin and rice it or mash it with old-fashioned potato masher until it is perfectly smooth. (At the station they did it both ways—with ricer and some with wooden masher.) Add hot Guernsey milk and cream—half and half—using about 2-3 cup to each 4 cups squash puree. Add salt and pepper to taste. Mix very well, while heating over low heat. At the station they used an ice cream scoop to serve this and the mounds were quite attractive on our plates.

Bread And Butter Pickles

Four quarts sliced medium sized cucumbers measured after washing and slicing paper-thin (some I tasted were not paper-thin-but nearly ⅛ inch thick—and good too), 1 cup thinly sliced onions, 4 sweet red peppers in thin shavings, 2 teaspoons celery seed, 1 teaspoon mustard seeds, ½ teaspoon tumeric, 4 cups each vinegar and white sugar, 4 tablespoons salt. Add sliced onions to sliced cucumbers, sprinkle with salt, cover with ice and let stand overnight. In morning drain, and rinse with cold water. Bring all other ingredients to boiling point, add the cucumbers and onion, stir until it reaches boiling point, then pack into sterile pint jars (about 9) and seal.

I hope the R. I. P. (Royal Itinerary Planners) have arranged to serve some of that delicious Annapolis Apple Juice to Princess Eliabeth and Prince Philip. Oh the excellence of it alone they will remember their visit to Nova Scotia.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

DOROTHY DIX

Constant Dissatisfaction Indicates Lack Of Ambition

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband and I love each other dearly and are very happy with our 2-year-old son. Our only trouble is that Ray, my husband, is never satisfied with his work. He changes jobs so much that it's getting on my nerves. I want to go to work myself but he doesn't want me to leave our son. Ray claims a child that age needs his mother. I understand that, but I believe if I could work for a while it would quiet my nerves. I also think it would be good for my son to be with other children in a nursery school. I think I am spoiling him.
BERTHA.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your going to work under these conditions will not solve your problem at all, in fact it will add another one. Your husband's job-hopping tendencies spring from the factt hat he isn't interested in working at all. Once he finds out that your pay check will support the family adequately, that'll be the end of Ray's working days.

He Has Ability

The fact that he is able to secure job after job indicates he is a man of some qualifications and ability. Surely with these assets he could, if sufficiently interested, secure congenial employment. His failure to do so indicates lack of desire and ambition—not lack of opportunity. His strong opposition to your working outside the home shows that he really wants to be the breadwinner for the family and the head of the house, but he does need encouragement to battle his indifference to specific employment.

Furthermore, your son is too young to be summarily left at a nursery school each day. He needs his mother, and by staying home with him you will do far more to maintain a united family than you will by earning a salary. The youngster should certainly mingle with other children his age, but not at the expense of his mother's companionship. If you think he is being spoiled, let him attend a nursery school for a couple of hours a day, but don't deprive him of security. His chief source of learning is still home and mother.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think it would be wrong for me to take a married woman to dinner once a week? Her husband works nights and she is left alone until he returns. I haven't approached her on this matter, but I imagine she is lonely. My intentions are those of honor and friendliness.
W.M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Regardless of how pure your intentions are, it would be hard to make others accept your weekly dinner date on such a platonic basis. A friendship between an unattached male and a lonely married woman is fraught with dangerous potentialities; in the best interests of all concerned I advise you to turn your friendly intentions into safer channels.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 17 and am in love with a boy 14. He can pass for 16 and is very tall. Should I encourage him to see me?
P.H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANEWER: This is a ridiculous situation. Let the poor boy alone and go with boys your own age or a little older. At 14 a boy should be concentrating on his schoolbooks, not romance.

What's Right?

You stop to speak to an acquaintance you haven't seen in several months.

WRONG: Say, "I'm glad to see you looking better. I didn't think you looked at all well the last time I saw you."

RIGHT: Tell the person he is looking well and let it go at that. No one likes to hear how bad he once looked and some people are actually alarmed by such comments.

6—In Memoriam

COOKE—In loving memory of Albert Cooke, who passed away October 17, 1946.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Ever remembered by his wife and family.

JORY—In loving memory of my grandfather, John W. Jory, who passed away Oct. 17, 1950.
Though his smile has gone forever,
And his hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories
Of the one we loved so much.
His memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part,
God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
—Lovingly remembered by Mureitta and Stan.

LEAN—In loving memory of a dear daughter-in-law, Cicely Lean, who passed away Oct. 17, 1949.
Gone from us but leaving memories
Death can never take away,
Memories that will always linger,
While upon this earth we stay.
—Ever remembered by Norman and Luella Lean.

LEAN—In loving memory of a dear sister-in-law, Cicely Lean, who passed away Oct. 17, 1949.
Asleep in God's beautiful garden,
Sheltered from sorrow and pain,
Safe in God's wonderful keeping,
Until we shall meet her again.
—Ever remembered by Jim and Amy Lean.

WINSLOW—In loving memory of baby David Winslow, who passed away Oct. 17, 1949.
He was a flower too sweet for earth,
Sent here but for a while,
God marked him when He gave him birth,
And took him with a smile.
—Ever remembered by father and mother.

Obituary

WALTER HENRY PUGH

A resident of Norwood for 15 years, Walter Henry Pugh, RR 7, Peterborough, died suddenly on Tuesday at his residence in his 66th year.

He was born near Fenelon Falls the son of the late John Pugh and Sarah Guiles. His wife, the former Christina Metcalfe, survives him along with one son, Andrew, at home, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Roadhouse, Ridgway, Ontario.

A farmer all his life Mr. Pugh, before moving to his Peterborough residence, lived for six years on the Metcalfe farm between Hastings and Norwood. He was a member of Mark St. United church.

The funeral will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. from the McConnell-Warner funeral home in Norwood by the Rev. B. S. Morwood, Mark St. United church. Burial will be in the Norwood cemetery.

Harold R. Scott

titis in cattle used to cost one million dollars every year. In three years it has been wiped out completely. Corn yield has been increased up to 25 bushels per acre and can now be grown in parts of Eastern Ontario where it couldn't grow a few years ago because of the short season," he continued.

Leaving Farm

Mr. Kennedy expressed some alarm at the number of young people leaving the farms. "You'll never make a million or have to sit up counting your money," he philosophized but farmers live a happy, contented life. I've farmed for 52 years at Dixie and I'm proud of it but the old pride in the calling is disappearing."

To make farm life more attractive, the Ontario government is bringing hydro to the farmers, continued Mr. Kennedy. "In three years, over 90 per cent of Ontario farmers will have hydro," he predicted. "Two years ago, we spent $22,000,000 bringing hydro to farmers. Last year we spent $18,000,000.

Ending his speech with words of praise for Mr. Scott, Mr. Kennedy said, "Harold Scott always has the vision to look to the future and see what's good for the province. Because of that vision, the province will be a much richer place as the result of his administration of the Department of Lands and Forests."

Andrew Brewin To Speak At CCF Meeting

Andrew Brewin, KC, past president of the Ontario CCF Association, will be guest speaker Thursday night at the CCF nomination meeting. Purpose of the meeting is to choose a candidate for the provincial election Nov. 22.

A feature of this nomination will be the large role played by organized labor in choosing the candidate. CCL-organized unions are throwing their weight behind the CCF candidate.

The political action committee of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL) is meeting with the election committee of the local CCF party to find a suitable choice.

Besides Mr. Brewin the list of speakers will include Ed Humphrey, Local 434, United Packinghouse Workers, and chairman of the labor council's political action committee, and William Beggs, president of Local 293, UPWA (Quaker Oats).

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus hall, Simcoe St.

Turn First Sod Masonic Temple

Ceremony of turning the first sod at the new Masonic Temple on Reid St. will take place on Friday afternoon at three o'clock.

Contractor Walter Mortlock is already on the ground and has commenced wrecking the west wing of the house where the new lodge hall and dining room will be erected.

At the turning of the first sod masons in the district are invited. The ceremony, which will be in charge of the president of the Masonic Hall Ltd., Ross L. Dobbin, will be performed by a group of veteran members of the craft who have been members for 50 years and more.

Specialists Must

He referred to the retirement of the renowned principal, Wallace—"Wallace of Queen's"—and the installation Friday of the internationally known Dr. W. A. Mackintosh as principal; "a new era." Principal Mackintosh is the first student, graduate and staff-member ever to hold the principalship.

As a trustee Mr. Macfarlane regretted that a rise in fees had been necessary to deal justly with staff salaries. He noted, nevertheless, that Queen's fees were still below those of the other major universities in Eastern Canada.

Great Expansion

Mr. Macfarlane talked briefly about university finance. Last year, he said, Queen's revenue was $1,702,000 from all sources. This just met the expenditure. It was a far cry to the days of Grant when the university had only six buildings. It was vastly different even from 1941 when it had 34 buildings. He sketched the notable expansion since the war and the effects of the benefactions of Dr. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa.

Last year at Queen's student fees accounted for only 47 per cent. of the total revenue. Government grants (chiefly from the province of Ontario) amounted to some 30 per cent.; investments yielded 14 per cent. of the total revenue, and alumni contributions 5.5 per cent.

He reiteratted the importance for Canada of Queen's as an independent university, not subservient to the vagaries of state control. He appealed to his fellow-graduates to ensure the maintenance of that independence.

Mr. Macfarlane was introduced by C. M. Krug and thanked by G. L. Brackenbury of Port Hope. T. J. Allen presided at the meeting.

Montreal Ready Beat Toronto On Tour Plans

MONTREAL, Oct. 17 — (CP) — The friendly rivalry between Montreal and Toronto showed up today in plans for the welcome of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh when they come here Oct. 29.

A tour plan spokesman, noting the vast Toronto turnout for the royal couple, predicted that Montreal "will produce a bigger and welcome than Toronto.

The city a few weeks ago set aside $100,000 to be devoted to Montreal's share of the tour with indications that more money will be voted.

After complaints by many sources that Princess Elizabeth and her husband wer always with "older people,' th eMontreal committee has decided to invite only Montrealers between the ages of 20 to 35 to a special luncheon reception at the Chalet atop Mount Royal.

The city's 2,000 man police force has been augmented by 325 volunteers. Of these, 130 are men who served in the same capacity during the royal tour of 1939.

One of the main headaches is the readying of invitations for the civic reception with some 600 persons expeteed to attend. Another 1,400 will be at the Chalet dinner and 1,000 at the special banquet.

Train, Car Hit No One Hurt

A crash between a slow-moving CNR freight and a car at the Rink Street crossing at 5 o'clock Tuesday evening caused damage to the car estimated at $800.

Neither the driver of the car, Clifford M. Cox, of RR 11, Peterborough, nor his companion, Herbert Rye, also of RR 11, Peterborough, were injured.

A passenger train was parked on the siding facing south of Rink Street, giving the freight the through track.

Labor Party Turns Down UK Red Offer Of Support

By ERNEST AGNEW.

LONDON, Oct. 17 — (AP). — British Communists offered a slice of Red cake to the Labor Party, but the party replied, "No thanks, the cake is tainted."

The slice of cake was an order from Britain's Communist boss, Harry Pollitt, to his approximately 40,000 party members to work and vote for most of the Labor Party candidates in the October 25 general election.

"Work first for our 10 Communist candidates," Pollitt ordered, "but in all other districts, you work and vote for the Labor candidate. We have to defeat the Tories."

To this, a Labor headquarters spokesman, Arthur Bax, replied: "We don't want Communist support for our Labor candidates, and we don't want Communist votes."

The Reds mustered 91,746 votes in the last election in February, 1950. Labor polled 13,248,957, Conservatives and Allied parties 12,450,403, Liberals 2,634,482.

Pollitt, 61-year-old former boilermaker, gave these Communist aims for the election:

1. Defeat the oTries, known as the party of big business.

2. Defeat the "right-wing" Labor Party leaders who Communists say are responsible for the government's anti-Soviet foreign policy.

Three of the Communist candidates have taken on really big jobs.

John R. Campbell, editor of The Communist Daily Worker, is running against Conservative Leader Winston Churchill for the job of representing the Woodford District of Essex in the House of Commons.

John Mahon, a member of the Communist party executive, is working to defeat foreign minister Herbert Morrison in the Lewisham South District of London.

Communist Dave Bowman is campaigning against war minister John Strachey in the Dundee West District of Scotland.

Communist candidates also are standing in the West Fife district of Scotland; the Stepney District of London; Rhondda East and Brightside (Sheffield); the Hackney South district of London; the Gorbals district of Glasgow, and the East Dunbartonshire.

William Gallacher led the West Fife seat in the House of Commons for 15 years until his defeat in the general election of 1950. Pollitt said Gallacher is not running this year because he feels that at 69 he's too old.

Pollitt, a perennial candidate from the Rhondda East constituency, also stood aside this time. He's too busy as general-secretary of the Communist Party, he said.

No Communist has been a member of the House of Commons since the 1950 election.

Historic Volume

WINNIPEG (CP).—A volume believed the oldest Ukrainian book in Canada was recently donated to the University of Manitoba. Entitled "Pomyanyk" and writen in 1484, it contains obituaries of prominent European Slavs.

PREMIER MOHAMMED MOSSADEGH, (left), of Iran, tells the United Nations Security Council at Flushing, New York, to keep hands off the British-Iranian oil dispute and in the doing closed the door on further talks with Britain except on indemnities and the sale of oil. In a long statement to the council the aged premier said that Iran will not be coerced and called for respect for Iran's independence. Listening are (left to right): Selim Sarper of Turkey, Semen Tsarapkin, of Russia, and Sir Gladwyn Jebb, of Britain, who earlier presented his country's side of the dispute.

Told Of Last Hours Of Murdered Man

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 17 — (CP)— The last hours of Arnold Crocker were described at the trial of Harry Shymick, 71, charged with murdering the 55-year-old trapper.

Dr. George V. Houston, a resident of White River, 170 miles east of here, told the court that Shymick had come to his house Aug. 18 and said that he had fired a rifle through a hole in the roof of the shack where the two men lived. Shymick, said the doctor, said he heard something fall off the roof.

The doctor said he went to the shack and found Crocker, still alive, lying at the foot of a ladder outside of the building. Crocker was taken to hospital at Marathon, 50 miles west, where he died next day.

The two men had lived together in the shack for four or five years, the doctor said. They had an argument last winter and Crocker was bound over in court to keep the peace. Shymick claimed his chimney had been knocked down by Crocker.

Crown Attorney P. V. Ibbitson said the crown would prove that Shymick had shot Crocker after the trapper had chopped a hole in the roof of the shack above Shymick's room.

Walkout Of 140 Men Ends At Woodstock

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 17 (CP)— A walkout of some 140 employees Tuesday at the Wood Mosaic Woodworking plant here ended today. The men quit because they claimed the company was processing logs for Hay & Company, whose employees went on strike two weeks ago. Wood Company officials denied this.

A union spokesman said today that the company had agreed to set aside any work for Hay & Company that the bargaining committee thought entailed strike-breaking until company and union discussed it.

Odds Going Higher Against Attlee Gov't

LONDON, Oct. 17 — (AP) — Heavy betting on Winston Churchill's conservatives to win the Oct. 25 election today drove the odds higher against the Labor government.

In the books of Douglas Stuart, one of the country's biggest bettakers, backers of Prime Minister Attlee's Labor party must put up £2 to win £7, Conservative supporters must be £9 to win £2.

The odds reflect the weight of betting money on both sides, not the bookies 'opinions, a Stuart spokesman said. A few days ago Stuart was offering 3 to 1 against Labor and 1 to 4 against the Conservatives.

Philip Helped On Plan Of Plastic Car Dome

ABOARD THE ROYAL TOUR PRESS TRAIN, Oct. 17 (CP) — Prince Philip had a hand in the idea for the plastic dome that covered the Royal car in Winnipeg yesterday and enabled the citizens to get a clear view of Princess Elizabeth and himself while the Princess was sheltered from an icy wind.

The suggestion came in Toronto last Saturday from himself and Lt.-Cmdr. Michael Parker, equerry to the Princess. It went immediately to the De Havilland Company in Toronto ,which put a crew to work during the week-end.

The crew, officials of the royal party said last night, took no pay for the job that produced the transparent cover in time to have it flown to Winnipeg for the royal arrival.

De Haviland engineers designed the dome.

What did you do when these stories broke?

Basketball Players Admit Bribes. You asked: What players? What teams? What games did they throw? Who bribed them? For how much money? What action will the colleges take?

Record Snow Buries City. You asked: How deep is it? Traffic stopped? How will I get to work? Other places snowed in too? How bad are the phones hit? Anybody get frozen?

Leopard Escapes. You asked: What zoo? How did he get out? Anybody hurt? How will they try to catch him? What are folks in the neighborhood doing?

MAYBE YOU HEARD a flash report on TV or radio. But the minute you got a chance, you grabbed for your newspaper.

You knew it was the only place to get the whole story—fast. There in the paper was everything . . . facts you couldn't get in a hurried broadcast . . . facts you couldn't wait for till they appeared in magazines.

It happens day after day. Each day there are many stories that are only half-told for you—or not told at all—until you read your newspaper.

You feel like a hermit if you miss a single issue. For it always turns out that something has happened that apparently everybody knows about but you.

And everybody else feels the same way. Everybody reads the newspaper every day . . . though the big news for one may be an interview with Tito, and for another Hopalong Cassidy shirts for small boys.

That's why, when you have something to sell, the newspaper is the place to reach all the people all the time.

In advertising, why deal in fractions?

Magazines reach only fractions of your market. Each one appeals to some people — not to others. No magazine is read by everyone in town who can possibly buy.

Radio and TV programs reach only fractions, too. Each one appeals to a limited audience—sport fans, homemakers, kids, etc. And how many of these can listen at the time you broadcast?

The newspaper talks to everybody in town. It's created fresh every day for everybody. All your customers read the paper—at the time they choose, for as long as they choose.

Only the newspaper is first with the most news . . . first with the most people, first with the most advertisers.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Housekeeping Gear Approved For City Hall

Purchase of a stock of housekeeping utensils and materials for the city hall was approved by the council last night.

Quotations were studied by a special committee whose report came through the property committee report presented by Ald. Waddell.

Ald. H. T. Rehill commented that apparently one-third of this purchase was being made in Peterborough, and the rest from out of town sources of supply. He enquired whether local merchants had received full opportunity to quote prices.

Ald. Norman Graham said that he had been called in to a meeting with City Clerk Outram and Mr. Ronald Winter the counucil's adviser on details of the new city hall.

"They asked me to go through these tenders with them," Mr. Graham said. "As I am in the same business myself, I did not want to become involved in it."

Mr. Graham said: "I think Mr. Winter did a swell job in his recommendations of acceptance. The chemicals could not be handled here. The scrubbing machines might have been, but possibly at a difference of $100 on some items." The report was adopted as read.

Because the supplies were required for Monday, Oct 15, they were bought according to the recommendations.

List of Equipment

Big Festivities For African Anniversary

CAPE TOWN—(CP)—Big celebrations next year are being arranged to mark the 300th anniversary of the arrival of the first white settlers in South Africa.

Climax of the many festivities will come on April 6, tercentenary of the arrival of the two first settlers under Commander Jan Van Riebeck of the Dutch East India Company. The scene will be re-enacted and a large-scale model of the commander's flagship, Dromedaris, is being built.

Men are growing beards and women are polishing up the fashions of three centuries ago to take part in the many festival events. The celebrations start Jan. 5 on a broadcast signal from Prime Minister Daniel Malan, reaching their climax in the week ending April 6 with great pageants and displays on the huge stretch of new land reclaimed from the sea at Capetown in recent years.

During that week old-time horse-drawn mail coaches will converge on Cape Town from the remotest corners of the subcontinent, travelling thousands of miles. Historical processions will include 3,000 dancers.

Massed bands and choirs, gymnastic displays and tableaux and Cape Town's colorful 'Coon' bands all have a part in the festivities. The native orchestras in their bright silk costumes will put on the show they traditionally give their own people on New Year's Day.

Other native artists will offer ballet and operetta performances at city hall. Cape Town's Malay population, cultured descendants of slaves, will contribute their noted choirs and their distinctive songs and music.

Many South African towns and industries are taking part in the festival fair to be held on the reclaimed foreshore, and one great hall will be given to a portrayal of the development and achievements of Souh Africa's non-European races.

To mark the occasion the South African mint is triking a number of medals and a new five-shilling piece.

Apart from sports meetings and many kinds of entertainment, the festival will include a great stamp exhibition. Among items on display here will be the inscribed rocks under which early seamen, before Van Riebeck's day, were accustomed to placing letters to be picked up by ships going in the opposite direction.

Plan To Make Picture About Meeting

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct., 17 (AP)—Can Hollywood make a picture about a mutiny aboard a United States Navy ship in the Second World War.

Some think it cannot because of Navy objections. But Herman Wouk, author of the best-seller, "The Caine Mutiny," believes his book can be made into a movie.

Wouk is working with film writer Stanley Kramer. The book concerns some naval officers who depose an apparently-incompetent captain during a typhoon in the Pacific. The author admitted that several studios had turned down the story because of Navy disapproval.

"Unknown to me, some studio submitted synopses of the book to the Navy Department," he said. "The Navy replied that it could not offer co-operation in the filming of such a story. I have since seen the synopses and I agree with the Navy. The treatments distorted the real story and put the Navy in a bad light."

While other studios adopted a hands-off policy, Producer Kramer took an option on the book.

"Actually it is a pro-Navy book, and if it is treated correctly, the film version will show that."

Wouk denied a printed report that the Navy objected to the portrayal of the captain as an Annapolis man. He confirmed, however, that the use of the word "mutiny" may not be allowed. The picture may be called "The Caine Incident."

Wouk still owes allegiance to the Navy, being a reserve officer. In fact, he conceived "The Caine Mutiny" on a cruise aboard the USS Saipan in the St. Lawrence waterway in 1949.

"I went to Washington to do some research at the Navy Library and was surprised to learn that there never had been a mutiny in the history of the US Navy. It's easy to understand why. Conditions on American ships are better than in any navy in the world."

Crowd Disappointed Didn't See Princess

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Oct. 17 (CP)—Thousands of Portage La Prairie citizens went home disappointed early today because the Royal couple whom they had waited for hours to see, failed to make an appearance.

The Royal train arrived here at 12.07 a.m. CST and pulled into a station crowded with young and old. The crowd milled around the train cheering and yelling "We want the Princess." Members of the Mounted Police guard held the crowd from the observation platform of the train.

Freezing weather and a steady snow failed to dim the enthusiasm of the crowd. Many of those represented had seen the Royal couple when they visited in Winnipeg during the day. A heavy snow fell throughout the time the train was stopped in the station.

No stop was scheduled here.

Red Troops Abandon Key Peaks

Say Shells, Bombs Like Forest Fire In Front of Kumsong

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Chinese troops suddenly abandoned a series of key hills in western Korea to attacking United States troops today. But they stiffened against Allies crunching forward toward their Kumsong stronghold in the centre.

Troops of the US 1st Cavalry Division overran four hills northwest of Yonchon almost unopposed.

The Americans had been fighting for the ridge line for two weeks in one of the bloodiest small actions of the autumn offensive. Chinese deserted the western hills during the night.

The unopposed advance placed the cavalry troopers about two miles in front of their positions of Oct. 3, when the UN western offensive started.

Like Forest Fire

From the centre of the Korean front AP Corrsepondent Sam Summerlin reported a "curtain of smoke from bursting UN shells and bombs rose like a sweeping forest fire" in front of allied infantrymen advancing on Kumsong.

After flying over the area, Summerlin wrote:

"Kumsong looked like a ghost town. It was pock-marked with bomb craters. Allied planes had knocked out the spans from both the road and railway bridges across the river."

South of the city Chinese resistance stiffened against attacking allied infantrymen, UN troops captured two key hills south and southwest of Kumsong and inched forward against Reds on a ridge blocking their way to the town.

Three allied divisions punched out gains of one-quarter to three-quarters of a mile in the heaviest action of the week-old offensive.

A front line dispatch reported at least 200 Chinese were killed trying to escape from a trap on encircled fortress mountain. "Many" others were killed in their bunkers.

American and South Korean troops advancing along a 22-mile front toward Kumsong were within three miles of the town.

In rugged mountains to the east, allied infantrymen unsuccessfully attacked a towering peak.

Truce Talks Taking Hopeful Turn

MUNSAN, Korea, Oct. 18 (AP)—Efforts to revive Korean truce talks took a hopeful turn today after the United Nations' command submitted a compromise security-zone proposal.

Communist liaison officers took the suggestion under consideration overnight.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuchols, official spokesman for the UN command, expressed "cautious optimism."

"Tangible progress definitely was made" in Thursday's conference between Red and allied liaison officers, Nuchols said. It was their eighth meeting at Panmunjom, a village in no-man's-land selected as the new site for armistice negotiations.

Some Progress

Col. Andrew J. Kinney, senior UN liaison officer, said the delegations reached "substantial agreement on one or two points which had been in dispute." But, he cautioned, "we still have several fundamental questions remaining."

Referring to some of these points, Col. Chang Chun-san, heading the Red delegation, remarked, "I find very little difference between us."

Chang said his delegation may reply to the new UN neutral-zone suggestion when the liaison officers meet at 10 a.m. Friday (8 p.m. Thursday, EST).

The new allied proposal would establish a three-mile attack-free radius around Communist truce headquarters at Kaesong and the UN advance camp at Munsan.

Truman Denies General's Charge

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—President Truman said today Gen. Douglas MacArthur's charge that his opposition "wrecked the secret plan" to let Formosa fall to the Chinese Reds is not based on fact and the general knows it.

Truman's comment was in reply to questions at his press conference.

MacArthur made his assertion in a speech to the American Legion convention in Miami Wednesday. The general said, too, that the plan also would have given Red China a seat in the United Nations.

Worst Gale In 50 Yrs. Kills 35 In Sicily

CATANIA, Sicily, Oct. 18 (AP) The central Mediterranean's worst gale in almost 50 years was slackening today after taking a death toll of 35 and causing property damage estimated at up to $5,000,000.

Hardest hit were Sicily and Sardinia, where entire cities were isolated and hundreds were homeless.

Pearson Hurries Back For Cabinet Meeting

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson returned to Ottawa today for a cabinet meeting, cancelling plans to attend an Ontario provincial election nomination meeting at Espanola.

There were reports that he had come back because of the Egyptian crisis. However, informed quarters said that while he would probably be reporting to his fellow ministers on this crisis, there were other matters coming up which made it advisable he be in Ottawa.

Mr. Pearson spoke Wednesday night at Chalk River, Ont. and returned to the capital this morning.

Ask $150,000 To Make King Home Historic Site

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (CP). — A public appeal was issued today for $150,000 to turn Mackenzie King's boyhood home at Kitchener into a national historic site.

L. O. Breithaupt, Liberal Member of Parliament for Waterloo North, said 12 acres of woodland surrounding the home where the former prime minister grew up are being converted into a park and picnic ground.

Mr. Breithaupt, president of the Mackenzie King Woodside Trust —Woodside is the name of the home—said the restoration should be completed by spring.

It was a "particularly costly" job because the house was in bad repair, but he was optimistic that the objective would be met because Canadians, disregarding political affiliations, had already been contributing.

Contributions should be sent to the Trust at 1 Adam Street, Kitchener.

This is the third home of the late prime minister to become a national historic site. Laurier House, Mr. King's Ottawa residence, has been linkd with the Archives. Kingsmere, his summer home in nearby Quebec, is being turned into a summer home for Prime Ministers. Both were willed to the country by Mr. King.

Miniature Stampede Staged For Princess By Calgary

CALGARY, Oct. 18. (CP)—Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh began a five-hour visit to Calgary promptly at 10 a.m. MST today. A few flakes of snow were falling and the thermometer showed a nippy 16 degrees above zero as the couple stepped from the Royal train.

Thousands of Calgarians and visitors from Southern Alberta, many in 10-gallon hats and other cowboy dress, roared a Western welcome as provincial dignitaries stepped forward to be presented to the Princess and her husband.

After welcoming ceremonies, the Royal couple moved off on a round of activities to be climaxed by a chuckwagon luncheon—beef stew and sowbelly—and a miniature stampede.

The wintry weather brought one change in the program after leaving Calgary. A planned motor trip from Cochrane through the approaches to the Rockies to Banff was cancelled because of icy roads.

Instead, the Royal couple will stay aboard their train, making a 10 minute stop at Cochrane.

Crowds At Station

Crowds massed at the station and along the procession route were wrapped warmly against the cold. Most of the thousands of children wore parkas.

The Princess wore a full-length mink coat over a simply-tailored tan and white herringbone tweed suit. Her shoes were of crocodile leather and a perky, off-the-face hat matched her suit.

The Duke was bareheaded and wore a tan camel-hair topcoat.

The Princess joked and laughed as she chatted with Mayor Don Mackay, whose formal clothes were topped with a white Stetson.

Lt.-Gov. J. J. Bowlen and Premier E. C. Manning were introduced, the Princess chatting with each in gay fashion.

Mayor Mackay told the Princess Calgary had tried hard to make its welcome a true Western one. Perhaps, he said, they had tried too hard with the weather.

Outside the station, the Princess inspected a 100-man guard of honor drawn from the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the RCAF and HMCS Tecumseh, the Calgary naval training unit.

Says Russians Bombed Ship

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 18 (AP).—A British sea captain today accused Russian planes of making an unprovoked bombing attack on his ship near the Russian port of Archangel last Sept. 14.

Soviet seaplanes dropped three bombs but none hit, Capt. Leslie Gow of the 3538-ton freighter "Berylstone" told reporters.

British intelligence agents interviewed him when the vessel returned from Russia this morning.

In London, the Admiralty and the foreign office said they had heard of Gow's statements but could not yet comment.

Gow's account suggested a possibility that the Russians had failed to identify the approaching ship and were trying to warn her away from Archangel.

British vessels ply regularly between the Arctic port and the United Kingdom in carrying on Anglo-Soviet trade.

Gow said he made a report later to Soviet authorities but received no explanation. Britain has no consulate at Archangel.

Want Closer Canadian Ties

LONDON, Oct. 18 (CP)—High-ranking representatives of Britain's three leading political parties agreed today on the importance of maintaining close links with Canada.

They made their views known in answer to six questions posed by Picture Post, a right-wing weekly magazine. The questions related to party policy in connection with the Oct. 25 general election.

Asked whether they thought it "opportune now to forge closer links with the Commonwealth, especially Canada," the politicians replied as follows:

Labor's Richard Stokes, Lord Privy Seal: "Most emphatically yes. . . I welcome every endeavor which may be made to make the Commonwealth more productive of all the things we need, so long as we appreciate that the raw materials of the world are God's gift to the human race."

Anthony Eden, deputy Conservative leader: "Let us always remember her (Canada's) generosity in war and peace . . . government must do all in its power to ease the situation caused by currency restrictions and stimulate an even wider flow of trade."

Frank Byers, former Liberal party manager: "We want to see the closest possible co-operation between Britain and Canada, but we recognize quite frankly that many of Canada's commercial and social interests are bound for geographical reasons to be closer at times to the United States than to us."

Recommission Cruiser With Full Naval Pomp

HALIFAX, Oct. 18 (CP)—The Canadian destroyer Iroquois, famous fighting ship of the Second World War, will be recommissioned Sunday, the Navy announced today.

For the first time since before the war, the recommissioning will be done with full naval ceremony. The destroyer Nootka was recommissioned earlier as part of Canada's stepped-up defence plans and since has seen service in Korean waters.

Second Worst Wreck In Canada

Aircraft Developed Engine Trouble, Plows Into Mountain

NANAIMO, B.C., Oct. 18 — (CP)—A plane exploded against the rocky face of nearby Mount Benson Wednesday night, killing all 23 persons aboard.

The Queen Charlotte Airlines twin-engined Canso aricraft was en route from Kemano, BC, to Vancouver with 20 passengers and a crew of three.

Those first on the scene found only six charred bodies, one believed that of a woman.

The fiery wreckage was scattered over 50 feet.

Police poked through the embers of wreckage today for remains of the other 17 but said definite identification of all the victims appeared almost impossible.

QCA officials identified the crew members as Pilot Doug McQueen, 34, First Officer Jaginder S. Johl, 23, and Crewman Ray Williams, all of Vancouver.

Names Withheld

Names of all but seven of the passengers were withheld until near relatives had been notified.

The seven are: Eric Mellanson, 45, Vancouver; C. Egauw, 53, Mission, BC; K. Krug, 35, West Vancouver; P. Brisson, 46, Vancouver; J. Daigneault, 31, Vancouver; R. McFadyen, 25, Vancouver; J. Redding, 43, New Westminster, BC.

Brisson came to the west coast recently from Ontario, but his eastern address was unknown here.

Mellanson was chief project engineer for Kitimat Constructors, builders of Kitima townsite for the Aluminum Company of Canada in northern British Columbia.

The plane took off from Kemano, 400 miles north of Vancouver, where the Aluminum Company of Canada is working on a $550,000,000 project. Kemano is the site for a new power dam; Kitimat is the site for the new aluminum plant.

The aircraft apparently developed engine trouble as it neared Vancouver. Nanaimo is 30 miles west of Vancouver across Georgia Strait.

Just before the crash, flares lit the sky just north of this Vancouver Island city. Then the float-equipped plane circled a power station just south of the city, narrowly missing 130,000-volt high tension wires.

Duke Asks To Meet Montreal Scientists

MONTREAL, Oct. 18 (CP). — The Duke of Edinburgh telephoned Montreal from the Royal train on the prairies today to make sure he could meet privately here with scientific leaders. The meeting will take place when he arrives with Princess Elizabeth for the official tour of Montreal.

The Duke said he wished to meet leading figures of the French-Canadian Association for the Advancement of Science. This body works closely with the British Association for the Advancement of Science, whose work the Duke has followed.

Strange Sights Under Eastern Ontario Moon Two Men Stick To Story Of Sky Cavorting

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (CP). — There were strange sights under an eastern Ontario moon early Wednesday, according to a couple of railway firemen.

The firemen were from different railways but their stories of weird nocturnal doings in the Pembroke-Renfrew area were much the same.

CPR fireman Charles Weston, riding the No. 2 Vancouver-Montreal run, said that at 2 a.m. Wednesday he saw what looked like "three stars together, one after the othter," trailing a "night red tail" and streaking at high speed across the night sky. He placed the lights near Haley, eight miles northwest of Renfrew.

Two minutes later from a CNR freight, fireman Ed Goddard said he saw something come over the track just a few hundred feet ahead of him. It was low and he could see two bright lights. He saw it land in a field "there was a puff of white smoke, and then one light appeared, winking on and off." The freight was about 26 miles northwest of Renfrew at the time.

Both men said they were certain it was not an aircraft.

Rockcliffe Air Station said it had no information of any forced landings or unusual aircraft in flight.

Canada Wonderful

LIVERPOOL, England, Oct 18. (Reuters)—Twenty-one Canadian war brides with 33 children who will be seeing their grandparents for the first time trooped off the liner Ascania today full of praise for their new home. They were fulfilling a five-year-old promise made when they sailed off to Canada after marrying Canadian servicemen. Their promise was "See you again some day, Mum."

Vets' Pensions Almost Certain To Be Increased

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Government action to increase the pensions of Canada's veterans to help them meet the rising cost of living is expected to be taken at the present session of parliament.

The cabinet is known to have the matter under study. Col. David Croll (L, Toronto Spadina) a senior member of last year's parliamentary veterans' committee, Wednesday night gave the Commons what many considered a tip-off.

He was "given to understand," he said, that the cabinet has been giving the matter "constant and sympathetic consideration." He added:

"I am confident—I was going to say hopeful but perhaps hopeful is not a strong enough word—that it will be dealt with at this session and in a manner acceptable to our veterans."

George Cruikshank (L, Fraser Valley), also called for veterans' pension increases.

Not Sign

Stepping into the throne-speech debate, Col. Croll said because no mention of pensions was made in the speech from the throne was no reason to believe the government would not act at this session. He suggested that Finance Minister Abbott's $500,000,000 surplus, rather than being used to reduce the public debt as announced, might be placed against a pension increase.

"We have a sizeable surplus which it is indicated is to be used to reduce the public debt," he said.

Has Wild Ride 3 Youths Held

TORONTO, Oct. 18 (CP). — Police Wednesday arrested three armed youths at gunpoint after Fred Rodgers of London, Ont., 16-year-old Lorne Park Bible College student, reported he was held captive during a 127-mile drive from London to the outskirts of Toronto.

Rodgers told police the men picked him up on the highway near London and dumped him out on the Queen Elizabeth Way at the gates of the college, near Port Credit.

The three youths were arrested in a traffic jam on Fleet Street in Toronto less than 20 minutes after Rodgers was let go.

Police said James Johnston, 21, Bruce Fortune, 16, and Harvey Robertson, 19, all of Toronto, have been charged with breaking and entering the Municipal Telephone System warehouse at Tilbury, where six revolvers were stolen.

Police said they found three revolvers in the car the youths were driving.

Rodgers told police one youth removed $5 from his wallet.

Underground Railroad Believed Used By Reds

LONDON, Oct. 18 (Reuters)—Security officers, baffled by the disappearance of two British scientists, today are working on the theory that there is an underground railroad used by Western European Communist sympathisers who vanished behind the Iron Curtain.

Neither of the scientists, Ian Campbell and Dennis O'Connor, had any vital information which could be valuable to another country, but officials think they may have gone to Eastern Europe.

The disappearance brought to five the Britons who have disappeared from important jobs in the last year without a trace.

Atom scientist Bruno Potecorvo, Italian-born expert at Harwell, left Britain mysteriously last November and has not been heard of since.

Two foreign office diplomats, Donald MacLean and Guy Burgess, are also missing after five months.

Egyptian Soldiers Killed In Clash With British Troops

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 18. (AP)—British and Egyptian troops clashed Wednesday along the Suez Canal and the British force seized the only bridge crossing it. Two Egyptian soldiers were killed. The Cairo newspaper Al Misri said seizure of the bridge had cut the canal area off from the rest of Egypt. But the Arabic newspaper Al Zaman later said the Britons had withdrawn from the bridge—called El Ferdan—and that Egyptian troops had resumed guard duty in the area.

Egyptian censors held up news of Wednesday's clash for 24 hours. It started about 2 a.m., according to the British version, and lasted 15 minutes. The Egyptian version was that resistance continued into mid-morning.

Later today it was announced British forces have occupied the small port of Adabiyah, south of Suez. It was also learned that the TRIESTE, (AP).—British reinforcements for the trouble zone in Sudan were preparing tonight to move out. Standing by for immediate transfer is the First Battalion of the South Lancashire Regiment, which has been on duty for the last three years in the Trieste international zone.

RAF has occupied a small airfield at El Ballah, seven miles east of Ismailia, in the canal zone.

Today in Cairo, a shouting street mob of 2,000 demonstrated in front of Shepheards Hotel, displaying newspapers carrying pictures of rioting at Ismailia and Port Said. The mob shouted anti-British and anti-western slogans.

Funeral Procession

The pictures showed a funeral procession in Port Said Wednesday for five civilians killed there, showed a dead Egyptian policeman lying in the street at Ismailia and other scenes showing British troops in the streets.

A British army spokesman said the canal area was quiet again Wednesday night and today. It was the second successive day the Britons had fought with Egyptians. They opened fire Tuesday on rioters and looters at Ismailia, where the Egyptian government said seven were killed. The British said they fired in self-defence.

British authorities said there were no British casualties.

But today the British moved to ease tension at Ismailia, site of a British Army sub-command.

Gamble 2 Weeks' Pay Keep Plant Working

DETROIT, Oct. 18 (AP) — A "gamble" with a fortnight's pay by 300 union members and company officers today put a 92-year-old packing plant back in operation.

The 300 workers at the Hammond Standish Co., closed since Aug. 14, agreed to work without pay for two weeks in an effort to get the firm back on its feet.

Company officers also have agreed to work without pay until the firm is making a profit.

Under the agreement the employees, members of the Packing House Workers' Union (CIO), will work for three weeks. If the company is showing a profit then, they'll get their first week's pay.

The packing company blamed its August closing on government controls.

Pats Turn Back Heavy Chinese Attack

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN KOREA, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Pte. Archie Hearshey, 21-year-old rifleman with the Princess Patricias, killed two Chinese of a force storming United Nations defence positions in a recent action.

Later Hearshey learned his brother had been killed by the Chinese only 20 feet away in another slit trench. Hearshey is from Ignace, Ont.

Hearshey shot the Communists as they tried to blow a hole through barbed wire defences with a Bangalore torpedo.

The Patricias threw back wave after wave of heavily-armed Chinese attacking for six hours under a brilliant moon. The Canadians estimated they killed 127 and wounded scores more.

Artillery Barrage

The enemy first threw mortar and artillery fire at Canadian positions for nearly an hour while Chinese troops crept silently almost to the Canadians' wire defences.

Company A of the 2nd Battalion lobbed dozens of grenades into the attackers. Then Company B joined in as the charges shifted from one unit to the other.

Sgt. Maj. Neal Woolfson, 41, of Kamloops, BC, arrived as a reinforcement for Company A just in time for the action.

"After each rush was repulsed we could hear them regrouping about a half-mile away," Woolfson said. "Our artillery and mortar fire was called in on them, slowing their attack down."

"One thing sure," a grim private said, "they aren't going to come back here in a hurry."

Bank Robbery Loot $5,000

BONFIELD, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP) —Robbers Wednesday night stole cash deposits, estimated at from $1,000 to $5,000, from the Banque Canadienne Nationale. The bank is a portion of the O. Martin and Son's department store.

The robbers used an oxygen-acetylene unit, stolen from a garage in nearby Corbeil, to cut through steel walls into the safe.

Bonfield is 19 miles east of North Bay.

The robbers burned a considerable amount of money in small bills when they cut through the steel. Bonds, cheques and valuable papers were left scattered on the floor.

They used bottles of soft drinks from the store to cool the metal as they burned through it.

Albert Boisennault, store manager, discovered the theft this morning.

An earlier attempt to crack the safe, in July, 1950, was made by sledgehammer-wielding robbers.

Wyse Spent Night In Cafe Niagara Witness Testifies

PEMBROKE, Oct. 18—(CP)—A Niagara Falls waitress testified today that Lloyd Robert Wyse, on trial for murder, entered her restaurant on April 13, between 10 and 11 am, and spent the night there.

Mrs. Marjorie Young, Niagara Falls Main Coffee Shop waitress, told the Ontario Supreme Court that permission for Wyse to sleep in the restaurant was given by her employer, Max Mueller.

Wyse, 35-year-old plumber from Golden Lake, Ont., is charged with the murder of Lloyd Barber, 55-year-old Killaloe village councillor and taxi-driver, in the early hours of April 13. The trial is in its fourth day.

Mrs. Young said that when Wyse entered her restaurant, he carried a parcel and appeared to have been on a "good drunk or binge, or whatever you want to call it."

Mueller told the court he had met Wyse while working on a hydro project at Niagara Falls earlier this year and that he had hired Wyse to do some plumbing for him when he took over the restaurant in March.

Wyse had told him when he saw him on April 13 that he was tired after having driven all night and requested permission to lie down on a couch in Mueller's office. Wyse spoke of "things not going so good" in his home and he thought of going to Alaska but did not want to leave his wife and family.

Mueller noticed that Wyse's right hand was bandaged and said that Wyse told him he had hurt his hand while doing some work.

The following day, Saturday, April 14, Wyse asked Mueller to get him some United States currency and gave Mueller six Canadian $20 bills. Mueller said he exchanged these bills at a bank and gave Wyes $100 in US funds and some chance. He considered Wyse "an honest and high-class type of person."

Soviet Gov't Rejects US Proposal

Russian Agreement Not Worth Paper Written On—Truman

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(AP)—President Truman said today he is sticking to his statement that a Russian agreement is not worth the paper it is written on.

That was the President's only comment on Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky's statement that US-Soviet relations could hardly be worse than they are now after Truman had said in a speech that Soviet agreements are not worth the paper on which they are written.

Vishinsky made the crack in a note rebuffing a secret US proposal that Moscow act to bring about an armistice in Korea. He suggested instead talks on the general causes of east-west conflict.

Truman told a press conference he had not yet seen the Soviet note and couldn't comment on it.

Not Sure

Initial State Department reaction was that this offer was propaganda but the wording of the Russian note started diplomats guessing whether the Kremlin is sincere.

Moscow and the State Department disclosed Wednesday night that Ambassador Alan G. Kirk on Oct. 5 made the approach for Soviet intervention to end the deadlock between United Nations' negotiators and the Communists.

Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky gave no direct reply, but he noted that Russia is "not a party to these negotiations."

He also: (1) Charged the UN command created the cease-fire stalemate with "all kinds of incidents"; (2) supported the North Korean-Chinese position regarding a truce line in the area of the 38th parallel; and (3) offered the Soviet's "full and energetic support" of measures for "the successful conclusion of negotiations."

Questions Good Faith

Vishinsky also questioned the good faith and assurances from Kirk that the US and its allies are arming only for defence and have no "aggressive designs."

Vishinsky commented tartly that "this sort of statement" is contradicted by actions "which show that the government of the USA is not at all concerned with the maintenance of peace."

As examples, he complained of economic measures the US has taken recently against Russia and the Soviet bloc and of President Truman's statement that agreements with Russia aren't worth the paper they are written on.

The rebuff convinced top American officials that at the moment Moscow is not interested in confidential negotiations.

Charles E. Bohlen, State Department counsellor told reporters: "It is characteristic of Soviet procedure that when they are seriously interested in any subject they don't publicize it the way they did this."

Regina Gives Lively Welcome

REGINA, Oct. 18. (CP)—Princess Elizabeth and her sailor husband raced across Saskatchewan Wednesday in a whirlwind, four-stop visit. Today they enter the carefree, roistering atmosphere of Calgary at Stampede time—a special Stampede just for them. They had two formal ceremonies Wednesday—not counting their arrival at Regina—and an official luncheon. Their touch of relaxation was the RCMP's musical ride. Today their Calgary schedule lists a brief stop at city hall, and then the wraps are off. A chuckwagon luncheon (sowbelly and beef stew) and a baby Stampede complete with bucking bronks, chuckwagon races, wild steers and scads of real, live Indians are on the five-hour program. The only hitch: the weather. The forecast was for the same cold and snowflurries that marred the Regina visit Wednesday. The day's high was expected to be 25 above, or seven degrees of frost.

But if Saskatchewan's weather was cold, the welcome for Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip certainly was not. Thousands stood for hours in a biting northwest wind for one chance, or two, or three, to see the royal visitors. Some children got so chilled they had to be taken away for brief first-aid treatment.

Surprise Stop

Regina was the first scheduled stop. But Indian Head, 49 miles east, turned out anyway, lining the track with Wolf Cubs and school students.

And the train did stop unexpectedly. At about 8:30 a.m. the Princess and her husband appeared on the rear platform, to wave goodbye as the train pulled away.

Because of the cold, the Princess wore for the first time since her arrival at Montreal 11 days before the full-length mink coat which was her wedding present from the Canadian people. She kept it tightly buttoned through the outdoor part of her Regina visit, snuggling comfortably in the high, turned-up collar.

"It's nippy," she said as she walked down the station platform, looking lively and rested. She and Philip didn't seem to mind the weather.

Looks Rested

Despite a tough round of engagements since arriving in Montreal Oct. 8 for a Canadian "holiday" that has turned into a stream of functions, she looked lively and rested.

"She's as fit as a race horse, and she's enjoying it thoroughly," a member of the royal party said.

Lt.-Gov. W. J. Patterson met them at the station. A crowd of 15,000 waiting outside broke through the police barriers to race beside their plastic-topped limousine on the two-block drive to Regina's ancient city hall.

There they signed the same guest book King George and Queen Elizabeth signed 12 years ago and the Princess got from Regina through Mayor Garnet Menzies her oddest gift: the promise of 500 bushels of top-grade Canadian wheat or its cash equivalent for worthy charities.

Makes Speech

Next stop was the domed legislature on the banks of artificial Lake Wascana. Premier T. C. Douglas, head of Saskatchewan's CCF government, presented dignitaries of the province. Princess Elizabeth made a minute-long speech.

She said she was deeply impressed and conscious of the truly democratic basis upon which the affairs of Canada are carried on.

And she expressed appreciation for the Saskatchewan food which each year finds its way to the United Kingdom.

"I am very glad . . . that I shall have the chance . . . of seeing the land where it is produced. I am still more glad that I shall be able to meet and see some of the people who produce it."

The royal couple went to luncheon as guests of the Lieutenant-Governor, then to the Mounties' red-brick barracks to see a shortened version of the brilliant musical ride.

Thirty-two men put 32 fine horses through the intricate movements of "the star," "the dome," and "the charge."

Princess Elizabeth sat quietly through the performance, held in the Mounties' riding school because the weather was so cold. Prince Philip, on the other hand, time and again leaned sharply forward to watch the show intently.

Slight Hitch

One Mountie lost his horse's blue-and-gold blanket and his stirrups. Princess Elizabeth showed emotion for a moment then. An RCMP officer said tersely out of her hearing: "It's a good thing these windows are closed—so the Princess can't hear what the instructor is saying to that rider!"

At 6:05 pm—five minutes late—the royal train left for the west. The last Reginans saw was the royal couple waving from the back platform. The band played "Auld Lang Syne."

Moose Jaw, an hour to the west, had an unscheduled treat.

Against the wishes of her husband, the Princess braved blowing snow to walk about with Mayor L. H. Lewry among the 1,500 children massed in the station square. It was one of the few occasions during the tour so far that she has abandoned the strict program.

Last scheduled stop of the night was at Swift Current, 100 miles from the Alberta border.

POSTPONEMENT

The Salvation Army Hamilton Band will not be in Peterborough this weekend. Money may be redeemed on tickets.

Egyptian Soldiers

Egyptian officials said the Britons agreed to pull their troops out of the town of 50,000 and leave it in control of Egyptian police.

The Britons, meanwhile, were due to complete today the transfer of 3,500 parachute troops from the Mediterranean Island of Cyprus to the canal area, where 40,000 or more British soldiers and airmen were on the alert.

The El Ferdan bridge, scene of Wednesday's battle, links Africa and Asia. Its eastern end is on the railway to the Holy Land.

The bridge is a swinging structure that is pulled to the canal side when not in use.

The commander of the Egyptian detachment there, Lieut. Rizk Abdel Rahman Shehawi, gave this account of the battle:

A British detachment of 90 infantrymen, with three small field guns, moved up before dawn against his group of 24 men guarding the bridge. They opened fire before being challenged by Egyptian sentries and the battle continued until late in the morning, when the Egyptians surrendered.

British officers said the Egyptians opened fire first, without warning, and the clash lasted only 15 minutes.

(Reuters News Agency reported four Egyptians were wounded and 36 taken prisoner.)

In Cairo police declared a state of emergency—as they have several times in the last 10 days—and stationed strong reserve forces at strategic spots. The city was quiet.

Vets' Pensions

self—is our debt to the veterans not a public debt? Should it have less priority than the money debt? I believe that our pledge to the veterans is a solemn undertaking written in duty and gallantry. It is the highest moral debt.

"I do not think we can delay any longer that which now is long overdue. It now has become an urgent matter and it must be dealt with at this session."

Indications elsewhere are that there will be an increase, but not to the extent asked by the Canadian Legion and other veterans' organizations who seek an across-the-board increase of one-third of present pensions.

$100,000,000 Yearly

War pensions now cost Canada roughly $100,000,000 a year. The maximum rates are $94 a month for single; $125 for childless married recipients up to captain in rank; $19 a month for a first child; $15 for a second and $12 for others. A widow gets $75 a month plus double rates for any children.

It is believed that widows may get special attention in any new increases.

Meantime, in the Commons Wednesday, the cost-of-living issue continued as a major factor in the main debate, with John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) urging the government to make wider use of the Combines Act to prevent profiteering.

It should be used, he suggested, "not as a feather duster, but as an instrument to strike fear into the hearts of those who unjustly take advantage" of the existing inflation.

He suggested the government's announced intention to prohibit retail price-fixing is "simply a smoke screen to conceal the continuation of a policy that has existed since 1946; a hope that things are going to turn out all right; a procrastination; a promise of future action, and finally throughout the period of time, a failure to act."

Keeping It Secret

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—(AP)—President Truman made it clear today that he doesn't intend to say before mid-January, at the earliest, whether or not he will run for re-election in November, 1952.

New Zealand Cuts Tax Rate

WELLINGTON, NZ, Oct. 18—(CP) — Prime Minister Sidney Holland tonight presented a budget calling for a record revenue of $208,000,000 but reducing the rates of taxation.

He was able to honor the pledge he made before last month's election to cut taxes, increase social-service payments and yet provide a higher defence vote because of the country's increased income, especially from wool.

New Zealand's fiscal year begins April 1.

Holland announced a vote of £25,000,000 for defence, nearly £10,000,000 above last year. In addition, he announced further transfer of £6,000,000 to a war-emergency account. This fund was opened with £5,000,000 from last year's surplus to provide for initial stages of any future conflict.

Forestry Mistakes Costly Thomson Says

TORONTO, Oct. 18—(CP)—Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, said Tuesday night an "incompetent and mismanaged" Lands and Forests Department has cost Ontario taxpayers $6,000,000 this year.

Speaking at a meeting which nominated Toronto Alderman Robert Colucci, 34-year-old advertising executive, as Liberal candidate for York South, Mr. Thomson said his party will "go ahead" with a hospital care program, enacting legislation by which Ontario residents will be free from financial worries should illness strike.

Of the hospital plan, Mr. Thomson said:

"It is the first forward move in the campaign, and we have taken the wind out of Conservative and CCF sails with it. They can't counteract it or fight it.

"Maybe I am a blundering politician, as my enemies claim, but I am not a bad one. You are getting democracy from this platform and you will continue to get it after Nov. 22."

He said some Ontario industries have their own illness protection programs, but the Liberal plan is the continuing thing for the province. "We will go ahead with it."

Second Worst

Keith Price, an operator at the station, said the plane circled twice at about 50 feet and that it was so low he could almost read the numbers on it.

Hits Mountainside

Price said the plane appeared to be trying to gain altitude. Suddenly, it roared at full throttle and smashed in a sheet of flame against the jagged mountainside.

An explosion echoed down the mountainside and flames lit up the sky for four or five minutes.

Mount Benson is only three miles from downtown Nanaimo, and its foot is only some 200 yards from the road. But it took the searchers three hours to climb up the almost-sheer cliffs to the wreck.

Though Mount Benson was ravaged by forest fire only six weeks ago, old stumps were set afire again by flaming gasoline as the plane disintegrated.

Only the starboard wing and one float were found intact. The rest was scattered shreds of fuselage, burning ghost-like through the shadowy fog.

All six bodies found Wednesday night were intact. A woman's hands were thrust through a piece of fuselage. One man had on only one boot. The rest of his clothes had been burned off.

There were Bricklayers' Union cards scattered around and QCA said most of the passengers were construction workers at either Kemano or Kitimat.

First reports said the plane was single-engined and it was believed at that time only one or two persons were involved.

It was the second air disaster for QCA this year. A plane with seven aboard vanished Aug. 4 on the west coast of Vancouver island. No trace of it has been found.

Wednesday night's crash was the second worst civil aviation disaster in Canada's history. Worst was the loss of 29 persons in a Rimouski airlines crash in Quebec's Gaspe peninsula July 24, 1948.

QCA officials, including president James Spilsbury, flew here immediately from Vancouver to start an investigation.

Korean War Censorship Under Fire By MP

Says Canadians Being Treated Like Bunch of Morons Over News

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (CP) — Percy Wright (CCF-Melfort) Wednesday criticized the censoring of war news from Korea and suggested that the people of Canada are being treated as though they are "a bunch of morons."

He said in the throne-speech debate in the Commons that he does not know how much control the Canadian government has over the censorship of news coming out of Korea but he does feel that the Canadian people are "mature enough"" to be told the truth.

A Lieutenant in the Royal Artillery in the First World War, he referred indirectly to attempted rape charges involving Canadian troops in Korea by noting that "certain incidents" occurred there about which the Canadian people knew nothing until news "leaked in" through United States magazines and other sources.

He continued:

"Then we had rumors flying all around this country as to the conduct of some of our troops over there.

What Happened?

"Later on, charges were laid and a trial was held. What happened?

"It became front page news for a whole week in practically every daily paper in Canada, and we heard it over the radio day after day.

"All that created a wrong impression in this country. It laid the basis for a lot of rumors by people who would like to destroy some of our institutions.

"Surely we in this country are mature enough at this time to be told the truth about these things. The matter was played down too much in the first place; and later it was played up too much.

Better Methods

"I think there should be some better method of censorship than the one we have. If you listen to the radio, in nearly every radio broadcast you hear about dogfights between the United Nations planes and the Communist planes. Almost invariably two or three Communist planes are destroyed and several are damaged; our planes returned without any losses.

"Yet Tuesday night over the radio we got a compilation of the losses suffered among our planes. I did not get the exact figures as they were given too quickly, but something over 300 of our planes had been destroyed to date while just a little over 200 of the Communist planes had been destroyed."

Flee In Yugoslav Plane 2 Pilots Ask Asylum

ZURICH, Oct. 18 — (AP). — Two pilots of the Yugoslav National Airline landed a DC-3 plane with 22 passengers at the Zurich Airport Wednesday and asked for political asylum for the pilots and their families.

Three other members of the plane's crew and all its passengers except the pilots' families asked to be returned to Yugoslavia. A Yugoslav plane arrived Wednesday night with another pilot to fly the DC-3 back to Belgrade. The Swiss federal air office has ruled that those who wish may fly back to Yugoslavia.

The refugees who want to stay are the two pilots, their wives and two boys aged 19 and 5. The Swiss Department of Justice is considering their pleas of asylum.

Say Farm Price Support Costs Nearly 10 Million

OTTAWA, Oct. 18—(CP)—The government has spent almost $10,000,000 during the last five years to support farm prices, the Agriculture Department reported Wednesday. In its annual report, tabled in the Commons, the departments Prices Support Board showed expenditures to maintain prices of potatoes, apples, butter, cheese, honey, dry skimmed milk and dried white beans.

The largest amounts went to apple growers in Nova Scotia and British Columbia who were granted $6,106,000 during the 1946-51 period to help them cover unexpected price drops and financial losses because of declining markets.

Maintaining potato prices in Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick in 1946 and 1948 cost $1,800,000, while a program of storing and selling butter through government outlets in 1949-1950 required $1,408,000.

Nothing Offered

The department noted that under its 1951 program, it has offered to buy Wiltshire sides of bacon at $31.45 a hundredweight, but until the end of March no amounts were offered to the board at this price.

Last winter, the Prices Support Board told Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick potato growers that if their provincial marketing boards could make sales in "certain export markets under conditions set out by the board," it would be prepared to recommend a deficiency payment to provide a return to the grower of 66 2-3 cents per cwt.

No sales were made and no recommendation to the government followed. But the growers got assistance, nevertheless. Late in March, help was provided through the Agricultural Products Co-operating Marketing Act.

Winnipeg Visit Causes Uproar

WINNIPEG, Oct. 18—(CP)—The Manitoba command of the Canadian Legion terms "stupidity and callous neglect" Royal Tour arrangements which gave patients in Deer Lodge veterans hospital only a glimpse of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip as they were driven around the hospital driveway during their tour of Winnipeg.

Provincial Secretary Alex Cairns in a statement issued after the Tuesday visit blamed the committee in charge of tour arrangements for this "slap in the face." He said the committee should provide a stop at the hospital when the Royal Couple return east.

(The couple are to fly to Fort William from Saskatoon at 12.30 p.m. MST Sunday, Oct. 28, stopping off for a half-hour en route at the Rivers, Man., Air Training Centre.)

Letters to the Editor in Winnipeg newspapers protest what the writers term "receptions, dinners and long lines of handshaking" for officials during the visit while "the poor citizenry have to fight for a quick glimpse of the couple."

That's Fast Work

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 17. (AP)—Harvey Melber, Jr., will testify that the law sometimes functions with incredible speed and across great distances. Melber picked up a telephone in Miami Beach to call his parents in Ft. Devens, Mass., and set off a 3,000-mile chain that led to his arrest for mail theft before he completed the call. Boston authorities, tipped that the call was being made, phoned postal inspector E. M. Dunlap in Miami. Dunlap traced the call to a public phone, 15 miles away. He phoned Miami Beach police and asked them to make the arrest. Before Melber had completed his call, a policeman was rapping on the door of the phone booth.

Takes 3 Hours To Reach Plane Only Burning Pieces Left

(Editor's Note: Owen Jones was among the first to reach the scene of a Queen Charlotte Airlines crash on Mount Benson Wednesday night which killed 23 persons. Here is his story.)

By OWEN JONES
As told to The Canadian Press

NANAIMO, BC, Oct. 18 (CP)—Five of us started up the mountain together. There were four parties altogether and we all went up different ways.

We had to feel our way it was so dark and we kept hollering to each other to make sure where we were. It started to get foggy up there.

It took us three hours to get up. We didn't see the flames till we were right on the crash. The bluffs hid it.

It was an awful mess.

There was an odor of burning flesh. You could smell it a mile away. That and the gas.

The wreckage was scattered over 500 feet. We found six bodies.

The plane hit the rock face. Old stumps were on fire.

See By Flames

Pieces of the plane were burning all over the place. We used the flames and our flashlights to see.

There was a woman there. Her hands were sticking out through a piece of fuselage. A fire extinguisher was lying under one man's head.

One man had on a logging boot, that was all.

I don't think they'll ever recognize anyone. All the bodies were intact but they were all charred.

We thought there were only six dead because we found only six bodies. The others must have burned up.

The right wing was standing straight up in the air and there was one float but that's all that was in one piece.

There was a briefcase with a micrometer in it. A red sweater and one red slipper. They weren't burned.

There were a lot of those 25-cent books scattered around and a lot of blank union cards. They belonged to the Bricklayers' Union.

Another 100 feet and the plane might have cleared the bluff but there was another one beyond that. If the plane had climbed the other way, he'd have been over the sea and safe.

MISS ANNE FORBES who has chosen a clerical position with the RCAF, Women's Division, as her career, left the city Sunday for St. John's, Quebec, where she will be stationed for two months preliminary training. She is the daughter of Mrs. George Gimblett, 304 King St., and has lived in Peterborough all her life, attending PCVS academic and commercial courses.

Sing A Song Of 38,166!

We are going to tell the world about it; Peterborough folk already know. Estimates of Peterborough's population made from the assessment rolls showed the city's population this year to be 37,192. A surprise awaited, and Ottawa has just revealed it. The official, exhaustive decennial Dominion census taken this year sets the population at 38,166. Thus the city has grown fifty per cent. in the last ten years. The 1941 census figure is 25,350. It is the most rapid growth, numerically, of any decade in Peterborough's history.

* * *

We had a personal letter today from a Calgary resident who said: "Did the Princess and the Duke go to Peterborough? I suppose not. It's rather off the beaten track, of course." It's time—and the population figures show it—that people outside Peterborough stop taking Peterborough for granted, and stop speaking apologetically, even condescendingly, of it, conditioning their statements with an "of course". We are off the beaten track, thank God—no mere suburb of a Toronto, a Montreal or a Vancouver; nor are we a whistle-stop or a bus lunch-counter between big cities, as are other towns on beaten tracks of rail or concrete, tracks which go right through.

* * *

People who think of Peterborough as a small black dot somewhere at the edge of the forests of southern Ontario had better revise their opinions. We are not on the beaten track, but those who know a good thing when they see it are beating a track to Peterborough. And they come to this city to see it, to do business in it, consult about engineering and financial matters, and to enjoy Peterborough. They do not merely pass through.

* * *

Let us tell the world. We have a population of 38,166. Population figures do not mean much in themselves; it's the quality of the population and the fruit of their efforts which count. So let us tell the world that Peterborough of this year has a new four-million-dollar Civic Hospital, a new million-dollar City Hall (to be officially opened on the last Friday of this month); half a dozen major industries, the largest of which employs 5,000; and all are in thriving condition. Peterborough is among the first fifteen cities in Canada, reckoning on the value of its industrial output. The city has not been broke since the '30's, owing to a unique municipal financing organization and the sagacity of its management. Its bonds sell at the lowest interest rates and are invariably completely subscribed for on the first days of issue. We have some of the most modern schools staffed by teachers who rank among the best and best-rewarded in the country.

* * *

The city has more trees than houses. It is among the prettiest and cleanest in Canada. (Hundreds of thousands of dollars are being spent now to renovate and extend the sewage disposal plant to serve the increased population adequately.) We have a beautiful Little Lake right in the centre of the town (and a charming Little Lake cemetery on the other shore; to which good citizens aspire as their final resting-place, to be in company with the Canadian poetess Isabella Valancy Crawford and the man who lifted a thousand pounds and died because of his strength, and lies there at length, as his tombstone says).

* * *

The population is 95% Anglo-Saxon-Celtic in origins (this figure may be revised slightly when the Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa completes its decennial analysis of Peterborough), and if everybody doesn't own his own home, front lawn, back yard and summer cottage, it's because a few are just getting around to doing it. The place is so conservative that (a) the rumour that there might be a Communist or two in the fold is considered to be in very bad taste (b) Conservatives are sent year by year to the Legislative Assembly in Toronto and the House of Commons in Ottawa, except when some bright young candidate, or a strong-minded man like the late Honourable G. N. Gordon, or a ploughing-match enthusiast like Senator J. J. Duffus reminds them forcibly that a Liberal party and Liberal governments exist (c) truancy in the schools is so infrequent that the Truant Officer has become a sort of counsellor to mothers on how to get their offspring through the first week of schooling.

* * *

Petertborough has a first-rate professional Summer Theatre; an active Little Theatre, a Drama Festival of its own; three or four organized groups of amateur painters; some good choirs; streets of churches; a full quota of service clubs; a Normal School; three tower clocks and a first-rate annual Music Festival.

* * *

In the past, from the nineties onward, Peterborough has supplied Toronto and Montreal and the whole of Canada with financial genii of railroads, insurance companies, meat-packing firms, candy-makers, stock-market wizardry. It has nurtured a notable band of early Anglo-Canadian writers. In the present it is offering the country cabinet ministers, nuclear physicists, medical experts and learned professors, as well as a substantial quota of industrial leaders and mercantile barons.

* * *

We could continue the catalogue ad nauseam, that is, to the envy of lesser places in prestige and importance (even though they might have more than 38,166 people). We do not apologize for this paean on Peterborough and its people. It is healthy to be critical but it is downright morbid to be apologetic or belittling. There are very good and very significant reasons for Peterborough folk to be proud of their city and of themselves. (They earn, on the average, more than other Canadians—and at the same time spend more; even by this dollar criterion Peterborough stands out well.) There are sufficient reasons why outsiders should not lightly refer to Peterborough as an "of course"—or merely as a good place to come from. It is a good place to go to and to be in.

* * *

No; Princess Elizabeth and her Duke did not come to Peterborough. Ottawa planners of the royal tour somehow failed to recognize that this city has a special path to its door, fit for royalty to tread. And Peterborough folk, showing more compassion for the Royal couple than other places which have made exhausting demands on them, did not press their invitation. Instead, they endured a short visit in Toronto to see the cynosure of their patriotic hearts.

If we had not had the Calgary letter we would probably have kept these prideful thoughts on Peterborough to ourself. But it does not hurt to blow off steam once in a while, especially to the cold West. Anyway, in a week's time our new city hall is to be opened, and a preparatory service of civic self-aggrandizement is not inappropriate.

Old Bones In Iran

If Persia, now called Iran, was the site of the Garden of Eden as some scholars suggest, it has suffered a new discord and a new expulsion. The modern apple is oil; and the first exploiters of it—the British Adams in the Persian garden—have now been driven out. Really, it is more comfortable to think of Persia as the old Eden where, according to Genesis, lived the first man created, than to worry about Premier Mossadegh fainting in New York and oil gushing red in Iran. The relief afforded by this turning back to Eden and our First Parents has a special timeliness, because of recent discoveries in that ancient land.

Two American anthropologists have unearthed in northern Iran three skeletons estimated to be 75,000 years old. They are probably the oldest human remains ever found; and while they are certainly not the skeletons of Adam and Eve and some unrecorded third person, they do give weight to the thesis that the first human life began in that area, and that there culture evolved.

The discoveries have induced new concepts of man's early evolution. One of the experts, after studying the skeletons, believes that "modern" man existed before a more sub-human species such as the 50,000-year-old Neanderthal man. The physical structure of the remains of the three men found near the Caspian sea bears strong resemblances to their twentieth-century descendant. However, modern man has a larger brain chamber—300 cubic centimetres larger than the cranial capacity of the three gentlemen of Persia who died 75,000 years ago.

One cannot help speculating if the modern expulsion of the British from the Garden of Eden would have taken place had Premier Mossadegh not inherited the brain chamber of his prehistoric ancestors.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Some men are self-made. Others are the result of careful revision by their wives and families.

How busy isn't as important as why busy: the bee is appreciated—the mosquito swatted.

A Hollywood barber has been married for the twelfth time, but no mention is made of his being divorced. Are we to assume that his customers aren't the only ones he talks to death?

When Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh visited Windsor last Monday, Detroit celebrated too. Children were let out of school, a Michigan state police escort was provided and the Americans even fired a 21-gun Royal salute. American neighbourliness? More than that; an unsuppressed envy at not having their own royalty. Perhaps it is time to let the United States come back to the British imperial fold.

Forgotten Front Of America

By SEBASTIAN HAFFNER

THE Egyptian crisis presents a problem not only to Britain but also to America. Indeed, the situation which it reveals is more puzzling, and more difficult to resolve, from the American point of view than from the British one.

For Britain the chief importance of Egypt lies in the fact that the Suez Canal is the jugular vein of Commonwealth communications. The security and freedom of passage through the Canal is a strictly vital interest to the survival of the British Commonwealth and hence to Britain herself. To renounce it is, for Britain, unthinkable.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS by itself simplifies the problem for Britain. In matters of life and death there is no choice. The situation is straightforward for other reasons. First, the Treaties of 1936 and of 1899, which Egypt is denouncing, are not subject to unilateral abrogation—the first not before 1956, the second not at all. This gives Britain an unassailable legal case. Secondly, on the strength of these Treaties, British troops are actually stationed in the Canal Zone and in the Sudan. This gives Britain the advantage of possession, which, in a case like this, is often "nine points of the law". It is not, as in Persia, a question of Britain having to give up her rights or protect them by forceful action which might be considered aggressive. It is Egypt who will have to commit physical aggression if she wants to implement her threatened Treaty abrogation. If she does so, her aggression will obviously be met and defeated, much as Britain would prefer to avoid such a necessity.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR America, none of these stern but simple considerations apply. The Suez Canal, though an important international waterway for America too, is not vital to her. America has access to Australia and her Asiatic Allies through the Pacific, to her European Allies through the Atlantic. She is not, like Britain, dependent in any vital sense on the Mediterranean-Indian Ocean route, of which the Suez Canal is the central bottleneck. America has no special treaty links with Egypt, and she has no troops there. She is not directly a party to the dispute. She is free to shape her policy in the light of her general strategic and political interests; moreover, she can—and must—shape this policy, as it were, from scratch. She has no continuous Egyptian policy. Indeed, she has not, so far, had a continuous and consistent North African and Middle Eastern policy. The significance of the Egyptian crisis for her is that it finally proves that she can no longer do without such a policy.

IT is natural, indeed inevitable, for America to view the Egyptian situation from the point of view of her global conflict with Russia. The basis of American world policy at the present time is the containment of Russia and the creation of situations of strength at every threatened point—situations which will at some future stage, be recognized by Russia and ratified in the form of international settlements.

This policy has so far been successful in Europe and the Pacific. It has not even begun to approach success in North Africa, the Middle East, and Southern Asia. In Europe and the Pacific, American diplomacy has succeeded in building a firm Western and Eastern front against further Russian expansion. From the North Cape to Sicily, and from Japan to Australia, two firm North-South lines have been drawn, and behind these lines massive military strength is in process of being built up.

But Russia can expand not only towards the West and the East, but also towards the South. To make "containment" of Russian expansion complete, there is also needed a West-East line—a base-line to the two European and Pacific walls. And behind this line, there must also be a position of strength, if security is to be achieved and an approach to settled peace made possible.

✧ ✧ ✧

SO far, no such line exists, and the whole vast area from Morocco to Indonesia remains a position of weakness. Nor is there much indigenous material in this enormous area from which to build strength. Greece and Turkey have inherent defensive capacities. So, perhaps, has Israel. So has the Indian sub-continent, provided India and Pakistan can overcome their mutual suspicions and their conflict over Kashmir and co-operate as good neighbours. With that, the list of possible self-sustaining local Powers is probably exhausted. For the rest, Morocco, Tunisia, Libya, Egypt, the Arab states, Persia, Burma, Indo-China, Siam, Malaya and Indonesia are all countries whose inherent power is far too weak to guarantee their security from outside attack. Many of these States are also internally vulnerable to Communist penetration. Some of them—Morocco, Tunisia, Indo-China, Malaya—are (more or less unwillingly) associates or dependencies of outside Great Powers, from which they derive some protection. Others—Libya, Egypt—derive protection from foreign alliances. The rest are simply power vacua, waiting to be filled.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE pervading problem of his whole area—most of it in the recent past, and some of it still at present, subject to Imperial rule by French, Italians, Turks, British or Dutch—is the discrepancy between the ardour of its nationalism and the weakness of its actual economic, political and military capacity to sustain independent nationhood. American policy towards this area has so far been mainly determined by anti-imperialism and the wish to gain local goodwill. America has applauded the self-liquidation of British imperialism, participated in the forceful destruction of the Turkish and Italian Empires, and given her sympathy to nationalist movements directed against French and Dutch imperialism. However, most of the countries which have emerged from the great imperial liquidation are quite unable to defend their new national independence by their own efforts against the threat of far harsher domination by the Communist Imperialism of Russia and China. Something has to take the place of the old Imperialism to give these new and weak nations security from outside attack, and the chance of international economic, social and political development. To find this "something"—to establish relations which provide for the military, political and economic security of these countries with the least possible infringement of their national dignity and sovereignty—has for long been a profound concern of British policy; the Egyptian Treaty of Alliance of 1936 has itself been one experiment in this kind of relationship. It must be admitted that some of these alliances, concessions, etc., have been locally unpopular; that does not automatically make them superfluous. And American policy, though rightly concerned to work in harmony with local nationalism and maintain local goodwill to the greatest possible extent, cannot safely ignore the overriding necessity to provide for local security.

✧ ✧ ✧

AT a moment when America herself is reluctantly coming to the conclusion that she must help to man the defences of Europe, Japan and Korea if she is to have security it would seem curious if the far weaker defences of North Africa and Southern Asia were to be left unsupported. Egypt is only one sector, though a key sector, on this vast undermanned front. But the problem which she poses is bound to pose itself in one form or another all along the "Southern Front" of the cold war; and it is for America as the leading power of the Western Coalition, to face it realistically in its wider context.

What Is Future For Alberta Coal?

(CALGARY HERALD)

WE lucky Albertans are sitting upon what is probably the biggest coal field in the world. But are we doing anything about it? The truthful answer is that we are not.

Canada's vast coal reserves have been estimated by experts at around 98 billion tons, or enough to last for centuries. Of that total about 92 billion tons lie, hardly touched, in Alberta and B.C. Yet what is happening to our coal industry? An American coalman told the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy last week that, barring an all-out war, at least half of the coal industry in both Canada and the United States will be operating marginally or at a loss.

The coal market is being lost right and left under the pressure of the fast-operating gas and oil industry. Inefficient coal plants continue to be a drag on the industry as a whole. Transportation difficulties continue to mount so that the industry must call for government aid. The outlook of the majority of the coal operators is still unprogressive and set.

The future is not completely black, of course. At this same meeting last week, Professor J. A. Harle of Edmonton predicted that future power developments in Alberta will be mainly through thermal generation rather than water, and that coal could be used generously for this job so as to allow for the greater export of natural gas. Another speaker told of the research being done to produce a coal-fired turbine railway engine that could compete with diesels.

This is encouraging news on the face of it, but the point it raises is what are the coal operators of Canada or of Alberta, even, doing about it? The development of the turbine engine is not the work of the coal industry, though of course it is keenly interested. It is the work of the Canadian Research Council and McGill University.

What is the Canadian coal industry actually doing about the problem raised by Professor Harle of developing thermal power generation? How much actual research have Canadian coalmen put into some of the new continuous mining devices the Americans are producing? And how much, do they know, will these new mechanization processes actually mean to mining costs. The American coalmen last week said the economies would be small. New uses and new markets are the need.

It isn't the job of the Canadian government to do the coal industry's research and market search. In other countries, private industry sees that iron ore is brought to the coal field; that new uses for coal are investigated; that high cost operations are junked. If the government has a duty it is to establish a national coal policy and to develop an immigration policy that will provide the markets, not only for coal but for all other of our great resources now only half developed.

But that is the paradox of the Canadian economy. We dwell in plenty but we won't do anything to exploit it for ourselves.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

We then, as workers together with him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain. (For he saith, I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.) Giving no offence in any thing, that the ministry be not blamed: but in all things approving ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses, in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labours, in watchings, in fastings.... As sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness and what communion hath light with darkness?....

Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing: and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty. (II Cor. 6: 1-5, 10, 14, 17, 18.)

Letter To The Editor

SCHOOL WANTS WEEK-END

Sir: We would like to get the Week-end Examiner. Would it be possible for you to mail it to us each week? What would such a subscription cost us up until the end of June? We thank you in advance.

Yours very truly,
PUPILS OF S.S. 3, HARVEY.
Lakehurst, Ontario.

WANTS FOURTH READER

Sir: Could you obtain a copy of an old school book for me?

I am looking for the "Reader" used in the Entrance class taught by Wm. Smith in the year 1895 which I remember as called a Fourth Reader when I attended that class.

Please let me know what it will cost me. Thanking you, I remain,

MRS. F. CLARKE
(nee Josie Bell).
120 East King Edward Ave., Vancouver 10, B.C.

SNUFF AND SATURDAY PAPER

Sir: Your "Regular Reader" is away off the beam. People objecting to paying more for the week-end paper are not just like people who don't object to paying more for cigarettes (and everyone does that, too).

If you want to compare the paper people and the cigarette people, it's just as if a person wanted to buy cigarettes and they threw in a box of snuff and made him pay for that too,—and he didn't use snuff. This won't take as much room as Regular Reader but I don't really think you'll print it.

"USED TO BE R.R."

ONE PAPER

Sir: I am another of the many that do not want your extra edition on Saturday.

I want a Saturday paper, but cannot get one unless I also buy the extra edition, which I consider is a form of compulsion.

Last week I stopped having the "Telegram" for just that reason, and now I find you are using the same trick.

I am in complete agreement with H. Jocelyn in hoping others will take this up, and really do something about it.

As a suggestion, why can't you issue the extra edition separately—and let people have their own choice if they want it or not.

Yours truly,
R. HAZELDEN.

SCARBOROUGH SCENE

Group Reviews Scouting In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 18—(ENS)—The annual dinner sponsored by the scout group committee was held on Friday evening.

Following a lovely dinner prepared and served by the scout and cub mothers a business meeting was held.

Chairman of the group committee, Mel Kingdon presided. Mr. Kingdon appealed to the parents for help with the scouts and cubs.

Secretary Stan Burger gave a report of last year's meeting, and also the financial report which showed that $604.70 had been raised in 1951, compared with $260.89 in 1950.

Cubmaster Jerry Burger, who is now attending Toronto University gave an account of the cub activities during the year. Three parent nights had been held and also a Christmas party. Twelve cubs had gone on an overnight hike which they thoroughly enjoyed. Due to increase in the cubs, the pack had been divided into two packs, and three cubs had gone up into scouts.

Skipper Ken Jakins, in reviewing the scouts and the group activities, said about $200 had been spent on "the ship," which still needs a floor. A keel had been put in the Warsplite, previous to the ten-day cruise to Lake Simcoe.

The Gilwell course, a wood badge course, the first ever held in Canada, had been held at Lakefield in August.

Skipper Jakins thanked the Lions Club, the scout and cub mothers and the friends who had helped during the year, and asked for their continued support.

Executive Commissioner

Roy Brown of Peterborough, former member of the scout group committee, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. R. H. Mortlock, executive commissioner for publications from Dominion headquarters at Ottawa.

Mr. Mortlock said boy scouts are like messengers. They have a very important message to deliver to a sick and ailing world.

If, said the speaker, every scout lived up to the scout promises throughout life the world would be a wonderful place in which to live.

Mrs. Stanley Burger, retiring president of the mothers' group, said a family picnic, two bake sales and the banquet were sponsored by the mothers during the year, and introduced the new slate of officers, as follows: President, Mrs. Mel Kingdon; vice-president, Mrs. A. Newson; secretary, Mrs. Roy Farrow; social convener, Mrs. Earl Orr.

The group committee was elected as folows: Mel Kingdon, Bruce Maxwell, Theo Down, A. Newson, H. Walford, L. Fraser, C. Coons, W. Shepherd, W. Webb and Mr. Williams.

Scoutmaster L. Groombridge of Peterborough and Mr. Mortlock presented Sea Scouts Rick Wilford and Jim Fraser with two badges for efficiency in tests.

Morley Brown, a King's scout, was given his honorable discharge by Skipper Jakins. Morley, who has been one of the best scouts, according to Skipper Jakins, has moved to Peterborough and will be greatly missed by the Lakefield troop.

Ricky Wilford presented Morley with a leather billfold, a gift from the scouts.

Bruce Maxwell of the scout group thanked the ladies for the dinner and thanked the speaker.

Graduates Presented At Hastings H and S

HASTINGS, Oct. 18 (ENS). — The meeting of the Hastings Home and School Association was presided over by the president, Mrs. S. Whitred.

Reports were given by the secretary and treasurer. Mrs. J. Jones reported that the St. John Ambulance course would start Wednesday night and would take six weeks. Mr. W. C. Hutchins of Peterborough will conduct the class.

Mrs. C. M. Baker had a table arranged for publications, and also spoke about subscriptions to the Home and School Magazine.

The president announced the regional conference to be held at Queen Mary School, Peterborough, on Oct. 27, and requested as many as possible to attend.

The graduates of 1951 were presented with the school pin on behalf of the Home and School by Principal Douglas Thurston, who spoke to the graduates and congratulated them on their achievement.

Grade 5 of last year were the winners of the book that is presented to the grade which has the largest parent attendance. Mrs. M. Brown made the presentation to Brenda Thompson.

A film, "Family Circle," was shown. Visitors were asked to stand and were introduced.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The morning mail includes the 1951-52 NHL press and radio Guide, edited by Ken McKenzie. It also has Jim Hendy's Hockey Guide and Who's Who in Hockey. A 208-page book crammed with puck statistics, a credit to the league. All pro organizations have a special publicity department or press agent, and amateur clubs should follow suit. Put a good hustling officer on the job of handing out info to press and radio, and you'll see how it pays off. It's not that writers are lazy, but they often forget to plug a club, having several other stories on the mind at the time. A little reminder helps the cause along.

* * * * * *

In line with this, we might point out that there is no such thing any more as a cut-and-dried sports season for this or that game. The schedules overlap the year around, and the competition is keen. Rugby football takes the worst beating since it's season at best was always short. Squeezed in between hot summery days and the start of winter, it is about a three-month session. But summer sports run out into October, and hockey commences ere October's end, so the gridders don't draw as they should, at all. Some 200 fans in Oshawa saw Orfuns beat the league-leading Raiders 8-7 two nights ago. No wonder the grid clubs are always in debt.

Not Too Many Imports

The OHA executive is giving some thought to getting a senior "B" club in Kingston to again round out a neat grouping with the two Peterborough teams and Belleville Redmen. And there's been feelers thrown out that maybe extra consideration at this late date might be given Nylons or whatever club operates there as to imports. In other words, let them have more imports than the four allowed all senior squads. We'd certainly like to see a good Kingston team in our grouping, but we don't think it should be granted too many privileges. Possibly six imports at the very most in order to ice a contending club. After all, our clubs want to win, too, and they weren't involved in any scandal.

* * * * * *

Re that OHA suspension meeting in Kingston, Mike Rodden adds this item: "Joey Catlin provided the only humor there when he asked why he shouldn't be paid for time off from work to attend the inquiry. He had not attended that other meeting and felt he was not obligated to give evidence. President Jack Roxborough readily agreed that Joe's claim was reasonable, and he stated that a cheque would be forwarded, covering the loss. And he added that the taxi fare entailed would raise the said cheque to $7.85." Joe, who most fortunately for him could not attend that original meeting—when Nylons decided to lay down in a series —certainly doesn't miss any monetary bets, eh?

Think Price Too Steep

Prexy Don Smedmor of the PMHA isn't happy over the time allotted to minor hockey at the arena nor the price charged. The boys get each Thursday evening, which is okay, but pay $60 for the night, or $10 an hour. Arena management will give the peewees an hour free at four p.m. each Wednesday, but Don says coaches aren't available at that time of day. He would like one or two more evenings from five to seven at half price, or the same sum as the OHA clubs pay for an hour's practise, 10 bucks. "After all," he says, "the rink was built primarily for the kids, wasn't it?"

* * * * * *

The minor puck setup did well the winter before last and had a balance of $441.43, but lost several hundred dollars last season. Receipts were $226.40 from the Boston Bruins' game here, civic grant of $200.000, PMHA Night $353.95 and ticket sale of $443.45 for a total of $1,665.23, including that 1950 balance. The expenses amounted to $1,575.83, with $890 of this going to the arena in rental, and $223 to referees. PMHA has 12 teams, four in bantam, four midget and four juvenile, besides seven or eight peewees. The arena commission wants its accounts paid each month. As a matter of fact, the three OHA clubs feel they're paying too big a cut of games to the arena, too.

Orillia Gridders Qualify To Meet PCVS Seniors

Football fans may see a preview Saturday of the COSSA finals when PCVS' senior Garnet and Grey plays Orillia Collegiate in the final game of the Red Feather elimination play. Orillia Wednesday afternoon in Orillia easily handed Alliston a 20-10 setback to win the Georgian Bay district Red Feather honors. PCVS, by defeating Oshawa Saturday, will represent the Lake Ontario and Bay of Quinte districts.

Whoever wins Saturday at Morrow Park, the game the second of an afternoon doubleheader beginning at 1:30 will enter the Red Feather tournament in Toronto for the Ted Reeve trophy and the all-Ontario secondary school association football championship.

Probably the collegiate football upset of the week happened on Tuesday night in Toronto when East York Goliaths were shoved out of the annual tournament for the first time.

The Goliaths who won 48 straight games, two against PCVS have been beaten twice, by Riverdale 8-7 (incidentally PCVS trimmed the 'Dales 11-0) and by Runnymede 7-0.

The decision between Runnymedt and Etobicoke for the Red Feather was made in favor of Etobicoke for its balance and reserves, Etobicoke using the platoon system while Runnymede depended upon one halfback.

Likely Strongest

Probably the strongest team in the Red Feather will be the Hamilton Cathedral Gaels and the committee may have trouble finding an opponent.

So far only Stamford Collegiate who beat last year's champions, St. Catharines, 34-0 to enter this year's series, seem strong enough.

Toronto teams, who are on a par with PCVS, haven't indicated so far the strength of last year's East York which will likely be needed to set back the Gaels.

From the far north Kirkland Lake, the first team to qualify is a dark horse.

Friday night will see three other districts decide winners. In the EOSSA (Eastern Ontario) the unbeaten Ottawa Tech challenge once-beaten Glebe Collegiate. Kennedy and Patterson Collegiates in Windsor will settle the Western Ontario section while Toronto Riverdale and Humberside decide the Toronto city entry.

Flyers Wallop Syracuse 5-1

By The Canadian Press.

St. Louis Flyers took over sole possession of first place in the western division of the American Hockey League Wednesday night, thumping Syracuse Warriors 5-1 for their third straight victory.

In other games, Buffalo Bisons won their first game of the season and moved to the top of the league's eastern division with a 3-1 decision over Cincinnati Mohawks and Pittsburgh Hornets shaded Hershey Bears 2-1.

At Syracuse, the Warriors battled stubbornly through a scoreless first period, yielded two goals by Cliff Simpson and Pat Lund in the second period, and saw their victory chances erased in the final 20-minute session by a three goal St. Louis outburst.

Harry Pidhirny broke through for a marker to spoil the shutout bid of Flyers' goalie Ralph (Red) Almas. Cliff Simpson, Max Quackenbush and Al Baccari scored for the Flyers in the finale.

St. Peter's Juniors Win To Continue Undefeated

Johnny Lynch's St. Peter's High juniors remained unbeaten for the 1950 and 1951 seasons on Wednesday night by whitewashing Port Hope High for the second time this year, 17-0.

Two weeks ago the Saints ran roughshod over the lakeshore team at Morrow Park 37-0. In the three league games so far, the other against Cobourg last week, the Saints have yet to be scored upon, while running up a total of 85 points.

Minus Three

St. Peter's were without three veteran players, John Hickey, the quarterback; Murray Byrne, effective plunger, and Jim Clark, hard-hitting lineman.

In spite of an injured leg, Dick Foley again led the Saints with his plunges for yards. The return of Carl Simmons to the line was noticed throughout the game as they out-battled the Port Hope front line.

In the second quarter, St. Peter's chalked up their first score after Dick Foley and Gord Snape had alternately plunged to the three-yard line where Foley charged over. Frank McGillen booted the extra point to make the half score 6-0.

Began to Roll

Port Hope held throughout the third quarter then the Saints began to roll in the fourth, starting to move on the Port Hope 34. Foley's plunging, Terry Fitzgerald's passing and Gord Snape's running finally took the ball across, Snape scoring. The convert attempt fell through.

A blocked kick on the Port Hope 18-yard line resulted in the Saints' final touchdown as Bob O'Rourke scampered across and Frank McGillen kicked the extra point.

Simpson Sets Money Record For Race Drivers

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18 (AP)— A money-winning record for harness-racing drivers has been set by John F. Simpson, 31-year-old Chester, SC, reinsman.

The United States Trotting Association said figures compiled through October 6 showed that Simpson won $322,529.92. The previous high was established a year ago when Del Miller, Meadow Lands, Pa., earned $306,813.

Joe O'Brien, of New Glasgow, NS, was in the 10th place with $101,163.

On top of his money-making record, Simpson already has won 116 races this year, five more than last year when he was the national leader.

He may add to his earnings during the current harness meeting at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif. He will race there through the close of the meeting Dec. 1, then return east to take over as general manager of the Hanover Shoe Farms, Hanover, Pa., the country's largest standard-bred farm.

50-Horse String

Simpson directed activities of a 50-horse string in 1950, and the stable itself accounted for more than $360,000 in prize money. His big winners were Duke of Lullwater, who earned $59,270 to become the sport's biggest money-winning two-year-old; the undefeated three-year-old trotter Ford Hanover; the two-year-old pacing filly Silent Waters, and Kimberly Mine, a fleet two-year-old trotting filly.

Trailing Simpson in the money-winning department is Billy Haughton, 27, of Fultonville, NY, who has won $180,628. Miller, last year's winner, is in third place with $167,853.

Runner-up in the race winning category is veteran W. N. McMille, London, O., who had 80 victories through Oct. 1.

Wife Approves Stengel Staying In Baseball

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18 (AP)—If Mrs. Casey Stengel has her way, the manager of the New York Yankees will stay in baseball next year and try to make it four world championships in a row.

"Casey hasn't conferred with the Yankee officials yet about his future plans," Mrs. Stengel said Wednesday in an interview, "but I feel he wants to continue in baseball and this is the first time I agree with him.

"For the last 10 years I've urged Casey, even threatened him, to quit baseball. He has everything he wants and baseball can never bring him the financial satisfaction he can realize in other, less demanding fields. But now he owes it to baseball to go on. Baseball need him more than I do."

Leafs Edge Boston 4-2; Schmidt Still Big Star Among Bruins' Players

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Milton Conrad Schmidt is about the handiest guy in the National Hockey League to have around. And, as the seasons are ticked off, it becomes gallingly apparent—to the opposition—that Milt's value to the one-time bruising Boston Bruins takes a healthy jump. And Milt, despite his 33 years and nearly half his life in the big time, straddles NHL boards more times a game than the fuzzy-faced eager-beaver kids. Sweater No. 15, with Milt's 190 pounds inside it, is out there when things are looking good, bad and indifferent for the Bruins.

Schmidt gets the nod from Coach Lynn Patrick when Boston is short-handed. He is out there when the opposition is short-handed and he's the steadying influence when Boston is being pushed around. His 33-year-old legs aren't as strong as they used to be but the hockey know-how stored in his head offsets any physical let-down.

The Kitchener-born warhorse, with the Bruins 14 seasons, was around Wednesday night as Boston lost 4-2 at Toronto, the only game scheduled. It wasn't Milt's fault. He was a star of the evening and figured in one of the Bruins' goals.

If anything, it was the old kitty-bar-the-door tactics that spelled defeat for the Bruins — their third in four starts this season. With the score tied 2-2 going into the third period and Boston content to settle back and play for a tie, the Leafs stormed goaltender Sugar Jim Henry who finally opened the gates for Max Bentley with 3½ minutes left of the game.

Too Late

Then it was too late. Bruins woke up, carried play to the Leafs and in a desperate final-seconds move pulled Sugar Jim out of the nets and sent six men up. The manoeuvre backfired and Cal Gardner broke away to push the puck into the empty net with only 20 seconds remaining.

Dunc Fisher shot Boston into the lead at 2:06 of the first period and the lead was safe until former Leaf Vic Lynn drew a hooking penalty and defenceman Gus Kyle was chased for slashing. Sid Smith evened the count with Lynn in the box and Ted Kennedy shoved Toronto into a 2-1 lead as Kyle looked on from the penalty box.

Johnny Peirson made it 2-2 just 15 seconds after start of the second and Bruins went into their shell.

Two games are on tap for tonight—New York Rangers at Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings at Chicago. And for the Hawks things are looking grim.

Hurricanes Trip Generals In 6-1 Triumph

By The Canadian Press.

Waterloo Hurricanes stepped into a third-place tie with Toronto Marlboros by trouncing Oshawa Generals 6-1 in the lone Ontario Hockey Association Junior A contest played Wednesday night.

The Hurricanes spotted Oshawa the first goal, then took over the action. The score was tied 1-1 at the end of the first, and Waterloo led 4-1 after two periods.

The hard-checking Hurricanes were sparked by the stellar netminding of Lavi Purola as Generals outshot the winners in every frame except the opener.

Move Pays Off

Waterloo stuck to a close-checking technique and invaded Oshawa territory only on promising occasions. The move paid off when they scored three goals in the second period on five shots on goal.

Herve Dejordy, on a pass from Gordie Myles, tallied the lone Oshawa marker. Roger Maissonneuve tied the count before the first period ended. In the second the winners took the lead on goals by Johnny Wood, Chuck Brooker and Johnny Slawson.

Jimmy Connelly scored the remaining two goals in the final heat.

Three games are scheduled for Friday. Oshawa will visit the leading Kitchener Greenshirts; Galt Black Hawks meet Barrie Flyers at Barrie and Guelph Biltmores will be at home to Windsor's winless Spitfires.

Lindsay Blanks Dresden 2-0

LINDSAY, Oct. 18. — Lindsay Merchants evened the OBA Intermediate B final before 700 fans here Wednesday afternoon, blanking Dresden, 2-0, on Doug Loucks' three-hit pitching.

Loucks duelled with Negro righthander Gerald Cook before the Merchants broke up the runless ball game in the seventh inning. Stu Hicks led off with a single, stole second, moved to third on Loucks' one-bagger and beat the peg home as Harv Heatlie rapped the ball to short. Lindsay added an insurance run in the eighth when Vic Jewell singled home Hank Debois, who had walked. Pitcher Roy Holmes came in and put out the fire with runners on first and third.

Dresden threatened to go in front in the sixth when two errors moved lead-off batter Norm Smith into scoring position. Loucks got the next two alone, passed the Dresden's hard-hitting battery of Cook and catcher Red Brewer and forced Norm Paddick to pop to short. Paddick and Cook hit singles for Dresden, while Clare Mifflin smashed a double.

Young Debois, who garnered Lindsay's only two hits in the 5-0 loss in Dresden, paced the winners with a single and double in three trips. Loucks fanned five, three in the ninth, in winning his 20th game of the year.

Nemeth, a guard, suffered an injury in spring practice of 1950, underwent an operation, and his back is still in a brace.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Mark Drouin said Wednesday night at Quebec he has resigned as vice-president of the Quebec Senior Hockey League because of a controversy over a "negotiation list" agreement between the league and the National Hockey League.

The Quebec lawyer said he informed league president George Slater of Montreal.

Drouin said he had opposed the agreement described by some hockey leaders here as "unfair and prejudicial to the best interests of amateur hockey players."

Under the agreement, a player on the negotiation list of an NHL club must sign a contract with that club before being permitted to play with a QSHL team.

Herold (Muddy) Ruel took over today as farm director of the Detroit Baseball Club in the third Tiger front office shake-up in three months.

General manager Charlie Gehringer, himself a newcomer, confirmed Ruel's appointment a few hours after former farm director Ray Kennedy announced he had been "fired." Ruel quit as the Cleveland Indians' farm director Sunday.

Owner Walter O. Briggs started the shakeup July 28 when he fired general manager Billy Evans as Tigers were staggering through one of their worst two seasons in 20 years.

One of the two top officials to hang onto his post is manager Robert A. (Red) Rolfe whose clubs finished fourth, second and fifth since he took over.

At Ottawa Tommy Gorman, owner of the Ottawa Senators and the Auditorium here, said on Wednesday he has arranged a tie-in with the Arena Managers' Association of New York for the reproduction by next spring of big sports events on a television screen in the Auditorium.

"We will be getting the telecasts of the big prize fights of the International Boxing Club and in due course we should be able to line up the world series games," Gorman said.

At St. Louis, Roy Hunter, 22-year-old football player, died on Tuesday night from injuries suffered in a game Sunday. Hunter, injured while he was attempting to break up a play, died without regaining consciousness.

Jack Stewart, captain and veteran defenceman of Chicago Black Hawks, has suffered a slight skull fracture, it was revealed Wednesday at Chicago.

Stewart suffered the injury in a player collision while the Hawks were playing the New York Rangers Sunday. He will not be able to play for about three weeks, doctors said.

Columbus Red Birds of the American Association Wednesday announced that Johnny Keane, who has managed Rochester Red Wings for the last three seasons, would manage the Columbus club in 1952. Keane comes to the Red Birds in an organization shift that sent Harry Walker, 1951 Bird pilot, to the International League club.

Footballer Makes College Debut This Week At Age Of 40-Plus

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18 (AP)—Everyone is familiar with the phrase that "life begins at —," but here's a man who is again beginning, at the age of 40, to play college football.

He is Bush Manson, a tall, lean, 180-pound Negro, and he stoutly denies—well, he denies that he is older.

Forty is quite enough, this father of three youngsters implies as he barges into daily scrimmage with the Los Angeles State College team.

Bush undoubtedly is the oldest football player on the youngest team in the United States this year. Los Angeles State launched its first season of the sport this fall.

Things were pretty sparse for the new coach, Bud Adams, when practice began, and when Manson showed up one day and asked if he could try out, Adams gave prompt approval.

"Might as well tell you," he told Adams, "I'm kinda old."

Bush said he last played college football in 1932 with Wilberforce College in Ohio. "Played centre and guard and weighed 'bout 169. Played right well, too," he added.

Keeps Busy

Then he had to drop out of school and 19 years went by, the last dozen or more keeping Bush hard at work raising three youngsters and tending a very sick wife.

He liked to play "touchball" on the playgrounds, too, and one of his opponents was Bush Manson, Jr., now 12. Bush says he's going to be a fine player.

At Los Angeles State, Bush plays defensive guard and tackle. He missed the first three games this fall—State lost 'em—but is due to play this week.

Aside from football, Bush still runs his household and works nights at a wholesale produce company. He works 40 hours a week, in fact, in addition to all his football and school duties.

How does he stand up against kids half his age?

A rival tackle, Jack Guedalia, who is only 19, supplied the answer. "I feel worse'n he does after this stuff."

Lively Chase

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. —(CP)—A miniature rodeo was staged at the Harmon air force base when a riding horse pastured in a nearby field broke loose and entered the camp. The horse's owner and an airman riding in a jeep captured the animal after a hectic chase.

M. Lake Bowls A 382

Marcelle Lake hit high three of 382 in a fine showing in the Mercantile Bowling League this week and her 698 was also top three. Gord Leonard led men in singles with 297 as Jack Martell's 668 was best in threesomes. Loblaw's 3105 led all the teams.

Other high ladies' scores were: A. McPhee 237, Zeta Spencer 247, Shirley Bagnall 239, Joan De Carlo 228, Marg Parker 224, Mary Gimblett 236 and Elsie Penrose 252. Men's high tilts included: Bob Willshaw 291, F. Ronco 242, Jack Martell 259 and Jack Gimblett 234.

Witewash wins were hung up by Prudential over Neill's, Loblaws against A & P, and Braund's No. 1 over Bond's, as 3-1 victories went to Utilities and Austin's.

Delay Gavilan Fight

DETROIT, Oct. 18—(AP)—The Kid Gavilan-Tony Janiro fight has been postponed to Nov. 8. Originally the non-title, 10-rounder was to have been staged here Oct. 31. The International Boxing Club said Janiro asked the postponement because he has a cold and needs extra time to get in shape. Gavilan is welterweight champion. Janiro is a middleweight.

Beaches Clip McMaster 36-12

HAMILTON, Oct. 18 (CP). — Toronto Balmy Beach caught fire in the last half, overcoming a 12-6 deficit, to manhandle McMaster University Marauders 36-12 Wednesday night and vault into first place in the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior circuit.

The triumph, worth four points in the standings, placed the Beaches two points in front of Sarnia Imperials and eliminated McMaster from the race for a playoff spot.

Hard-running Ralph Pulley, former Detroit Lions halfback, scored the first three Toronto majors, all on short plunges after long marches downfield. Bob Hendry picked up two touchdowns on passes from quarterback Gerry Tuttle, one on a sensational 70-yard play, and Don Hatt romped 65 yards for the last touchdown after intercepting a McMaster pass.

George Watson booted all six converts.

Mel Hawkrigg and Lorne Wrigglesworth, two Torontonians in the McMaster lineup, were outstanding. Wrigglesworth got their first touchdown on a 12-yard end run while Hawkrigg went over from the seven-yard line on a quarterback sneak. Bashak converted both majors.

Two Marauders players were taken to hospital from injuries suffered during the game. Ken Foster, an outside wing, suffered a slight concussion while inside Clive Bynoe was carried off with a back injury.

Elmer Sandercock Re-nominated PC Candidate In West Hastings

MARMORA, Oct. 18—(ENS)—Elmer Sandercock, MPP, was unanimously chosen candidate of the Progressive Conservative party for the riding of West Hastings at a well-attended convention held in Stirling Community Hall Wednesday afternoon.

Three nominations were received for him. The first was signed by Dr. R. T. Potter, Mayor of Belleville, and J. Maxwell, the second by Gerald Hyde, of Belleville, and Don Sutherland, of Trenton, and the third by Mrs. J. M. Tugnett and Mrs. Charles Hyde, of Belleville.

The other nominee was Dr. E. A. Carleton, of Stirling, whose paper had the signatures of Harry Tanner and Francis Jeffrey. In declining nomination, Dr. Carleton humorously remarked: "You have seen that nomination papers are three to one against me. I see the handwriting on the wall, so decline to stand."

In the short time allotted him, Dr. Carleton urged more organization in the riding. There should be new blood, he felt, all down the line. He concluded by saying that the Frost government had brought the Department of Education to the fore—a department which called for a minister of its own who would not be linked with another department. He approved the appointment of Dr. Dunlop as Minister of Education.

President Dr. Russell Scott, of Belleville, declared Elmer Sandercock as official candidate.

Referring to Highway Minister George Doucett, who was present, Mr. Sandercock said changes had been made in recent years on the road system in West Hastings. The road between Belleville and Trenton had been given a new top; No. 7 Highway was not fully paved in June, 1948. It was now part of the transcontinental highway; from Highway 62 to Wollaston, the road has been taken over as a development road; improvements were made on the road between Hoards and Stirling.

He thanked those present for the honor they had bestowed upon him and promised to do his best if elected.

In the absence of Reeve Harold Wells, Councillor Don Rogers welcomed the delegates. In his presidential address which followed, Dr. Scott paid tribute to the co-operation given by the municipal associations.

"It has been tremendous. Our organization is effective and is in a stronger and better condition than in some former years."

For election of officers the meeting was turned over to Lt.-Col. A. P. Allen of Belleville.

The new executive is: President, Dr. Russell Scott, re-elected, Belleville; associate president, Mrs. J. M. Tugnett, Belleville; first vice-president, B. Vader, Bancroft; associate first vice-president, Mrs. R. Blatherwick, Bancroft; second vice - president, Ralph E. Neal, Marmora; secretary - treasurer, Charles York, Trenton; auditors, John Lennox and Harry Knott.

Mr. Doucette congratulated the riding on again selecting "Sandy" as candidate, and added:

"He has served you capably and well during his regime."

He said he did not come before them with promises or assurance. He would content himself with telling of some of the accomplishments of the Frost Government.

In 1943 one of the outstanding planks on the provincial Conservative platform was education. The opposition called upon George Drew, who took over at that time to produce his education policy before there had been a chance to review the situation. But in time that policy was made known and today approximately $62,000,000 is being given to schools and universities in the province. He cited three examples of what the Conservative educational policy had done in West Hastings.

In Belleville in 1943 grants amounted to $7,843. In 1950 the city received $74,923 in that connection. Similiarly grants to Stirling rose from $1,254 to $7,886, and in Frankford from $1,978 to $20,128.

"There is no reason," he said, "why this Government should turn down West Hastings when it comes asking for something that is needed. The Ontario Government was the first provincial

Can Get Oil By Boiling Shale Rock

CALGARY — (CP) — How do you get oil when there aren't any wells? That's a question which those interested in the Athabasca oil sands have probably asked themselves.

The answer could be found in Sweden. The Swedes have been getting good quality oil in reasonably large quantities by literally boiling it out of rocks, or more properly, shale.

Olov Terbstrom, Swedish trade representative touring Canada, explained it on a visit to Calgary.

He said the Swedes have been getting oil from shale since the end of the Second World War. The Swedish navy, he said, was largely dependents on this type of oil during the war.

Heat Shale

The first method the oilmen used was to gather likely looking pieces of shale, heat them and then distill the gases released by the process. But a faster and more practical method now has been evolved.

Six holes, in a rough circle, are drilled in shale rock to a depth of perhaps 15 feet.

A large hole is drilled in the centre of these six and then electric heaters are lowered into all holes but the central one.

The heat drives gases out of the central hole which are distilled, producing a good oil.

Canada's Old East-West Divisions Said Vanishing

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The old divisions between industrial east and agricultural west are being worn away in Canada's surging growth.

They are being worn away because the ways of life in the two vast areas are becoming more alike; and differences, real or fancied, are losing their edge.

George H. Carr of Sherbrooke, Que., president of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers Association, had something to say about this Wednesday in speaking to the association's annual meeting in Winnipeg. Said Mr. Carr:

"No longer is manufacturing the prerogative of the east. And, with all the expansion in the west—in oil and metals—it is inevitable that there will be even more dependence on the manufacturing that goes with such expansion.

"Perhaps the prairie provinces will become dotted with some of those 'bright little textile towns.' Then we would like to come back here not to say 'we told you so,' but to watch the farmer and the factory workers living comfortably side by side.

"Already textile manufacturing is one of Winnipeg's leading industries with more than 5,200 people engaged."

When Mr. Carr spoke about "bright little textile towns," he was speaking of the industry's particular boast—that it is, in large part, an industry of small communities.

"The industry," said Mr. Carr, "is Canada's largest employer of manufacturing labor—more than 100,000 men and women in 800 plants in more than 260 communities—and is first in wages and salaries paid. Wage rates now are 280 per cent of 1939 rates.

"Gross annual production now exceeds $700,000,000, more than the yearly wheat and oat crop and about five times the amount of Canada's annual gold production.

"The roots of the industry are in the villages and small towns—more than half the mills being in communities with less than 25,000 population.

View Given Canadians Untrue Envoy Criticizes US Citizens

MASSENA, NY, Oct. 18 (CP)—Stanley Woodward said Wednesday the actions of irresponsible Americans shake Canada's confidence in the US and give Canadians a "squint-eyed and distorted" view of their neighbors to the south.

In a frank appraisal of the way Canadians look at Americans, the US Ambassador in Ottawa opened fire both at the "short-sightedness" of those Americans who are holding up the St. Lawrence Seaway and at the "multitude of irresponsible attacks" on US leadership from within the US.

In a speech to Massena's Chamber of Commerce, he criticized, too, "little men of limited vision" who make "venomous attacks" on the architects of foreign policy.

The tide of this abuse must be turned because if "is doing great damage to the international interests of the US . . . I am confident that the great American sense of justice and fair play will prevail if only the American people can be made to appreciate the truth about these men who are so busy working for America's interests abroad that it is almost criminal to require them to find time to reply to those at home who have the leisure to malign and besmirch them for partisan ends."

Good Model

Speaking in this city near Cornwall, he cited New York's Governor Thomas E. Dewey as a responsible public man whom others might well copy. He lauded both State Secretary Dean Acheson and Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup, both frequently under attack.

Canadians were becoming increasingly concerned with US leadership because of Washington's pre-eminence in world affairs.

"I can ask you to look at our country through Canadian eyes. You (as a Canadian) have been bred in a tradition which lays great weight on law and order and you see your great and good neighbors to the south depicted by their own press and movies as something a little less than perfect.

"You are uneasily aware that Canada, in the last analysis, cannot decide its own course independently of a much more powerful neighbor and you see the leading figures of that neighbor's government pictured at best as inept, and at worst as traitors in the pay of the Kremlin.

Great Incompetence

"In your own civil service you have preserved the best traditions of the British civil service, with its unpartisan sense of professional dedication and you are assured by powerful portions of the American press that their civil service is full of incompetent time-servers who owe their jobs to political pull, and who are hopelessly corrupt.

"You are the child of two European nations who have had to subordinate their domestic concerns to international ones for centuries and you find yourself inevitably linked to the international course laid down by a nation you are forced to regard as politically immature, while some of its leading political figures display a frightening unconcern with the ideas and necessities of the rest of the world."

Confiscate Map

VIENNA, Oct. 18—(AP)—Soviet occupation authorities have confiscated 500,000 copies of a map showing locations of Soviet slave labor camps, officials here said Wednesday. The copies were ordered by the U.S. Information Service. The map is the same as the one which jolted Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko when it was shown to him during the San Francisco Japanese treaty conference.

Manslaughter Verdict

NANAIMO, B.C., Oct. 18—(CP)—Martin Saxey, 35, Wednesday night was found guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter in the Feb. 6 rifle slaying of Louis Oscar at Kyuquot on the west coast of Vancouver Island. He will be sentenced today. Saxey was originally convicted of murder and sentenced to be hanged, but was granted a new trial by th British Columbia Appeal Court.

Need Defence Orders

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (CP)—Donald Brown (L-Essex West) asked the government in the Commons Wednesday for a greater volume of defence orders to relieve unemployment in Windsor. He suggested the government also might stimulate employment by replacing the antiquated Canadian National Railways station as a public works measure.

To Stand Trial In Bank Holdup

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 18—(CP) — Earl Gilson and Boyd Englehart of Niagara Falls, Ont., Wednesday were committed for trial on charges of attempting to hold up the Imperial Bank at nearby St. David's Sept. 12. A third man, George Dabald of Niagara Falls, has pleaded guilty to the same charge and is awaiting sentence.

During the preliminary hearing Wednesday Englehart was identified by two persons who were in the bank at the time of the attempted robbery and by one man who stood outside. Englehart now is recovered from a gunshot wound in the back.

Bank manager A. T. Minnis chased the bandits away by firing his revolver.

None of the witnesses to the holdup identified Gilson. He was taken into custody several hours after the abortive holdup attempt by a hydro security officer who found him crawling through bushes on hydro commission property west of the abandoned hold-up car.

Englehart and Dabald were arrested a mile south of the bank near a car which had been used in the holdup.

Government to come to terms with the Federal Government regarding its share in the transcontinental highway. Hydro has progressed so that 85 per cent. of Ontario is now enjoying its benefits. Mitchell Hepburn, when in power, had said: 'We must get back to Niagara,' but he didn't. It was the Conservative Government that got back to Niagara. Some 200,000 consumers of hydro in the province were added this year, and there is need of further developing Niagara. There has been an increase in the population in Ontario of 100,000 per year for the past few years."

Concerning the Government's road-building program, it could be said that there was systematic road progress. This was necessary with more motorists and more traffic and more people. Highway traffic has increased by an extra car a minute since the first day of January of this year up to the present day. More than five million cars cross the border from United States each year.

"We must improve the roads and maintain them for our tourists and for ourselves. The most important road is that which passes your own door. The villages got their first road subsidy in the province of Ontario three years ago. That subsidy has now been increased from 50 to 80 per cent. Upon the King's highway in West Hastings in 1942-43 the provincial Government expended $55,071. Last year the amount was $650,000. This year it will be $600,000. We in Ontario have the best road system in Canada," he declared.

Dr. A. T. Embury, former MP, said it was a long time since he last stood on a Conservative platform. Changes had taken place since then, which were all a matter of progress. "The present Ontario Government need not fear the issue of this election, for it had been a good government."

After his graduation he joined the General Electric company and completed the company's engineering course at Schenectady, Pittsfield and Lynn. He then was transferred to the CGE in Toronto.

In 1931 he was made assistant to the manager of the supply department and in 1936 was appointed department manager.

Stage Demonstration

MILAN, Italy, Oct. 18 —(AP)—About 400 Communists attempting to march on the American consulate here were dispersed by police Wednesday night. Policemen arrested 20, including some young girls. The marchers shouted "Down with Ike" and other anti-Eisenhower slogans, as well as "We want peace" before they were routed.

Mothers Learn To Rear Children In Church Play

A charming one-act play, Scattered Showers was presented in George St. Church, Wednesday night.

The play, although extremely entertaining did not have entertainment as its primary purpose. Sponsored by the Baby Band Mothers of George St United Church, the play was put on as a form of parent education.

Its purpose, as explained by program chairman Mrs. Ray Parnell—to help any person with the responsibility of looking after children to have a better understanding of the task and as a result do a better job.

Three mothers, played by Mrs. George Gatfield, Mrs. Stewart Gilgour and Mrs. Arthur Long, with sons all about five years of age, spend the afternoon in a park. The children are not seen by the audience, but their presence is realistically suggested by the conversation and actions of the mothers.

The reactions of these three mothers to their children's actions in play present three approaches to motherhood and parental discipline.

First, the mother suffering from what might be termed a mania for psychological upbringing, who believes that her child must be raised by the books and continually fears that she may repress his individuality by too much discipline. Then to the opposite extreme, the mother who always believes in showing who is boss.

The lesson of the play is presented by the third mother of the group who humorously sums up her philosophy of rearing children in the words, leave 'em and let 'em be. To this rule she adds the explanation that a child must be disciplined, but behind this discipline he must realize that there is love.

All three actresses did a competent job in bringing to the audience these three methods of child raising, which spoke well for the able directing of Mrs. May Thompson.

Following the performance the play was analysed by Mrs. Victor Northcott, graduate of the Institute of Child Study. She stressed that to attain a happy family relationship there must be consistency of discipline of the part of both parents.

The audience was then divided into discussion groups which were followed by an open forum.

Mrs. Thompson was presented with a gift of appreciation for her work as director.

The program's music was presented by Mrs. Art Bacon, pianist and Mrs. Ross Moore, soloist.

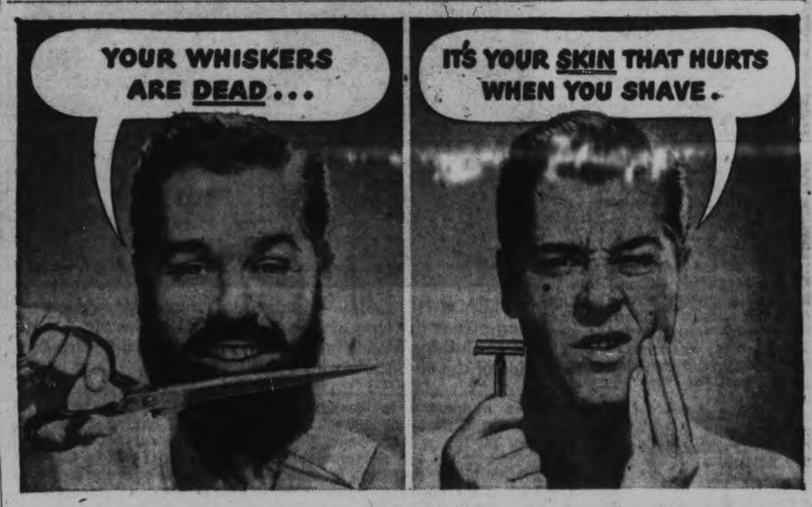
Toronto Conservative Nomination Meet Postponed



TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP) — President Edward Brown said Wednesday a nomination meeting of the Bracondale-Trinity Progressive Conservative Association has been postponed from Oct. 18 to Oct. 25.

His announcement followed publication of charges by school trustee Harold Menzies that he was offered the nomination last summer as the party's candidate in Toronto Bracondale in the Nov. 22 Ontario election and that it now planned to run Roy H. Thomson, publisher of the Thomson dailies and radio station owner.

Mr. Thomson said Tuesday night that he had been asked to stand for nomination as candidate for the seat now held by Harry Walters, CCF. He said he had not yet decided whether to accept.

British Election Appears To Be Toss-Up In Week

By RELMAN MORIN

LONDON, Oct. 18—(AP)—The British election—just a week away—today looks like a toss-up.

There are no indications of a big or developing trend at this point. Public opinion polls still report an advantage for Winston Churchill's Conservatives over the Labor party, but the margin of sentiment has been diminishing steadily for a week. Now it indicates only an extremely close race.

Independent observers are beginning to foresee the same thing.

Events abroad are moving fast, and nobody yet has been able to assess the effects for or against either party of the assassination of Pakistan's Premier Liaquat Ali Khan and the outbreak of violence in the Suez canal area, Britain's life-line to the Orient.

In consequence, the "floating" vote is even less predictable than it was a few days ago. It is estimated at 2,500,000 uncommitted voters and Liberals who will have no candidates in many constituencies.

In the last few days this reporter has gone canvassing with a team of Conservatives, and stood in crowds that gathered in three cities to hear Prime Minister Attlee. All soundings were in constituencies considered "doubtful" by both parties.

Attlee has been making a whistle-stop tour. He has been drawing large crowds and his simple, homely manner gets respect, if not agreement.

Can't Really Tell

He is applauded when he speaks of "fair shakes for everybody" and says it is not only the "privileged few" who have seen living standards rise since the Second World War.

But the applause doesn't tell much. It appeared to come in each case from about half the audience. The other half was silent.

There appeared to be a large percentage of people who, while not necessarily opposed, were simply uncommitted. They seemed not to have made up their minds.

The more-personal interviews, by the Conservative doorbell-ringing team in the Wandsworth section of London, brought out this uncertainty even more clearly. Wandsworth gave the Labor candidate a 2,000-vote plurality last year out of about 52,000 votes cast.

The Conservative question was, "Can we count on you for support?"

The answers, where no definite party affiliation was stated, were: "I haven't decided yet;" or "I'd rather not say at this time;" or "Yes, I'd like to have your literature, but I wouldn't want you to take that as a commitment to the Conservaives."

Court Finds Truck Driver Not Intoxicated

"If we took everyone in this town who had been drinking three or four beers on a Saturday afternoon, told them they couldn't drive and charged them with drunken driving if they did, the jails would all be full and all the lawyers in town would be so busy they'd be here all the time," concluded W. J. Arthur Fair KC, in Police court Wednesday.

Mr. Fair was urging Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, to dismiss a charge of drunk driving against Harold McConnell of Hastings.

McConnell pleaded not guilty. Magistrate Philip dismissed the charge.

The charge arose out of an accident on Aylmer St., the evening of October 6. Humane Society Inspector Bruce Menzies testified that in answer to a complaint he had found a truck with a team of horses parked on Aylmer St.

Brought In Horses

McConnell and James Convey of Bridgenorth had brought the horses to the city for a Peterborough man and had parked the truck on Aylmer St., while they went down town to look for him.

Constable William G. Scott testified that when he arrived on the scene after Mr. Menzies, both McConnell and Convey were there and that he had warned Convey that McConnell was in no condition to drive.

McConnell's light truck was parked on the other side of the street. Constable Scott said he ordered them to move the truck, and after travelling around the block, he found McConnell behind the wheel of the small truck towing the larger truck which was stalled.

Constable Scott testified that McConnell was "unsteady on his feet and in my opinion he was intoxicated." Constable Scott said he watched McConnell turn the truck around, and back it up in front of the big truck before attaching the tow rope.

Had Few Beers

Both Convey and McConnell admitted drinking a few beers during the afternoon but Convey denied that either of them were intoxicated. Convey said that McConnell had injured his leg in the bush some years ago and was often unsteady on his feet.

Questioned by Magistrate Philp concerning the impairment of McConnell, crown attorney J. A. Bradshaw said, "He had been drinking and if your worship can't find him guilty as charged, your worship can draw the inference that liquor does impair.

"Under this section, I can't draw that inference replied Magistrate Philp in dismissing the charge.

A second charge against McConnell of driving on the same day without brakes was dismissed when the crown offered no evidence.

Obtained Money Illegally, Fined

Herbert Chard, of Cordova Mines, was convicted of making false statements to obtain benefits from the Unemployment Insurance Commission and fined $20 and $27 costs or one month in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court Wednesday.

Chard pleaded not guilty to making application for benefits from April 25 to 28 and from May 1 to May 6 in 1950 when he was employed.

Mrs. Gwendolyne Connor of Madoc, testified that Chard was employed by a lumber firm for which she is payroll clerk during the period covered by the charge.

E. C. Naylor, inspector of the legal branch of the regional office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission in Toronto produced several benefit applications bearing signatures alleged to be Chard's and a cashed benefit warrant for $27.60 covering the period Chard was said to have made the false claim was introduced bearing Chard's signature.

Chard denied mailing any benefit application to the Commission after April 24 of last year which he said covered the period of from April 17 to April 22. He admitted cashing the benefit warrant but said it covered a payment of two previous weeks for which he had not been paid.

Chard denied signing the application for the week ending May 6, 1950, but in handing down the conviction, Magistrate W. R. Philp said, "Although the accused has given evidence that he did not sign the application for the week ending May 6, he is guilty of the first part, in that he was employed during the days prior to April 29.

Comparing the signatures (on the several documents admitted as exhibits) I have no hesitation in finding the signatures are all made by the same person.

Mr. Naylor said the $27.60 had been recovered by the commission from subsequent benefits.

Would Increase School Links With Parents

MOOSE JAW, Sask—(CP)—The old-fashioned school report card would be replaced by private, informal and regular parent-teacher conferences if Dr. S. R. Laycock, dean of the College of Education University of Saskatchewan, had his way.

At the convention of the Moose Jaw superintendencies Dr. Laycock said individual parent-teacher conferences would have to be improved a great deal in order to carry out such a program.

Many interviews have failed to do anything for the child and have created antagonism between the home and school because teacher or parent, or both, adopted the wrong attitude, or because the interview was not properly conducted.

Teachers should not hold a conference if their aim is to put pressure on the child or complain about the child. Teachers must feel a sincere desire to help the child, Dr. Laycock said.

Teachers also must have genuine respect for parents. "The teacher must realize that the child's home and parents powerfully affect his social and emotional development in school and also his ability to read, to spell or compute."

Goodwill Necessary

Parent-teacher conferences must be arranged on the basis of goodwill and co-operation, he said.

The time and place of a conference are important. Teacher and parent should be free to sit down quietly and not be hurried and the place should be informal. Pre-arranged meetings are best.

Dr. Laycock said teachers should be good listeners and give parents a "sense of worth."

The child's physical changes and how he, his parents, teacher and classmates react to them should be discussed as well as the child's general mental ability, specialized ability and school achievement.

Dr. Laycock said the child's personality and behavior and how factors in the home, school, community and how the child's physical and mental constitution reacts to them should also be discussed.

The teacher must study to improve the technique of teacher-parent conferences, he said, and so must the parent.

Try Handicrafts As Village Industries Lag

TOBERMORY, Ont., Oct— (CP) Authentic regional souvenirs are being turned out the year 'round by the 350 residents of this Georgian Bay village to cash in on the summer tourist trade.

Their handicrafts are aimed at the 50,000 persons who annually stop at this picturesque community on the tip of the Bruce Peninsula or who pass through here on their way to Manitoulin Island.

Many women are busy making Tobermory's official tartain — adotped form the MacDonald, Lord of the Isles— and men and women turn out hand-made jewelry and leather work.

The villagers have their Tobermory committee to handle the goods through a community store on the harbor. This summer, even though hampered by a late start, the store sold 394 locally-made articles.

The village turned to handicrafts when it saw its old standby industries—lumber, fishing and farming—dying out for lack of forests, fish and good land.

Last January, the Ontario Departmetn of Education sent in instructors in handicrafts, and Tobermory got busy.

After the good results of this summer's sales, the village promisese to be busier than ever this winter building up stock.

Premier Frost Describes Record In Pre-Election Manifesto, Calls For New Mandate

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Premier Frost has appealed for a new mandate from the 3,000,000 voters of Ontario on the basis of his administration's record and of plans already in effect which he says will "create a new era of progress and make for a greater Ontario."

As the opening gun of his campaign for the Nov. 22 Ontario general election he revived an old practice in the province by issuing Wednesday a 3,500-word manifesto entitled "A Report to the People." In it he said the record of the government which he has headed since May 4, 1949, has been one of translating policies into action.

He followed up the release of his 21-point review with a speech Wednesday night in Stratford in which he said he would like to get a popular, over-all majority and make the party he leads "the people's party". He told supporters:

"Let's make this a fighting election. Let us get out in the highways and byways and tell people what we believe in."

3 Main Objectives

Under his leadership, the government's program had followed three main objectives.

"It has achieved broad advances in human betterment; modernized and extended on scientific lines services for the conservation and development of agriculture, forest and mineral resources; created a healthy environment for the expansion of employment and enterprise."

Ontario was the first province to reach agreement with the federal government for construction of the trans-Canada highway, now being built. It made agreements with the Canadian and United States government for further hydro-electric power development at Niagara. It prohibited discrimination in employment on grounds of race, color or creed.

It led in the war against cancer and was starting fine cancer research and treatment centres and clinics.

Mr. Frost also said the government had almost completed electrification of rural Ontario, increased grants to municipalities for education and other purposes, encouraged house building, revised its labor code and strengthened provincial finances.

Expanding Province

In his summary of an expanding Ontario, he said that 40 per cent of the total Canadian investment is being made in the province; the population is increasing by between 12,000 and 15,000 persons a month; that between 50 and 60 per cent of immigrants to Canada settle in Ontario.

He said Ontario was the first province to implement the new old age assistance plan of pensions for all persons 70 and over and means-test pensions for those 65 to 69.

The Premier gave this detailed picture of his government's achievements:

Agriculture: Farm income this year reached a record total of more than $1,250,000,000. Legislation to assist farm marketing and farm independence was strengthened. County and township roads were improved. Electrification of rural Ontario was almost completed. Farm children were given equality in educational opportunity. The government had plans for improving rural telephone communications.

Health: Ontario's health bill now was $40,000,000 a year. Health services had been extended. Grants to public general hospitals were increased 10 times. Capital grants were made to hospitals for the first time in any Canadian province. In the last 3½ years hospital bed capacity increased 27 per cent and 5,600 additional beds were under construction or projected. Studies by the Department of Health showed that more hospital accommodation was fundamental to any health or hospitalization plan. Advances were made in the war on cancer.

Research Work

The government encouraged the work of the Ontario Research Foundation, the Ontario Research Council and universities. For agriculture, they studied soil conditions, production improvement, elimination of plant and animal diseases, preserving, storing and marketing of farm products. Research extended to every phase of industry—iron, copper, nickel, pulp and paper, plastics, air and water pollution.

Housing: More houses were being built in Ontario than ever before. To July 31, housing starts were up 14.8 per cent and completions up 24.4 per cent from the record levels of 1950. In the last 5½ years, 157,400 housing units

Urges Combines Act Used To Prevent Profiteering

OTTAWA, Oct. 18 (CP).—Use of the Combines Act to prevent profiteering and exploiting of the people by individuals and corporations was urged Wednesday in the Commons by John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Lake Centre.

The 56-year-old lawyer from Saskatoon, Sask., said the government has not been using the legislation to fight inflation and high prices. The Act should be used "not as a feather duster, but as an instrument to strike fear into the hearts of those who unjustly take advantage" of the current inflation.

Parliament should be asked to amend the Combines Act to make the penalties commensurate with the crimes committed under it. The present maximum penalty is a $10,000 fine.

The sum, he said, represented a "fraction of what the illicit gains may be by a person designing and endeavoring to evade the law and exploit the public."

"If we were to say to those engaged in robbery, we shall take three or four per cent of what you make, we would not be discouraging robbery."

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke as the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne moved through its third day.

Waiting Policy

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government has adopted a "wait-and-see policy" with respect to inflation. The government had announced that it was going to prohibit producers from fixing the retail prices for their goods.

"I suggest that all that, in effect, is simply a smoke screen to conceal the continuation of a policy that has existed since 1946; a hope that things are going to turn out all right; a procrastination; a promise of future action; and finally throughout the period of time a failure to act."

Changing the law with respect to price-fixing by producers may have an effect "exceedingly detrimental to the independent, small business man in this country," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

"The larger outlets, with lower unit overhead costs may conceivably, under this legislation, secure a monopoly that will put out of business the small man dealing with nationally advertised goods."

Mr. St. Laurent's announcement of the new anti-price fixing legislation and the request of Justice Minister Garson in radio broadcast for letters from people saying what they wanted done were hardly enough "in these serious times."

The Prime Minister's speech in the debate Monday was a milestone of defeatism in meeting the problem of inflation." The government was not acting while the value of the dollar continued to drop.

Atomic Expansion

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—(AP)—The United States Senate-House Atomic Energy committee voted Wednesday for maximum expansion of the country's atomic weapons program. It directed the Atomic Energy Commission and the Defence Department to submit by Jan 3 "a definite and concrete report of maximizing the role which atomic energy can and should play in the defence of the United States."

Dies From Exposure

NORWALK, Conn., Oct. 18 — (AP)— Frederick P. Bezner, 73, who made a fortune in the automobile and aircraft industries, died of the effects of exposure in Norwalk hospital Wednesday. He was found last night lying on a beach in nearby Darien. Bezner was one of the four founders of the Hudson Automobile Company.

Professional Play Performed In US Church

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP)—For perhaps the first time in the history of the Broadway Theatre, a professional drama played by professional actors was performed Tuesday night within an American church. The occasion was the premiere on these shores of Christopher Fry's poetic drama, "A Sleep of Prisoners."

It was performed in St. James' Episcopal Church, and very little physical change of the church was necessary to make the play appear as if it were being performed in a Broadway theatre in which a church setting had been installed. The stage was on a raised platform in the chancel between the two choir stalls, and in addition the two permanent pulpits on each side of the chancel were utilized at times for the playing of several dramatic scenes.

The church is presumed to be in some foreign country and is being used, during war, as a temporary camp. The audience sees only four prisoners, the total cast, but each prisoner alternates in the many scenes, playing a half dozen different characters.

In this work Fry dramatizes the despair, weakness and violences that spring up among modern world prisoners.

The drama is written in continuous action, so that it appears to be a long, one-act play which runs about two hours. The cast of the four soldier-prisoners is an excellent one. Three of them, Leonard White, Stanley Baker and Hugh Pryse, played their roles in the original production at St. Thomas' Church in London. The fourth soldier, Donald Harron, of Toronto, is a replacement for the US tour.

Reviews in morning and afternoon papers warmly praised the performance of the cast although none was singled out.

Kinmount House Destroyed By Fire

Despite the efforts of a bucket brigade, the house and possessions of Mrs. Tom Bacon and her son were destroyed by fire at Kinmount Monday night. Defective wiring is blamed for the outbreak.

Mrs. Bacon was getting supper when she smelled smoke. She investigated and found the whole upstairs of her home in flames. After sounding the alarm she started to salvage her possessions.

Neighbors assisted and a few chairs and a chesterfield were saved. The total loss is not yet known.

Drama Added By Kiwanis To Festival

Shakespearian, Modern Drama To Broaden Contest

Two new sections have been added to the 1952 Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival syllabus: Modern Drama and Shakespearian Drama.

This announcement was made today by Festival Committee Chairman Wilson Gemmell.

"This addition to our syllabus has been motivated by two purposes," Mr. Gemmell explained. "The Kiwanis Club want to make the Peterborough festival educational in the broadest sense possible. We believe that these two sections will make the festival much more comprehensive in a cultural sense.

"In addition, we feel that there is an above-average interest in drama in Peterborough and we feel that the festival should cater to this interest."

Adjudicators

Mr. Gemmell also announced that Alex Redshaw and Ronald Biggs will be the two English adjudicators coming to Peterborough for the 1952 festival. This information has received confirmation from the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals.

Miss Irene Fairclough of the Hamilton Conservatory will again be the adjudicator for the choral public and verse speaking and drama classes.

"Mr. Redshaw was one of the adjudicators of the Peterborough festival five years ago," the chairman said.

"This was the first year we had English adjudicators for our festival. Mr. Redshaw proved extremely popular at that time, and we feel fortunate in being able to have him as an adjudicator again."

Peterborough choirs will again be eligible for the Lincoln Trophy—an award given to the most outstanding choir heard in the Canadian chain of music festivals. The adjudicator for the trophy in 1952 will be Mr. Redshaw.

Mr. Gemmell has also received word that Peterborough will be eligible for a nation-wide trophy to be awarded for the first time in 1952. This award is the George Simpson Mathieson Trophy.

The trophy will be awarded by the entire four or more adjudicators officiating at the main chain of Canadian festivals for the best performance by a children's or junior choir. The age limit of the competitors is 19 years and under.

Harry Burnley Elected President Of Office Workers IUE Union Local At CGE

Harry Burnley, who works in the wire production office at CGE, on Wednesday was elected president of Local 599, International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO-CCL). The union is the bargaining agent for about 300 CGE salaried workers.

Burnley defeated Orville Martin, the incumbent, 116 votes to 89. He formerly held the office of steward.

Two other offices were also contested. Len Slaughter defeated Al Raymond 174 to 29 to become financial secretary; and Ken Soutter, Hazel Dalton, and Len Wahl edged out John Willock in the contest for the three trustee posts.

Following is the new slate of officers, Harry Burnley, president; Eric May, vice-president; Gloria Lang, recording secretary; Len Slaughter, financial secretary; A. Feeley, treasurer; Harry Helson, floor guard; and trustees Ken Soutter, Hazel Dalton and Len Wahl.

The salaried workers cast their ballots at the five plant gates. Two hundred and five votes were cast.

Court Held In Hospital To Hear Doctor's Evidence

Court was held in the doctors' room of St. Joseph's hospital Wednesday afternoon so Dr. J. M. O'Brien, an expert witness, could give evidence. Judge S. L. Smoke said it was the first time court has been held in hospital during the more than 17 years that he has been on the bench in Peterborough county. Several times the court has been adjourned to a private home.

This unusual procedure was followed Wednesday so Dr. O'Brien, now a patient in the hospital, could give medical evidence on the injuries to William G. O'Neil, 38, Armour Rd. O'Neil is the plaintiff in a damage action against Donald Jamieson, Mark St.

O'Neil had a 1928 model truck wrecked and he received serious injuries when he was in an accident involving three motor vehicles Dec. 13, 1950.

Felt Smash

The accident occurred about 5 p.m. at Hunter and Rogers Sts as O'Neil drove his half-ton pickup truck south on Rogers into the intersection. He told the court his front wheels were just about in line with the south edge of Hunter when he felt a "smash."

"That's the last thing I knew," said O'Neil.

He had collided with the eastbound car of Jamieson. The O'Neil vehicle was knocked forward into the car of Graydon Hadwin, Hilliard St. and then plunged out of control over the southwest curb.

Jamieson said he applied his brakes but slid into the southbound truck.

Through Windshield

O'Neil's head went through the windshield. He spent five days in hospital with concussion, and a fractured cheek bone, as well as injuries to his chest and knee. He did not regain consciousness until the day after the accident.

Dr. O'Brien was brought into the room in a wheel chair and gave evidence as to O'Neil's injuries. The examination and cross examination lasted about 20 minutes and court then adjourned to resume again in the county courthouse.

Evidence was concluded but the final arguments of counsel will be heard Friday.

T. J. Carley, KC, represented O'Neil and Gordon H. T. Farquharson was counsel for Jamieson.

Police Happy In New Quarters

Transfer of the police department to the new city hall was virtually completed today, when the radio went into operation this afternoon.

Since the department started operating from its new station Monday morning, a cruiser parked in the yard at the rear has maintained contact with cruising cars.

Prisoners are still being housed in the county jail until the basement cells are ready for "visitors". It is expected the men's cells will be ready for the week-end. The women's cells still have to be painted.

For the information of veteran week-end inebriates, there are eight cells, equipped with running water in the new jail as compared with three in the old station.

Accommodation for lady jailbirds has also been increased. There are six cells for women. There was only one in the old jail.

Transients who take advantage of the city's hospitality and spend the night in the clink will be locked in the cells. In the old jail, the "bull pen", (a large room) was used for overnight lodgers.

It usually takes a while to get accustomed to new surroundings after moving to a new location but the officers are quite happy with their new roomy station.

Occupying three floors in the new city hall, the department finds itself in much the same position as a large family which has just moved from a small apartment to a large mansion—they're enjoying all the space.

"There just isn't any comparison between this building and the old one, Court Clerk Jim Fleming told the Examiner this morning in his office as sunlight streamed through his office on the second floor. The offices here are much brighter and better ventilated said Mr. Fleming and for myself I find it a welcome change from the noise and clatter of the Market Square.

Brakes Fail, Car Hurtles Through Fence

Slight damage to a car driven by Mrs. Cecile Fowler, 691 Walkerfield Ave., and a smashed lattice fence on the lawn of Miss Mabel Brown, 319 Park St., resulted when the brakes on Mrs Fowler's car failed this morning.

Approaching the intersection of Charlotte and Park Streets from the north about nine o'clock, Mrs. Fowler applied her brakes to stop for the red light at Charlotte St.

The brakes failed to take effect, and the car went across the intersection, jumped the curb on the southwest corner and came to rest against the lattice fence after crossing Miss Brown's lawn.

Acting Sergeant Gordon Trennum investigated.

20,000 Apples To Be Sold By Boy Scouts

More than 20,000 McIntosh Red apples will go on sale Friday night and Saturday to Peterborough citizens when the Boy Scouts will hold their annual Apple Day.

The Peterborough Boy Scout Association this year anticipates a greater response to its annual appeal for funds, the only direct source of money from the public.

To meet the expected demand the Scouts will have 150 bushels of rosy red apples, 25 more bushels than last year. There is approximately 135 apples in a bushel.

Tonight after the apples have been delivered to the various Cub and Scout groups throughout the city from the wholesalers, the boys will begin the job of polishing each apple to a high shine. They also will decorate the baskets.

House Canvass

Then on Friday night the Cub packs and Scout troops will begin to canvass the city homes. About 400 boys are expected to take part as each group has a definite district to cover.

Beginning at 6 pm, the boys hope to have reached as many homes as possible by 9 pm, and be able to report "sold out" to the headquarters.

The majority of the apples are expected to be sold in the homes Friday night, the association setting aside 110 bushels of the 150 for those sales.

Saturday morning the Scouts will greet the people along the downtown streets to sell the remaining 40 bushels of apples. They will be working in three shifts from 7:30 am until 1 pm.

The hub of the Saturday activities will be the Agriculture buildings on Hunter Street.

Only Direct Appeal

Apple Day is the only time during the year that the Boy Scouts make a direct appeal to the public for funds. This money is used for the functions of the Peterborough Boy Scout Association, which includes an annual payment to Canadian headquarters to assist scouting across Canada.

Not satisfied with working three days in a row, the Scouts on Tuesday night will hold their annual fall paper drive. The money received from the paper drive will go directly to the packs and troops to help with the various phases of scouting, such as summer camps.

Leaders Of Peterborough Honor Ian F. McRae At Men's Citizens Dinner

Leaders in Peterborough's industrial, professional, business, religious, educational and recreational life met together Wednesday evening in the Empress hotel to say farewell to Ian McRae, former works manager of the Peterborough Canadian General Electric plant, to do him honor and wish him success in the future. Mr. McRae is going to Toronto as assistant to the vice-president, K. J. Corkery.

Mayor Max J. Swanston, who presented to Mr. McRae an inscribed scroll from the citizens of Peterborough, said he had made "a remarkable contribution to the growth and welfare of our city."

"From our hearts we wish Ian McRae every success in his new position but we regret it will take him from Peterborough," said the mayor.

As well as the scroll, Mr. McRae was presented with a pen desk set bearing a plaque on which was engraved Peterborough's new coat of arms. It was the first gift given to anyone which bore the new coat of arms.

H. M. Turner, president of Canadian General Electric for Canada, said "We've got work for Ian to do and we're awfully proud to have him come to Toronto to work with us."

"We would have some qualms," he said, "if we had no one to fill his shoes here in Peterborough, but we have no such qualms when the position is being filled by Jim Girven."

His Excellency, Bishop Gerald Berry told the more than 300 assembled in the dining room, "His example is going to serve for a long time yet (as a man who had performed much) good for the common weal."

"He possesses a genius for human relationships," said his Excellency. His career and success said the bishop was a "flowering of talents received from above."

Mr. McRae's ability to deal successfully with his fellow humans "is an endowment of God" and a tribute to his fine home life.

"Wherever you go," said the bishop, "you're still going to carry part of Peterborough with you."

Reg. Faryon, president of the Quaker Oats Co. in Canada, representing industrial managers of the city, said "There is nothing I can add to tell him how Peterborough is going to miss him."

"Not many have the ability to do so many things—not only to take them on and do them, but to do them well. We're going to miss him as an industrial leader and an ordinary good friend."

With Good Causes

The Rev. H. G. Douglas, minister of Knox United Church, where Mr. McRae has been a member, said Mr. McRae "always identified himself with every good cause in the city."

"His contribution to church life was no insignificant one. We have been very happy that he has been an ambassador of good will to every church in Peterborough. The prayers of all of us and the goodwill of everyone in Peterborough go with you."

Alex L. Elliott, KC, president of the Peterborough YMCA of which Mr. McRae served as a member of the board of directors, said "all the fine things said are warranted and justified." Mr. Elliott added that Mr. McRae, "a man of great stature," would be greatly missed at the YMCA.

James E. Girven

James E. Girven who took over Monday as successor to Mr. McRae as works manager, said he had long enjoyed working with Mr. McRae.

"Anything that he has done for this city and community, has been

CGE Club Presents Gifts To Ian McRae

Parting gift of CGE Social and Athletic Club to Mr. Ian F. McRae was a gold pocket watch, and to Mrs. McRae an oil painting. Presentations were made by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Bennett. Gifts of CGE Veterans' Association at their recent social evening were a brief case and desk set to Mr. McRae and bouquet of roses to Mrs. McRae.

There is a rumor going around that CGE Pipe Band is planning a parade to the McRae residence as a farewell tribute in music. That is not an official report from the men that wear the McRae tartan. CGE Band has received the hearty support of the former works manager, who probably conceived it in the first place. There may be a short concert on the home lawn.

Mayor Refuses Nomination By Liberal Party

Mayor Swanston said today he could not consider nomination at the Liberal convention tonight.

"I have had many personal and telephone calls about it, but I could not accept it even if it was offered to me. Many others have been telling me that I should have stayed in the running for mayor, now that the city hall is just about completed and is in daily use."

"I think I have done the right thing. Frankly, in one sense I'll be leaving the new building with regret. The old one was a dingy place. The new offices have been equipped mainly for business, but they are also comfortably and pleasantly furnished.

"Next week we have the official opening, and some other reception days later. I have not been thinking of the Liberal nomination, partly because we have had a lot to do in arranging for the change-over in the city hall. In the pressure of these last few days I had to decide that I could not let my name go before the convention. There is a limit to what anyone can take on."

H. Waddell To Run For Mayor

Councillor 6 Years Seeks Position To Succeed Swanston

Ald. Hugh F. Waddell told the Examiner today that he would be a candidate for mayor at the municipal nominations.

"I have been a member of the council for six years, and as a result of Mayor Swanston's announcement after the council meeting Monday night I have decided to accept a nomination," Ald. Waddell said.

Mayor Swanston informed his associates that if any of them were thinking of entering the field for Mayor he could be counted out and would retire.

"I think Mayor Swanston will be hard to replace," said Ald. Waddell. "He has been one of the best Peterborough ever had. He is energetic and conscientious and has given a lot of time and study to the city's problems.

"At present I just wish to say that I have decided to offer myself to the citizens as a mayoralty candidate with the intention, if I am elected, of doing my very best to maintain Peterborough's sound and progressive position. I offer them my training and experience and also my record in council since the people put me there six years ago. I hope that it has merited their confidence in me for the office and responsibility of mayor."

Life In Japan Described By Missionary

MARMORA, Oct. 18 (ENS)—Born in Japan, the daughter of a United Church missionary, and having lived for 25 years in that land, Mrs. (Rev.) A. J. Newman of Havelock, dressed in Japanese costume, gave a thought provoking address to the WMS of St. Andrew's United church at their annual Thank-Offering held Tuesday.

Guests, members of the W.M.S. of Madoc and Havelock swelled the attendance of the local auxiliary.

Mrs. Newman, described the costume she was wearing, some Japanese dolls and some slippers she had brought as exhibits. Then she read from the Acts of the Apostles, the incident of St. Peter being sent to Cornelius the Roman centurion to teach him the Christian way of life.

All through the Bible, declared Mrs. Newman is "a message against race prejudice and I feel that God wants me to speak on this, this afternoon. If we as a race have a besetting sin, it is our race prejudice. We should watch ourselves and examine ourselves that we do not possess it.

"Little children have not race prejudice and it should not be taught them by their parents."

All Brothers

She said that for some time she had endeavoured to find out the difference between us and the Japanese. She had discovered that both were capable of sin and also rising to high spiritual experiences. The only difference she could see lay in the color of skin and the customs of the land lived in. Thus we were all brothers and sisters with one love for God and a passion for something better.

"The foreign field is in great need of more missionaries. God has given us a second chance in Japan. It is wide open for Christian teaching and practice. Most of the work undertaken by the United Church there is educational or evangelistic.

"Two different councils, the W.M.S. and the Overseas Mission work separately in Japan, yet collaborate. The church in Japan has undergone a change in recent years.

"All Communions save one, have united in the war years to form the United Church of Christ—this as a united front against Communism. A new trend in their application of the Christian religion is seen too in revival evangelism, whereby peasant Gospel schools have been inaugurated. Such was done for a study in better methods of farming and sale of products for most farmers in that land are tenant farmers."

There is a special school, said Mrs. Newman, in Tokyo where ministers are taught agriculture. The W.M.S. has three schools for girls in Japan, one of which is in Tokyo. The education of Japanese women has come through Christianity. It has greatly raised their status. Their children are being reached today through kindergarten work while they have mothers' meetings, quilting classes and Bible classes, all of which are means towards their being brought into the true knowledge of God. At the conclusion of her address Mrs. Newman sang two verses of What a Friend We Have in Jesus, in Japanese.

She was introduced by Mrs. G. D. Young and thanked by Mrs. T. J. Bateman. Presiding at the meeting was Mrs. E. C. Prentice, president, who took the opening prayer. Mrs. G. D. Young conducted the devotional period assisted by Mrs. W. Tupper. Guests were then welcomed by the president.

The president announced that the packing of a bale would be carried out at the end of the month and that the November meeting would be held in her home. Mrs. J. D. Young reported receipt of the 1952 calendars.

As an organ solo, Mrs. A. F. Fraser played Schubert's Ave Maria and Mrs. R. Long sang Bless This House.

Many Attend Sacred Heart Bazaar

MARNORA, Oct. 18 (ENS)—The chicken supper marking the opening day of the 31st annual bazaar of the Sacred Heart Church drew a large attendance at the Sacred Heart hall Tuesday evening.

The country store stall and that displaying fancy work received good patronage as did the candy booth operated by the Sodality Girls and the games under supervision of men of the congregation.

UK Candidates Strong For Similes

LONDON, Oct. 18—(CP)—Similes are strewn all over the place in the British general election campaign. The politicians, you might say, are cutting a fine figure of speech.

Consider the case of the ladder and the queue. Winston Churchill started it.

In a broadcast from the study of his country home, the Conservative leader said confidently:

"I've just thought of it myself. The difference between our outlook and the Socialist outlook on life is the difference between the ladder and the queue.

"We are for the ladder. Let all try their best to climb.

"They are for the queue. Let each wait in his place till his turn comes."

Net Asset

What happens if you fall off the ladder? That's easy, Churchill said—"we shall have a good net and the finest social ambulance service in the world."

We don't want ladders or queues, Prime Minister Attlee replied, because there isn't much room on a ladder, and everybody can't get to the top. What he wanted was to see everybody marching forward, abreast, together.

Attlee also had a metaphor on controls:

"The tiger doesn't like his bars, but visitors to the zoo are glad he has them. People who want to keep controls are afraid of being eaten by the tiger."

The queues-and-ladders refrain also intrigued Dingie Foot, vice-president of the Liberal party. He didn't like the ladder idea either. There was only one man on a rung at a time and those below were in danger of having their fingers crushed.

The Liberal symbol was the open road. Strong or weak, rich or poor, all had "equal rights on the King's highway."

Porter Invites Court Clarify Labor Bd. Law

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Attorney-General Porter Wednesday invited the Ontario Court of Appeal to clarify for the Ontario Legislature the law governing operation of the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

He appeared before the five-judge panel hearing an appeal by the Toronto Newspaper Guild against a decision by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale who last June quashed the guild's certification as bargaining agent for circulation department employees of the Globe and Mail

Mr. Justice Gale found that the Labor Board had denied the company "essential justice" by refusing to permit the Globe's lawyer to cross-examine a union witness on the question of resignations.

Mr. Porter told the Appeal Court that when the Labor Relations Act went into force in 1943, it was found that if names of union members were open to examination by employers, "unfortunate consequences" might follow.

"That court (the Labor Court) decided that the names of union members should be kept secret from the respondent (employer) but the practice should be followed that the names should be open to counsel for the respondent."

He said labor boards have wide powers and are masters of their own procedure.

The hearing is continuing.

Dies From Beating

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 18 — (AP)—A 64-year-old woman died in a pool of blood at her home Wednesday after being brutally beaten at a religious cult meeting, Sheriff Thomas Gibbons said. He said Mrs. Anna Halvorson was beaten with a riding whip by a cult member who claimed he was trying to "drive out the devil." The sheriff said he was holding Curtis Lennander, 33, and that he had signed a statement admitting the fatal beating. Lennander's wife, Ardith, 35, who was beaten with the whip too, was reported in critical condition.

Given Sulphur Supply

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—(AP)—Nearly 75 per cent of available world sulphur supply was allocated Wednesday to the United States by the 28-country international raw materials conference. The U.S., the world's main sulphur producer and consumer, was awarded 1,098,500 tons of the critically-scarce sulphur for the three-month period starting Oct. 1. Britain was assigned the second biggest amount—102,300 tons.

In Service For Men Women Who Served

COMRADES:

Remembrance Day this year will be held on Sunday Nov. 11. This may seem a strange statement but a great many people have enquired as to whether we were holding the ceremonies on Saturday or Monday as some other centres are doing. Plans for this day are now almost complete and in the very near future this column will carry full details of day's activities. One of the most happy duties of the day for the Canadian Legion will be the presenting of the Provincial Command Legion University Scholarship to Miss Helen Patricia Johnston. This award is given each year to a child or a widow of a veteran and this Branch feels honored that it will go to Peterborough.

November 11 once again brings to our mind the duty that we have as Veterans and the obligations that we have to those who failed to return. Out of all this we also must think of the dependents of the many that now lie in the many Flanders Fields. Poppy Day is the chance given to you to buy a Poppy and help the Legion help fulfill this duty. The poppies will be on sale to the generous citizens and veterans of Peterborough on November 10 and we know that they will once again help us help a veteran.

Recreation activities are now in full swing at the Legion and any night of the week you can find the members enjoying themselves in some sport. Monday and Wednesday is the carpet-ball league; Tuesday is shuffle-board; Cribbage, Thursday and Friday finds us entertaining the billiard tournament. If you are interested in any of these activities come on up and see us and we assure you that you will be in a game very shortly and that you will be coming back up time and time again to participate in these games.

Shuffle-board got under way last week and after the smoke had cleared the following teams came out with a win: T. Pritchard, D. Sheehy, P. Burke, W. Morgan, Moore, Druce, K. Crough, A. Mason. This is a real nights entertainment, both to those that play and to the many that sit on the sidelines and cheer or heckle the players.

The Red Patch club reminds all their members at this time of the general meeting to be held on Monday October 22. All members are requested to attend. The Red Patch club is advancing rapidly on their convalescent home and they wish to thank at this time many people who have assisted them is making this fine effort a reality.

The Duffy club (H.P.E.R.) also wishes to thank the C.G.E. Pipe band for their outstanding performance and attendance at the recent reunion in Belleville.

President Burke wishes it known that more than 30 members of the Originals Club of Toronto will pay a visit to this Branch on Saturday 20 this month.

Once again it is time to bring this column to a close but please remember Veterans come on up and see us and become a member of the finest Service Club organization in the country. Just a reminder to any organization that may possibly have anything of interest for this column. Please have your article in on Saturday for publication the following Thursday.

Herd Of Elk Sent North To Yukon

CALGARY. — (CP) — A former Calgarian is attempting to introduce a herd of elk into the Yukon—hundreds of miles further north than they have ever been known to exist.

He is Them Kjar, game commissioner of the Yukon at Whitehorse.

The 20 elk were loaded on trucks at Elk Island sanctuary near Edmonton for the 1,700-mile trip. Mr. Kjar believes the trip will be the longest distance game animals have ever been transported by truck.

Two drivers in each of two trucks are driving continuously to cut down travelling time so that the animals will be in good condition when they reach their new range.

They will be released in Hutchi Valley, a wide valley near Braeburn Lake—90 miles northwest of Whitehorse, YT.

"We are convinced that elk can survive in the Yukon," Mr. Kjar said.

A big education job lies ahead for game men in the Whitehorse areas. Mr. Kjar said they must convince the Indians that if elk are left left alone for a time, the herd would increase in number—and provide adequate hunting to replace decreased moose herds.

The herd includes 15 cows and five bulls, all fully mature but young animals.

Need Marketing Plan

THREE RIVERS, Que., Oct. 18 (CP).—Abel Marion, president of the Catholic Farmers' Union, said Wednesday that Ontario farmers have better marketing facilities than their Quebec counterparts. Speaking at the opening session of the union's 27th annual convention, Mr. Marion said his organization was trying to set up a marketing scheme in this province similar to Ontario's.

were built. A rental housing plan which would be extended to 25,000 or more houses had been put into operation.

Education: Provincial education expenditures amounted to nearly $64,000,000 a year, an increase of nearly $50,000,000 since 1943. One thousand, one hundred and fifty new schools provided additional accommodation for 150,000 students. Free books were given children in primary schools.

Forestry and conservation: New policies were adopted for forest fire protection, forest management and sustained timber yield. The task of co-ordinating a conservation program was given to Fletcher D. Thomas, member for Elgin, recently named Minister of Public Works. He headed a legislature committee which reported on conservation in 1950.

Municipal: Grants to municipalities now amounted to more than $100,000,000 a year for education and other purposes compared to about $19,000,000 in 1943 when the Progressive Conservatives displaced the Liberals from power.

Power: The government had spent $750,000,000 to expand electrical power resources. Seven new plants were brought into production and work was started on a $200,000,000 development at Niagara Falls. Power resources had doubled in the last five years and now amounted to about 5,000,000 horsepower. Development of the St. Lawrence was in sight.

Change In Mining

A fundamental change was taking place in Ontario mining, which started with the emphasis on silver, then gold. Copper and nickel production developed during the First World War. In the last 10 years iron mines were opened at Steep Rock and Michipicoten. This development was spreading to eastern Ontario where millions were to be spent on developing iron deposits near Marmora.

Social Services: Government policy was to relieve the pressure of rising prices on aged, handicapped and needy persons as far as posible. It raised old-age pensions three times since 1943. It doubled mothers' allowances and increased children's aid assistance. It implemented the new Federal-Provincial plan of pensions for all persons 70 and over and pensions for needy aged 65 to 70.

Highways: Highway improvement was carried out despite the shortages of materials. Cost amounted to nearly $100,000,000 a year.

Labor: Collective bargaining was recognized by statute. The Provincial Labor Board had been able to settle most industrial disputes. There had been few strikes despite great industrial expansion.

Human Relationships: Ontario enacted a law to ban discrimination in employment on grounds of race, color or creed. It had set out the principle of equal pay for equal work for women. It banned discriminatory advertising.

Set Record

Finance: The government's eight consecutive budget surpluses was a record never achieved by any other administration since Confederation, said Mr. Frost, Provincial Treasurer during that period. Capital assets had increased more than $215,000,000. The net debt increased by $26,000,000 although the net debt per capita declined from $127.56 to $115.59. Coupon interest rate was reduced from 4.13 to 3.27 per cent. The government had aimed at maintenance of a high credit standing and this was reflected in its ability to borrow large sums at low interest rates. "That is why we are able to go ahead with hydro projects, development of the St. Lawrence and capital projects which spell higher standards of living." Ontario's taxation was the lowest of any Canadian province; it imposed no sales tax nor personal income tax; its gasoline tax was 2 cents a gallon less than in several provinces.

WINNIPEG'S WELCOME—The city hall in Winnipeg was decked in bunting and sported a welcoming sign when Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh arrived there recently. They left by train to continue the western half of their Canadian visit.

Pooled Strength Of Canada-US Affects World

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP).— The pooling of the industrial strength of Canada and the United States can write the ultimate destiny of the whole free world, John Jay Hopkins, president of Canadair, Ltd., Montreal, and Electric Boat Company, New York, said today in an address to the Empire Club of Toronto.

"We have cause for optimism," said Mr. Hopkins. "Relations between our two countries have never been better.

"Unquestionably our countries comprise the solid backbone of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and NATO is the western world's rejoinder to the obvious Communist program, which aims at wiping all semblance of individual freedom from the earth."

With military independence must go industrial interdependenc —"you can't talk of one without the other."

Clear Trail

In both, said Mr. Hopkins, a well-marked trail was established in the Second World War, and a Canada-US statement of principles of October 26, 1950, provides in brief:

"That the economic efforts of the two countries be co-ordinated for the common defence and that the best production and resources of both countries be used for the best combined results."

Nevertheless, Mr. Hopkins noted, the so-called "Buy American Act" had created difficulties. However, "progress has been made." A number of practical steps have been taken, he added, including a request by the US Secretary of Defence to the three Defence Departments — Army, Navy, Air — that they examine their needs with a view to purchasing up to $100,000,000 of each department's needs in Canada—a total of $300,000,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952.

The results thus far acomplished, Mr. Hopkins said, would not have been achieved without the staunch support from many quarters—"and not the least of these has been the Canada-United States committee of the Canadian and US Chambers of Commerce.

"Members of the Canadian section, under Gordon Cockshutt of Brantford, and now of Bruce Hill, of St. Catharines, have been indefatigable in presenting the Canadian viewpoint." And:

"The United States Chamber has with full vigor advocated the implementation of joint resolutions in all appropriate quarters."

Toronto Woman Killed

TORONTO, Oct. 18 (CP)—Mrs. Edith Howard, 41, of suburban Scarboro was killed and five other persons injured Wednesday when an automobile police said was driven by her husband, Howard, 41, collided with a truck and ran onto the sidewalk. Most severely injured was Lynn Howard, five, who suffered a fractured collarbone, cuts and bruises.

French Efforts To Rebuild Navy Hampered By Very High Costs

By ROGER BARJERON

PARIS—(Reuters)—France is trying to build up her navy from a second-rate force to a fleet capable of protecting the 40,000-mile coastline of France and the French union.

The French navy was smashed by the Second World War—more than one-third of the fleet was scuttled at Toulon in 1942. Following the liberation, shortage of money and lack of a consistent policy hampered reconstruction of the fleet.

The French navy, still only one half of its pre-war strength, reached the highest strength in its history shortly before the Second World War. It then had seven battleships, two aircraft carriers, 19 heavy and light cruisers, 70 torpedo boats, 77 submarines and dozens of smaller vessels — a toal of 296 ships representing 661,085 gross tons.

Battleships like the Dunkerque, submarines like the Surcouf—the biggest in the world—and the 31 submarines of the redoubtable class made up the hard-hitting core of a fast navy which had ample means to patrol and keep open the empire's lines of communications.

"It might take only a few hours to build a tank, but it takes months to build a fighting ship," said an official of the French Navy Ministry, explaining the slow rebirth of the navy. "A ship represents years of work with changing methods which must be kept up to date. Improvision can yield no worthwhile results."

With an amphibious war in Indo-China, France, to maintain 12,000 officers and sailors in the Far East, had to turn to her allies and to reparations to find ships.

Many Old Ships

Today, the French navy totals 348,090 tons, but many of the 272 ships are old, often in need of repair.

Their varied gun calibres raise difficult ammunition problems, with stocks of different size and type. Every foreign vessel needs a specially trained crew with little scope for interchangeability.

The cruiser Duguay Trouin, regarded in its younger days as one of the best craft of its type, is now 25 years old. The navy's best cruisers, the Montcalm class, are 15 years old.

Shipbuilding blueprint programs for 1949 and 1950 were merged with the 1951 program, making an aggregate of 32,800 tons and priority was given to small and speedy craft. (Escort vessels.)

"A cruiser is still good after 15 years if it is properly maintained, whereas a submarine is only scrap iron," the official said. "Furthermore financial reasons for the time being force us to build smaller-type ships which cost less."

Remodel Ships

Outside the current program is the remodelling of two former Italian ships of the Cuichan class and the completion of a pre-war light cruiser, the Chateaurenault, transformed into an anti-aircraft ship.

The French fleet air arm is in a similar position, with American Hellcat and British Lancaster aircraft filling the gap. Plans for expanding the air arm envisage 400 naval support planes, plus helicopters, on active service by 1954.

Stressing that rising costs, particularly for steel, are hampering efforts to restore the French fleet, the navy ministry official added: "what is now being done is only a fraction of what should be done, but it is a beginning. It will still be years before we get back to our pre-war strength."

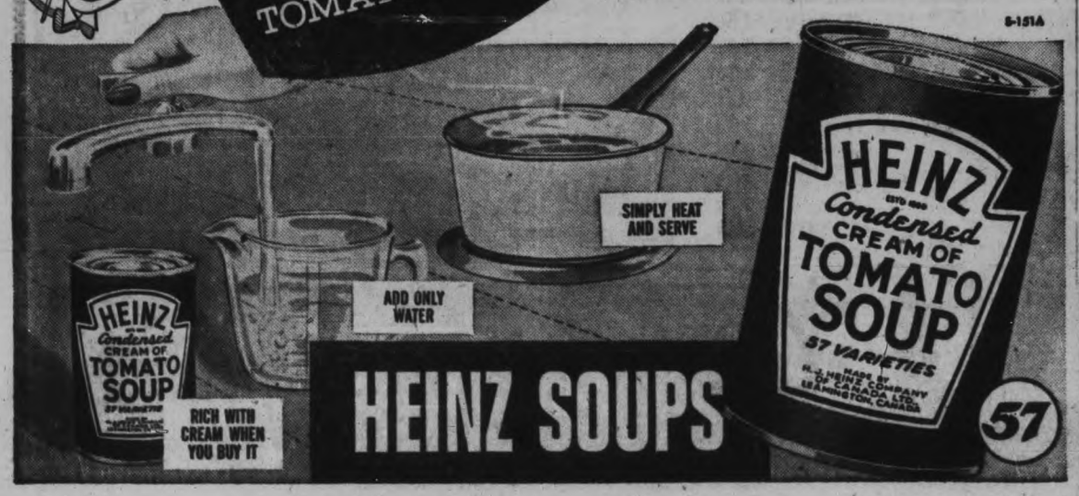
HEINZ puts in the CREAM

You add ONLY water

RESULT: real Cream of Tomato Soup

SAVE 1/2 PINT OF MILK with every tin of HEINZ CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP

When you buy straight Tomato Soup and add an equal amount of milk to produce a soup that tastes something like Cream of Tomato Soup, you lose out on getting a rich creamy flavour and you also lose out on the cost—especially the way prices are today.



Why not buy Cream of Tomato Soup to start with, as made by Heinz. Then you can save on milk and get a better result by simply adding water. Instead of a milky tomato soup you will get the true creamy taste most people enjoy—for Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup is made with thick country cream.

Remember, too, that this soup is much more flavourful because only pedigreed tomatoes are good enough for Heinz.

Try a comparison between ordinary tomato soup diluted with milk and Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup with only water added. When you have tasted the wonderful difference you will want to stock up with Heinz and eat happily ever after.

YOU KNOW IT'S GOOD BECAUSE IT'S HEINZ

Just How does Dentocillin, the new penicillin tooth powder, reduce tooth decay so effectively? That's a question you've probably wanted to ask, ever since you read that DENTOCILLIN reduced decay 55% in a 2-year test among school children (which, incidentally, was 5 times the reduction reported for a leading university's ammoniated formula). Here's the answer: Penicillin stops the formation of enamel-eating acids more effectively than any other substance known. It is the only anti-decay ingredient that provides continued anti-decay action — up to 24 hours. That's why Dentocillin gives such remarkable results with just morning and evening brushing. Tastes wonderful, too. Really cleans teeth. 75c for 3 months' supply. I suggest you try Dentocillin, right away.

Men Get Starry-Eyed about the "true-to-life" flavour of HEINZ CONDENSED SOUPS. And your husband will be no exception. Just serve any one of the luscious, tantalizing varieties some night soon ... as a first course — or, perhaps, like this:—

MEAT PIE WITH BISCUIT TOPPING

1/2 lb. raw beef, diced, or 1 cup diced, leftover meat
2 tbsps. fat
1 10-oz. can Heinz Condensed Vegetable Soup with Beef Stock
1 c. water
1/2 tsp. salt
Dash cayenne pepper
Dough for 1/2 standard recipe for baking powder biscuits

Brown meat in fat. If raw meat is used cook thoroughly. Combine meat, soup, water and seasonings and pour into a well-greased casserole (5" x 8½" x 3"). Pat biscuit dough to ¼" thickness and cut with a 2" biscuit cutter. Arrange 6 biscuits on top of meat mixture. Bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 20 minutes or until biscuits are golden brown. Serves 2 to 3.

Ontario Wins Honors; Peterborough Places 3rd In Holstein Breeders Show

Holstein breeders of Ontario county once more paraded the best county herd in the concluding feature of the district Black and White championships exhibition at Morrow Park Wednesday.

Their entry of the required six animals, two junior and two senior females, and one senior bull and one junior bull, was selected from the herds of George R. McLaughlin, Elmcroft Farms, Oshawa; O. Chambers of Wilfrid and Roy Ormiston of Brooklin.

York placed second, Peterborough third, Durham fourth, Northumberland fifth, Hastings six and Lennox-Addington seventh.

The other counties represented in the show were: Simcoe, Prince Edward and Victoria.

Local Entries

The Peterborough herd was chosen from entries by Stanley Wood, N. W. McConkey, Fred Bolton and Elmhurst Brothers.

Strength of the Ontario county contingent was reflected in the announcement placing the top layer of premier exhibitors. That honor went to Elmcroft Farms with a total of 36 points. O. Chambers was next with 32 and Roy Ormiston was fourth with a score of 26½.

Three of that company were from the Ontario Holstein breeders whose entries yesterday had qualified at the county B. and W. Day at Port Perry Fair.

New Trophy

Their composite herd became the first winners of the new Roy Ormiston trophy which has been presented to the association for annual competition. The donor had a hand in its giving and initial taking.

District Champions

Championship ribbons were awarded as follows: male section:

Junior—Elmhurst Brothers of Birdsall, Peterborough on Linmack Supreme Sovereign.

Reserve Junior: Central Durham Bull Club, on Pabst Walker Ollie;

Senior and Grand: H. C. McCloskey, York county, on Illehee Sovereign Supreme.

Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand: Elmcroft Farms, Oshawa, on Elmcroft R.A. Champion.

Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand: N. W. McConkey, on Kenmore Mona Supreme.

Wins Silver Cup

The silver cup presented by W. J. Murphy of Lindsay for the best uddered female was awarded to N. W. McConkey on Nellie Duchess Cruiser second in the wet aged cow class to Elmcroft's winner Ajax Abbekerk Jewel which wound up with the senior and grand titles in the female section. She was bred by J. S Sargent, a daughter of Keendale Lodge Cruiser and Nellie Duchess Burke.

The judge, Professor Gordon M. Cairns of Maryland State University concluded his day's work when he dismissed the final class, the county herds at 7 o'clock.

Dr. Cairns was unsparing of his time in arriving at his decisions. His thoroughness was mentioned by several speakers who were called to the microphone during the afternoon. Incidentally, he is selective registration inspector for the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, and also for the American Guernsey Club. His previous engagement in Ontario was at the Brantford Holstein championships three years ago.

Visiting executives of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association were: Vice-president, George W. Henry of Todmorden; secretary-manager, George M. Clemons of Brantford, who arrived home from South America Tuesday, and came on from Malton Airport to Peterborough; John Powell, Brantford, director of publicity. The four directors from this district were Mr. Henry and three exhibiting breeders, J. T. Brown of Newcastle, George McLaughlin, Oshawa, and N. W. McConkey, Peterborough.

Visitors

Other visitors were: Past president J. M. Fraser of Streetsville, with his fresh laurels of premier breeder last week at the International Dairy Show in Indianapolis, and Dr. Hector I. Astengo of Rosafe Farms, Brampton, who showed the grand champion bull at the International.

Michel de Granay, breeder, of Buenos Aires, Argentina, was introduced by Mr. Clemons. Directors J. R. Henderson and B. G. Clark of Kingston were present, and Grant Smith of Brockville, Eastern Ontario fieldman.

Total number of cattle was reported at 185, evidence of its numerical success and of the sustained interest by district breeders in the Black and White series of competitive exhibitions.

Hope To Hit Jackpot With Scots Song

By MURIEL NARRWAY

LONDON—(CP)—A ballad of Aberdeen may mark the turning point in the fortunes of former Canadian newspaperman Bill Webb and his English wife, Mary.

Although they had never visited the city, Bill and Mary wrote a song called "The Northern Lights of Auld Aberdeen," now in the hands of publishers. They say it has attracted attention in Scotland and hope Scots-Canadians will get a chance to hear it, too.

The theme is the "merry dancers in the sky," Aberdeen's nickname for the northern lights, or aurora borealis. Every young Aberdonian is thrilled to bedtime stories of "merry dancers" which light the sky above the northern seaport.

Bill, former Saskatoon Star-Pheonix newspaperman got the idea from listening to a homesick Scot in London. He supplied the words and Mary the music for the song that has already been sung over the BBC by Robert Wilson, well-known Scots tenor. Now on a North American tour, Wilson has promised to repeat the song before Canadian audiences.

Commend Tune

Aberdeen's Lord Provost and Scottish newspapers have received letters commending the tune and calling it "typically Aberdeen." This has given Mary and Bill a much-needed lift. Bill has been partially paralyzed for three years following a stroke. Writing songs is one of the things that keeps him cheerfully determined to recover his health sufficiently to return to Canada.

He hopes to show Mary Canada's prairies. "It's as much from memories of the northern lights in Canada's prairies, as from folk-lore stories of Aberdeen, that I got the words for "Northern Lights'," he said in an interview.

The Webbs, who live in London's West Kensington district, have composed 22 pieces of music of many different types. two published pieces are "The Pin Song" and "Twilight Tapestries."

The latter is a composition for piano which has been praised by Queen Mother Mary and King Frederick of Denmark.

"The Pin Song" is a light two-step with wording based on the old saying about picking up a pin and being lucky all day. This was dedicated to friend of Mary's brother—Randolph Turpin, Britain's latest boxing sensation.

MRS. VICTOR NORTHCOTT who will, on Monday, October 22, under sponsorship of the YWCA, open a nursery school for the small children of the south end district of the city in the basement of Grace Church, Howden Ave. This is a new venture for the Y which has been lucky in securing the experienced help of Mrs. Northcott. After graduating from Mount Allison, University, she took a year post graduate work at Toronto Institute of Child Study. She then supervised the preschool department and the parent education work at St. Christopher's School, Toronto, for the three years prior to coming to Peterborough with her husband who is now on the staff of Queen Mary School.

Nursery School In South End To Open Monday

A new departure for the local YWCA is the sponsorship of a nursery school. The school is planned for small children of the south end of the city and will be held in a central location, at Grace Church, Howden Ave. It will open Monday, October 22nd.

In charge will be a competent and experienced teacher, Mrs. Victor Northcott, graduate of the Institute of Child Study, Toronto, who for three years supervised the pre-school department and parent education of St. Christopher's School, Toronto. She will have volunteer assistants.

The routine and play teaching in such a school gives children the opportunity to play with others of their own age and abilities. The curriculum includes indoor table play, toilet routine, a rest period, nourishment period, music circle and story circle, cloakroom training, and an outdoor play period.

There will be morning and afternoon classes, each limited to 20 pupils. The classroom in the church basement, is being fitted with rugs, and lumber has been donated for some of the equipment. The Y is seeking card tables that can be cut down to child size, and toys, especially blocks and creative materials. Also a pianist.

The Y Kappa Gamma Club is taking this school as its project and will supply toys and other materials needed during the year.

Reporter Given Bathing Suit

OTTAWA, Oct. 18—(CP)—The newspaperwoman who fell in the Ottawa River while covering the Royal tour is to get something to remember it by.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton said Ottawa is sending Lotta Dempsey of Toronto an expensive blue bathing suit complete with rows of pearly buttons.

"This," said the sympathetic Miss Whitton, "she can wear anywhere, even to her 'going-in' parties."

Miss Dempsey went in the river while stepping out of a boat from which she had covered a Royal cruise down the Ottawa River.

"I couldn't think of a more delightful city in which to go completely overboard for our distinguished Royal visitors," Miss Dempsey said when she was told in Regina of the prospective gift.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Saint John Expects Visitors Knows How To Entertain

Saint John—S-a-i-n-t John — not St. John—was the first city we visited on our return jaunt from Halifax.

We knew from experience of the all-out hospitality of Nova Scotians in general and of Haligonians in particular, but thought the presence of the press people brought it into sharp focus.

But that was not their company manners. For when we stepped off the train in Saint John wheels started to whir again—just as if we were expected, as we were in Halifax. Two invitations to lunch, one for dinner, a two and one-half hour sight-seeing drive through the city and upriver with Mr. Tom Drummie, famous and beloved publisher of the Saint John Telegraph-Journal at the wheel. We felt honoured and grateful to have such an enthusiastic authority describe the mystery of the reversing falls.

It was in Saint John that I learned a new method for making Devilled Crab The mixture is an especially good spread for canapes too. See it below.

I suppose I'll soon get all of this fish talk out of my system. However I still have to make up a package of salt cod I bought in Saint John. I know the recipe I plan to follow, so if you have been wanting the genuine stuff on codfish cakes see this column next week. (Until we recover from being broke from this trip I'll be mighty glad of every package or can I can find on our pantry shelves.)

Devilled Crab

In 3 or 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, gently saute 1-3 cup finely chopped green pepper and ½ cup finely chopped celery. Add 1 or 2 teaspoons prepared mustard(according to how much zip you like), a good shake of cayenne pepper, ¼ teaspoon paprika, then stir in 4 tablespoons flour until you have a paste. Stir in 2 cups rich milk until thick. Now add salt and pepper according to your liking. Next comes the crabmeat—about 1½ to 1¾ cups. If you are a Maritimer this is freshly cooked crab. If you are an Inlander the contents of two 7-ounce cans will have to satisfy you. Now put this into individual shells for baking. Some Maritimers use genuine shells. Others use shells manufactured to look like the genuine article, but slightly more formal. Sprinkle top of crab mixture with grated mild or old cheese and place under hot broiler until heated through and bubbling and flecked with brown. Serve on breakfast-size plate for supper or luncheon, with an accompaniment of orange and tomato salad, OR where they are available tomato and avocado would be exactly right.

Devilled Crab Canapes

Cut white bread very thick—about 1 or 1½ inches. Cut off crusts and cut each slice into 4 cubes. Toast these on one side. Spread untoasted side with devilled crab mixture (above), sprinkle with grated old cheese and place under very hot broiler until they bubble and sizzle. Fill serving plate with them and quickly pass. These are popular at "standing up parties"—my hostess warned me that the men like them so well the ladies are often left gaping at the way the little morsels disappear. So there's your tip girls. Make plenty if you are inviting husbands!

Watch for Codfish cakes—very inexpensive—next week.

Actress Tells How To Get Husband

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Oct 18 (AP)—Look out, men, leap year is coming. And here comes Jane Greer to advise girls on how to land a spouse.

Miss Greer delivered some early pointers for eager beavers who want to be ready for the trapping season, only 2½ months away.

The actress has been married twice, first to crooner Rudy Vallee and now to Edward Lasker, film executive. Here are her 10 suggestions for catching a man:

Winning Rules

1 Find out his interests. Bone up on them so you can be an interested listener.

2. Don't look too perfect. No man can feel at ease with a girl who looks like a hot-house flower he's afraid to crush.

3. Don't worry about being too fat or too thin. Somewhere there's a man who will want you either way.

4. Don't keep him guessing. A man tires of the cat-and-mouse game. If they love the guy, let him know it.

5. Don't try to make him jealous. That's kids' stuff. Like as not, he'll give you the brush if he finds out there's another man.

6. Observe what types of women he admires. Then try to emulate those types.

7. Don't go overboard on low necklines. He likes to see you as attractive as possible, but he doesn't like to be embarrassed by other peoples' stares.

8. Don't underestimate his intelligence. He doesn't like to be talked to as though he's a little boy.

9. Speak softly. A man doesn't like to listen all evening to a harsh voice.

10. Don't be too anxious about marriage. If you start pushing him, the man is going to get gunshy.

Miss Greer's advice left one issue unanswered. Supposing the girl's best beau parks the car and starts advancing?

1st Hobby Classes Taken At YW Favor Decorating

A variety of new hobbies are being taken up by local women and girls this fall, encouraged by the eight-week hobby course at the YWCA. Greatest interest seems to be in interior decorating, evidenced by the attendance at the first lessons of the course Wednesday evening.

Mrs. B. Burridge, of Century House, Pleasant Point, is teaching the course, and this week was also guest speaker at the assembly of all registrants which follows the lessons. She talked about "Collecting as a hobby" being well-equipped for her subject, since she and her husband are internationally known collectors of antiques, period furniture, knick-knacks, etc.

She has divided her lesson program to cover the five principals of decorating and this week gave notes and explanatfons on "type" or "flavour," from 18th century cottage style to modern, present day trends. Next week she will deal with color, as a background. Several lessons will be given later on re-furnishing furniture.

The bridge, the smocking and the rug making classes will be continuing to progress steadily each week, under competent guidance. Good starts were made in each this week.

Exciting Fashions Shown At Major Bennett Harvest Tea

Members of the Major Bennett Chapter, IODE, are among Peterborough's most stylish young matrons so it was particularly fitting that they should present, during their "harvest tea" on Wednesday afternoon, a style show of glamorous "after five" and evening dresses. With the festive season not far off, interest in the late day fashions was perhaps keener. The crowd of nearly 300 on hand for the half hour parade which began at four o'clock filled the tea room in the YWCA and spilled over into the hallway.

Modelling the exciting clothes were Miss Bunny Hutchison, Mrs. T. P. McMillan, Mrs. D. Wilson Mrs. M. Knox, Mrs. G. Harrison, Mrs. R. J. Garner, Mrs. D. Ireland and Miss Marjory Lacheur, and commentator was Mrs J. R. Hewitt. Soft piano music was played during the show by Mrs. M. McBride.

Richness and color of the materials used in the 20 creations shown and elegance in the good lines and fine dressmaker details of the designs was notable. This fall, milady will sweep in with a rustle—of luxurious brocade, iridescent taffeta and lavish silk. Her voluminous skirts will be held out over a starched crinoline which she will "hook up" before she sits down and "kick out" before she walks. But she will be in good style too if she prefers the straight slim skirt.

Texture was highlighted by the fall colors, from amber to rich coppery browns, rich olive and moss greens and cavalier red. Neutral tones of grey, brown and black were accessorized with startling bright colors or touched with satin, brocade and velvet trim. Becoming little hats with wisps of veiling and glittering jewelry effectively portrayed the complete "look" for fall '51.

Paradoxically, the most admired dress in the revue was the plainest and simplest. Of eggshell ottoman it is designed with pyramid shoulders and a slashed neckline in black, velvet, and the skirt, with pockets in the side seams that are banded in the velvet, had soft unpressed pleats at the front and a slight flare in the back. The belt is of black velvet too, with a rhinestone buckle. It was modelled by Miss Hutchison.

Newest innovation is the "can-can" dress, worn by Mrs. Harrison. The short version evening frock of shimmering black chiffon velvet is cut sheath-like and gathered in figure-flattering folds from the strapless bodice to the can-can kick of silk net frothing out at the left knee. A matching short stole is cleverly domed to fit around the shoulders.

A cocktail and dancing dress of heavy flowing taffeta, worn by Mrs. Wilson, featured applique in black velvet and glittering sequins on the strapless bodice and an apron panel sweeping out over the full skirt front.

The floor-length evening concoctions were frothy with many skirts of net, held wide with crinolines and taffeta underskirts, and net stoles thrown gracefully around the shoulders. A model of black taffeta and net, worn by Mrs. Garner, seemed almost entirely skirt and had a large taffeta bow perched on the hip. Miss Lacheur modelled the only one-fabric gown, of attention-getting cavalier and red silk taffeta with nipped-in waist, and swirling skirt over crinoline.

Tea Served

Tea guests were served dainty refreshments before and after the fashion show by the charming hostesses. The tea table, placed by a west window to allow runway for the models, reflected the autumn sunlight and was decorated in keeping with arrangement of golden and yellow 'mums and yellow tapers.

The harvest theme was carried out in other decorations in the room, showing seasonal fruits and vegetables, ripened grain and maple leaves colored with first fall frosts. It was the work of Mrs. B. E. Metcalfe and Miss Jessie Johnson.

Tickets were selling on a hand-made bag, donated as a draw prize by Mrs. T. Gaskell. The winner was decided at close of the tea when Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, honorary regent, drew Mrs. C. L. Upper's ticket.

Small plants were sold by Mrs. R. G. Clarke and Mrs. R. R. Reid and home baking by Mrs. S. Lockington and Mrs. J. L. Evans.

The tea room conveners were Mrs. D. Murray and Mrs. W. Laird and their assistants were Mrs. E. M. Malcolmn, Mrs. J. B. Raine, Mrs. S. J. Constable, Mrs. D. Hill, Mrs. D. W. Clarke, Mrs. R. G. Kemp, Mrs. D. T. Craig, Mrs. J. Twigg and Mrs. G. A. Barns. Pouring tea were Mrs. G. K. Fraser, Mrs. C. G. Kingan, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. Frances Craig and Mrs. C. E Staunton.

Admission tickets were taken by Mrs. Wm. Nash and the guests were then received by the regent, Mrs. William Taylor, and by the honorary regent and vice-regent, Mrs. W. G. Hall and Mrs. R. E. Clarke.

In an atmosphere considerably noisier and frequently rent with mournful wails, three chapter members conducted a nursery service for the members assisting with the tea and the mothers of young children attending. Only once did they resort to calling the mother from the tea room to console her tearful daughter. Surprisingly, it was the older children who mostly gave them trouble. These attendants were Mrs. H. L. Hamley, Mrs. H. K. Fallis and Mrs. Arthur Glassford.

General convener of the tea was Mrs. R. E. Gibbons.

DOROTHY DIX

When Repentant Suitor Does Not Deserve A Chance

DEAR MISS DIX: For about a ear I went steady with a young ellow 21—a year older than I. lans were being made for our edding when he suddenly left e. During the year we went out, e borrowed considerable amounts f money from me, and now owes e quite a bit. Also during that ear we broke up several times ut were always reunited.

Dorothy Dix

Now four months have passed since I last saw him and he has declared himself ready to square things with me, but he also wants me to go out on dates with him. Because of the way he has treated e before, my parents do not approve of him. I still feel I am n love with him and will easily orgive him for the mistakes he as made. The question is should follow my parents' advice or y own heart?

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Follow your own eart and it will surely be brok- n! When you have been shown conclusively—not once, but any times—that your young an has absolutely no considera- ion for you, how can you even onsider going through the whole ycle again? One or two mistakes ould be forgiven, but a series of em, repeated over and over, ould certainly make any young lady of sense weigh her future carefully and see the pitfalls ahead in continuing with such a one as your erstwhile sweetheart.

Give Him Up

If you take him back, there'll be more borrowing, more sudden breaks, more heartaches for you. Haven't you had enough? If by chance you should get this man to the altar, you'll rue the day. He hasn't the stability to make a good friend—how could he ever be a faithful, dependable husband?

Take your parents' advice by all means. They have your interests at heart and from the vantage point of time and experience can see quite clearly the kind of marriage your sponging friend will give you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am 16 years old and botherd with freckles. I have so many of them that they make me ugly. I am often told I would be pretty if it were not for my freckles. I am popular in school in spite of them, but would like to have a clear complexion. Could you help me?

C. E.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Nonsense. Freckles never made anyone ugly. In fact, they usually lend a piquant charm that is very attractive, and may be one of the reasons for your popularity at school. If you are determined to rid yourself of freckles, consult the very capable lady in charge of the cosmetic section of your local department store. There are numerour creams to aid in whitening your skin. Stop worrying about the situation or you'll acquire wrinkles that are neither cute nor easy to banish.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 16 years old and in love with a boy 20. He treats me like a child. How can I make him realize I am grown up? He is now in Korea. Do you think I should write to him?

JUDY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When you do grow up, Judy (and it will come soon enough), your friend will realize it and stop treating you like a child. Right now you are too young to take him, or any other young man, seriously.

By all means write to him if you wish, but remember, keep the letters friendly, chatty, cheerful. Don't write love letters!

Winnipeg Expert Stresses Need For Male Nurses

WINNIPEG—(CP)—The first school to train male nurses in the west, one of three in Canada, will be opened at Winnipeg General Hospital at the start of 1952.

Miss B. L. Pullen, hospital superintendent of nurses, is one of the leading forces behind the Winnipeg project. She says there has been a place for male nurses in Canada since before the Second World War.

At that time schools for male nurses were operating in the United States but the field was virtually untouched in Canada. In 1946 the Canadian Nurses Association conducted a survey on male nursing in the dominion, and found only two provinces had schools to train such nurses—Ontario and Nova Scotia.

Across Canada then there were only 94 male nurses who had graduated from qualified schools.

The situation was not much different in the United States. There were only 42 male nurses in the US in 1945 but the number had grown to 719 two years ago.

Qualifications for male students who enroll in the Winnipeg course are the same as those for feminine nurses. They will pay for their own uniforms and books but will be provided with maintenance. No salaries will be paid, but loans where necessary are made available by the government.

Dancer Rejects Stage For Roles On TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK—(AP)—If there's a shortage of young hopefuls on Broadway this season it might be blamed on television.

Take Jane Fischer, for example. The pretty brunette is a young dancer with ambition, but not Broadway ambition. She plans to stick to television and she proved it by turning down an offer of a role in a forthcoming Broadway show.

Jane prefers her spot in the ballet of a weekly television show called "Calvacade of Stars."

"In the first place," she says, "television pays better. I gave up TV work last year for a spot in 'Flahooley' — which ran five weeks. I figure I was paid about $800 for four months work. I get $130 a week on the 'Calvacade of Stars' and I can take on other work.

"I had a lead in a mystery show. That was $175. I've done commercials, too. TV brings in more money and I don't have to work anywhere near as hard."

Takes Lessons

She uses her leisure time to take lessons in singing, diction, dancing and drama.

"More people see you," she continued. "I'm a part of the ballet on television, but when you are performing for cameras you never know when you are suddenly doing a solo bit.

"There is much more opportunity for advancement—you never know when or what you are going to be called on to do. You never get bored in television. Finally, you get a chance to learn something about the technical end. You never have time for that in the theatre."

Stage Experience

Jane has packed a lot of experience into her 22 years. A St. Louis girl, she studied ballet as a child and had her first job with the St. Louis Municipal Opera. In New York she danced with the Radio City Music Hall Ballet.

After a few months, she wangled a spot in the "Oklahoma" ballet— and ultimately wound up with the Joan McCracken role of the girl who falls down, a considerable achievement.

She still had that part when the show finally went on the road. Then, in a Baltimore theatre, she crashed down and broke her pelvis.

Jane somehow finished her performance and was taken to hospital. She came back to New York on a stretcher for another two months in a hospital. It was a year before she attempted to dance again. She tried repeatedly. Each time the effort sent her back to the hospital.

"Finally I got a brace," she said. "I got a job selling handkerchiefs in a department store. Everyone told me I was through."

But she went back to St. Louis where her old teacher carefully worked her back to a point where she could dance again.

Then back to New York and television.

"I took that Flahooley job just to prove I could get back into the theatre," she said. "But now that I've proved it, I'm sticking to te[illegible]ion."

6—In Memoriam

BARRICK—In loving memory of William Barrick, who died October 18, 1948;
October comes with sad regret,
Of one we never shall forget.
Thy will be done seems hard to say,
When the one we loved was called away.
We miss his footfall on the stair,
We sadly gaze at his vacant chair,
We know he has gone to a better place
It is God's promise saved by grace.
—Remembered by his loving wife.

BARRICK—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, who passed away three years ago, Oct. 18, 1948.
Gone dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by son William, daughter-in-law Elizabeth and grandson Don.

BELL—In loving memory of Joseph Bell, who died Oct. 18, 1950.
When all is still and silent,
And sleep forsakes my eyes.
My thoughts are in the silent grave,
Where my dear husband lies.
—Sadly missed and fondly remembered by wife and family.

FOSTER—In loving memory of Raymond D. Foster, who passed away Oct. 18, 1944.
Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Ever remembered by wife and son.

FOSTER—In loving memory of our dear brother, Spr. R. D. Foster, who died of wounds in Belgium in 1944.
He sleeps in a foreign land,
In a grave we may never see.
May God guide some kind hand
To lay a flower for me.
—Lovingly remembered by brothers and sisters, Reg and Albert Foster, Mrs. Welch (Thelma) and Mrs. Hope (Dorothy).

FOSTER—In loving memory of our boy, Raymond, who passed away Oct. 18, 1944.
We lost a boy with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold,
Without a farewell, he fell asleep
With only happy memories for us to keep.
We have lost, but God has gained

Kinmount Cenotaph Rededicated By 600

LINDSAY, Oct. 18—Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion and the CGE pipe band took part in a rededication ceremony at the Kinmount cenotaph Sunday afternoon.

A crowd of nearly 600 witnessed the ceremony which marked the rededication of the cenotaph to Kinmount men who gave their lives in the Second World War.

Their names had been engraved on a new stone erected recently. Mrs. McGrath placed a wreath on the cenotaphy from the bereaved mothers, following the rededication by the Rev. P. C. Reed of Lindsay.

Led by the colors, a parade of Canadian Legion branches from Kinmount, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Lindsay, Lakefield and Peterborough, 100 strong, formed up at the Kinmount Legion Hall and paraded to the cenotaph.

Jack Corrie, of Sir Sam Hughes branch of the Canadian Legion, Lindsay, was parade marshall.

C. W. Hodgson, MP, Major Ewart Jones and C. O. Hodgson, reeve of Somerville township delivered short addresses at the cenotaph.

Bert Young, president of the John McGrath branch of the Canadian Legion, Kinmount, unveiled the cenotaph. William Gillehand read the names of the local men who died in the recent war.

Ernest Boswell of Lindsay branch of the Canadian Legion was master of ceremonies.

IT'S OFFICIAL—Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio announces, during a press conference in Washington, that he will be a candidate for the 1952 Republican presidential nomination. He is the first leading candidate to announce his intentions formally.

FAMOUS BASTION

The rock of Gibralter is 2¾ miles long, ¾ of a mile wide and 1,396 feet in height.

E. H. White Buried

The funeral for Elrick Henry White, 643 Charlotte St., was held Tuesday from his residence to St. Alphonsus Church for mass sung by the Rev. James Grannan, at 9 a.m.

Mr. White died Sunday. Graveside prayers were read at St. Peter's cemetery by the Rev. Robert McDonald, assisted by the Rev. Frank Mihelic. Funeral arrangements were directed by the Duffus funeral home.

Pallbearers were William Conroy, Edward English, Joseph Fitzpatrick, John Carroll, John Quinlan and John MacDonald.

WATCHING THEIR SMOKE—A horror-stricken crowd watches smoke billowing from blazing gasoline after a collision during a 100-mile championship stock-car race at Langhorne, Pa., Speedway. Driver Don Black was seriously injured and is in critical condition in a hospital. His mother witnessed the crack-up, which came while the automobiles were doing more than 80 miles-an-hour. It was the third accident of the afternoon, which saw nine men hurt.

done with goodwill and the spirit with which you have all seen him work."

"I know you are all going to miss him, but you are not going to miss him as much as I am."

K. J. Corkery, vice-president of the CGE described Mr. McRae as "highly intelligent and energetic." He said Mr. McRae "is going to take my place." He was elected about five years ago.

"You're awfully sorry to lose him, but you're awfully glad to see him get this promotion. He can do the most good for the most people in Toronto.

"You're going to lose a very good man, but you're going to get a very good man in his place."

Made History

Former mayor, James Hamilton said that with Mr. McRae directing it, the Peterborough CGE plant had made history in Peterborough during the Second World War. He said Peterborough was very proud of the record of the CGE in the city during the war.

He added that Mr. McRae had, during his years in the city, "given everyone something we didn't have when he came here."

Rising to speak to men who were honoring him, Mr. McRae said, "I feel totally unable to express to you tonight my feelings and my appreciation."

He thanked the gathering for sending to Mrs. McRae a bouquet of flowers that evening.

Observing that he had been the first to receive a gift from the city bearing a plaque inscribed with the new coat of arms, Mr. McRae said "that to me is a very special gift."

Mr. McRae recalled that when he had arrived in Peterborough the night of January 15, 1925, he had received a cold 15 degree belows zero reception, but said "the warmth here overwhelms me."

He said the value of the inscribed address "cannot be measured in dollars and cents and I will treasure it as long as I live."

Cushiest Job

Mr. McRae said the job of plant superintendent of the Peterborough CGE works was the "cushiest job in the whole company," not because there was no hard work connected with it, but because "all that goes to make a good living is right here in the city of Peterborough."

He said the company had tried to be a community enterprise, not just a big business.

He asked that all the church leaders, doctors and others who had helped and given him advice in his job to aid Mr. Girven as they had him.

"He'll do a better job than I ever did," said Mr. McRae of his successor.

"Peterborough is the home of my choice," Mr. McRae said. "My heart will always be here. There is not a better city in the Dominion of Canada than Peterborough."

Text of the scroll presented to Mr. McRae was:

"From the people of Peterborough to Ian Forbes McRae.

"For 27 years you have lived among us, giving the full force of your character and energy to the industry, the charities and whatever was for the betterment of our city. Nothing that was good lacked your active encouragement: the example of your career gave heart and hope to our young people: your friends were to be found everywhere.

"Now that you must leave us, we wish you to know that you take the affectionate goodwill of the people of Peterborough with you, and that wherever you may go, we shall always think of you as one of ourselves. Our deep esteem, which is not lightly given, is yours forever."

It was signed by Mayor Max Swanston, City Clerk E. A. Outram, His Excellency Bishop Gerald Berry, the Rev. C. G. Boyd, president of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, P. D. Scollard, president of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, and Robertson Davies, editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Chairman of the meeting was Councillor Dr. Herbert N. Young.

Toronto Man Offers Services

LONDON, Oct. 18 (CP)—Orchestra leader Frankie Barno said Wednesday he's looking for a Canadian with a corn-cake voice — but not necessarily all the way from Toronto.

Baron made known Tuesday his orchestra wants a Canadian to act as caller at British square dances. Today he received a telegram from Eric Oldaker of Toronto.

"Experienced caller interested your position," cabled Oldaker.

Baron says he'll file Oldaker's name away for reference. Meanwhile he's busy interviewing several Canadian prospects living in London now.

Interest in square dancing is something fairly new in Britain. Pictures of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh taking part in last Thursday's square dance at Ottawa's government house have helped stimulate interest here.

THIS WAS "HEARTBREAK"—Wounded UN troops are carried on stretchers from atop "Heartbreak Ridge" while an alert 30-calibre machine gun crew stands watch in the foreground. This sector, scene of some of the Korean War's bloodiest fighting, is now completely in Allied hands.

Canada Will Investigate The High Water Levels

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Representatives Harold Ostertag and Kenneth Keating, New York Republicans, said Wednesday Canadian officials have assured the United States State Department they will investigate causes of "ruinously" high Lake Ontario water levels.

The two New Yorkers, whose districts border this easternmost of the Great Lakes, contend the high water is caused by the Canadian-built Gut Dam, on the St. Lawrence River. It has resulted, they say, in "millions of dollars" damage to lakefront property.

They said that Army Secretary Frank Pace, who last week refused to find officially at their request that the dam caused the high water, now has notified them that "in view of their very deep interest" he has ordered a "restudy" of the matter.

Army engineers have conceded, the New Yorkers said, that the dam has raised the lake level six to eight inches—but that Pace "refused to find that this was a material effect."

The State Department has also advised them, they said, that Dominion residents on the Canadian side of the lake will ask their parliament to order installations of regulatory gates at the dam.

In Ottawa, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, said the matter has not yet been brought to his attention.

He said the Gut Dam was built about 25 years ago in the international section of the St. Lawrence River, between Lake Ontario and St. Regis, Que., after "comprehensive and careful study by both United States and Canadian engineers."

Had Bad Digestion, Dizzy Spells; Tired All The Time

Suffered With So Much Gas, Heartburn, Sour Stomach. Got Bad Headaches, Dizzy Spells — Tells of Relief He Got by Taking SYNTONA.

MR. GEORGE WALTERS

"After a hard summer's work on my farm I was feeling completely rundown and you will readily understand how pleased I am with the good results I got by taking Syntona," said Mr. George Walters, well known resident of Strathroy, Ontario, in a recent report.

"My stomach was acting up very badly. Food just soured in my stomach causing gas, heartburn and bloating and everything I ate disagreed with me. I slept poorly, had rheumatic aches and pains in my legs and joints and I felt tired out all the time. To make matters worse, almost every day I would get a throbbing headache and sick, dizzy feelings.

"Once before when I wan't feeling well Syntona had given me very satisfactory results, so I decided to try it again. I took it regularly, as I always do with a medicine, and the results I got are really remarkable. The trouble with my digestion is cleared up so I can eat anything once more. I have gained in strength, get a good night's sleep and don't get tired as I did before. Also, the rheumatic pain, headaches and dizziness are not troubling me now and I'm actually feeling like a different person."

Thousands of men and women when taking Syntona tell of the same relief from their suffering as that experienced by Mr. Walters. Why not give this pure Herbal Medicine a chance to help you, too?

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

Padbury Ordered To Remain Silent

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Canadian Legion Ontario Command officers said Wednesday they had ordered Arthur Padbury to remain silent at Tuesday night's inquest into a patient's death at Sunnybrook Hospital. The inquest was being held as a result of earlier charges by Padbury.

Padbury, Legion Provincial Service Bureau chairman, refused to retiterate charges after precipitating the investigations into the hospital set up when he claimed that conditions there were poor and that the hospital operated on a "sausage-factory treatment" system.

J. E. Morton Buried

NORWOOD, Oct. 18 (ENS)—The funeral of Joseph Edward Morton was held Monday afternoon at 2 p.m. from the residence of Thomas Hampton, RR 2, Warsaw with Mr. O. G. Shantz of the Gospel Hall, Peterborough, officiating.

Burial was in Polmont Cemetery, Trent river.

Mr. Morton died Saturday following a lingering illness.

Pall-bearers were Thomas Hampton, Gordon Biglow, Thomas Young, Delbert Crapp, Bernal Harvey, Edward Curtis.

As early as 1760, there were 30 sawmills in operation in Nova Scotia.

Jolliffe Pledges Hospital Plan

TORONTO, Oct. 18 — (CP) — E. B. Joliffe, Ontario CCF leader, Wednesday night promised establishment of a provincial hospital care program, an all-out attack on the housing problem and an adjustment of provincial-municipal relations if his party is elected in the November 22 Ontario general election.

He spoke at a nomination convention which chose Carroll Coburn as CCF candidate for Toronto Riverdale. The seat was held in the last House by Leslie E. Wismer, CCF, who has moved to Ottawa.

Mr. Joliffe said creation of a health plan has been part of the Ontario Liberal Party platform since 1919, yet nothing has been done about it.

"On the eve of the election, the Liberal leader (Walter Thomson) has again come forward with such a plan. But that is very late."

He said that three years ago Premier Frost promised a hospital care plan during a legislature debate.

"In the context in which this was said, this was undoubtedly a promise. But nothing has come of it."

UN Council Drops Iranian Debate Till Court Decision

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (AP)—The United Nations Security Council decided today to drop its debate on the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute until the International Court of Justice can rule on the council's legal competence to deal with the question. This means a delay of weeks, if not months, in further consideration of the case, which Britain contends is threatening the peace in the Middle East. The postponement was proposed by French delegate Francis Lacoste after it became apparent the Council was badly split on the question of competence and no positive action was possible.

The vote was 8 to 1, with Russia casting the only negative vote. No veto was involved, however, since the question was of a procedural nature. Britain, as a party to the dispute, and Yugoslavia abstained.

Prime Minnister Mohammed Mossadegh of Iran had fought council intervention bitterly on the ground that the oil dispute was a domestic question and thus not subject to UN action. He was backed by Russia and several other council members.

Done Their Part

When the postponement was voted, neither Mossadegh nor any other representative of Iran was present. They had taken part in the week of debate here but had announced at Wednesday's session that they had expressed their viwes and would not participate further.

Before the vote was taken, Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain said the council's refusal to deal with the Iranian question now "will diminish the authority of the council" in the future.

"There will be a tendency," he said, "not to appeal to the Security Council in the future. Since we reject the rule of law, then we go to the rule of anarchy."

Internal Matter

Some delegations,, including Russia, backed the Iranian view that the oil controversy was an internal matter for Iran to settle and therefore not within the council's jurisdiction. Others expressed doubts on this point but were willing to go ahead without getting into the question of competence.

As the council convened, neither Iran's Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh nor other members of the Iranian delegation was present. They previously had told the council they had stated their position and would not participate in further meetings.

Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb said he was convinced the council was competent to deal with the question but that he was aware that the minority in opposition was strong enough to prevent adoption of Britain's resolution for new talks.

Injured Hand In Argument Wyse's Story

PEMBROKE, Oct. 19 (CP) — James Wyse of Hamilton, brother of Lloyd Robert Wyse who is on trial for murder, testified today that his brother told him he had injured his hand in settling an argument.

Previous witnesses in the Ontario Supreme Court trial said the accused had told them he had injured his hand at work.

Wyse, 35-year-old Golden Lake plumber, is acused of slaying Lloyd Barber of Killaloe, 55-year-old taxi-driver and village councillor, last April 13.

James Wyse said he met his brother in Hamilton on April 14, and the accused told him that if any one questioned him, James Wyse was to say that he had seen his brother the previous day and that he had loaned him $1,400.

"Did you lend him $1,400?" asked Crown Prosecutor E. D. Wilkins of Sudbury.

"No," replied the witness.

"Had you seen him the day previously, Friday, April 13?" Mr. Wilkins asked.

"No," the witness replied.

He said when he had seen his brother on April 14, he noticed that one of his hands was swollen. He could not recall which hand.

"I asked him what happened to his hand," said the witness. "He said he had settled an argument."

Andrew Simons, Niagara Falls used car dealer, testified that he purchased a 1950 passenger car from the accused on April 13, paying him $1,700. The vehicle turned out to be one belonging to the slain taxi-driver.

Henry Reeves, clerk at the Wentworth Arms Hotel, Hamilton, identified the accused as the man who registered in the hotel as "R. O'Neil" on April 14.

The trial is continuing.

Atomic Blast Delayed Day

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Oct. 19 — (AP)—The opening blast of the Atomic Energy Commission's exercise Desert Rock was postponed this morning because of a mechanical failure.

The AEC issued this statement in connection with the delay of the blast, which was originally scheduled for any time after 5 a.m. PST:

"A nuclear detonation scheduled for this morning was postponed because of mechanical fault in a key electrical test circuit between the control point and the tower."

It was the first official confirmation that the A-weapon was being detonated from a tower.

"Weather permitting, we have every confidence that the mechanical fault can be fixed in time to hold the test Saturday," the spokesman said.

The AEC issued a notice late Thursday night to the Civil Aeronautics Administration to warn all pilots not to fly within a 20-mile radius of Las Vegas.

Maps Give Reds Right Seize Berlin Sector

BERLIN, Oct. 19 (AP) — Old maps confirmed today the Russian right to seize a small strip of land on the United States sector border of divided Berlin.

East German Communist police moved into the territory Thursday night and took possession, transferring 50 families from Western to Eastern control.

West Berlin police, rechecking the official land register, said today the village—Steinstuecken—was traditionally a part of the East German state of Brandenburg until 1945.

In the post-war confusion, the village adopted US sector ways, used western currency and even voted in the West Berlin elections.

Egypt Starts Boycott Against UK

British Ships Sent To Guard Suez Canal Area

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 19. (AP) —Backed by growing sea, land and air forces, Britain today tightened her hold on the strife-ridden Suez Canal area and moved against Egyptian officials in the vast Sudan area south of Egypt.

With British naval guns trained on the Suez, authoritative sources here said Sudan's British Governor-General, Sir Robert G. Howe, told two top Egyptian officials not to return to their posts there for the time being "on grounds of public order."

Local newspapers said the Egyptian government had ordered the officials back to Khartoum.

Britain and Egypt control the Sudan jointly under 1899 agreement which the Egyptian Parliament tore up Monday night at the same time it cancelled the treaty permitting British garrisons along the Suez. Britain said she will not recognize Egypt's one-sided action.

The officials reported barred from the Sudan were Brig.-Gen. Abdel Fattah Bisheri, chief Egyptian staff officer there, and Mohammed Abdul Hadi, Controller-General of Education. They were reported in Cairo.

Trying For Coalition

Pro-Egyptian leaders in Khartoum were reported trying to form a coalition of all parties to support the Egyptian Parliament's proclamation of King Farouk of Egypt as ruler of the Sudan.

The pro-government newspaper Al Balagh said here that British authorities in the Sudan had OTTAWA, Oct. 19 — (CP) — Reginald M. Brophy, top-notch Canadian radio and electronics industrialist, today was appointed co-ordinator of Canada's $3,500,000,000 defence production program.

The 51-year-old head of the Rogers Majestic Electronicst Company and the Canadian Radio Manufacturing Corporation, Toronto, succeeds Crawford Gordon, Jr., former co-ordinator who left Monday to become president of the Avro Aricraft Company at Malton, Ont.

Announcing the appointment, Production Minister Howe said Mr. Brophy will temporarily relinquish his responsibilities with his companies and join the department on a full-time basis.

It is expected he will assume his new duties early in November.

THE LARGEST INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION IN PETERBOROUGH since the days of the Second World War is now going on at the Canadian General plant. Here a new building is being erected which when completed will occupy more ground space than the entire block on which the new city hall is built. The building is to house departments which have already outgrown the space which is allotted to them in the other buildings. —Examiner Staff Photo

Parliament To Get New Legislation At This Session

OTTAWA, Oct. 19. (CP) — Legislation to boost war veterans' disability pensions will be introduced at this session of Parliament, Veterans Minister Lapointe announced today.

He declined, when asked by opposition leader George Drew, to say what the increases will consist of or whether they will go right across the board of the basic pension rates.

Mr. Lapointe told the Commons, too, that a special committee will be established at the next session to study improvements in the War Veterans Allowance Act. The allowances are paid to aged and needy veterans, many of them pensioners.

Indicating government sympathy for further aid to allowance recipients, Mr. Lapointe said changes recommended by the committee could be made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1952, the date on which the universal old-age pension system goes into effect.

Reds Accept Allied Plan For Compromise

MUNSAN, Korea, Oct. 19 (AP) —Liaison officers agreed today on the size of the neutural zones around Kaesong and Munsan, thus clearing the biggest hurdle in the path of reopening Korean truce talks.

Only two other points remained in dispute.

The feeling at United Nations advance headquarters was that armistice negotiations might be resumed in a few days ending a two-month breakdown.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, UN command spokesman, cautioned:

"Any point, however small, remains a point of contention that will block resumption of armistice talks."

However, he was "cautiously optimistic," and said the "most important" point was cleared up today.

The Communists accepted a UN compromise proposal for security zones with a three-mile radius around headquarters of the opposing truce teams in Kaesong and Munsan. The Communists had wanted five-mile zones such as surrounded Kaesong when it was the site of negotiations.

The liaison officers promptly tackled the two other questions: (1) whether to create a security corridor along the road linking Munsan and Kaesong with Panmunjom, the new truce site. (2) Whether aircraft should be banned from flying over the protected areas.

They'll take them up again at 10 a.m. Saturday (8 p.m. Friday EST).

The Reds want a corridor along the road. They reduced their demand from a three-mile wide corridor to one two miles wide.

Canada Supports UK On Suez

OTTAWA, Oct. 19. (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said today Canada feels it is of major importance that control of the Suez Canal not be wrested from Britain. In a statement to the Commons, he gave Canada's moral support to the US-UK view that Egypt's abrogation of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty is invalid and that the Suez should remain under British control. Mr. Pearson said Canada has informed London that "the Canadian Government considers it of major importance for the security of the free world and indeed for the maintenance of peace itself that no action should be taken to alter, by force, the present regime of responsibility of the UK for the defence of the Suez Canal zone."

Without saying what Canada feels of the outbreaks of violence between British forces and Egyptians Mr. Pearson said Canada has welcomed assurances "which we have received from the UK government that . . . they are doing their best, and will continue to do their best, to avoid incidents and violence."

The statement was requested by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

Canada, said Mr. Pearson, "regrets exceedingly" Egypt's repudiation of the 1936 treaty and said it is all the more regrettable because "alternative arrangements were under discussion with Egypt at the time the repudiation took place."

Pakistan's New Government Unlikely To Change Policy

KARACHI, Oct. 19. (AP)—Pakistan's new government—which officially starts functioning today—is expected to make little change in the late Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan's policies at home and abroad.

People who know Liaquat's successor, former Governor-General Khwaja Nazimuddin, predict he will stick close to the national program of reform and growth laid down by his predecessor.

Liaquat, first prime minister of the four-year-old Moslem country, was shot to death last Tuesday by a fanatic Afghan.

Toward the United States, Nazimuddin likely will follow Liaquat's example of friendliness.

In his handling of relations with neighboring India — the dispute over Kashmir and other conflicts —his associates expect Nazimuddin to be as firm as the man who preceded him. But not necessarily more firm, they quickly added.

The Dominion's new governor-general, named by the King, is Pakistan's personable former finance minister, Chulam Mohammed.

As he and the new administration took over today, the shocked capital slowly returned to normal activity.

Bands of teen-aged youths swarmed through Karachi's streets Thursday threatening to smash stores which stayed open in violation of a two-day mourning period. But by nightfall many shops were open and the city presented its usual noisy bustle.

Plane Strikes Reef, 5 Killed

NASSAU, Bahamas, Oct. 19—(AP)—Five of the nine persons aboard a United States air force plane from the Cocoa, Fla., guided-missile base were killed Thursday in a crash off Nassau.

Four others were saved by air-sea rescue units and were brought to Nassau.

An officer at the Cocoa base said the plane had taken off from Nassau enroute to Mayaguana Island, where a guided-missile tracing station is being built.

One survivor said "the starboard engine failed and while we were triyng to keep altitude the oil line bursting in the port engine and she failed. The ship struck water, bounced high into the air, and then crashed into a reef."

Flares False Clue

HALIFAX, Oct. 19 (CP) — Planes of two countries turned away from a false clue today and continued their search for a giant United States stratofreighter, missing since Monday with its 11-man crew.

An official at Pepperell air force base, near St. John's Nfld., said flares spotted from the air Thursday night had been dropped by search planes which have been scouring the Atlantic. They were dropped for navigational purposes.

Some 100 aircraft—including two squadrons from the RCAF base at Greenwood, NS—are taking part in the search.

NKVD Guarding Briton's Wife

LONDON, Oct. 19 (CP)—The Foreign Office has changed a statement that the Russian-born wife of a Briton has been kidnapped in Moscow but officials say the woman no longer is a free agent.

The earlier story was that 29-year-old Mrs. Iraida Ricketts, whose husband lives in London, was taken away in a taxi after a show Tuesday night.

Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison asked the Russians Thursday to take "urgent steps" to obtain her release.

Mrs. Ricketts gave a surprise press conference Thursday night to Western newsapermen to deny the British story of her "disappearance." She said she met her brother after the theatre and drove with him to her mother's house.

She also said she did not intend going back to her typist's job at the British Embassy in Moscow.

In London, her husband, 49-year-old William Ricketts, refused to believe she was speaking of her own free will. He charged the NKVD (the Russian political police) with being behind it all.

Following her telephoned resignation Thursday, the British Foreign Office said in a statement, British Embassy officials called at Mrs. Rickett's home to return her belongings. Seven members of the Russian security police were on guard about the house, the statement said.

Japanese Won't Send Troops Off Mainland

TOKYO, Oct. 19 (AP) — Japan will not send its national police reserve—the country's only armed force—outside the islands even if the United Nations requests it, Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida said today.

"I do not think the UN will demand it," he told a parliamentary committee. "My belief is that the UN would never make a demand on Japan on a matter which violates the Japanese constitution and which is incompatible with Japanese capabilities.

"But even if it should tell us, I, as prime minister, will refuse it."

The committee is studying the Japanese Peace Treaty and the US-Japan security pact, signed last month.

New French Fighter

PARIS, Oct. 19 (Reuters)—Air experts said Thursday that France's newest jet fighter—the "mystere"—proved superior to an American F-86 Sabre jet in a recent high-altitude mock dogfight. But the Sabre, generally considered the world's best fighter plane, was reported to have put up a better low-altitude performance. The Mystere is powered by a British jet engine.

Can Keep 12,000 Canadians In Europe By Gov't Order

OTTAWA, Oct. 19—(CP)—The defence department is empowered to garrison up to 12,000 soldiers and airmen in Europe under a cabinet order-in-council tabled in the Commons Thursday by Defence Minister Claxton.

At the same time he disclosed that the government is opening the way for a debate on Canada's commitments in Korea and Europe by presenting a resolution asking for parliament's approval of the steps necessary to meet those obligations.

The defence department already is empowered to post up to 15,000 soldiers, airmen and sailors abroad in connection with the Korean war, meaning that a maximum of 27,000 Canadian servicemen now may be sent out of the country to fulfill obligations to the United Nations and North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Mr. Claxton informed the house that the army's 27th brigade group will begin to move to the Hannover area of Germany early in November and that the movement will be completed by mid-December. It will be grouped with British, Belgian and Netherlands forces.

The RCAF's No. 410 Fighter Squadron, equipped with F86E Sabret jet planes, will go to England next month aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent to begin the air contribution which will eventually grow into an 11-squadron air division.

Can Express Opinion

In addition to the order-in-council empowering the land and air contributions, the minister announced that Prime Minister St. Laurent is going to place on the order paper a motion which will give members a chance to express their opinions about continuation of Canada's air support for the UN in Korea and for the Atlantic Pact in Europe.

No exact figures have been given out about the number of Canadian soldiers to go abroad with the brigade or the number needed for the air division.

However, the brigade is expected to take between 5,000 and 6,000 men and the air division, with supporting elements, would eventually require about 7,000.

UN Troops Make Small Gains, Reds Stiffen

US EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Oct. 19 (AP) —Allied big guns pounded Kumsong today as tank-supported UN infantrymen fought to within two miles of the former Communist bastion on the central front.

Reds stubbornly resisted attacking United Nations' troops in almost every fighting sector. The Allies failed to take two hills on the western front in day-long battles.

Planes, tanks and infantrymen battled fresh Chinese replacements deeply entrenched in the last major ridge line south of Kumsong. The Reds used heavy mortar and artillery fire in an attempt to slow UN infantrymen pushing northward in the seventh day of their central offensive.

But southwest of Kumsong, Allied ground forces captured two hills against "surprisingly-light resistance," a briefing officer reported. Fifty-two Chinese were taken prisoner.

Riddle Supplies

Artillery supporting the Kumsong offensive fired 1,000 rounds into the Communist road hub. They concentrated on stores of supplies left there by Reds who appeared to have deserted their former stronghold.

Fiercest resistance was southeast of Kumsong. Air strikes, tank fire and infantry assaults failed to bulge Reds clinging to a sharp, high peak overlooking a valley.

Entrenched Chinese on the western front held two hills northwest of Yongchon against day-long Allied assaults. On one hill troops fought at hand-grenade range for more than two hours before UN infantry pulled back.

Allies Offer Germany Deal

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Oct. 19 (AP). — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said today the western allies have offered to bring all Germany into a western defence system if West Germany can be reunited as a free nation with the east zone, now occupied by the Russians.

His announcement was made in a speech prepared for delivery at the annual congress of his Christian Democrat party. It was apparently part of the counter-offensive against Communist attempts to balk West German rearmament by pressing for unification of the country.

Adenauer said the United Nations offer to investigate possibilities of a free all-German election was a big step toward bringing about German unity. But he warned against any idea of German neutrality even if the country is reunited.

Modern Princess Has Man-Killing Job

US Reporters Wonder How Elizabeth Stands Pace, They Can't

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

EN ROUTE WITH THE ROYAL TOUR, Oct. 19 (AP)—Story-book Princesses had it good. A modern Princess has inherited a man-killing job.

Every American on this transcontinental junket with Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh has sharply revised his conception of Royalty. The trappings may be glamorous, but this tour is a long, unbroken ordeal. Both the Princess and her husband are showing definite signs of shattering deep fatigue.

Fragile, slender Elizabeth is quite pale, but sticks to a make-up consisting of only powder and lipstick. There's a look of strain on her young face.

Reporters straggling along on aching feet feel complete and utter sympathy for the Royal couple. The Princess, as disciplined as a soldier, spares herself little. It is really a remarkable performance when she is able to stand quietly and correctly for hours on endless reception lines accepting curtseys and bows with an interested face.

Not Sight-Seeing Visit
